Two Children Killed Near Burnet by Hit-Run Autoist Headed Here

Officers of Burnet were seeking a hit-and-run driver Sunday night in the death of two children of Lee Bird, a farmer living near Burnet.

The children, 7 and 4 years old, were run down by an automobile on the highway in the edge of Burnet while they were walking home with their parents from church.

It was rumored that the car escaped a traffic blockade and headed this way in a V-8 Coupe beginning with "210-," the last with a local license number, part not being caught. A man and woman were in the car according to eye-witness.

The seven year old child was instantly killed from a broken neck. The other child died a short time later in a Lampasas hospital from a fractured skull and broken shoulder.

The car is alleged to have struck the children and then swerved from the right side of the road into them and then continued toward Lampasas.

TEXAS SCREWORM CASES INCREASE IN MAY

Screw worm infestations in the wounds of animals reported from Texas increased from 3,665 in April to 7,831 in May, which is a little more than one-fourth of one per cent of the animals on which reports were obtained. An infestation of two percent or more of the animal population is considered as an outbreak proportion and one that can cause noticeable losses among animals.

Of the cases reported during May, 5,518 of them occurred in cattle and 1,961 occurred in sheep. The greatest losses were reported among sheep, where the mortality amounted to more than three per cent of the infestations. More than half (56 percent) of the cases occurred in the navels of young animals soon after birth which emphasizes the importance of controlling the breeding of livestock so that young may be born before screw worm control office at 1010 and prickly pear furnish wounds which cause over 14 per cent of the infestations.

The fact that man-made injuries resulted from castrating, dehorning, marking, branding and shear cuts furnish less than 15 per cent of the wounds which became infested with screw worms is evidence of the precautions being taken by ranchmen and farmers in performing operations on livestock, according to the Division of Screw Worm Control office at 1010 Travis Building, San Antonio, Texas. When it is absolutely necessary to perform such operations on livestock during the screw worm season, good stockmen apply pine tar oil to repel the flies and to aid in healing the wounds. If the wounds become infested, they are careful to kill the screw worms with benzol so as not to injure the wounds. Over 7,000 stockmen in the state were given advice and reported on cases of screw worm control supervisors of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, United States Department of Agriculture during the month.

CEMETERY ENTRANCES GET GRAVEL, AND LOTS ARE CLEANED

For the last several days, city workmen have been graveling and working the thoroughfares and lots at the City Cemetery. Which is now, according to City Secretary Elland Lovejoy in good condition.

Due to the fact that so many people own lots in the cemetery live out of town, the cleaning of lots has been slowed up somewhat. Local people are urged to keep their own lots clean order to keep the general appearance of the cemetery as good as possible.

WORLD COMMENT

Joe Burns

Seven Democrats and three Republicans of the United States Senate won a niche in Americas hall of fame if not in the history of the world last week.

The 10,000 word report of these representatives condemning the Roosevelt judiciary reorganization bill constituted only one of the steps which will make these men long remembered in the annals of historic events of this country. Their chief claim to families in a four months battle for what they believe to be the sacred guarantee of freedom against the greatest politician the world has produced in many generations.

For posterity's sake, we list these ten statesmen, among whom is one of the finest gentlemen and greatest statesman Texas ever elected to Congress. They are Senators King of Utah, McCarran of Nevada, Van Nuys of Indiana, Hatch of New Mexico, Burke of Nebraska, Connally of Texas, O'Mahoney of Wyoming, all Democrats, and Borah of Idaho, Austin of Vermont, and Steiwer of Oregon, Republicans.

Entire credit for the defeat of the court bill does not rest with these gentlemen, who were privileged to write the adverse report of the senate judiciary committee for there were immeasurably aided and encouraged by other senators, Democrats, Republicans, and Farmer-

Laborites. Among the foremost of these may be listed Senator Wheeler of Montana and Senator Johnson of California.

In the report presented to the Senate by its judiciary committee was contained a refutation of every argument submitted by the sponsors and advocates of the bill. Branded as a "needless, futile, and utterly dangerous abandonment of constitutional principle," the report declared of the bill that "it should be so emphatically rejected that its parallel will never again be presented to the representatives of the free people of America."

The majority recommended rejection of the bill for these primary reasons:

I. The bill does not accomplish any one of the objectives for which it was originally offered.

II. It applies force to the judiciary and in its initial and ultimate effect would undermine the independence of the courts.

III. It violates all precedents in the history of our government and would in itself be a dangerous precedent for the future.

IV. The theory of the bill is in direct violation of the spirit of the American constitution and its employment would permit alteration of the constitution without the people's consent or approval; it undermines the protection our constitutional individuals.

V. It tends to expand political district judiciary by the power of assigning judges from one district to another at will.

VI. It tends to expand political control over the judicial department by adding to the powers of the legislative and executive departments respecting the judiciary.

To the first avowed objective of the President of increasing the personnel of the Federal Courts "so that cases may be promptly decided in the first instance, and may be given adequate and prompt hearing on all appeals," the majority answered:

"The facts indicate that the courts with the oldest judges have the best records in the disposition of business. It follows therefore that since there are comparatively aged justices in service and these are among the most efficient on the bench, the age of sitting judges does not make necessary an increase of personnel to handle the business of the courts."

Turning to the President's argument to "invigorate all the courts by the permanent infusion of new blood," the report said the bill "sets up insuperable obstacles to the 'constant or 'persistent' operation of that principle."

In summary and in conclusion the majority asked the question, "What does the court bill do, since it does not with certainty provide for increasing the personnel of the Federal judiciary, does not remedy the law's delay, and does not provide for the 'constant' or 'persistent' infusion of new blood?"

"The answer is clear. It applies force to the judiciary. It is an attempt to impose upon the courts a course of action, a line of decision which, without that force, without that imposition, the judiciary might not adopt. Can reasonable men by any possibility differ about the constitutional impropriety of such a course?"

"Those of us who hold office in this Government, however humble or exalted it may be, are creatures of the constitution. To it we owe all the power and authority we possess. Outside of it we have none. We are bound by it in every official act. It is immeasurably more important, immeasurably more sacred to the people of America, indeed to the people of all the world than the immediate adoption of any legislation, however beneficial.

"Let us for the purpose of the argument, grant that the court has been wrong, wrong not only in that it has rendered mistaken opinions but wrong in the far more serious sense that it has substituted its will for the congressional will in the matter of legislation. May We, nevertheless, safely punish the court?"

"Today it may be the court which is charged with forgetting its constitutional duties. Tomorrow it may be the Congress. The next day it may be the executive. If we yield to the temptation now to lay the lash upon the court we are only teaching others how to apply it to ourselves and to the people when the occasion seems to warrant . . .

"The ascertainment has been discriminatedly made that the court has arrogated to itself the right to declare acts of Congress invalid. The contention will not stand against investigation or reason. The framers of the Constitution were not satisfied to give the court power to pass only on cases arising under the laws but insisted on making it quite clear that the power extends to cases arising 'under the Constitution.' Moreover, Article VI of the Constitution, Clause 2, provides;

"This constitution and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof . . . shall be the supreme law of the land . . ."

"Language was never more clear. No doubt can remain. A pretended law which is not 'in pursuance' of the Constitution is no law at all.

"A citizen has the right to appeal to the Constitution from such a statute. He has the right to demand that Congress shall not pass an act in violation of that instrument and, if Congress does pass such an act, he has the right to seek refuge in the courts and to expect the Supreme Court to strike down the act if it does in fact violate the Constitution. A written Constitution would be valueless if it were otherwise.

"May we, however, point out that neither in this administration nor in any previous administration has the Supreme Court held unconstitutional more than a minor fraction of the laws which have been enacted. In 148 years, from 1789 to 1937, only sixty-four acts of Congress have been declared unconstitutional—sixty-four acts to a total of approximately 58,000."

This commentator deeply regrets that space does not permit publication of the complete text of the judiciary committee's report, and that each and every American is not privileged to read this report. Choice excerpts from the report have been printed herein.

In pursuance of a policy of fairness which this writer follows, it might be said that no review of a minority report on the judiciary bill has been printed for the reason that no such report was written or submitted to the Senate.

MONA LA RUE FULTON

February 23, 1936 God blessed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Fulton with a darling blue eyed baby girl which was called Mona La Rue. She had a smile for everyone and a charming disposition.

Her dear mother, father and brother miss her so much that words cannot express but the dear Bible teaches us, that we all must go some day to the great judgement, June 2, 1937 was the day God had a vacancy in his great Kingdom, that Mona La Rue was called to fill. She now is in heaven at rest with God and His angels.

Now dear mother, father and brother live so that when God calls you to the Great Judgement that you too will be prepared to meet your darling daughter and sister. Now, our darling, oh so sweet, was a precious flower budded on earth to bloom in Heaven.

Father, mother and brother weep not or be sad

Still on the Savior rely.

Mona La Rue is a beautiful flower.

Blooming on high.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

VIEWPOINT IN LANDSCAPES

The house in the lower right nicely balances the composition and accentuates the height of the mountains.

NOW that nature has once more been adorned with the verdure of spring and a new season of outdoor picture taking has begun, it is appropriate to consider landscape pictures.

Good landscape subjects are, at least, easy to find. One can travel scarcely anywhere without encountering pleasing vistas of woods and fields, hills and valleys, stream and lake, country cottages, old farmhouses, tree-canopied roads, flocks of browsing sheep, herds of cattle, and all that makes for beauty and interest in landscapes.

What should we do to capture these lovely scenes with our cameras? Such views may seem easy to take as they meet the eye, but here, as in all photography, indiscriminate snapshotting usually results in jumbled composition. A little thought, a little planning, a little effort, if you please, to make the picture—not merely to take it. This means care in selecting a viewpoint which makes the composition essential to an artistic picture. You cannot shoot on sight and be lucky every time.

Beginners are often satisfied with any picture at all as long as it is clear. They are delighted merely to have obtained the correct exposure.

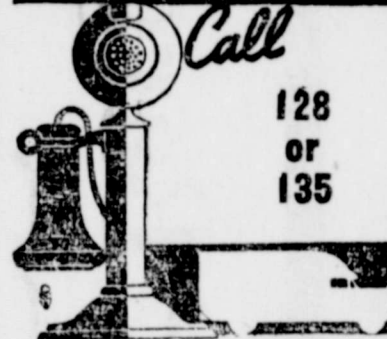

But he who takes pains to locate a viewpoint which gives in his finder a well-balanced arrangement of the objects in the scene generally gets pictures that are not merely photographically clear but artistic.

Are you willing to climb a fence, toil up a rugged hill, wade a brook, to get that viewpoint? Many an enthusiast has taken real risks for a viewpoint and been amply rewarded. Remember that the viewpoint should be such that the picture balances both vertically and horizontally. Generally there should be a large mass, the main object of interest, near but not at the center, balanced by several smaller objects or masses on the other side, or by a single smaller one farther from the center, or in some cases slightly above or below the center.

Take time to move around from spot to spot and in each place experiment with the scene as it appears in your viewfinder. Be satisfied that you have this balanced composition before you let the picture into your lens. Choosing the best viewpoint is what the landscape painter does before he sets up his easel to make his picture. Remember that in the same way you, too, with a camera, can make a picture.

Twenty Questions on Social Security

Question: What is the difference between Old-Age assistance and old-age benefit, as provided by the Social Security Act?

Answer: Old-age assistance provides for a monthly grant to those needy aged who are now sixtyfive or older. Old-age assistance is administered entirely by the State agencies, and they alone determine the needs of the individuals and the amount of monthly grants. The Federal Government contributes one-half of the amount given by the State to a needy individual up to a maximum Federal contribution of $15 a month to one person. All inquiries regarding old-age assistance should be directed to the Texas Old-Age Assistance Commission, Austin, Texas, or its agencies.

Old-Age benefits is a plan for the future whereby every qualified wage earner is covered occupations will, as a matter of right, be given an income upon retirement from regular employment at the age of sixtyfive.

The Old-Age benefits is administered entirely by the Federal Government. Benefits are not based upon need, but upon the wages paid to workers in covered employment after the year 1936 and prior to death or the attainment of age sixtyfive. (Further inquiries should be directed to the Social Security Board Office, 1530 Allen Bldg., Dallas, Texas.)

CAMP TAHUAYA OPENED TO BOY SCOUTS LAST SATURDAY

Camp Tahuaya, the council camp of the Heart O' Texas Council of the Boy Scouts of America opened Sunday, June 20, for the first of a series of scout camps of which George W. Powell scout executive will be director.

During the past few months many improvements have been made at camp Tahuaya to insure a pleasant camping experience for the hundreds of scouts who will use the facilities of the campsites this summer.

The swimming pool was greatly improved by the installation of a rock wall 157 feet long on the south side of the pool, which has entirely enclosed the pool and also serves as a diversion wall for the drainage water coming down the spring branch. The pool is fed by pure water from a larger spring located on the grounds of the camp and it is believed that the improvement now being completed will make the pool one of the best Boy Scout swimming in the state.

Roof of the new administration building has been completed and the unfinished portion of the building will be covered with screen wire on portable frames during the time of the camp in order to avoid the inconvenience of having construction going on while the camp is being used. Each of the six troop cabins have been equipped with wooden shutters, which will provide cooler quarters for the scouts and protect their equipment from the rain.

Three council camp periods will be held at Camp Tahuaya this season, starting the weeks of June 20, July 4 and August 1. Each camp will open with Sunday night supper and close the following Sunday at noon. The fee is $5.50 per week. Reservations may be made with scoutmasters of the troops and at council headquarters at the City Hall, Waco.

KNOW TEXAS

Denton, June 21.—A surprise awaits the stranger who travels from the Western plateaus into the Rio Grande Valley. Without warning the desert suddenly becomes miles and miles of precisely planted fruit trees, vegetables and other greenery.

Driving southward from Del Rio the tourist can relax on a paved road through Uvalde and down to Laredo, one of the important gateways from Texas to Old Mexico. In this region are the first evidences of one of the most remarkable agricultural developments in America.

Converting the waters of the Rio Grande to irrigate these fertile soils made the valley a leader in the nation's citrus fruits and winter vegetable production. During any month of the year the sight-seer can view well-cultivated fields from the palm-lined highways since the climate makes the entire valley

ALEXANDER KORDA Presents

Knight without Armor

SYNOPSIS
Caught in the whirlwind of Russia's revolution, Countess Alexandra Adrazine calmly awaits death. But the commissar in the little village of Khalinsk where she is held prisoner decides to send her to Moscow, entrusting her to a mysterious Peter Ouranov. He is actually A. J. Fothergill, an Englishman who has been caught up in anti-Czarist intrigue. They are stranded at the station. While they rest, two of his soldiers return, break into the room and grapple with Peter.

Chapter Two

With a startling suddenness, a terrifying crash the pistol flamed. Peter felt the thud of the lead in the man with whom he was struggling, the sudden loosening of the soldier's grasp as he slumped to the floor. The other soldier stared for an instant in amazed fright then clattered through the door and threw himself into his sleigh. The horse bolted under the touch of his whip.

he prepared to leave her. "Tell them you have escaped from the Reds," was his last instruction. "Wait," she cried, "aren't you going to let me thank you?" "No! No! Goodbye."

A sentinel, impressed by her evident air of authority, escorted Alexandra to the court of inquiry where they were summarily sending other men to death.

For a few moments there was a battle of will between Alexandra and the blustering officer in command. To his every question, she answered adamantly, "I want to see the commanding officer." And then, as if in answer to her repeated statement, a tall, handsome general strode into the room. "Alexandra!" he shouted, "My dear Countess, for Heaven's sake, what is all this?"

Alexandra dashed forward to grasp his hand. Breathlessly she told him the story Peter had helped her fabricate.

"Come with me, Countess," he said finally. In a few moments she was in the room with the officers, glittering, bemonocled, haughty men, all exuberant at seeing a pretty woman again. She must join them at dinner, they insisted, she

The meal began in a spirit of jubilation.

Alexandra walked silently to where Peter was standing, over the recumbent figure of the guard. "Is he dead?" she asked finally. "Why did I do it?"

"It was self-defense," said Peter sensing the reproach in her voice. "You saved your life—and probably my own."

"Why do we have to do such things?" she asked in a curiously muted tone. "Can't we get away from here Commissar? Outside? To meet our train?"

Peter knew there was no longer any use in concealing the truth from her. There was no hope of escape from the station they agreed. They would have to walk back to the village.

They had hardly struck the road when they saw a stream of bedraggled peasants struggling toward them from Saratursk. Peter hurried forward to ask questions of an old man who was leading them. "Where are you going?" he demanded to know.

"Don't kill me brother," the old man pleaded in genuine fright. "We go to the forest to hide."

"To hide? Why?" Peter asked.

"Because new soldiers have come—White soldiers—to Saratursk."

When Peter returned to Alexandra, she said breathlessly, "I heard!" She would return to the Whites, he decided, and he would accompany her to the outposts to make certain that she would not again fall into unfriendly hands. They came up to the outpost with the utmost secrecy. Peter saw the forms of shaggy men securely mounted on dancing ponies who moved with a savage Tartar delicacy. He knew that they were Cossacks.

Breathing instructions for her to approach the outpost and ask to be taken to the officer in command, suitable for year-round agriculture.

After the ride down through Hebronville, San Diego, Falfurrias and Edinburg one finds himself in the Lower Valley. Although this section teems with industries and trade, it nevertheless presents a rather countenance to the world, and the visitor soon learns the importance of the "siestas."

Brownville, the most southern point in the United States, is the commercial center of Cameron County, which leads Texas in the value of its truck crops. It might also lead in the beauty if its crops, since nothing else quite equals the endless, rhythmic rows of citrus orchards and the abundance of well-planned gardens.

Near Brownsville is Matamoros another introduction to Mexico, and no trip to South Texas is complete without one or two visits "across the border."

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

BIG FILMUSICAL COMEDY BOOKED BY REGAL

Lilting music, rollicking laughter and glowing romance combine to make "Sing Me a Love Song," a Cosmopolitan production released through First National, which is scheduled as the feature attraction at the Regal Theatre Saturday night at 10:30, Sunday and Monday, one of the most entertaining musical comedies of the year.

There is an all star cast headed by James Melton, the radio singer, Patricia Ellis, Hugh Herbert, Zasu Pitts, Allen Jenkins and Nat Pendleton.

The story by Harry Sauber deals with the colorful adventures of a wealthy and somewhat irresponsible youth who goes to work incognito in his own department store to find why the wheels aren't going around as they should. In doing so he falls in love with one of his clerks, gets himself and her tangled up in a series of innocent misadventures which land them both in jail. Melton's rick melodious voice will be heard in six songs altogether, three of them written by that famous song team of Harry Warren and Al Dubin, especially for the picture; one written by Jacques Wolfe while the other two are old timers.

One of the songs, "Summer Night," is sung in connection with a production number staged and directed by Bobby Connolly. It takes place on the roof of a department store with the city lights twinkling far below. This, Melton sings with a male chorus, to Patricia Ellis. "The Little House That Love Built" is a song sung in one of the Connolly numbers which is staged in an elaborately built house for lovers on the floor of the big departmental store.

"That's the Least You Can Do for the Lady" is a novelty ballad by Warren and Dubin and sung by Melton. The two old times are "Your Eyes Have Told Me So," and "Carry Me Back to the Lone Prairie." In the latter Zasu bursts into song along with Melton—the first time she has ever sung in films.

Hugh Herbert, as a wealthy kleptomaniac, Allen Jenkins as an elevator operator in love with Zasu Pitts, also a clerk and chum of Miss Ellis, Nat Pendleton, a biligenter chauffeur, Walter Catlett, pompous floor walker and Hobart Cavanaugh, furnish most of the comedy.

SPORTS

The Comanche Indians, who once roamed the virgin plains of Coryell County, were noted for their horsemanship. Swooping down on some neighboring tribe or hardy pioneer they were a fearful sight with their grotesquely painted faces and heart-chilling yells. Inhabitants of the plains country, they were placed on horses before they could walk. In Indian lore they are noted equally for their fierce and warlike nature and their equestrianism.

But the Comanches were panty-waists compared to Oce Wollard Lovejoy, a he-man horseman of the first water. The Comanches, although they used no saddles, did steer their mounts by crudely fashioned halters, but young Lovejoy scorns such sissie methods. He merely leaps upon his Shetland pony, attired in nothing but his native state, busts it in the belly once or twice with his heel and off they shoot at a mad gallop.

By some strange communion the rider and his mount cooperate perfectly. Dashing up to an intersection the pony will come to a dead halt at the stop sign. Both will peer carefully in each direction for automobiles and if the coast is clear, with no visible motion from the rider, the diminutive animal leaps forward.

If young Lovejoy has an er-
