Poage Gives Views on Recent Farm Measures Before Present Session

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—The failure of the House Appropriations Committee to make adequate provision of funds for the Farm Tenancy Program was assailed by leaders from the farm areas today. The House of Representatives today adopted an amendment to its Deficiency Appropriation Bill that had just been referred to it from its Appropriation Committee. The Committee had failed to recommend any appropriation for the Farm Tenancy Program that had been previously voted by Congress but the amendment adopted today will provide an appropriation bill of ten million dollars for purchase of submarginal lands. The appropriation must yet be passed by the Senate but there is little doubt but that the Senate will take favorable action.

Congressman W. R. Poage of the Eleventh Texas District spoke vigorously in behalf of the amendment to provide the necessary funds for the reduction of farm tenancy and for an increase of farm home ownership. Mr. Poage said in part as follows: "Some weeks ago this Congress, by an overwhelming vote of both houses passed and the President approved a bill making a very small start but a start nevertheless, toward the eradication of the system of farm tenancy. To my mind that bill was a recognition of the duty of the Government in seeking the solution of one of our most grievous social and economic problems. The bill is not a Communistic effort to give every landless man 40 acres and a mule but, on the contrary, it is an extension of the same type of services now rendered by the Federal Land Banks to the more fortunate of our farming people. It enables the man without a home to borrow from the government. It gives the prospective home owner no subsidy. It makes no grant. It bestows no charity. The government is to assist in securing the money to make the purchases of the farm. The borrower is required to repay every dollar.

Now we have an appropriation bill before us, which repudiates the philosophy expressed so recently by this Congress. This bill fails to carry out the express wish of the Congress and the fond expectation of more than two million tenant farmers.

The home-owning farmer has through all history formed the backbone of stable government. If we had no interest in the individual, if we ignored the personal element and if we could overlook the desirable economic

Chamber of Commerce Preparing for Dam Hearing

Acting at the request of Lieut. Colonel F. S. Besson, District Engineer, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, the Chamber of Commerce is making plans for representation from Gatesville and Coryell county at the hearing on the Leon River Conservation Program in Hamilton, August 25.

At their regular meeting Tuesday of this week, a committee was appointed by the Directors of the Chamber of Commerce, to prepare and present to the officials, all plans and specifications necessary to get allocation of improvements along this river. This committee includes

Robert W. Brown, Chairman, Guy Powell, L. S. Secrest, County Engineer.

Special emphasis was given to the request that farmers living on the Leon River make the trip, so that they can present their problems, at the open forum that will likely be held after the engineers and officials have presented the specifications.

As we understand, the proposed dam site which will be presented to the officials at this meeting is just above the Jonesboro bridge, and would control the water throughout Coryell

County. Another is just below Coryell county.

Judge Brown and Engineer Secrest have been working on this dam site for a number of months, and have discovered that the best place in the county for the dam, above Gatesville, is the Jonesboro location. Lines have been run at a number of different points, from the Grant farm near Gatesville, Moccasin Bend, and all the way to Jonesboro.

Chamber of Commerce Directors include J. Hurl McClellan, Dan E. Graves, Leake Ayre, H. K. Jackson, George B. Painter, Francis Powell, Byron Leaird Jr., and C. E. Alvis.

Post Office Dedication Is Slated for September 6th

Labor Day, September 6, has been selected for the dedication of the new Post Office Building, according to Andrew Kendrick, Secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce which will handle the program and make arrangements at the request of Postmaster J. Hurl McClellan.

So far, the Committee on Arrangements has been appointed by the Chamber of Commerce Directors and includes Postmaster J. Hurl McClellan, Chairman, C. E. Alvis, Jr. and Pat Holt.

Mr. McClellan stated that due to the fact that all post offices will be closed on Labor Day, it was deemed advisable to have the dedication on this day, and, consequently, all postmasters in the county and surrounding counties have, or will, be invited to attend the dedication.

So far, no speakers have been chosen, but since Congress is threatening every day to adjourn, it is probable that the speakers will be Hon. Tom Connally, Hon. W. R. (Bob) Poage, and former Congressman O. H. Cross. At least, letters are being forwarded to these men in an effort to have them present for the dedication.

Further announcements will be given in the News, as the committee develops the arrangements for the dedication.

Little Miss Mary Ruth Franks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Franks, returned Sunday from a week's visit with her aunt, Mrs. Grace Blackstock in Brownwood. She was accompanied home by Billie Blackstock, who will visit his grandparents at Arnett and other relatives here this week.

effects, the Government would still be justified in spending public money to make home-owners of its rural citizens as the most effective insurance of its stability. We spend a hundred times the amount here requested each year on our military forces, but no military force can guarantee the stability of government that is achieved through home-owning farming population.

To fail to make this ten million dollar appropriation at this time would be to break faith with America, would be to take from our tenant farmers the hope that was held out, would be to further delay and sound and permanent solution of our Agricultural problems and would finally be to ignore the very foundations on which our Government is built."

At the conclusion of the Congressman's speech a vote was taken and the amendment carried, the vote standing 128 to 63.

REMAKING THE HOME

By JANNETT ALLEN

That "extra" room in pleasant natural Celotex tones

Guest Room in the Attic

AN extra room or guest room is waiting for you in your own home: in that unfinished attic of yours.

All very well, you say, to have that extra space, but can you afford it? Oddly enough, you not only can afford it, but actually can save money by doing it in the proper way.

There is no mystery about the process. If your attic is properly refinished with a board that insulates as it builds, you will save about 50 per cent of the heat loss through your roof. Too many houses apparently are trying to heat the great outdoors by allowing their heat to leak out. The roof area of the house is the main culprit in this respect.

By turning the attic into a finished room with insulation board walls, you thus obtain an extra room which will pay its own way and provide an annual dividend in fuel economy. The heat leakage which, with cold weather, takes big bites out of the family purse, will be reduced.

The extra room which will so cleverly add living space and cut fuel bills may take many forms, according to the needs and tastes of the family. I know one that was turned into a game room, another into a children's library, a third into a photography dark room.

The simpler the wall finish of the extra room, the better. Large sheets of cane fiber board lend themselves especially well to the attic finishing job, since they cover a lot of surface with little carpentry. Left in the natural tannish color the walls will make pleasing background for any sort of furnishings. If color is desired, paint may be used. Calcimine and water paints should be applied directly to unsized Celotex though calcimine may be applied to the board over a varnish size to facilitate removal by washing. Celotex should be sized before oil or varnish paints are applied.

Silhouettes and "Silly-ettes"

With a camera, a sheet, and a floodlight bulb, here is how anyone can rival the funny page artist.

NO WINTER season of picture-taking can be complete unless you have made indoor silhouette pictures and tested your originality, imagination and ingenuity in devising interesting scenes and poses. Making silhouettes is fairly simple if you follow directions, but ideas for subjects! There is where you can display the talent of a movie director, scene painter, stage carpenter and comic artist combined.

The essential set-up is merely a sheet stretched tightly across a doorway between two rooms, a photographic flood light or flash light bulb in a floor lamp in one room and your subject and camera in front of the sheet in the other room. It is the white sheet and the illumination which, of course, place your scene in silhouette, and thus in silhouette it is recorded on the film, provided you give the proper exposure. A word or two on this:

If you use flood light bulbs (one No. 2 bulb or two No. 1 bulbs) and your camera is of the single lens or box type, expose for about two seconds with the largest stop. If it has a double lens with stop f.8, expose for about one second. If your camera has an f.6.3 lens, expose for about one-half second at f.6.3. The camera must, of course, be on a firm support and set for "time." The light and camera should be so placed that a line drawn between the light and the lens will pass through the center of the scene. If you prefer to use a flash bulb, set your camera at "time," flash the bulb and close the shutter.

Now consider the endless possibilities for silhouette pictures. Don't stop merely at silhouette portraits, interesting as they may be. Devise amusing story-telling pictures. Get a laugh out of them and give your friends a laugh. You can do this by using appropriate objects, combining them in silhouette in front of the sheet with your human figure. You are not limited to objects placed in front of the sheet, however. With black or dark gray cardboard or heavy paper you may fashion all sorts of figures, pin them on the sheet and create additional scenery. By posing your human figure in conjunction with them you can produce the most absurd situations. Indeed you can perform miracles. For example, you may show Dad juggling an innumerable number of billiard balls, the balls in reality being discs on the sheet. You can depict a fairy story to illustrate a Mother Goose rhyme, such as a witch flying across the face of the moon or a great big spider frightening little Miss Muffet. You can create the illusion of six-year old Jimmie landing a voracious shark, twisting a lion's tail or defying an elephant.

"Silly-ettes." If you want to call them that, but a collection of them in your album will be far more amusing to you and your friends. Check many pages of professional comics.

JOHN VAN NUTTER

Uncle Jim Says

Title: "Some of my neighbors get about 40 days of extra grazing a year by fertilizing their permanent pastures."

Legend: The most commonly known deficiencies in Texas soils are phosphorus, hums and nitrogen. R. R. Lancaster, pasture specialist of the Texas Extension Service, has pointed out that these deficiencies not only result in lowered yields of forage and an increase of undesirable grasses in pastures but in a lowered mineral content in the grasses.

Barnyard manure, at the rate of five to eight tons per acre, and usually applied in the fall, will give a good increase in the production of pasture plants, Lancaster says. Since manure is short of phosphorus, the nutrient needed in most pastures, it should be supplemented with superphos-phate at the rate of about 200 pounds per acre.

Superphosphate alone may be profitable, because it costs less than other mineral fertilizers and encourages the growth of legumes and though then supplies nitrogen for the grasses.

"A pasture fertilizer program for dairy pastures might be started by fertilizing one fourth to one half acre per cow," Lancaster said. "This area should be fenced off so that cattle can be confined in it during early spring before unfertilized portions of the pastures are ready for grazing. It will provide future grazing after other pastures on the farm have been grazed down."

R. M. Holder and Rufus were Friday afternoon visitors to Mt. Calm.

The forty-hour week has not been yet generally adopted in France.

"I FEEL UNEASY ABOUT MY FAMILY WITH NO PHONE"

MINUTES count when you need a doctor and time is important when you need medicine from the druggist. When there is a crackle of flames or a sound at a window the neighbor's telephone seems miles away—and it is, for practical purposes.

"DEVIL IS DRIVING" POINTS WARNING TO RECKLESS DRIVING

Anyone addicted to fast driving or inclined to be reckless behind the wheel of an automobile will find a lot of pertinent information in the research results obtained by Harry Lachman, Columbia director of "The Devil Is Driving", starring Richard Dix and featuring Joan Perry.

"Figures from the National Safety Council," says Lachman, "show that in the nine years from 1928 to 1936 inclusive, 297,230 persons were killed by automobiles in the United States. In California alone over the same period, 22,105 persons met death as the result of automobile accidents."

"The total of automobile deaths for 1936 alone in this country is estimated at 37,500, which is approximately the figure of all Americans killed in the World War. The number of deaths by automobile in this country during the last fifteen years exceeds the number killed in all the wars which the United States has engaged."

"Figures like these should drive home the importance of careful driving. And, remember, these are only the total of actual deaths. The number of persons injured in automobile accidents in the United States annually exceeds one million. In other words, one out of every one hundred persons in the country is doomed to be injured by an automobile next year unless the situation is corrected."

"The Devil is Driving," a thrill-packed tale of the accident evil, is the current attraction at the Real Theatre Sat. night at 10:30 also showing Sunday and Monday.

LO, THE POOR DOCTOR

Just why is it that the doctor and druggist are the last to receive pay for their services is still a mystery. When we call the doctor we expect him to come at once and relieve our suffering now—which he does. Then we "take our own time" in paying him for his services. Likewise, when we take the doctor's prescription to the drug-store, we expected it to be filled promptly and correctly—a service which we receive. But after we are well we are prone to neglect that druggist until we need his services again. Let's make a rule to "keep square" with the guardians of our health—the doctors and druggists. Let's not call on them for favors when we neglect our obligations to them.

The wonder is that doctors don't all turn into hardened cynics. They take an oath when they begin practice to relieve suffering without discrimination and whenever called upon. Sometimes it seems that people take more advantage of the oathbound doctor than any other creditor. It is much the same with dentists, although we are not sure they have to pledge their lives to Hippocrates, or not. Only the other day we were totaling up the past due accounts of more than three years' standing owed to all the doctors and dentists of Texas. If collected these would cover all the war debts owed America and leave enough to double track the Trinity river canal from Fort Worth to Galveston. Druggists don't excite our sympathy so strongly, mainly because in recent years we haven't been able to find as many willing to sell us porch chairs, bees wax, magazines, chocolate syrup and other drugs on credit as formerly. Some of them have gotten to be downright commercial. Some day the doctors and dentists will get will get as hardboiled as the groceryman, the filling station operator, or even the newspaper publisher. And won't we all get as sore as boiled owls over it?—Grapevine Sun.

WE VOTE AGAIN!

August 23 is the date! We vote on six proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution. A brief statement of these is in order at this time: 1. Lessening liability of stockholders in State banks; 2. Assistance to destitute children. 3. Basis of compensation for District, County, and precinct officers; 4. Bill to provide property shall not be assessed for taxes at more than its fair cash market value, and to allow discount on taxes if payed before delinquent; 5. To allow Harris County and any road district therein to vote to adopt a road plan and levy taxes for road and bridge construction; 6. Providing assistance to needy blind over age of 21, with aid of assistance from Federal government.

This is a big assignment that most of us don't know much about, and will probably vote wrong. The vote is expected to be light.

Suggesting only, stockholders in State banks should not be penalized any more than those in national banks. We'd suggest voting "For."

Again suggesting, in No. 2. This is commendable, and frankly a vote getter. Another bad feature is, the "overhead" would probably cost more than the actual benefit which, of course, is needed probably, and necessary. You figure this out!

No. 3. This was changed from the "fee system" just a few years ago to the salary system and now evidently those on the receiving end want it changed back. This sounds like "big city" stuff to us, since fees in smaller counties don't usually amount to enough to keep the officers in "necessities of life," as the salary route does. It looks like "open season" on this, so we suggest "fire at random."

No. 4. We'd like to take some discounts on our taxes since we must pay them and imagine you would to, so please vote yes on this. The first clause sounds good too, because you'll probably get "assessed" enough, and feel like selling something sometime to the "board of equalization" after they have "equalized" your tax assessment.

No. 5. This is more "big county-city" legislation and allows Harris county to use their taxes to build up their own county with roads instead of sending their pro rata part of taxes to take care of state expenses. We're agin it!

No. 6. This looks the same as No. 2.

These are difficult questions and it's not how they are voted, but how things are "engineered" after they are voted. Sometimes after things are voted things don't just add up like you thought you were voting, because of trade outs on other items and legislation. You'll never know whether you vote right, until you see how it works.

Anyhow, it's a free country so you, of course, are free to vote as you see!

McGREGOR REVIVAL

We had two delightful weeks of it at McGregor. There are a fine lot of people there. The pastor Rev. R. A. Crosby was ever on the job and doing his full part. His church rallied in a fine way.

The Baptist church is divided there but both pastors attended the meeting and Rev. Mr. Webb of the College Avenue Church and many of his good people were very much in evidence by their presence. They are neighbors and "laborers together with God".
The fellowship was rich indeed.

New York, N. Y.—Midsummer madness isn't always a thing of whim and caprice born of the heat
... It has another form, as depressing as the first is stimulating—and a thousand more times deadly in effect ... It shows itself in the wild, desperate look in your eyes when you contemplate your summer wardrobe, creased and dangling like a pall in your closet
... The only cure for it is the purchase of at least one spic-and-span new garment ... I nearly went mad just prior to an important engagement — and the day happened to be a Sunday, with not one haberdashery open ...
So, if you hear this column wail from roof tops for the "good old days" when shops were opened seven days a week, you'll understand and forgive, I hope — as I forgive ... A. C. (Blumey)
Blumenthal, husband of Peggy Fears, financial field marshal, and genial Broadway playboy ...
Blumey, it seems is going to open white hamburger palaces all over England ... and thereby endanger the friendly relationship this country has enjoyed with the motherland for over a century ... The future hamburger king told me, just before he sailed for his great adventure, that although he had met most of Europe's big shots and intends to meet others soon, that he didn't care a whoop about running into the Duke of Windsor —and this is how Blumey explains it "I read in the papers where the Duke's friends have offered him yachts, castles and other valuable things, well — just let me meet those friends, and never mind the Duke." ... A critic from down Virginia way writes in to say that staccato journalism, the kind that saves time by resorting to a words-between dots technique reminds him of a dog pausing to wag its tail after having done a neat trick

... I stand chastised! ... Treat yourself to Eddie Davis the next time you hit town ... The more you watch the fellow at work at Leon and Eddie's, the more you realize that the rest of any show there is just so much window dressing for him ... the audience can't get enough of him and often keeps him on the floor for a solid hour at a stretch ... At a table in the Hotel Montclair's Casino-in-the-Air the other night, a Broadway actress was telling Bee Lillie, Cary Grant, Ernest Truex and a few others what bad luck she'd been having with Hollywood talent scouts ... "Look," she continued,
"I've had four divorces, been sued several times as a co-respondent, my jewelry has been stolen and three men have almost committed suicide over me ... What else can be done to attract Hollywood?"
... "Well," suggested someone in the party, "you might try to learn how to act!" ... Meow! ...
In compliance with the local administration's ruling of "no more nudes," Janice Andre, who did a Lady Godiva at the Paradise, was excused from any further work there. "After working here a year," she moaned to Nick Blair,
"and you give me a week's notice!"
... "Wrong again," answered Nicky, "after you were here one week I gave you a year's notice!"
... Ben Marden's show place, across the George Washington Bridge has finally opened, after two postponements ... whatever you plan to see in this little old town, don't miss Ben's Riviera—to my way of thinking the most sophisticated and magnificent place of its kind in America today—The Broadway Parade ...

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

I GUESS they still use switches on the school kids in some parts of the world. I've read something like that now and then, although I'd supposed they'd stopped licking kids at school a long time ago.
Anyhow, I heard about a boy that wasn't very good in school. He came home terrible scared one night and told his mother he didn't want to go back to school any more.

When the mother asked him what was up, he says, "Well, I don't mind getting slapped or whipped by the principal once in a while.
But there was a couple of workmen over at the school when I came home tonight, and I heard one of them tell the teacher that they was ordered to put in an electric switch in the hall. Ordinary switches don't hurt much, but I'm afraid of an electric switching, and I ain't going to risk it!"

FARM AND RANCH

FEATURES of INTEREST

BENEFITS DERIVED FROM SOIL EROSION AND AG. PROGRAMS

Perhaps the most important achievement of the soil conservation program has come as an outgrowth to the movement and is frequently overlooked. This accomplishment is the widespread rebirth of interest that is being manifested in the business of agriculture. The era of drouths and low prices that began in 1929 caused an alarming decrease in agricultural activities. Census reports showed many farmers leaving their fields and moving to the cities and towns in search of a more satisfactory means of earning a livelihood. Thousands of farms throughout the country were left desolate and neglected and fertile fields lay unprotected from the ravages of erosion.

With the coming of a soil conservation program supported by the national government, "farming" became the "business of agriculture." A farmer was no longer a laborer who planted a crop in the spring and gathered it in the fall, year after year marketing it whenever he could at any price he might be offered. A farmer has become an executive concerned with problems of farm management, soil and water conservation, proper land use and a balanced farm program. Young farmers saw in this movement a new and fascinating business offering unlimited possibilities for originality and development. Older farmers found in it a hope of restoring agriculture to its former state of self-sufficiency and prosperity through the restoration of the land to its original fertility and the reorganization of farm management.

One but needs to tour an area where soil conservation has been established to realize its far reaching influence. There will be found houses and barns newly repaired and painted, strong and durable fences recently built, acres of feed crops to be utilized in feeding the wide variety of livestock found grazing on newly established pasture areas. Throughout the country, interest is being manifested by meetings and inspection tours sponsored by progressive business men, students in agriculture, agricultural grounds and even legislators; all having one objective and all fully aware of the importance of the program of soil conservation in the recreation of American agriculture.

GEORGE SILER TO HOLD REVIVAL BEGINNING SAT., AUGUST 21

The public is asked to keep these dates in mind.

A hearty welcome is extended to all.

CATTLE FED OUT EARLY IN SEASON HAVE PROSPECT OF GOOD MARKET

College Station—Texas Feeders have prospects of an exceptional market for such beefs as they have finished out by the end of the year and the first 2 months of 1938, according to G. W. Barnes, animal husbandman of the Texas A. and M. Extension Service.

Barnes, who has recently completed a tour of the major grain and livestock areas of the State, reports that the grain crop is good over a major portion of Texas.

"The good grain crop over a large part of the State, in combination with the shortage of grain for early feeding in the corn belt, makes this an ideal year for Texas feeders," Barnes said. He warned, however, that feeders should start their operations at once in order to get their animals well finished and on the market before the corn belt beefs begin to move.

The excellent grain prospects in the corn belt have strengthened the demand for feeder and stocker animals. Barnes pointed out, Texas normally sells about two million feeders and stockers each year, he said and feeds around 150,000 beefs.

If beefs are placed on feed as soon as the grain supply warrants, so that the animals can be marketed before early April of 1938, Barnes believes that Texas feeders could profitably finish out from 300,000 to 500,000 animals.

Graduating exercises for the class will be held at Riverside on Wednesday evening, August 25, beginning with a concert by the College Band at 7:30 o'clock. Dr. J. G. Uumer of Tyler, Vice-President of the Board of Regents, will be the principal speaker.

KITCHEN IMPROVEMENT OF H. D. MEMBERS SAVES MANY STEPS

Improvements in the kitchen save steps and make life more pleasant for many Central Texas home demonstration club members, according to county home demonstration agents in that section.

Kitchen improvements and a different arrangement of the work center in the home of Mrs. J. F. Blue of the Gordon Club in Palo Pinto county save her an average of 382 steps each time she goes through the routine of preparing and serving breakfast and cleaning up the room. Before the improvement she averaged 489 steps from the time she entered the kitchen until everything was in its place, and now it takes only an average of 107 steps.

"Since we put running water in our kitchen several years ago by means of a windmill and elevated tank, we have had water in and out, but the outlet has never been very satisfactory," said Mrs. J. D. Roper of the Meeks club in Bell county as she consulted her county home demonstration agent on the problem. A pit 6 feet long, 3 feet wide, and 18 inches deep was dug and filled with rocks and pieces of brick for the first 12 inches and soil for the last 6 inches. The drain pipe enters the bottom of the drain. Sink odors and unhealthy puddles have been eliminated through use of the pit.

Renovating a 14 year old rug was some of the many improvements made in the course of the house repairing demonstration of Mrs. J. Collie Price of the Derr's Chapel club in Ellis county. At an expense of $1.75, Mrs. Price applied two coats of tan interior paint and a border of green paint. The rug was then stippled with dark green, lettuce green and brown, varnished, and waxed.

LIBRARIES TO REOPEN IN COUNTY AT VARIOUS POINTS

The libraries at Pearl, Evant, Jonesboro, Ireland, Flat, Leon Junction, Oglesby, Osage and Pidcoke will again be open to the public on Friday, August 20. The library at Gatesville will be open continuously from 9:00 a. m. until 5:00 p. m. These libraries have been closed because of a readjustment of the WPA program but they will now be open and the supposition is that they will remain open throughout the winter months. As heretofore there is need for more books and if any one has any good books they do not expect to use their donation to the library will be greatly appreciated.

What Is the Farmer's Share?

A recent investigation of farm income by the Federal Trade Commission shows that the dairy farmer receives a substantial portion of the consumer's dollar.

For milk, 50 per cent of the consumer's dollar went to the farmer, minus transportation from the farm. The figures indicate that the transportation item averaged around 5 per cent, leaving an average return of 45 per cent for the farmer. This is a larger share for the producer than generally credited by the layman.

For butter, the farmer got about 60 per cent of the price the consumer paid, for beef about 40 per cent, for wheat about 13 per cent of the bread dollar and for tobacco 12 per cent.

Twenty Questions on Social Security

QUESTION NO. 19

QUESTION: Are part-time and irregular employees included under the old-age benefits section of the Social Security Act?

ANSWER: Yes, part-time and irregular employees under the age of 65 in covered occupations are included under the old-age benefit section of the Act. This applies to a school boy working after school or weekends, in a covered occupation, and also applies to persons under age 65 in covered occupations working for short or irregular periods.

The Act includes casual labor that is not in the course of the employer's trade or business. The Treasury regulations state that corporations do not have casual labor as all work done for a corporation is in the course of the employer's trade or business. Examples follow:

(1) A's business is that of operating a sawmill. He employs B, a painter, at a daily wage to paint his home. B's labor is casual and is not in the course of A's trade or business—that of operating a sawmill. B's service to A are therefore expected.

(2) A's business is that of operating a sawmill. He employs B for two hours, at an hourly wage, to remove sawdust from his mill. B's labor is casual since it is occasional, incidental, or irregular, but it is in the course of A's trade or business—that of operating a saw mill—and is not expected.

(3) A is engaged in the business of operating a department store. He employs additional clerks for short periods. While the services of the clerks are casual, they are in the course of the employer's trade or business, and therefore, not expected.

WORLD COMMENT

Joe Burns

From the new deal point of view, no better appointee than Senator Black could be made to the Supreme Court vacancy created by the retirement of Associate Justice Van Devanter. Senator Black typifies the liberal group in the Senate which is 100 per cent for Roosevelt and his policies, as distinct from the group of distinctively conservative hue which has supported the President largely because he is a Democrat and not because of any particular sympathy with or liking for his objectives.

Review of Senator Black's eleven years in the Senate reveals his philosophy to parallel that of President Roosevelt from one end to another. Black joined forces with Senators Norris and LaFollette shortly after he was first elected to the Senate in 1926 in the battle for federal development of Muscle Shoals. During the Coolidge and Hoover administrations he was found supporting the cause of agriculture with consistent regularity. In 1932 Norris, Black and LaFollette found in the new deal an administration like-minded as to the advisability of developing Muscle Shoals. Roosevelt has pursued the farm policies which Black was advocating in the late 1920's.

Early in the first Roosevelt administration Alabama's Black pushed through the Senate a bill providing for a mandatory 30-hour week in industry. This bill became in 1933 the NRA, but Black voted against it because it was not drastic enough.

The Agricultural Adjustment Act and the Bankhead cotton control act found in Senator Black an ardent supporter. Within the last few days he had demanded a revival of the controls over agriculture which the Supreme Court invalidated as unconstitutional, and also urged that price fixing loans again be made on commodities suffering from depressed prices.

The wage and hour legislation now being studied in the House and previously passed by the Senate was sponsored by Senator Black and officially termed the Black-Conney Bill. John L. Lewis and William Green are supporting Black because of his record for labor.

In addition to supporting new deal power, agriculture and labor policies, Black was advocated government control of the public utility industry. He believed in the Rooseveltian theory of redistributing income through taxes on the wealthy. Lastly, he is a firm believer in a broad interpretation and a broad exercise of Federal powers. Pursuant to this belief, he became one of the staunchest supporters of the President's court enlargement scheme and was one of the 20 senators who voted against commitment of the judiciary bill to committee.

It is apparent that Hugo Black could never be confirmed if he were not a member of the United States Senate. Precedent was shattered when the Senate refused to immediately confirm his appointment and his nomination was referred to a subcommittee of the judiciary committee for studying pending final confirmation. Black now bears the endorsement of the full judiciary committee, which this week voted 13 to 4 that the Senate confirm him.

Senator Burke of Nebraska and several of his colleagues contend that the Alabama Senator is ineligible for the Associate Justiceship because he was a member of the Senate when the passed on March 1 of this year. The Summers act permits Supreme Court Justices to retire at the age of 70 and receive full pay of $20,000 for life.

The Constitution says: "No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under authority of the United States which shall have been created or he emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time . . ."

Despite the ruling of Attorney General Cummings that Black is eligible for appointment, this provision makes Black undisputable ineligible for appointment to the Supreme Court. His confirmation is certain, however, because of the reluctance of Senators to reject one of their number for a federal job.

To those who opposed the President on the Supreme Court issue and who have been out of sympathy with many other policies of the administration, The Black pill is particularly difficult to take because of the Alabamian's viewpoint on social and economic questions. Black cannot be criticized because he is 100 per cent new dealer and his opponents in the Senate make no point of this, because the President could hardly be expected to appoint a reactionary Republican to the bench. (In private many of the Senators state that Felix Frankfurter, dean of the Harvard law school and Judge Sam G. Bratton of New Mexico, both ardent new dealers, would make better justices than the Alabamian.) Black's record during eleven years service in the Senate reveals him to be an ardent advocate of extension of Federal power in all spheres and branches of economic and social activity. Black is said to regard the Constitution as an incumbrance to a broad interpretation of Federal powers.

The most objectionable phase of Black's brief political career is his early connection with the Ku Klux Klan. A former member of that organization or one in sympathy with its ideals would not be a fit person to sit on the Supreme Court and stand in judgement of the rights of the minorities which the Klan was directed during its stormy era of power.

The Washington Daily News, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, prints these words about Senator Black:

"Ku Klux Klan support is credited with sending Black to the Senate his first term. He was a member of the Klan, according to former Klansmen who are his friends. With Imperial Wizard James Esdale escorting him about the State, he was introduced to Klan organizations and was pledged to their political support. The Klan was disbanded when he made his next race in 1932."

In view of these facts—Black's sundry disregard of and apparent contempt for the Constitution, the question of his eligibility, his Ku Klux Klan membership and record—can the Senator from Alabama be said to be an ideal candidate for Supreme Court membership from the viewpoint of the people? With such facts known to all, is not the demand of Senator Burke and Senator Bridges and others for a public hearing by the judiciary committee on the eligibility and qualifications of Senator Black entirely within the realm of logic?

DREAMING LIPS

SYNOPSIS

When Miguel del Vayo, famous concert violinist, tells his friend Peter about the lovely vision who had burst into his dressing room after a concert, he does not realize that the woman was Peter's wife, Gaby. At Peter's urging, he visits his home and sees her for a second time. She induces Miguel to invite her to his apartment, engineers her husband out of the way. At the appointed time she visits him, but Miguel, seized with remorse attempts unsuccessfully to send her away. He capitulates to her loveliness, her frank appeal for his love.

Chapter Three

To Miguel, who loved Gaby more daily, their relation was a source of unhappiness. Every tender, stolen hour brought nearer the ultimate reckoning. Every minute in her arms made him hate himself more deeply, love her more. He adored her to the point of slavery. He loved Peter as a brother. And reason as he did, he could not avoid hurting either Gaby or Peter finally.

Gaby tried to lull his fears. She obstinately refused to think of the

"Oh, no, Peter," she protested. "I am too tired. Why don't you dance with the professional? She is a marvelous dancer."

Peter thought of urging her, then reconsidered it, and moved off in search of the professional dancer, a feature of London night clubs.

Gaby resented Miguel's surly silence. "Michael," she said (she had anglicized his name) "What is the matter with you? Are you cross with me because I danced the rumba? I shan't do it again. Do you like my new dress?"

"It's disgusting," he said, "You might as well be stark naked."

"Oh! you are unjust. Look at the others. I am covered up like a nun. Besides, Peter selected it. I didn't like it myself." Her eye ran over the faces in the room. Then she turned to him with fresh eagerness. "Do smile at me," she begged him. "I am so happy!"

"That's just it," said Miguel finally giving voice to his feelings. "How can you laugh? How can you lie? How can you . . . I'm sorry I can't see it as you do. This situation is unbearable to me and you know it."

"Yes, yes, I know. Don't get excited darling. I can't help being happy, can I? It's true I sing and dance, but all because you love me. You have loved me for two whole future. He returned to her from Vienna, from Copenhagen, from every European capital where his violin had dispatched him. They spent much of their time together. But often, discreetly they went out a trois with Peter, a genial, jolly and unsuspecting man, overjoyed at having his wife and his best friend together.

"Michael, smile at me! I am so happy."

One evening they were in one of the crowded smoky dens that are infected by the night life habits of London. This one was famous for its Negro jazz band. And while Peter and Miguel sat together, Gaby was evidently relishing their rhythms as she swayed in the arms of a young man who was correctly attired in faultless Bond Street evening clothes. And correctly dull in expression.

Miguel almost writhed as he watched them. "I don't know how you can let her dance with any counter jumper that comes along," he protested to Peter.

Peter turned aside Miguel's irritation. "He isn't a counter-jumper," he pointed out. "He's Dickie Allison. I've known him for years. A very nice fellow. He's well connected." He lingered on the word "connected" and Miguel looked at him in surprise.

The dance had come to its close, and Gaby stood before their table while her partner hastily spoke his apologies and moved away. Then she squeezed into the narrow space along the wall. She was flushed with gaiety and Miguel could hear her breathing with the exertions of the dance. There was a shiver of gowns and the seemingly indefatigable orchestra took up again with a tango. Peter jumped to his feet and extended his hand to Gaby.

"This is one of your favorites. Come on, let's dance. Let's leave old Miguel alone. He's been grooving all evening."

months — eight weeks. Oh, I am drunk with happiness."

"Tell me," Miguel spoke. "Is Peter never to know the truth?"

"Of course, of course," she replied. "But why worry about that before it is absolutely necessary?" Her eyes were glinting with the mischief that he found so irresistible in her.

"Do you love me, Miguel?" she asked in a voice that left him powerless to resist her. "Please say you love me. If you do not say you love me immediately, I shall throw my arms about your neck in front of everyone." She laughed with glee at the idea of his discomfiture. He capitulated.

"Too much, far too much," he said in a hushed tone, and reached in his pocket to find a crumpled message. He handed it to her without a word. "What does it mean?" she asked and when he kept silent, she unfolded it.

"Absolutely imperative you take next boat. American engagements can be postponed no longer," it read. She gazed into his eyes in sudden panic, and knew that he meant to go.

She said good-bye to him in the privacy of his chambers the next day. She could not ease the premonition of unhappiness that was eating at her heart. She wept uncontrollably while he caressed her gently.

"Come back soon, Miguel," she whispered. "I love you."

"I can't believe it until you tell him. When will you tell him?" was Miguel's retort.

"I don't know," she said. "You mustn't ask me any more."

"Why so much pity for him and so little for me? I am not as strong as you think." Miguel was frankly pleading.

SAVE MONEY EVERY MILE

That's the Reasonable Expectancy with a GMC

GMC prices now crowd the lowest—yet first cost is secondary, as everybody knows.

Low cost-per-mile is where a truck saves money. A recent cost analysis of 15,000 trucks proves GMC upkeep far below the average. Save on first cost—save money every mile, too!

You can do it with a GMC!
