Six Weeks' Preparation for Rodeo and Home-Coming Consummated as Gates Open at 2 P. M. Today

Gatesville has turned Rodeo-minded! On every hand, it's Rodeo! the hotels have cowhands, cow girls galore! Big hats are appearing, as well as boots and spurs, lariats, hoeses, fancy shirts, chaps, saddles, bridles, or what-have-you. There are loads of feed for the animals. Even Glenn Hendrickson and R. L. (Bob) Saunders are all macked out in rodeoical garb, having boots, spurs and big hats.

Jack Hoey, of San Antonio, is here, the announcer who calls the events, in the booming voice he has, which is known thruout the rodeo world. In conversation with "Jock" while visiting Rancho WPA, Gatesville's Athletic field, he said: "I've made all the rodeos big and little, and you've got the finest lay-out for a real show that I have ever seen outside the world famous rodeos. I was really surprised to see the equipment and location of this rodeo. Too, the rodeo secretary, Elland Lovejoy has his records in the best shape I've seen anywhere be-sidies at an established show like the Ft. Worth Fat Stock Show or similar shows. It's certainly going to be a pleasure to me to call the events at this show, which I can assure, with the stock I've seen, is going to be a humdinger."

All along, in the wagon yard, "the hands," wranglers, and riders were recounting old stories of other rodeos, swapping yarns, greeting opponents and looking over equipment. In the crowd, there was also a scattering of the fair sex, also togged in the latest for ladies of the saddle and bridle, one lady telling how she encountered a post in one of the recent rodeos when riding a tough customer.

Beginning today at noon, or shortly afterward, the parade will form composed of bands, floats, bicycles, riders, motorcycles, automobiles, and many other vehicles, presaging the performance for Gatesville's extravaganza of wild horses, Brahmas, cows and other varmint of the range, which will start at 2:00 p. m. today and tomorrow.

Messrs. Digby and Spence are busily looking over the final arrangements, which will assure a fast moving rodeo, with events coming off in rapid succession. A sound truck furnished by Hicks Rubber Company of Waco will be here to disseminate rodeoical information to the thousands who will pack the stands at each performance. Included will also be specialties about which we will not speak, but you're going to see a real show, and have a real time as has never before been experienced by a Coryell County audience in the past.

Although no definite information can be gleaned about just where the parade will form, the corner of Lutterloh and East Main will probably be the starting since most of the parades heretofore, have made up either there or near the school building, which would probably be the best place. As far as we know, nothing or nobody is barred from strutting their stuff in this parade.

Everything above all expenses of the rodeo will be donated to the Gatesville Public Schools.

Conoco Bulk Station Burglarized Sat. Of Twenty-One Cases Oil

Friday night, or early Saturday morning, burglars entered the Continental Oil Company station here and took twenty-one cases of lubricating oil. Each case of oil either contains, 24 one quart cans or four 5 quart cans of oil, making the total loss between four and five hundred quarts of oil. So far, no arrests have been made, and no positive clues picked up. Troy H. Jones is the local agent. It is understood the oil was insured by the company.

A large truck was used in making the "haul" and was backed up to the oil house, the lock was broken and the burlars unloaded and reloaded the oil and left town between rains in the early hours Saturday morning.

Sheriff Joe White thinks this is only a part of a gang which is operating throughout the state, moving the oil to metropolitan centers.

DR. KERMIT JONES ELECTED PRESIDENT LIONS CLUB

At the regular Wednesday meeting of the Lions, Dr. Kermit R. Jones was elected President of the club for the coming year. Other officers were George Painter, Bill Weigand and Gene Alvis, First, Second and Third Vice Presidents respectively; Horace Jackson, Spizenrincter; W. E. Lasseter, Secretary and Treasurer; and directors, Dr. Otis Ray, Hurl J. McClellan, W. C. Guggolz and Dr. John Thomas Brown.

A most interesting program was presented by Mrs. Francis Crist and two of her pupils, Misses Frances McCoy and Patsy Olsen, who were presented in brief skits of the poem, "Hiawathia" accompanied at the piano by Jack Reesing.

Willis Jones was a guest at the luncheon.

COMMISSIONER'S COURT IS REQUESTED TO BUY HWY. 7 RWY.

Request has been received from Gatesville west, for Highway 7. No length or distance was given, and it is not known whether the complete right of way will be bought at this time or not, but some will be bought.

No information was given as to when the actual work would begin, but negotiations for the purchase of this right of way will be started sometime in the near future. There seemed to be no apparent rush for this right of way.

"REGISTER" AT THE NEWS BOOTH NEAR RODEO GROUNDS

To check up on the visitors, who come to Gatesville for the First Annual Rodeo and Home-Coming, the News will have a booth near the Rodeo Arena, or inside, during the performance, at which out of town visitors will be asked to register, and souvenirs will be given them.

Anyone, whether visitors or not, may register and get the souvenir book which the News will have for you in the unmissable booth which will be conveniently located for the public.

BABY DROWNS IN CROCK OF WATER NEAR STRAWS MILL; FUNERAL THUR.

The fifteen months old infant of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Fulton of near Straws Mill was drowned Wednesday morning at their home when it fell or slipped into a ten gallon crock which contained about two gallons of water.

A doctor was immediately called, but not being able to get in touch with him the parents started to the local hospital, when a tire blew out on the car, and another had to be commandeered. The baby was dead before it reached the hospital.

Funeral services were held at 3:00 p. m. yesterday in a local cemetery.

"THE RED HAWK PROGRAM" AT SIX-THIRTY A. M. TO PUBLICIZE CITY

Information has been furnished by the local Chamber of Commerce to the "Red Hawk Program," which will be broadcast over WBAP and WFAA at 6:30 on Friday, today, giving information regarding Gatesville and the vicinity.

This is part of the program, known as "Know Your State Better," which is promoted and produced by the "Red Hawk Program."

This is a break for Coryell County and Gatesville, and although this letter was received too late to inform our readers on Friday we hope many were up early enough to have heard it. On Saturday this program is on at 12:30, but it will not necessarily carry the Gatesville program at that hour.

TWO YOUNG COUPLES ARE INJURED WHEN CAR OVERTURNS

Misses Bonnie and Jimmie Young, sisters of Pancake, and their escorts, Alec Hodnett of Jonesboro and W. G. Sellers of Turnersville were injured Wednesday night when their car overturned at the junction of the Gatesville-Turnersville Road and Turnersville-Liberty Church Road about 8:30 p. m. (before the rain.) The car skidded at the sharp turn off a bridge, turned over, went through a fence and landed in a field. Miss Jimmie Young received a five inch laceration on the scalp, and her sister, Miss Bonnie, a severe bruise on her left shoulder. The boys, W. G. Seller a broken right arm and Hodnett, who owned the car and was driving, several minor bruises.

The young couples had been to Turnersville, where they were to have been in a play, but due to inclement weather, the play had been postponed, and they were enroute to Gatesville. Hodnett was driving a Ford V-8, '34 model. They were taken to the Milton Powell Memorial Hospital where immediate attention was given them.

EARL HUDDLESTON SAYS THE LEGISLATURE SHOULD HURRY UP

Earl Huddleston, State Representative from this District, composed of Hamilton and Coryell counties, states in a letter to the News, that "I regret that a Special Session was necessary, so I am taking the position that the Legislature should act on the Race Horse bill, which was submitted by the Governor, as soon as possible.

"It looks now like the House will pass the bill out today, (June 1), and I hope the Senate will at least act on the bill and relieve the people of further extra expense. I do not know whether the Governor will submit any other subjects this session or not, but I do know that I am in favor of attending to the business of the people as quickly as possible and returning home."

Mr. Huddleston is justly impatient to be at home and to finish up the business of the State at Austin, and in this he has been a valuable member of the House in representing this district.

ALVIN R. IRBY, EDITOR OF COPPERAS COVE CRONY, HERE WEDNESDAY

Alvin R. Irby, editor of the Copperas Cove Crony, was a pleasant caller at the News office Wednesday of this week. While he was in the city selling advertising and calling on various offices in the city.

Mr. Irby is taking care of the south end of the county with his publication. While here he stated some people in and near Copperas Cove would be with us for the Rodeo and Home-Coming who had not been in Gatesville in some time.

The News, as well as all Gatesville extends a special invitation to this good part of Coryell County, and are hoping this section of the county will favor us with more and more visits so that we may come to know these fine folks better.

Notes from County Supt.'s Office

Schools of Coryell County will all be closed by the end of this week. The system at present is composed of twenty five seven grade school, fourteen nine grade schools, and ten eleven grade schools. Eight out of the ten eleven grade schools are fully affiliated. The possibility of some affiliation for the nine and ten grade schools during this school year is very promising. The affiliation of the State Juvenile School is hardly to be expected at any time since its student body is composed of persons who stay put one or two years at a time.

Ten of the fourteen nine grade schools are Standard at present. Two others are making application for standardization for the present year. These two have always done a good grade of work but were unable account of the number of grades taught last year to meet teacher load requirements. Application for standardization is a voluntary matter. It carries with it some privileges but makes some restrictions. Two schools that have but two teachers met requirements this year. The two excellent schools enjoying this distinction this year are Slater, No. 4, and Enterprise, No. 91. There are twenty-one schools applying for standardization at present. Short terms will prevent some of these from the desired goal.

The closing programs throughout the county have been well attended and seem to be beneficial as education factors.

The County School Board at its May meeting classified the schools of Coryell County according to the state schedule, with the suggestion that local boards who felt that the best interest of the children their particular school required reclassification should come before the County Board at its June or July Meeting and make know their reasons for the request.

The County Board will meet on June 16 unless otherwise stated through the local press.

The spring meeting of the trustees of all schools in the county will be called as soon as the legislature completes its work and state aid and kidred school policies for the coming school year. The State department will, with the State Board, outline policies under the laws passed by the Legislature. Our General trustee meeting will help us to be informed at once on school plans.

It is hoped that as many teachers and school friends as possible will attend some of the sessions of the Curriculum Conference held in Waco at Baylor University on Friday and Saturday, June 4th and 5th. Term reports and book reports as soon as convenient. The County Report can not be begun until every school has reported.

NICARAGUAN CANAL

Japan has under consideration a plan calling for construction of battleships of 50,000 tonnage carrying 18 inch guns and capable of 30 knots. The maximum tonnage of battleships now afloat is 35,000 tons; the largest guns, 16-inch.

Obviously, if Japan constructs four of these super-battleships, as planned, the other major naval powers will do likewise in order that their slower, battleships will not be antedated. The United States will surely follow suit, entailing continued expenditures for the naval branch of the defense in the years ahead.

But in this article we are concerned with only one problem arising from the almost certain construction of larger warships in the immediate future. This is a problem which is of as much interest to commerce as it is to defense: the construction of a canal through the Central American Republic of Nicaragua.

Let it be emphasized at the beginning that a Nicaraguan canal is no far fetched dream. As far back as 1926 Henry Clay, Secretary of State, created a commission to investigate the possibilities of a canal connecting the Atlantic with the Pacific and receiving a favorable report on a canal through Nicaragua. In 1876 a commission reported "the greater advantages and fewer difficulties" than any other link between the two oceans.

In 1916 the United States won treaty rights to a naval base on Corn Island, in Nicaragua's Gulf of Fonseca, and canal option for $3,000,000. Ten years later the Seventieth Congress authorized the Corps of Engineers of the Army to survey possible Nicaraguan routes.

After two years Army topographers of the Twenty-ninth Engineer Battalion emerged from the heated jungles with their report, advocating a canal 172.8 miles long and costing $722,000,000. Ten years would be required for the completion of the project.

From the stand point of defense and the length of time required for the construction of the canal, the need is for an immediate authorization of surveys and construction by this session of Congress. Two bills have been introduced which would accomplish these aims. In the House, Rep. Carl Vinson, Chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, and in the Senate, Senator David I. Walsh, Chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, are pressing for enactment of their identical bills.

The Panama Canal has permitted the navy to be separated yet strategically concentrated at any potential danger spot. But there is no assurance this route could be kept open and free from destruction in time of combat with some Pacific or European state. Destruction of the canal would mean that the navy must travel 13,000 miles around the strates of Magellan to reach the opposite ocean.

It is known that an earthquake could put the Panama Canal out of commission for weeks, during which time Uncle Sam's fleet would be isolated in either the Pacific or the Atlantic, while along the proposed Nicaraguan route flat rolling plains preclude the possibility of earthquakes.

The greatest argument for a Nicaraguan Canal is not the vulnerability of the Panama Canal to attack from the air or from the sea, or the possibility of its being rendered useless by natural causes. A truth which no one can get around is that battleships larger than those afloat cannot travel through the Panama Canal.

The American aircraft carriers Lexington and Saratoga are of the maximum width and length that the Panama Canal can accommodate. None of the battleships afloat today exceeds 35,000 tons. Yet the practicability of 50,000-ton warships has been proved and there is the distinct possibility if not probability of their immediate construction in the shipyards of Nippon. Is there any doubt that the U. S. will follow the course of the Land of the Rising Sun in building 50,000-ton, 30-knot battleships, and that the other world powers will do likewise? And if this is done, how are these ships to be shifted from one ocean to another as is common practice? Barring the construction of a canal through Nicaragua, there are only two alternatives for the Navy Department to follow: construct two fleets, one for the Atlantic and another of the Pacific, which of course would be prohibitive in cost; shift the fleet from one water body to the other day route around south-5 day route around the southern end of South America.

Aside from the great naval advantage which would accrue from the construction of the Nicaraguan Canal, there are commercial and political advantages which would also be enjoyed. Time on the New York to San Francisco route would be cut two days for passenger and freight vessels, and the heavy pressure of commercial traffic on the Panama Canal decreased. The Nicaraguan canal would be another tie of friendship binding this country with its Latin-American neighbors, strengthening the aims of President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull in this direction.

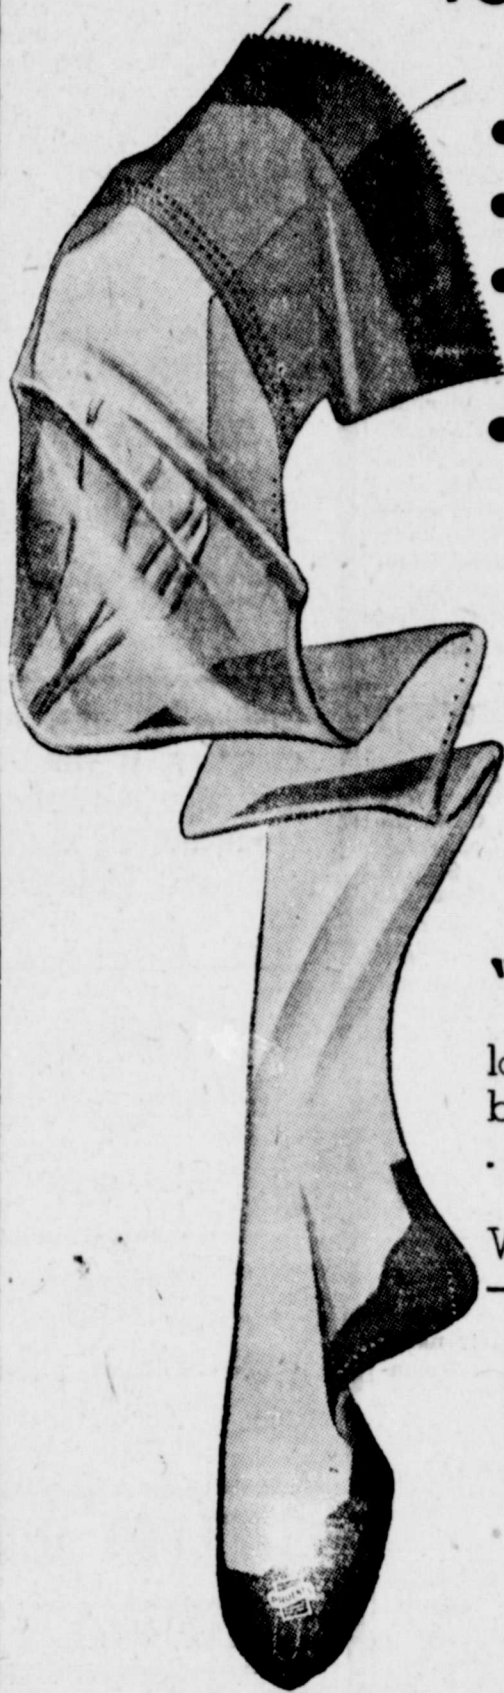

We hope the bills of Representative Vinson and Senator Walsh are not pigeon holed indefinitely, and that when they are presented on the floor, whether at this session of Congress or not, they will receive the support of the Texas delegation.

Miss Opal Dixon, who has been visiting in Dallas for the past week, has returned to her home near this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Richardson of Colorado, Texas arrived Tuesday for a visit with her mother, Mrs. W. C. Ament and other relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson are former residents of this city.

Uncle Jim Says

"Filed Seeds of unknown origin are dependable. Use seeds of known hardness."

Texas farmers will do well to buy, whenever possible, seeds bearing the familiar state certified or state registered tag. The tag means that state representatives have visited the seed producers plant, that they certify to the purity of the variety. The producer must fulfill strict requirements to insure the purity of the strain.

Texas now certifies several varieties of cotton, corn, grain sorghums, wheat oats and Irish potatoes. The plan used by many farmers is to buy enough certified seed to plant their entire acreage with the increase. When reasonable precautions are observed to prevent cross pollination and mixing, such a plan is usually worth while, and the only expense is the annual purchase of a small amount of seed.

The state certified tag means that the seed is true to variety and free from noxious weed seed. It should not be accepted as a recommendation of the variety represented. Farmers should plant only varieties of field seed known to be adapted to their section.

This is especially true of legumes which are particular as to their soil and climatic requirements. County agricultural agents can recommend soil building crops which will yield the utmost return in soil improvement.

SPORTS

$1500 in cash is guaranteed the winner of the annual Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament, which is to be held in Waco July 21st through August 1st. $5000 is guaranteed the winner of the national tournament, to be held August 13th to the 25th, all of which is plenty of kopeks in any man's language.

This classic of baseball holds many interesting features and rewards for any interested team. Each team that enters the State Tournament will share in distribution of the gross gate receipts for transportation aid, the 1936 mileage was 34c per mile. In addition to the grand prize, the runner-up will receive 10 per cent of the gross gate receipts. The 3rd, 4th, and 5th teams will receive proportionate cash awards. A bonus of $50 will be paid each club in the 16 team double elimination bracket for each game they win, provided they do not finish in the first five participating in the prize money. This is the greatest offer ever made by any State Tournament as an inducement for teams to enter.

Any team not a member of organized professional baseball may compete. No player who has participated in organized professional baseball after July 1, 1936 is eligible for State Tournament. To enter, send to State Commissioner A. H. Kirksey, North 5th St., Waco, Texas, for State Entry Blank. Fill out blanks and return with entry fee of $10. This entry fee will not be returned but will aid in promotion of nation-wide program.

Any Coryell County teams that are interested in entering are urged to get busy. A $10 entry fee against a possible $1500 cash prize is a good gamble any day, and the brand of baseball played in this county is just as good as anywhere else in Central Texas.

KNOW TEXAS

Denton, June 3.—As the summer wanderlust gains force and friend wife begins to make helpful vacation hints about "How lovely the Riviera must be?" a name often attached to the gulf coast region.

Truly Texas offers countless vacation opportunities. Not even native Texans have realized how varied the attractions of the Lone Star State are. Take, for instance, the gulf coast. By circling the "hug-the-coast" highway and investigating the coastal towns, one will find sights and diversions to satisfy the most exacting tastes.

Beginning in Houston, Texas' largest city, history-lovers can browse around San Jacinto battle field, and pleasure-seekers can hie themselves to Sylvan Beach. Or if the traveler is in need of more sea breeze, he can go from there straight down to Galveston, where white sands, crisp breakers, fresh sea food, plentiful tourist accommodations, all kinds of fishing and varied entertainment are combined in one island resort.

Tarpon and other large salt water fishing is the ruling sport at the next coastwise stop, Freeport, which is also the center of the world's largest sulphur industry. For inspection near West Columbia, where the Republic's first capital was located, are several well-preserved southern plantations which are guaranteed to arouse dreamy pre-Civil War reflections.

Heading southwest through the old fishing village of Matagorda and the popular angling spots of Port Aransas and Port Lavaca, the highway comes finally to Corpus Christi. This year-round playground, besides being an important port, is the home of the famous "tarpon rodeo." Boating is another pastime eagerly pursued there, and swimming enthusiasts crowd the long shore line from spring to autumn.

SWIMMING POOL TO OPEN MONDAY "IF" SUPPLIES ARE RECEIVED

City Secretary Elland Lovejoy said Thursday that the city swimming pool will open Monday, June 7, "if" certain supplies arrive soon enough to do some finishing work on the inside of the pool.

Should these materials not arrive, the opening of the pool will be postponed until the repairs can be made.

FROM THE COUNTY AGR'L AGENT

Screwworm Control Work to be Reduced

During the past year men were employed locally by the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine in operation with county agricultural agents to assist farmers and stockmen in adopting good methods of preventing screwworms and in reducing screwworm cases in livestock. As a result of this work, screwworms were not permitted to build up to a big population and losses among livestock were materially reduced.

Since the screwworm work is now being curtailed, Mr. S. H. Miles who has been serving in Coryell, Bell, and Lampasas counties, will continue his work until June 23rd. After that time, no requests should be made for his services in connection with demonstrations and meetings.

Dealers are now purchasing benzol and pine tar oil to be sold to stockmen and all stock owners are urged to buy and keep on hand sufficient quantities of the materials to heal cases and prevent screwworms. If unusual numbers of screwworm cases occur in any locality and there is urgent need for additional information on control of the pest stock owners should report these facts through the county agricultural agent to the Division of Screw Worm control, 1010 Travis Building, San Antonio, Texas.

Mr. Miles wishes to take this opportunity to thank the people of Coryell, Bell, and Lampasas for their splendid cooperation in this work.

Farmers of Cuba are buying American agricultural machinery.

WORLD COMMENT

Joe Burns

The republican membership of the house has proposed that the administration of relief be returned to the states through a system of federal monetary grants. Such a step has long been advocated by this writer as the only apparent means of halting the continued huge outlays for relief by the federal government.

Representative White, a Republican of Ohio, proposed that federal grants to states be made on a non-partisan basis, that administration of relief be vested in state and local authorities, and that each state contribute at least 25 per cent of the cost of its relief.

There is nothing unsound or impracticable about this proposal, which the eighty-seven Republican members of the house have endorsed and will submit to the entire membership. The immediate cry from who favor a continuance of the present outlays from the federal treasury is that politics would control state and local relief administrations. Yet there have been accusations galore supported by documentary proofs of plain politics and political discrimination in the disbursement of relief funds in all New Deal agencies except for the CCC. Those familiar with true conditions in the relief agencies for the past four years have no fear that politics could reign more supreme in state relief agencies than has been the case in the federal agencies since 1933.

If federal grants were made to states for relief, the disbursement of these funds could be checked and supervised by federal officials to prevent and abolish those evils inherent in the federal set-up since the wholesale distribution of relief funds began with the Roosevelt era.

Considerable criticism has been placed upon governors and mayors for demanding the continued expenditures of federal funds for relief and public funds in their locales which resulted in a perennially unbalanced budget. National headquarters of the United States conference of mayors issued a statement last week saying any reduction in the $1,500,000,000 relief request of President Roosevelt is "unthinkable."

It was pointed out that cities and states put up $1,244,953,000 for relief last year.

It is known that placing the entire burden of relief upon states and cities would impose an unbearable load for them to carry, but, as suggested above, this is not the purpose of those who contend that a reduction in relief expenditures for all branches should be forthcoming.

The first remedy to be for the federal government to quit the relief business, but to aid the states financially in providing for those actually in need. By narrowing the administration of relief down to states, counties, and cities, it is believed that more fairness in the distribution of relief funds could be exercised; that those on relief funds could be exercised; that those on relief who have maintenance could be dropped, and a substantial reduction in the relief load the government must carry accomplished.

Another remedy is one which the present administration has been unwilling to undertake. That is a census of the unemployed, discussed in detail in a previous article in this space. A census of the jobless would provide for a needed classification of the jobless as to age, sex, reason for unemployment, and ability to assume any prospective job. With this classification it would be much simpler to place the unemployed in the jobs which private industry is rapidly creating for them under the stimulus of the economic boom.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

SOME women don't like to wear glasses for fear they'll look old. They don't really look old, you know, but they think so, and that may be worse.

Well, Mrs. Barnes tried to talk the doctor out of making her wear glasses, but the doc says, "Wear 'em all day. Otherwise you're going to have a terrible time."

So she came back in a few weeks and her eyes were worse.

"Do you wear 'em all day, like I told you?" says the doc.

"Yes, and no, Doc. I wear 'em all night, which is just as long, and that way nobody gets to see how old I look. But although I been wearing 'em just as long as you told me to, they ain't doing me no good."

Bryan Arnold Invites People of This County to Graduation Exercises

With June and graduation dead ahead, it is only natural that a senior should look back and reflect on his past years of schooling. However, my thoughts run farther back than just to that day of July nearly four years ago when I first reported to West Point. I am thinking now of Texas, of Gatesville, and of the many friends I have left there.

As I visualize the spectacular activities that will soon characterize June Week, I wish that each of you could be present to see the final celebrations of the class of 1937. The awarding of prizes, the reunions of old "grads," the rhythmic gymnastic demonstrations, and the colorful evening parades set against the background of spring in the Hudson Highlands, will create a brilliant pageantry. That is why I am writing this letter—to tell you that I should like to have all of you as my guests to the graduation exercises.

Two hundred ninety-nine of us will receive our diplomas and second lieutenant's commissions on June 12. Thanks to the people of the United States we have been given an expensive education without cost to ourselves. With our diplomas we get also a job. How thoroughly I appreciate my good fortune, when I realize that hundreds of college men and women must graduate this year to only unemployment!

Sincerely I regret that world conditions make it necessary for this country to spend millions of dollars in training men to defend it. To the people of the United States we owe an untold debt of service—service of all kinds. Always, I hope, we shall repay that debt in the true-ringing coin of peace instead of in the false currency of war. Also, like those men of the Revolution, who first built their campfires at West Point in 1775, we should always guard jealously the ideals of liberty and tolerance on which this government is founded. Still, in political matters the final word must come from the tongues of the people. For the constitution provides that the civil authority shall never be subordinate to the military. If it should happen that in the typhoon of -isms that is sweeping the world to-day, we should be led astray, then the people can and should demand that we follow their desires. Our fate as soldiers depends on the will of Congress, and through that body on the will of the people. May there ever be good faith between us.

On the eve of graduation I greet you and send my sincerest wishes for your peace and happiness.

Bryan Arnold.

This Week in Oglesby

Eighty-four old J. M. Leonard was out from Waco visiting among his friends. Come back some time Uncle Matt, John Huddleston over from Corsicana to see his mother, Curtis Humphries and wife, of Flat, to visit T. O. Humphries and others, Winfield Jones home from John Tarleton.

We got off the stage from Waco one day and found the will say, the Gatesville Rodeo Band playing on the street. The music was so good, the crowd so large and happy that we thought we'd gotten off at the wrong town, and really started to board the stage and go further. Lon Pollard gently took us by the arm and explained the whole affair.

We almost went wild again Saturday night. A multitude gathered on the streets. Two lines of cars jammed the side walk along the entire street. Most of them all full of people. Then Sheriff John Crouch behind this double line trying to keep a traffic lane open. Past the traffic lane cars filled the space to the railroad and people everywhere. Oglesby was on one of her toots. Mrs. Nora White drew a ten dollar prize.

Grain harvest in full swing. The wheat is fine. Jim McKelvain, who operates a threshing outfit reports that wheat is yielding seventeen and eighteen bushels per acre and that oats will probably yield an average of less than forty bushels per acre. Combine operators give about the same estimates. With a good grain crop being bagged and fine prospects for corn, cotton and feeds crops, it looks like Oglesby is again looking for the way up to the top shelf.

Big fish had better hide. Pop Graham and Chas. Searcy were seen tuning up their fishing poles and lines. S. T. Kinslow keeps his fishing tackle tuned all the time, and he knows some good fish stories, if you could just get him to tell them.

Miss Moselle Johnson, secretary to Rep. Huddleston, and the Representative are in Austin helping to run the called session of the political mill. Quintin Pollard and Mrs. Homer White home from Houston to visit the Lon Pollards. Mrs. W. L. Warnicks grandson, graduated from Waco High, and of course Mrs. Warnick went to be proud of that grandson.

Joe Arbuckle, of McGregor seen at Spuire Dalton's shop. R. T. McMullen and wife home from Muleshoe to visit the Jake Clairmans, and Arthur McMullens, their parents. Another car wreck. W. A. Alexander's V-8 roadster turned over a few times. The car was demolished, but W. R. got away with a few scratches.

Z. F. Shope (Festus) leaves for Georgia for an extended visit. Festus was born in the good old goober-grabber state and has many pleasant recollections of the many friends in Georgie. A big time to you, Festus.

School's out. The teachers returned to their homes. The children are at home, most of them busy, some of them idle, them hoping some one will tear down the school house before next September. Some of them busy, some of them idle. Seven young graduates looking up at the stars—or are some of them looking at the moon? It was a momentous occasion, but the good earth, and the people in it will move along, and each recurring season the children will be gathered at the old stand, more school, more graduates.

We didn't get near all of that sweet potato story last week. The big one that Alex Baker and Z. F. Shope found in P. E. Jones field in 1908. Boone Huddleston says that potato was so big it was cut with a cross-cut saw and the saw dust used to make potato cuffs for a political banquet, and several baskets of fragments were gathered and given to the poor. The politicians afterwards wanted to limit the size of sweet potatoes to a few hundred pounds each.

The road project from Oglesby to the county line, on the Moody road, is being pushed forward by Commissioner Harry Johnson. This road, when surfaced to Whitson, will give Oglesby good road connection with that part of the county.

NOBODY READS THE PAPER?

Several weeks ago the Burk Burnett Star made a number of observations relative to itself. Weekly newspapermen everywhere have learned through experience that following words of the Star editor are not simply idle thoughts but statements based upon actual everyday occurrences:

"Nobody reads the Star, so why advertise?" say some local merchants. Yet advertising experts of national concerns, men who demand—and get—actual returns for every dime invested, yearly give a big share of their advertising appropriations to the weekly paper.

"Nobody reads the Star," yet if the editor gets the mumps, the linotype breaks down, or anything else happens to delay the paper the post office and the editor are both swamped with calls from indignant subscribers.

"Nobody reads the paper," but let the editor misspell one name in an obscure item buried at the bottom of an inside page and 20 readers will "kid" him about it before the paper has been out two hours.

"Nobody reads the paper," yet why do the local publicity hounds bedevil the editor for favorable notices? And why are politicians so eager for the support of the papers?

"Nobody reads the paper," yet the delinquent subscriber will squawk to high heaven when his subscription is dropped.

"Nobody reads the paper." Then why in the name of common sense is a man so anxious to keep his misdeeds from being published.—San Patricio County News.

THE STORY SO FAR:
B. J. Nolan has lost a fortune backing worthless inventions. Kenneth, his son, with a million of his own, refuses to give his father $100,000 to build Nolan Heights, B. J.'s dream of a model village. B. J. and Virginia Travis, a lovely but penniless young architect, decide to get the money from Kenneth by fair means or foul. Virginia persuades her pals, Hunk and Judy, former theatre ushers, to pose as maid and butler in the Nolan home.

Kenneth returns from Europe with Nina Tennyson, an attractive fortune-hunter, and Henri Saffron, her "Uncle." Unknown to Kenneth, Nina and Henri are sweethearts. Pretending to be in Chicago, B. J. hides in the kitchen and Virginia goes to work on Kenneth. Nina decides to get rid of her.

Chapter Three

In the library Kenneth handed Virginia a piece of paper.

"We'll call this item Number One," he said. Place it in the fireplace, please."

Virginia did as she was told. The paper exploded with a mild flare.

"Cost, twenty-five thousand plus a lawsuit settled out of court, five thousand, making a total of thirty thousand. Stop me if you've seen the next."

It was a strange, complicated mechanism, a combination folding ruler, microscope and clock.

Kenneth laughed mirthlessly. "I don't exactly remember what you do with it," he said, "but it cost twenty-five thousand."

He showed her still another item, a desk with stickless drawers that stuck. B. J., he added, was stuck forty thousand for it. With one or two other gadgets, the grand total was one hundred and twenty thousand.

In demonstrating the stickless desk, the drawer flew open, hitting Virginia and pitching her backwards. Her neck was wrenched. Kenneth helped her up and insisted on massaging her neck. Meanwhile he continued:

"Your enthusiasm for Nolan Heights brought these items to my mind. To put it mildly, Miss Travis, my father — god bless him — is a bit of a screwball!"

"Screwball!" echoed Virginia incredulously.

"Now, I don't mean to imply that my father is goofy. People who are goofy should be locked up — people who are screwballs are nice to have around — as long as it doesn't cost $120,000. Now do you see why I can't invest in Nolan Heights?"

Virginia was silent. Kenneth continued to massage her neck and they remained in this intimate, almost lover-like posture. Virginia looked so crestfallen that Kenneth felt terribly sorry for her. His mother, he told her, had made him promise to keep Dad from wasting money on impractical gadgets.

"I need your help," he confided persuasively. "I want you to help me convince Dad that he doesn't have to go into any more foolish ventures. I hope he'll be home soon — Nina's so anxious to meet him. She's a lovely thing, isn't she? So sensible. I need sensible people around me, because—"

He paused, looking deeply into Virginia's eyes.

"— because every once in a while I get afraid that I could be like my father — only worse. And then I'd never be sensible again."

Suddenly the door opened and Nina appeared. She observed Virginia and Kenneth with patent suspicion. Virginia rose in embarrassment and made a hasty exit. In the kitchen she found Hunk and Judy drying dishes. B. J. was fumbling with some sort of contraption she hadn't seen before.

"Would you kids mind if I talked to Mr. Nolan alone?" she said.

Observing Virginia's interest in his gadget, B. J. explained: "This is a Writograph. It writes five checks at once."

Virginia asked bitterly, "How much did you lose on that?"

"Only eight thou—" he began. "Say, has my son been talking about me? I can explain about this, Virginia. The guy who invented it didn't know that another guy had invented it. I played it on the nose and it ran second."

"You're a screwball!"

"Aha," said B. J. "He has been talking! "What's happened to you?" he continued plaintively. "Yesterday you were on my side. Now you're on his."

"I hadn't heard his side of the story then. No, B. J., I couldn't help you run through his money."

"His money!" B. J. was indignant. "And where do you think he got it? From his mother. And where did she get it? I'll tell you where. I made a million in Florida. And my wife dragged half a million for a rainy day. I made a million in Oklahoma and my wife dragged another for another rainy day. Two million! And now, when it's raining, my son has the only umbrella."

"All right. He has one million. What became of the other one?"

B. J. looked unhappy and deflated. "I lost it," he admitted weakly. "On gadgets!"

"Wait a minute, Virginia!" he said heatedly. "Are you saying that Nolan Heights is a gadget? Clean little homes instead of crowded tenements. Healthy little children playing in the country instead of on dirty streets. Sunshine, fresh air, happy families. . . Is that a gadget?"

Virginia's eyes were moist. "No, B. J. Nolan Heights is a fine noble thing and I believe in it."

"Yesterday," continued B. J. with a quaver in his voice, "I'd given up. Then you brought in a lot of youth and enthusiasm and I started living again. I thought there was a chance to do something, not so much for the sake of Nolan Heights, but for the good it would do Kenneth — to save him, while he's still young, from turning into a colorless old voucher-clipper. I can't save him, but I thought you could. He's scared to do anything by himself. He'll marry some dull, safe, sensible girl. Is that what you want?"

The light of battle shone in Virginia's eyes. "No, that isn't what I want B. J.!"

"Then," cried B. J. warning to his argument, "save him from himself! If you could only get him started on Nolan Heights he'd be a different man. He'd have ideas — he'd have fun! He'd like different people — he'd even approve of me — and he'd probably fall in love with you!"

"Are you sure Nolan Heights is — is safe?"

"Honestly, Virginia, it can't miss. If we can get his name on a check for a hundred thousand, he'll have it back double in no time — and be a different, happy man. Now, how are we going to get his name on a check?"

"I don't know." She paused thoughtfully. Suddenly she spied the Writograph. "Yes, I do know! not for you, not for me, but to save him from himself — we'll swindle him! Out of the old life into the new!"

"Yippee!" cried B. J. Ten years dropped from him in that moment.

Before retiring for the night, Henri cornered Kenneth. Nina, he explained, was a gentle, sensitive flower. Her feelings were easily bruised. She was, he told Kenneth nervously, sensitive about Miss Travis.

"The way she looks at you, Kenneth! She looks at you with very much lascif — that is in English, I think, conspicuously. I will never forget the time a beautiful woman looked at me conspicuously in Algiers. She —"

"I see," interrupted Kenneth, not seeing at all but anxious to terminate the discussion. "Don't worry about it, old man. Goodnight!"

"Goodnight," said Henri and rushed upstairs to tell Nina.

"Did you warn him?" she demanded. "Did you put it to him strong?"

"Yes, but he cannot throw her out of the house in the middle of the night, Nina."

Nina made an impatient gesture. Henri was a dope. After breakfast tomorrow, she would have a long talk with Kenneth herself, she decided. At all costs, he must get rid of Virginia. Some way, any way. She didn't care. Below in the library, Kenneth was busy at the dictionary. He read:

"Conspicuous, n., an illicit, unlawful appetite for that which is agreeable."

With some alarm he walked to a mirror and examined his face thoughtfully. "Conspicuous," he muttered. "Whew!"

liked the location very much and will come again soon.

The Ireland high school closed Wednesday with one of the most successful years in history of the school. Prof. Bannister, supt., and the trustees worked faithfully in making it a state accredited high school receiving nine credits last year and seven this year, 16 in all, making the affiliation complete. We are very grateful to all the teachers for the good work they have accomplished. They have been so faithful, all working together to meet the state's requirements in putting over the work that was required.

The boys and girls have been faithful in their work and they have made good. Let our motto be "Make our school better for the coming year."

The Baccalaureate Sermon was preached in the Baptist Church by Rev. Sam Drake of Hamilton and we think it was one of the best we have heard in recent years. The Commencement Address was delivered by

"HERE'S MY GEAR SHIFT"

It's small . . . because it works at the flick of a finger. It's up at the steering wheel . . . so hands never need to leave the wheel when you're shifting gears. It's the new way to drive . . . tested and proved by more than 115,000 owners in more than a billion miles of driving.

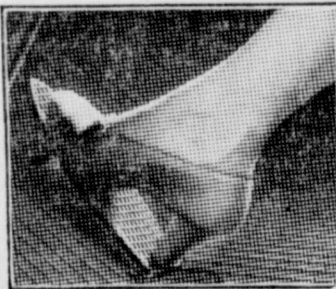

And that's only part of the news about Hudson's Selective Automatic Shift . . . an optional extra on all 1937 Hudsons and Terraplanes. When you flick a finger up at the steering wheel and lift a toe down at the accelerator . . . gears shift themselves!

The front floor is all clear of levers . . . nothing to stumble over. There's nothing new to learn, gear positions are unchanged. But you no longer need tug at a hand gear lever, or even touch the clutch pedal.

Come in now . . . drive today, tomorrow's way. You'll enjoy it . . . and we'll enjoy having you discover all it means to you.
