SENATOR TOM CONALLY TO OFFICIALLY OPEN PAN-AM. SHOW

SEN. TOM CONALLY

Senator Tom Conally of Texas announced Thursday he will formerly open the Greater Texas and Pan-American Exposition in Dallas on June 12.

The announcement followed a meeting of Conally and Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles, in which the latter was asked to represent the State Department in opening ceremonies. It is impossible for Secretary Cordell Hull to attend, said Conally.

Welles said he would make every effort to be there.

Sam Williams of Dallas spent two days the past week with his sister, Miss Marguerite Williams of this city.

M. M. Carroll and family are vacationing a few days this week in Kerrville and other points of interest in the south.

CORYELL GETS HIGHWAY FUNDS

More farm-to-market road improvements in Coryell county included in W. P. A. projects were reported as approved Wednesday by Robert J. Smith, deputy state administrator.

The new Coryell project will take $4,043 in federal funds and $2,256 in local funds, and will employ 45 workers.

In all, 24 projects were announced as approved for the state Wednesday, calling for federal spending of $199,331 and local spending of $110,651. Operation of all projects is contingent upon availability of labor and sponsor's funds.

Starting with a colorful parade at one o'clock Saturday afternoon, Gatesville successfully presented its First Annual Rodeo with thousands of visitors and townspeople in attendance. (Due to heavy rains the greater part of Friday, the opening performance of the Rodeo was postponed until Saturday.)

All attendance records for the Athletic Stadium were broken when the first performance brought some 2500 people pouring through the gates to see the long-talked of and eagerly awaited show.

Long Parade Features Color and Laughs

The parade, which preceded the opening performance, drew much attention from the crowds that lined the sidewalks and overflowed out into the streets.

Cowboys and cowgirls on prancing ponies added the traditional Western touch at the head of the parade. A motorcycle convoy led the way, and behind followed the Gatesville High School band in their bright gollen uniforms, a drill squadron from the Juvenile Training School, the high school pep squad, the Gatesville Fire Department on their shiny red truck, and many more vehicles representing various business firms followed.

Crowd Flock Opening Performance of Show

With Jack Hoey as master of ceremonies the rodeo opened in the traditional manner with a grand entry of all contestants and introduction of special personalities. Hoey's "copyrighted" line of patter opened the show with eulogies to the heroes of early days on the Texas ranges and a brief history of the rodeo; how it developed from small groups of cowboys meeting in friendly contests of horsemanship to huge national events where thousands of dollars are given in prize money. The first rodeo was held in 1884 at Prescott, Arizona, the next of any importance at Cheyenne, Wyoming, and from there the rodeo grew until today riders from all parts of the country flock to attend them in New York, Boston, Pendleton, Fort Worth, and Gatesville.

Brahma Steers Give Crowds Thrills

The big, bad Brahma steers, noted for their man-hating proclivities, afforded the crowd its biggest thrills with their dunging antics. These humped-back animals, that are still worshiped in India as gods, bucked and snorted and menaced the crowd around the arena fence. One mean "critter" hit the fence at a head-on gallup, bowling over a post and tangling himself so in the wire that he was extricated only with difficulty by nervous cowboys.

The famed "Penitentiary" string of outlaw horses also drew a big hand from the crowd as did the calf roping, and goat roping event for Coryell County boys only.

Rain, which caused a postponement of the Friday show, threatened the Saturday night show, but luckily held off until the close of the last event. Heavy rains Sunday and Monday day morning left the arena grounds in a soggy condition. (Continued on last page)

Twenty Questions on Social Security

For the next twenty issues, the News, gives you twenty questions and answers on Social Security.

Social Security Question No. 1
Question: How soon are benefits payable under the old-age benefits provision of the Social Security Act?

Answer: Lump sum benefits are payable now to an employee if he has reached the age of 65 since December 31, 1936, and has worked in a covered occupation since that date. In case an employee has died since December 31, 1936, and has worked in a covered occupation after that date, the estate of such an individual is eligible to file claim for a lump-sum payment. In either case, the lump-sum will amount to 3 1/2 per cent of wages paid to the worker in covered occupations since December 31, 1936.

Monthly benefits will be paid after January 1, 1942, to qualified individuals. Qualified individuals are those who have attained age 65 have worked December 31, 1936, and before attaining age 65 have worked in covered occupations one day in each of five different calendar years, and have received during such period a least a total of $2,000. A person who reaches age 65 but does not become a "qualified" individual will receive a lump-sum payment equal to 3 1/2 per cent of wages paid to him in covered occupations after December 31, 1936 and before he attains age 65.

Lufkin Girl Named Best Collegiate Artist in U. S.

"The most outstanding artist in every respect of any woman submitting work out of the entire United States—that was the tribute paid to the work of Miss Margaret Neal of Texas State College for Women by the judges who awarded her a four-year scholarship to the Art Center School in Los Angeles, Calif. She won the award as the result of a contest open to college and high schools in all states, only one other entrant, a man, being equal to her in versatility, brilliance and craftsmanship. The nineteen-year-old graduate was art editor of the college annual this year. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Neal of Lufkin.

Three hundred proposals of marriage have been received by Shirley Joy Ellis of Seattle, chosen "Miss Western America" in a contest sponsored by the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition.

WITH THE SHIP OF STATE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Republicans are casting longing glances in the direction of a new white hope—Thomas E. Dewey, special assistant district attorney of New York City, who has just capped his brilliant career as a racket-hunter by convicting still another notorious group of racketeers which was bleeding Manhattan businessmen of several millions yearly.

YOUNG DEWEY A 1940 POSSIBILITY?

Dewey, only 35 years old, looms as a star to which the national G. O. P. might well hitch its wagon. His admirers compare his swift-climb to that of Charles Evans Hughes, which also began with prosecution of wrong-doers, and was accompanied by the sort of publicity the young prosecutor is now receiving. Dewey is now being groomed for the 1938 gubernatorial nomination, and should he make the grade—as a later presidential possibility. Until then, forthcoming prosecutions of rackets in other industries will keep the young aspirant in the limelight.

Senator E. D. "Cotton Ed" Smith, of South Carolina, believes Supreme Court Justices should be retired at 75 or 80—and not 70, as the President proposed. The Senator, whose 72 years weigh lightly on his shoulders, likes to play leap frog with his friends, and was so engaged when we called on him. He finds that kind of exercise ideal for Congressional spring training.

Close friends of Father Coughlin are saying that he is through with such organizations as his short lived National Union for Social Justice. The reason seems to be his discovery that some local treasurers, who handled large sums during the last campaign, were looking out more for themselves than for social justice. Old Dr. Townsend made the same discovery in his own organization.

We don't believe the fiery priest will get mixed up in politics again. He feels that he was completely misled by the flatteries of his immediate entourage. Should he, however, decide to re-enter the political ring, one thing is certain: he will wage his battle over the radio single handed and stay out of organizations.

We may not be responsible for this, but since we "wrote up" Secretary Icke's private suite and kitchen in our column, blue coated stalwarts have been stationed at the entrance of the unfinished apartment in the new Interior Department Building, to guard its secrets from the eyes of the curious.

Military staffs in Washington are beginning to suspect that dictators talk a much better war game than they play. It does not necessarily mean that the Spanish rebels are doomed to failure, but it does prove that their German and Italian allies are not as helpful as they would have the world believe. A high army official passed the opinion, privately, that should any more uprising against Franco flare up—it will be time to sell him short quickly.

Cameron Says Money Not Very Important In Nation's Big Business

Following is the text of a talk by Mr. William J. Cameron of the Ford Motor Company delivered on the Ford Sunday Evening Hour over Columbia Broadcasting System from Detroit.

Friends of the Sunday Evening Hour:

Money rouses less emotional interest and less of it is actually seen in a big industry than almost anywhere else on earth. It sometimes appears so low in the scale of usefulness, that even were it physically presented in heaps of silver and bills it would hardly rank in importance with a pile of coal or a dock full of ore. Industry can be conceived as going along without money but not without ore and coal. The only intelligent thrill one can extract from money is in considering its ceaseless flow and the good its effects in its course. It is like the stream that turns the mill wheel and passes on, and as in nature the water returns again in rain, so in the economy of work the money returns to all who previously earned and spent it. The only possible answer to the question, "Where does the money go?" is that "It just keeps on going."

We had a glimpse of this at Dearborn last week. The man whose job is to pay the bills remarked to the man whose job is to buy the materials, "Well, we have to pay out $43,000,000 on the 20th for you." Of course, checks go out daily, but the 20th happened to be a "heavy" day. These checks for materials go to 6,943 other employers who supply us with what we need and who in their turn employ several million men. Everyday is pay day for Ford employees too; it is impossible to pay all our 122,000 shopmen at one time. The pay office requires two weeks to make the rounds, at the rate of $840,000 a day; $9,200,000 for each pay period; $18,500,000 a month, for wages alone. And none of it is seen or handled except by the pay office and the men who receive it.

Last month Ford Checks for materials went to 45 of the 48 states. Each of seventeen states received sums ranging from one million to 26 million dollars. Each of four states received from half a million to one million dollars. Three states each receive between a quarter of a million dollars or less. And, naturally, each state paid part of that for supplies from other states. The total for the month's material, more than 72 million dollars were used by nearly 7,000 suppliers to pay their workmen and their material bills. For it must be remembered that those who supply us have their suppliers too. One of our suppliers deals with 3,711 manufacturers who supply him; another with 1,050; another with 729—and son. All one can see of the money is its endless flow from buyer to seller with wages all along the line.

The mention of large sums of money often causes people to wonder what they would do if they had it. The answer is that if it came to them by honest industry there would be little choice what to do with it. They would first have had to pay it out before they could receive it at all, and then, if every thing worked well, it would return to them; but in order to keep everything working well, they would immediately pay it out again—that is the way the world is made. Money is just part of mechanical round. Our basic wealth is the life that money helps to support."

When one of the first balloons landed in Gonese, France, in 1783, the superstitious villagers shot it and stabbed it with pitchforks.

THAT'S WHAT WE'D CALL IT TOO, BUT ITS FROM COP. COVE

The following came from the Friday edition of The Copperas Cove Cronic, published by Alvin R. Irby, which, at least is self explanatory. Gatesville folks will be just as tickled when the Copperas Cove "highway" (?), is something we can get "over" as well as "thru."

Here's the clipping:
This week's distinguished service award goes to Commissioner Hans Leonhard for the improvements on the road between Copperas Cove and Gatesville. The last time we went over it we shook off a running board before reaching Pidcoke. Wednesday we were over the road again and not only found it in much better condition, but couldn't find some of the sharp turns we distinctly remember making on the previous trip. They are completely gone.

Little tee cream "swipers" go about it calmly, too, because they know that mother can make some more even tho guests may be arriving in less than an hour.

This speedy, perfected refrigerator ice cream is made in a "still" ice cream freezer, the kind you simply pack and place, without cranking, in the modern ice refrigerator during the freezing period. A mixture of chipped ice and salt is used—which accounts for the speed with which the ice cream freezes, and the speed is responsible for its smooth, creamy texture.

Notes from County Supt.'s Office

By Supt. J. M. Witcher

There are four schools in the county that have not turned in their reports. These should be in at once as the county report is due at the State Department. The office certainly appreciates the punctuality with which the teachers have handed in all school reports.

Census reports from Coryell County will be mailed to Austin by the last of this week. The rolls carry 6,152 names of school children whose ages range between 6 and 18 years.

Reports on standard tests will be mailed to Austin this week.

High school tuition appropriations and attendant reports must be filed with the State Department by June 10. The total amount of high school tuition sought by this county is approximately $15,000,000. The transportation will amount to about $18,000.00. The number of high school students who are able to live at home and attend some affiliated high school this year is seven hundred sixty-five.

County Board Trustees have their next meeting, Wednesday June 16.

More than 20,000,000 admissions are expected at the West World Fair in 1938.

Important Oil Industry Buys Southern Plant

View of one of ten buildings on the 52-acre site purchased by the National Oil Products Company at Cedartown, Ga. (Insert) President Charles P. Gulick of the Harrison, N. J. company.

CEDARTOWN, GA. (Special)—Construction work was underway today at the new 52 acre, 10 building plant at Cedartown, Georgia, of the National Oil Products Company of Harrison, N. J., for the manufacture of products used in textile processing, paper milling and other industries.

Charles P. Gulick, president of the company, said this property with an additional building will be operating within three months. The land and original buildings were purchased from the U. S. Finishing Co.

Purchase of the new plant extended the National Oil Products Company's nation-wide operations into the growing field of Southern industry. The company maintains other offices and plants in Chicago, Boston, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle with main offices, laboratories and manufacturing facilities in Harrison.

The plant, second in size only to the Harrison site, will manufacture completely all type products of sulfonation, condensation, high and low temperature chemical reactions and compounds of complex chemical synthesis.

J. H. Barton, vice-president of the company, has just left Cedartown and returned to the home office at Harrison, leaving Works Manager E. T. Woods at the Cedartown plant. Mr. Barton said that these chemical products will be for the use of the paper mills, textile processors and other types of industry, formerly in New England areas, that have expanded into the South.

A wholly owned subsidiary, the Metasp Chemical Company, will manufacture metallic soaps in one of the buildings.

"Our plant at Harrison, N. J., has been in the heart of the territory we served since it was established in 1907," Mr. Barton explained.

"We found during the last two years, however, that our business has been moving away from us in tremendous strides. Our best customers are operating in the South today and so we had to come South to be near them. Our southern location will result in substantial freight savings to our customers over the years.

An operating force will be put to work as soon as the first units of the plant are in operation and this force will be enlarged steadily as rapidly as other units are ready for production.

Labor and clerical forces will be drawn from the South and chemists from Southern Universities will be selected for laboratory work. Technical supervisors from the Harrison headquarters will be in charge until Southern technicians are trained to handle the work.

Equipment which would have been termed "chemical curiosities" a few years ago will be installed in the new laboratories which will be at the disposal of all Southern industries.

To supply the raw materials for the plant, oils from the far corners of the world including Italy, Spain and Greece will be received in shipload quantities at Savannah, Ga., and Charlestown, S. C., where they will be transhipped by rail to Cedartown.

In addition, various vegetable oils of Southern origin will be used to open a new market for Southern agriculture. Various manufactured products will be purchased, also.

"We will need at the start several thousand hardwood barrels a month," Mr. Woods said. "We came to Atlanta to arrange for the production of these barrels from a dependable firm. We found the firm that will supply our barrels will have to enlarge its plant and increase its force in order to handle our contract."

Our local materials will be used "where possible," Mr. Barton emphasized. The Cedartown plant will be the center of an expanded sales force, which will sell a complete line of specialized oil products for bleaching, dyeing and finishing.

Other features of the new plant include 17 mill houses where employees will live and a natural spring providing an unlimited water supply for the pump house. Mr. Barton said this was one of the main reasons for selection of the Georgia Site.

"That was what we were looking for principally," he said. "We use a tremendous amount of water and it must be cool, clear and pure."

"The other reasons for the location of this plant in Georgia are that we have found a plant that, with the erection of storage tanks, will be superbly suited to our needs. We have a railroad spur into the property already; important savings will be made on freight rates by being in the heart of the region where our customers are operating their plants.

"We believe, with the movement of the textile mills into the heart of the cotton belt, that the use of Southern products will increase and we hope to contribute to this growth."

"QUALITY,"

The Humble Company exerts every effort, strains every resource to furnish Texas motorists with "quality" motor fuels, motor oils, greases and special products. We are faced, however, with this problem: today's "quality" merchandise may be an inferior piece of goods in tomorrow's automobile. So, to assure the Texas motorist of continuing "quality" in Humble products, we have adopted a policy of continuous improvement—from day to day. This policy, our customers say, has been highly successful; they tell us, continuous improvement keeps Humble ahead.

Broadway LIMITED

by W. A. S.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Here's the way a column on Broadway gets itself written: Find bunch of fan-letters on my desk, agreeing that newshawks ought to be given the works... one saying I am a swell columnist (that one includes request for theatre tickets)... No-ody calls me a rummy... nit-wit or paid propagandist... Wonder whether I am slipping!... Oh, well — there's not much to be gained hanging around a syndicate office anyway... better stroll up the old stem and see what's what for myself... On East 79th Street, Freda Lichtenberg attired in negligee, goes to the window

After pondering a moment she calls the Weather Bureau and asks for a report... blackout line: "Oh, but you don't understand, I must know now. I can't call back at ten. I want to find out whether or not I should take out my new car. I've just bought it and don't want to get it wet!... In the Hotel Montclair Casino, Walter Winchell sitting with several 20th Century-Fox Pictures executives is being interviewed by several reporters on his first feature film "Wake Up and Live," due for national release soon... Winchell remarks: "I think it's a great picture. But don't quote me on that! There's only one thing wrong with it—Ben Bernie. And you can quote me on THAT!" Because of its controversial nature, "The Women," comedy hit by Clare Boothe at the Ethel Barrymore Theatre, is unquestionably one of the most discussed plays of the last decade... set off by an all feminine cast of performers... the various characters let their hair down and in full view of male—and female—audiences... tell truths about themselves which the fair sex would prefer obtrusive man did not hear...

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

GIRLS don't pretend near so much as they used to. Why, if a girl likes a guy nowadays, she says to all her relatives and friends, "Watch me cop that youngster! If I don't get him I'll cry my eyes out!" And the oldish aunts are shocked. I think these here girls are having a lot of fun telling the truth every once in a while. Jean Pink was looking out the window kinda mooning, and her dad says to her, "Say, Jean, not that I'm anxious or anything, but when are you thinking about getting you a husband?" "When am I Dad?" she says. "Why, as near as I can get to it I'm thinking about it all the time. I know I ain't got time for nothing else, and I ain't hardly any good to Mama any more, I think about it so much."

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

GATESVILLE, TEXAS, TUESDAY, JUNE 8, 1937

NUMBER 47

Thomas Paine, one of the guiding spirits of the American Revolutionary movement, wrote these words in his "The Crisis" which General Washington ordered to be read to the entire American army:

"These are the times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of his country, but he that stands for it now deserves the love and thanks of man and woman. Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered; yet we have this consolation with us—that the harder the conflict, the more glorious the triumph; what we obtain too cheap we esteem too lightly; 'tis dearness only that gives everything its value. Heaven knows how to put a proper price upon its goods; and it would be strange indeed if so celestial an article as freedom should not be highly rated."

George E. Sokolsky calls Thomas Paine "America's Forgotten Man." Thomas Paine may be forgotten to the layman as an individual, but his pamphlets inspired hope and determination in the minutemen and troopers serving under Washington. That alone would merit for Paine a place in the roster of American heroes. But what interests me is that, 150 years after the publication of "The Crisis" the words of this remarkable man should so apply to political conditions the world over.

"These are the times that try men's souls . . . and it would be strange indeed if so celestial an article as freedom should be highly rated."

To those who today highly rate freedom, these are indeed trying times. Freedom, personified by democracy as a form of political organization, is on the defensive everywhere. No where is this better illustrated than by The Literary Digest, which recently published a map of the world showing the states in which there is no press censorship, modified or partial censorship, and complete censorship.

In the first category, or states where there is no press censorship, appeared in the United States, Britain and the British Dominions, Switzerland and the Scandinavian countries. The rest of the two hemispheres was divided between those two states in which there exists either partial censorship, as in the case of the South American countries or complete censorship, as in the three European dictatorships of Italy, Germany, and Russia.

It is not only freedom of the press that has succumbed; democracy with all its implications has disappeared in a majority of the regions of the world.

In all of the European states except Britain, France, Switzerland, the Scandinavian states and The Netherlands, freedom and democracy are forgotten words. Regimentation and totalitarianism have displaced freedom and democracy as by-words of the new dictatorship. Freedom of the press, freedom of speech, freedom of property rights, sanctity of the home—all have been suppressed under the merciless hands of Fascism, and Nazism, and Communism.

Two bulwarks stand out today in defense of that for which Washington fought and Paine so eloquently wrote: freedom, "a celestial article." Those two bulwarks are Britain and the U. S. A., which might be grouped as one; and the English speaking peoples of the world.

In these two states, and among this race we find the forces of democracy somewhat beleaguered holding out in defense of the freedom which they sanctify.

In Britain a king who would not follow the dictates of a majority of his people was forced to abdicate. In America a president who sought to destroy one of the bulwarks set up by Paine, Washington and their contemporaries against the forces holding sway in many parts of the world, now as then, was defeated by men inspired with the same convictions as were those who sacrificed life, limb, name, family and fortune for the cause of American Independence in 1776 and the years following.

The trend in the world today and one which has found its way into the American political system, is for centralization of political authority and regimentation of the masses into a subservient, obedient group. To accomplish these aims every known political device is employed and wielded mercilessly.

In the last decade the steady penetration of government into business has been witnessed. The pace with which government has entered the business of regulating industry and finance has been so rapid since 1933 as to dazzle even those who so heartily condemn the old free-for-all days preceding the crash.

The TVA, the Frazier-Lemke Acts, the Wagner Labor Act, the NRA, the AAA, the Guffey Coal Act, Hot Oil Regulation Act, and the Rail Pension Act—regardless of the merits or demerits of these measures—all marked an extension of the federal power, and in the case of at least two of these—NRA and AAA—curtailment of the traditional rights of the individual.

This trend was climaxed in the recent court reorganization imbroglio, when those who believe the basis of democracy lies in the protection of the minority,

May 31, 1937

My dear friends:

I have been enjoying a visit to my own District for the past few days. I arrived in Waco last Wednesday at noon, but the time in Texas has seemed too short. I leave for Washington tomorrow (Tuesday) morning. I came down on the train, but shall drive back and take my mother up for a visit. I think it would be a fine thing for the country if every member of Congress could visit his home people at least once a month. Of course, that is impossible where it is as far from the District to Washington as it is with us, but these visits home certainly enable a Representative to more nearly keep in touch with the views of the people of his own district. One of the dangers of any strong central government far removed from the local people, is that the officials come gradually to see problems more and more from the viewpoint of the Bureau and Departments at the Capitol and less from the view point of the taxpayer at home.

In this connection I call attention to the manner in which every one of the emergency agencies are now trying to be made permanent and to secure civil service status for their personnel. They have lead many of our people to feel that these employees should be forced on civil service, but at the same time we all know that most of these agencies must be abolished if we are ever to cut government expenses. However, if we are to place all of the employees on a permanent status we will never be able to abolish this expense. We could wipe out the governmental service, but we would still have all of the employees still on the payrolls. I delayed my trip to Texas on last weekend till Monday in order to be present at the final vote on the W.P.A. Bill. (I had already voted on the amount on Friday). However, we did not vote Monday and in fact the House has not yet finally voted on the bill. I left a "pair" but expect I will be in Washington before the bill is completed. I do not feel that the earmarking of funds for P.W.A. and Highway work is in any way "pork barrel" as many reports have indicated.

These projects will provide work for the needy just as truly as leafraking projects and at the same time the money thus spent will give us something worthwhile in years to come and to my mind this is the sound way to provide relief—Make our relief money not only provide employment, but also make it build some public works of lasting volume.

A week ago, Dr. W. R. Powers who has served as postmaster at Temple passed away. Under the recently promulgated executive orders, the Congressman will no longer have any choice in the selection of a permanent postmaster at a first, second or third class post office. In the past a list of three names has been submitted by the Civil Service Commission, and the Congressman could name any one of the three. Under the new order, only one name will be submitted—the high man and the Postmaster general must appoint that one. However, pending the holding of the examination, there must be an acting postmaster, and the Congressman can still recommend the party to fill this temporary position. I have felt that it was a proper thing to promote some experienced man from the ranks of the office, and, am, therefore, recommending Mr. W. N. Roberson who is probably the oldest Democrat in point of service in the Temple Office.

"BICYCLING IS NOT HEALTHY, IF—"

Bicycling is healthy,—except at night, when there are no lights on the bicycle.

Now, We're not calamity howlers, or "I told you so." fanatics! But, with fifty to one hundred bicycles in town where traffic at least is fast, if not dangerous,— anything might happen.

Some of the higher priced bicycles are equipped with lights, some of the bicycles are not. It looks like the main part of a bicycle especially at night, would be a light, or at least a red reflector, fore and aft, so that the terrible monster the motorist would have a chance to miss those, we mean it when we say: "We love our children," And,
just a few cents or a dollar or two, would be a cheap investment, when we really DO love our children.

"LOST, STRAYED OR STOLEN"

Many complaints are coming to the Sheriff's office of lost, strayed or stolen, sheep, cattle, hogs, goats and horses. That department doesn't think they are all "lost or strayed," but a great many of them are stolen.

Sometime previous, books were printed with minature bills of sales to be given to those who haul cattle, etc., so that when moving these animals they would have "papers" to show. No one will object to these "papers" if they are on the up and up. If they are not, the Sheriff's department doesn't care, but the hauler probably will.

Now, it is a simple matter to write out this bill of sale, and the sheriff's department is going to "put on the pressure" about this promiscuous hauling, and they ADVISE you to have papers on whatever animals you are hauling. A word to the wise is sufficient!

FROM THE COUNTY AGR'L AGENT

That cotton flea hopper damage will be the most severe this year that Central Texas Cotton Growers have ever suffered is the prediction of Entomologists who have made a study of flea hoppers. Even now, serious damage is being done to early cotton by these minute pests, according to J. C. Patterson, McLennan County Agent. As cotton develops to the fruiting stage the flea hoppers leave the wild host plant and move into the young tender cotton and puncture the forms causing them to shed. Flea hoppers made a generous contribution toward the 25 per cent lint loss thru insect damage on black land cotton last year.

Many cotton growers will doubtless desire to undertake for the first time cotton flea hopper control work this year and in order that all interested cotton growers may have opportunity to witness the various makes and sizes of dusting machinery in actual operation a big cotton dusting demonstration has been arranged for. This demonstration will be conducted on June 9th beginning at 7:00

a. m. on the Arthur Leggett farm at the "Circle." The circle is the intersection of highways, 2, 44 and 67 just southwest of the city of Waco. The early morning hours is used because of the fact that dusting should be done when the air is quiet. High Winds which usually occur later in the day retard effective dusting of cotton.

Sales agencies for all types of dusting machinery are being invited to show their complete line in operation at this time and sufficient acceptances have been received to assure a good demonstration. Dusting equipment of all capacities ranging from the small hand operated machines to the big tractor es-quipment may be seen in operation.

Flea hopper control demonstrations conducted in a number of Texas counties in 1936, including McLennan county, gave further proof that control of flea hoppers may be had by properly dusting with the correct type of dusting sulphur at the proper intervals. Bubert obtained 183 pounds of seed cotton more per acre on the dusted plant than on the undusted area.

For effective dusting 12 to 20 pounds per acre of 325 mesh sulphur is applied at weekly intervals until sufficient forms have developed. The amount of sulphur varies according to the size of the plants and the degree of infestation. Usually three to four dustings at seven day intervals will allow a normal number of blooms to develop. If a dusting is washed off by a rain within twenty-four hours after dusting dust again immediately.
It is useless to dust with coarse lumpy sulphur. Demand a grade which is especially prepared for the purpose. For effective control sulphur ground so that 93 to 95 per cent will pass through a 325 mesh screen, and preferably mixed with 2 1/2 to 8 per cent of a light fluffy conditioning agent should be used.

Dr. F. L. Thomas of Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Mr. R. R. Reppert, Extension Entomologist have been invited to be present to answer questions on cotton insect control.

This demnstration at Arthur Leggot's farm at the Circle on June 9th at 7:00 a. m. should be of a great benefit to farmers who will do their first flea hopper control work this year.

On the evening of June 3, at 6:00 o'clock Margie Upton and Eugene Coleman were married at the home of the bride's par-

Minister E. D. Shelton of Gatesville officiated at the cere-the decorated living room where members of the family and groom were gathered. The wedding march was played by the bride's youngest sister, Janese Upton. The bride was given by her father while her sister, Iradell Upton was maid of honor.

The groom was assisted by Audaine Reese.

The bride's dress was a pre-ty white crepe combined with blue, worn with blue accessories.

The wedding was followed by a delicious supper served at 6:30 in the evening at the home of the bride's parents. The bride, Miss Upton, is a teacher in the Pearl school. The groom is a well known farmer of the Izoro community where the couple will make their home.

The parachute was conceived
by the artist Leonardo de Vinci, who described it in 1495.

THE STORY SO FAR:

B. J. Nolan has lost a fortune backing worthless inventions. His son, Kenneth, with a million of his own, refuses to give his father $100,000 to build Nolan Heights, B. J.'s dream of a model village. B. J. and Virginia Travis, a lovely but penniless young architect, decide to get the money from Kenneth by fair means or foul. Virginia persuades two pals, Judy and Hunk, to pose as maid and butler. B. J., pretending to be in Chicago, hides in the kitchen.

Kenneth returns from Europe with Nina Tennyson, an attractive fortune-hunter, and Henri saffron, her "Uncle." Unknown to Kenneth, Nina and Henri are plotting to get his money too. Virginia goes to work on Kenneth but finds he has plenty of sales-resistance. Nina, suspicious of Virginia, forces Henri to warn Kenneth against her.

Chapter Four

It was a beautiful morning. Kenneth whistled in his shower. The first thing he would do, he decided, was to see Virginia Travis and get to the bottom of this thing. Perhaps Henri was right. Perhaps she did look at him conspicuously! Perhaps — well, one good look at her and he would know.

But Virginia was not in the dining room and Hunk, beaming from ear to ear, greeted him with a menu. It was headed "Club Breakfasts" and listed ham and eggs of six different varieties.

"Whose whimsical idea was this?" inquired Kenneth.

Hunk blushed modestly. "I thought it would be kinda cute," he admitted.

"Well, bring me Number Four, and tell the cook I want my eggs one fried on one side and one fried on the other side."

"Oke-oke," chirped Hunk, and vanished through the swinging door.

In the kitchen B. J. and Virginia were busily engaged with B. J.'s Writograph, making out household checks for the gas company, the electric company, the grocer and the butcher. And finally a check for $100,000, made out to Cash. B. J. fidgeted nervously.

"Try being calm," Virginia soothed. "As soon as he's had his breakfast and is in a good humor I'll try this gadget on him."

She carried the Writograph into the dining room and demonstrated it to Kenneth. Kenneth laughed heartily when he saw it.

"It's very simple," Virginia explained, unabashed by his mirth. "You can sign five checks with one stroke of the pen."

Kenneth stopped laughing. "Checks? What checks?"

"Your father left a few household bills unpaid and —"

"Oh, of course." Reassured, he took the four checks Virginia held out to him. "Let's see, twenty-five — fifty — seventy-five — one hundred — looks like my father's gaining weight. Got a pen?"

Virginia had dexterously inserted the check for $100,000 in the Writograph in place of one for $50. She was trembling violently, fearful he had noticed. Their hands touched and Kenneth looked up into Virginia's startled face.

"Do you," he asked, studying her. "look like that at everybody — or just me?"

"Huh?"

"You ought to do something about your eyes. A girl shouldn't look that way at young men."

Virginia flushed crimson. "I don't know what you mean," she said.

"There's no doubt you mean well," he continued. "But someone else might think you had a purpose behind that strange look. You —"

He paused, suddenly embarrassed himself. Picking up the pen, he signed the checks without further ado. Virginia sighed audibly.

"There, now, that's much better. Now you look almost like an angel."

"I'm — I'm afraid I'm not an angel — far from it," she stammered. "Sit down," suggested Kenneth. "I've nothing to do."

She burst out eagerly. "But wouldn't you like to do something? Something that — that means something?"

"Well — it all depends. Do you mean, do I have a longing for 'that which is agreeable?"

"Yes!" said Virginia, misunderstanding. "Don't you want to have fun?"

"Well —" Kenneth regarded her warily. "What's your idea — of fun?"

"Little houses in the country, instead of squalid city tenements. Sunshine and fresh air for children, instead of dirty streets — making that possible!"

A look of resignation passed over Kenneth's face. "Oh — Nolan Heights again! I — uh — thought you meant something else. Now, look, Miss Travis, if I could get my father to settle down, everything would be just jim-dandy. If there were only some way I could do it without his knowing — something I could put in his coffee, maybe, to cure him."

"Without his knowing it? Wouldn't he hate you for it?"

"No — not if I cured him. He'd love me for it. I wish you'd help me."

Virginia smiled to herself. "I think I'm going to help you a great deal."

Picking up the Writograph, she hurried into the kitchen. She was breathless with excitement. B. J. examined the check with wide-eyed delight.

"Wow!" he chortled. "Now I can come home!"

"They set out for New York high in spirits and thoroughly pleased with themselves. But they were due for a disappointment. Mr. Judd, a conservative, sour-faced old man who handled Kenneth's account at the bank, eyed them with open suspicion. Nolan must be wanting another loan. Well, that was out of the question. He informed them also that Kenneth left explicit instructions at the bank that no check over a thousand dollars was to be honored without his personal verification. For B. J. and Virginia the world went black. This was a terrible bank, they decided, a cold and unfriendly bank. They left without further ceremony. Mr. Judd stared after them open-mouthed.

Outside another shock awaited them. The four process servers who had been hounding B. J. appeared out of thin air and pounced on him with summonses.

"Welcome back to New York County, Mr. Nolan!" they cried in a happy chorus.

"Thanks, fellows," muttered B. J. bitterly. "How much time have I got?"

"Two days — or else!"

"Two days!" mourned B. J. "Virginia, this is the end."

They made their way dejectedly towards the subway. It was the rush hour and they barely managed to find squeezing space in the train. Over the shoulder of a disgruntled-looking man who was jammed between them, Virginia tried to comfort B. J. The noise of the train was so great she had to shout.

"Now don't be discouraged," she screamed, clutching at a strap.

"It's no use!" B. J. yelled back. "Not when you talk that way!" hollered Virginia. "Where's your pride?"

"What?" shouted B. J. The man squeezed between them turned irritably to B. J.

"She says, 'Where's your pride?'" he repeated.

"Thank you," said B. J. Then, at the top of his lungs, "I know when I'm licked!"

The train rounded a sharp corner and Virginia teetered precariously.

"The fight's just started!" she bellowed at B. J. "And you're going to win. You've got me going now!"

"What?" screamed B. J.

The man between them raised his eyebrows. "She says, 'You've got me going now.'" And he added significantly, "I hope you two will be very happy."

The train began to slow down and the man elbowed his way out. B. J. moved closer to Virginia.

"But where am I going to get a hundred thousand dollars?" he thundered in her ear.

The train stopped with a shrieking suddenness. As one man, the trainful of passengers turned to stare at B. J., thinking he was mad. B. J. looked sheepish and embarrassed and caught the eye of a bed-ragged fellow opposite. The man stared back resentfully.

"Don't look at me, brudder!" he said.

Let's Talk about Clothes

Denton, June 3.—Everyone will have the blues this summer, since this all time favorite is the one color which can be worn with equal success by any type of person. Blondes, brunettes and redheads at Texas State College for Women are choosing their favorite shades.

Although blondes have known for centuries the effect they can achieve in blue, and titian haired ladies have not been insensible to the charms its bestows, the surprise of the season comes in new blue for brunettes.

Coronation blue is probably the most becoming with dark eyes and hair. Its warmth, a quality lacking in most shades of the color, gives life and richness to brunette complexions. Even a lighter shade than Coronation is good with some dark hair, but experimentation is the only sure way to tell whether or not it will "click."

Redheads still cheer for green, but a cold rather unusual greenish blue will perform the same wonders for them. They can get by with others, powder, ice, cornflower and medium blues, but Miss Auburn should not waste time with those when the greener tints are made so especially for her.

Golden hair and blue eyes are liked all too often with powder or "baby" blue. Many blondes are missing the opportunity of wearing a darker hue which would emphasize their skin and still bring out the color of their eyes.

The great majority of men and women who are neither blondes, brunettes or redheads will wear, as usual, the medium shade which McClelland Barclay suitably calls "Universal Blue."

San Francisco Bay's famed ferries will carry as many as 40,000 persons an hour to the World's Fair in 1939.

Former President Hoover is planning a mining industry exhibit for the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition.

Eleven Western states will display their resources in one building at the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition.

"Locust trees help stop gullies and are a cheap source of fence posts."

The use of trees to stop the growth of gullies is becoming popular over the state, according to C. W. Simmons, farm forester of the Texas A. and M. Extension Service. The trees not only retard erosion, but offer an additional source of farm income.

In humid sections of the State, Simmons finds that the black locust makes a quick growth, holds the soil together, and provides fairly good fence posts within a reasonable time.

About 10 years is needed to produce serviceable posts from this tree on average soil.

In general, it is always best to plant trees which are known to be locally adapted. There are three species of pine and some 27 varieties of hardwood which are of commercial value in Texas, Simmons says. In sections where none of these are adapted, Simmons recommends planting such post yielding trees as cedar, mesquite, bois d'arc and black locust.

County agricultural agents have available detailed information regarding the planting of forest under the Agricultural Conservation Program, which carries provision for payment for this type of agricultural conservation.
