News Employee Leaves For Editorship of Leon Co. News at Centerville

James Read Saunders, Sports Editor, and employee of the News for the past eight months leaves today for Centerville, "The Black-eyed Pea Capitol of the World," where he assumes the combined editorship of the Leon County News and Buffalo Press, twin publications of the H. B. Fox Publishing Company.

Mr. Saunders, known variously and seasonally as "The Pride and Joy of Bridge Street," "The Unwelcomed Wedding Guest," "The Last of the Longhairs," and "The Shining Knight of the Coryell County News," has been connected with various phases of journalism for the past 3 years getting his start with "The Yellowjacket," student organ of Howard Payne College.

At that institution of higher learning Mr. Saunders was the originator of a feature column that he states "was a weekly headache for a grim-jawed faculty." After a hasty education, terminating in a hurried exit, Mr. Saunders returned to Gatesville where for several months he was a familiar sight on the streets of this city carrying a sack of mail for Uncle Sam. He refers to this period as his "G Man days," and proudly reminisces as to being one of the best stamp fighters that "ever licked a postage stamp."

Concurrently with his postal activities Saunders also expressed his opinions of the modern sporting world under the subterfuge of Sports Editor of the Coryell County News. It was at this time that he gained the title of "Sweetheart of Gatesville High School," said title being given him by that body in appreciation of his publicity efforts in behalf of their football team.

On a memorable day in February of this year young Saunders entered the employ of the Coryell County News, succeeding the late "A.P." Witt. His activities since that date have been mostly undercover and little is known of that period of his life.

"The Leon County News was awarded second prize in its division at the recent Texas Press Association meeting in Brownwood for general excellence. Saunders, before leaving, stated that he wished to thank his many creditors for allowing him to leave town in a graceful manner and not by one of his famous "hasty exits" with the township's aw force in full pursuit.

Poland will spend $50,000,000 a year on electric power plants.

NOTES FROM THE COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS OFFICE

Information from the County Superintendent's office is to the effect that he has been instructed by both the State Department and the Supervisor for this district to base the school budget for the coming year on the debated $22.00 per scholastic basis, and this work is being rushed to completion at this time.

Although erroneously whispered, there will be no meeting of the County Board of Trustees on the 25th, and probably not until after September 1, unless the meeting is called.

The above also holds good for the county-wide Trustees Meeting, which has been rumored will be held on the 25th, but will not be held until sometime after September 1, because no member of the State Department of Education could be present before that time.

CHAIRMAN NAMED FOR BIG BEND NATIONAL PARK COMMITTEE

Tom V. Freeman has been named Local Chairman for the Big Bend National Park Committee whose object is to raise a million dollars thru subscriptions and establish in the Big Bend section of Texas a national park which will be worth millions to Texas, according to estimates.

The plan contemplates that the Texas State Park Board shall have control exclusively of any and all funds raised, and every cent donated shall be spent only for the purchase of and in the park area. The movement is sponsored by daily, semi-weekly, and weekly papers thruout the state. The plan does not preclude organizations or individuals with means from contributing larger amounts than $1.00.

Other local members of the committee appointed by Mr. Freeman are Pat Holt, L. S. Holmes and H. K. Jackson.

E. P. BERRY STORE IS BURGLARIZED AT JONESBORO

Sunday night or Monday morning early, a burglar or burglars entered the E. P. Berry Store at Jonesboro, by breaking in thru a front window, and made away with a $40.00 haul and a few cartons of cigarettes, according to information received here Monday morning.

Evidently the Burglars had the lay of the land, because nothing else was disturbed and they went directly to the cash box which was pilfered. So far, no clues have been uncovered as to who the burglars were.

Wednesday may be a day to mark on the credit or debit side of Coryell County's and Gatesville's ledger, depending on how the hearing at Hamilton on that date turns out, since Lieut. Colonel F. S. Benson, District Engineer, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, will hear the pleas of people of this and neighboring counties on flood control on the Leon River and its tributaries at 10 a. m. on the date.

A Chamber of Commerce committee composed of Judge Robert W. Brown, Chairman, L. S. Secret, County Engineer and Guy Powell, County Agent, have been gathering statistics, data, figures and other information required by the officials before granting appropriations for work of this character on streams of the county.

Besides the committee who will present this matter, citizens are being urged to make the trip to Hamilton Wednesday in order to add weight, and to show their interest in this work, for which substantial appropriations could be made if the work seems advisable to the officials.

Farmers residing or owning farms or ranches in the Leon river valleys are especially urged to make the trip and to be prepared to comment or present their views, as to losses, advantages, or any other pertinent information which may be asked of them.

Although we haven't the information, we suppose the cavacade will leave the square from the west side about 8 a. m. Wednesday, since the hearing is slated for 10 a. m.

WORLD COMMENT

China and Japan

Two objective questions which hold the key to the Chinese crisis come to mind: Do the Japanese people approve of the further extension of military conquest on the Asiatic continent?

Does Chiang Kai-Shek, the Chinese dictator, have the support of his people in his stand against the Japanese?

Japan and Italy have revived imperialism and militarism after their hypothetical death at the hands of the Versailles peacemakers. Japan is not violating international laws of right and wrong but is acting against China in violation of sacred treaties guaranteeing the territorial sanctity of their neighbor.

James Mills of the Associated Press has spent some time in Japan. In Shanghai, where he is now reporting the conflict, he cables that the Japanese people do not favor the Chinese venture out are rendering traditional loyalty to flag and emperor.

Stoically they accept the undeclared (thus far) war and are prepared to support it as a bad job which must be pushed to an ultimate victory.

The reason for this is apparent: The conquest of Manchuria in 1931 and the extension of Japanese power in other spheres of Chinese lands have necessitated ever increasing defense budgets until now the army and navy gobble up fully per cent of the national budget. Deficits are as chronic under the Japanese Army dictatorship as under the new deal bureaucracy here. The net results of the Manchurian affair to the people of Japan have been increased taxes, higher living costs, and no direct benefits except to the bankers and industrialists who are developing the new Manchukuo's mines, railroads, and factories.

It is no wonder that today the Japanese army is at war with China, not the people of Japan.

On the other side, is Chiang defending his country solely with the backing of his army or does he have the support of the Chinese people against the Japanese invaders? Ordinarily this would be a foolish question to ask of people whose territory is invaded, but applied to the lethargic Chinese populace it is not. When Japan's war lords seized Manchuria and then strategic areas in North China six years ago, no organized resistance was offered by the Nationalist government at Nanking headed by Generalissimo Chiang. In virtually any other country on the map such a sit-down, do-nothing attitude on the part of the government would have provoked instantaneous revolution.

Not so in China. Natives of the Northern provinces speak a different dialect from the Cantonese of the South; wear different clothes; observe different customs and variant habits. Millions of Chinese peasants of the interior provinces live in absolute ignorance of what is occurring in other parts of their country.

Under Chiang Kai-Shek's leadership rapid strides have been taken toward unifying the country. More provinces are now under the control of the Central government than at any other time since the Manchu dynasty was deposed in 1911. In 1931 China was weak militarily and diplomatically. Its diplomatic position is unimproved, relying as it has for protection upon the League of Nations. Though inferior to the Japanese military machine, Chiang's army is definitely superior to any Chinese army of the past and the people are more aroused to the dangers confronting them in further extension of Nipponese power in their territory than in 1931.

Competent observers in China are in general agreement that Chiang Kai-Shek went to war with Japan—no official declaration of war has been issued by either belligerent but hostilities are raging on two fronts—because his position as generalissimo of the government would have become untenable had he refused to fight. This time it appears, the Chinese are out to repel the invader and will fight to the death to do so.

What is the state of military affairs at present? The two battle fronts are at Shanghai, a metropolis of 3,500,000 people and in the North Chinese province of Hopeh. Peiping—former imperial capital city—and Tientsin, chief port for North China, have been subjected by the Japs and most of Hopeh (Hopei) province is now in their control. Tientsin's population exceeds 1,300,000 and Peiping has 800,000 inhabitants.

Military objective of the Japanese in North Chinese is the ultimate subjection of four provinces, Hopeh, Shantung, Chahar and Suiyuan. Hopeh and Chahar provinces border the Jap-dominated empire of Manchukuo, carved, from the old province of Manchuria with Jehol pro-

Nursery charm obtained with cane fiber insulation plank.

The Nursery: Your Child's World

EVERY healthy child opens his eyes each morning upon a world which is, to him, a brave new one.

It is up to his parents to decide what he will open those inquiring eyes upon each morning . . . and how brave a new world it may truly be. Nor need they wait till their "ship comes in" to provide a nursery bedroom in which the child's imagination may prosper. Good taste has a variety of modern materials at its disposal in turning the drab children's room into a gay nursery.

Today furniture is being built that is child's size . . . chairs from which little feet may touch the floor . . . tables at which a child may sit comfortably instead of peering over the edge . . . By the same token the walls of the child's room must be made to suit a child's interests and instincts. The mother who looks forward to developing fine taste in her children will pay much attention to the selection of period furniture and background for the nursery. Whatever the period, a setting of Celotex plank may be devised to set it off correctly. In its natural coloring it serves as an effective background for bright paints. It also comes scored into a tile or squared design that sets the pattern for you if you wish an all-over design—perhaps of stenciled flowers or animals.

The artistic nursery effects thus obtainable are a gift you can readily make to your children because this board is so easy to apply: it is merely nailed to studs or over old plaster. It lends itself nicely to border stencils, and a frieze of animals or flowers may be easily worked out.

vince thrown in. Suiyuan extends farther to the west of Chahar and includes most of Inner Mongolia which has long been a sphere of Japanese influence. Shantung extends to the south of Hopeh and is one of the richest provinces in China.

With a population of over 30,000,000 Shantung raised much of the grain and cotton consumed in China. There the Japanese expect to raise most of the cotton which they now import from Texas. Thus do we find the interests of the Texas cotton farmer inextricably bound up in the final outcome of the Chinese embroglio, with a further depressed export market in sight for his product if North China is subjected to the domination of the fighting yellow men from across the Pacific.

Resistance in North China to the Japs is forthcoming chiefly from local military leaders and governors with private armies. Nanking is involved in the defense of Shanghai and has not dispatched any appreciable number of troops to aid in the expulsion of the invaders.

The attention of the world is currently centered at Shanghai where Chiang's trained troops have not only defied the onslaughts of thousands of Japanese marines and army regulars but successfully hurled them back. Generalissimo Chiang is said to have 100,000 men engaged in the defense of Shanghai. Troop transports and warships are ferrying regular divisions of the Japanese army across the Yellow Sea to bolster the marines at Shanghai. About 50,000 Japanese are engaged on the attack on Shanghai.

"MEET THE COLONEL"

The Colonel in question is Lieut. Colonel F. S. Besson of the Engineering Corps of the U. S. Army, who will be on the receiving side at Hamilton, August 25, when Gatesville and Coryell county should try to put on a "good front," and have a lot of plans, figures, data, statistics, etc., to show, proving that "something ought to be done about the Leon River Flood control," in relation to this territory.

Gatesville and Coryell county citizens should move in a body to Hamilton, Wednesday, and particularly those who live "on the river" so that they can explain their situation more clearly, and assist in getting "something done" about flood control, soil conservation in the vicinity of the Leon.

Lieut. Colonel Besson, will be the "key" man in this situation, and whatever he recommends to the War Department with regard to this flood control problem is liable to go thru.

This work, is clasified as "Rivers and Harbors," and this department of government carries with it large appropriations and has been worked in to include Soil Conservation as a side line.

By all means, let's put up a good front Wednesday

"The hotter the day, the lighter the meal" is a motto that should be hung on the wall of every kitchen and kitchenette in the land. Our bodies do not require as much food in hot weather as in cold and thoughtful women take this into consideration when planning hot weather menus. Smaller portions of heavy foods; fewer hot dishes; plenty of balancing fruits and vegetables; new and attractive dishes that will delight the eye and whet the appetite; cold, healthful, salads, sherbets and desserts—these represent the secret of the successful hot weather diet.

If you are looking for something particularly desirable either for the family alone or when company comes, I suggest any of the following dainties that call for natural, unsweetened Hawaiian pineapple juice as a base and other ingredients that are just as readily available. These are torrid day dishes that will be repeated, time and time again.

Tropical Sherbet

- 2/3 cup Hawaiian pineapple juice
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 3 egg whites
- 1/4 cup shredded coconut
- 2 green maraschino cherries — chopped coarse
- 2 red maraschino cherries — chopped coarse
- 1/2 tablespoons of assorted chopped nuts

Mix pineapple juice and sugar, stir until dissolved. Freeze to a mush in refrigerator tray or freezer. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and other ingredients, and finish freezing. Stir several times during freezing if sherbet is in refrigerator tray. Serve in sherbet glasses, with wafers or lady fingers. 6 to 8 servings.

- Hawaiian Mousse
- 2 teaspoons gelatine
 - 2 tablespoons water
 - 1/2 cup Hawaiian pineapple juice
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 2 teaspoons lemon juice
 - 1 cup whipping cream
- Soak gelatine five minutes in water. Heat pineapple juice to boiling point; add gelatine and sugar, and stir until dissolved. Cool, add lemon juice. When jelly starts to thicken, fold in stiffly beaten cream. Place in mold in refrigerator or cool place until firm. Slice and serve with whipped cream and a cherry. 6 servings.

Juice a la Russe

- 1 cup whipping cream
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 tablespoons gelatine
- 1/4 cup cold water
- 2 cups Hawaiian pineapple juice
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 6 drops lemon juice
- Grated rind of 1/2 lemon
- Pinch of salt
- 1 cup sliced pineapple diced
- 12 lady fingers

Whip the cream, add vanilla and keep in a cool place. Soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes. Heat 1 cup pineapple juice to boiling point, add gelatine and sugar and stir until dissolved. Then add remaining pineapple juice, lemon juice and rind, and salt. Set bowl containing mixture in a pan filled with crushed ice, and beat mixture until it begins to thicken. Then fold in the whipped cream and diced pineapple, turn into a mold lined with lady fingers, and chill.

When ready to serve, turn out on a platter and garnish with whipped cream, if desired. 8 servings.

wholesome leadership and facilities and equipment which most parents cannot afford. Above all, children will be kept happily busy and parents will know where their youngsters are and what they are doing.

FALL SESSION OF CONGRESS IS PROBABLE

Congress scurried happily home Sunday expecting to be called back into special session in mid-October.

In the interim its members looked for a renewal of the guerrilla warfare within the Democratic party which began with the Roosevelt Court bill and persisted to the end of the session Saturday night.

It was regarded as inevitable that the principals in that controversy, including President Roosevelt himself, will seek to array public sentiment behind them by speeches and statements before Congress meets again.

AMERICAN SAILOR'S SLAYING BLAMED ON CHINESE BY JAPAN

The Japanese Embassy Sunday received official advices from Tokyo stating that an investigation conducted at Shanghai showed that the shell which struck the United States Flagship Augusta was a forty-millimeter shell a size never used by Japanese forces.

The advices said that one piece of the shell was inscribed with the Chinese word "Tung" which was translated "through".

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL
By Dr. ALLEN G. KIRLAND
Director, Physical and Health Education
New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

The All-Year School

Last week, I proposed the all-day school as a weapon against juvenile crime, delinquency, obscenity and other objectionable learning of the free play period. For the same reason, we hear increasing mention of the all-year school. In fact, to some extent, it is already here. For here are many school systems with organized summer schools; a few have or are considering summer camps; and a number of boards of education have charge of all-year playgrounds and recreation centers.

In thinking of and planning for these developments, one must realize that a long period of evolution will be necessary. There must be experimentation with study of success and failures. Probably the factor of compulsion as it now exists in public education will never enter the picture, for some children will have the privileges of traveling or attending a private camp, but for the stay-at-homes, the movement promises much value to society.

Let some readers see only the objectionable features of regimentation. I hasten to predict that the all-year school will be truly an institution founded on the normal interests of children. Its programs will consist of the things children want to do. But it will provide opportunities for doing them which do not exist for all. I will provide opportunities for doing them

VOLUME V

GATESVILLE, TEXAS, TUESDAY, AUG., 24, 1937

NUMBER 69

Gatesville Is Featured in Utility Publication

We present pictures and story as carried by "The Communicator," published by and for the employees of the Community Public Service Company in Fort Worth, and is sent out to all employees and officials in this company's system. Data presented here was compiled at the request of C. H. Wallace, local manager.

Gatesville, Texas, county seat of Coryell County, has long been recognized as one of the most stable and prosperous cities of its size in the state. Situated 40 miles west of Waco near the geographical center of Texas, it is the trading center of a rich farming area, extending approximately 25 miles in every direction.

The city was founded in 1854, the year that Coryell County was organized from part of McLennan County. Most of the original inhabitants had lived in Fort Gates, an army post settlement five miles to the Southeast, but moved to Gatesville when the city was laid out as the county seat.

The first two decades of Gatesville's existence marked a period of hard times and by 1880 the population was only 434 people. In 1883, however, the Cotton Belt Railroad built a line through the town and it became the shipping point for a large section of rapidly developing farming country.

Today, Gatesville is a thriving community of 3,000 population, with fine homes, churches, parks and all of the convenience of metropolitan centers many times its size. The farming area surrounding it is noted for diversification and high yield. Coryell County produces cotton, corn, wheat, hay, oats, millet, and fruits. Beef cattle and sheep are raised extensively and there is considerable dairying, hog and poultry raising. The county ranks first in Texas in the value of oats and first in the United States in production of mules.

Serving the needs of this rich territory, Gatesville has numerous retail and wholesale establishments, shops, theatres and restaurants. There is a milk receiving and shipping plant, turkey dressing plant, cotton oil mill, four cotton gins, five feed mills, several chick hatcheries, five mattress factories, a mule barn, bottling company and broom factory.

Three banks with combined assets of over $1,500,000 handle the financial needs of the community and adjacent territory.

The fact that all three of them swam through the depression without a sign of weakness is evidence of the stability of business in Gatesville.

The county court house, surrounded by an attractive lawn, is made of native quarried stone and forms a pleasing center to the public square. Built along the lines of the Capitol at Austin, it has accommodations for every branch of county government; also a spacious district court room. High in the towering dome is the "town clock" which has kept time for the city for over 40 years.

The City Hall is a modern concrete building, housing the city offices, fire department and quarters for volunteer firemen. The Public Library is also located in the city hall, having just recently been installed.

The postoffice will be located in a $65,000 new Federal Building, to be completed the first of June. It is a one story building with basement, built of brick and modern in design.

Gatesville's fine school system consists of a modern high school, a grammar school, gymnasium lighted athletic field, and tennis courts. Plans are underway for a new junior high school building. The school system has 32½ units of affiliated credits with the State Department of Education, making it possible for graduates to enter any recognized college or university without further examination.

There are eight churches scattered throughout the city including three colored churches. A modern hospital completely equipped, was opened last summer, filling a long-felt need.

The city park is a natural playground with rustic benches winding paths, picnic tables and a swimming pool. It located near the center of the town. There are two other parks just outside the city limits.

An important asset to the city is the State Juvenile Training School, a penal institution, located three miles from the city limits. More than 750 boys are quartered at the school, where they receive training designed to make them useful citizens. Some 50 building comprise the institution, including homes of officials, dormitories, workshops and warehouses.

A C.C.C. Camp is located one mile east of Gatesville and is supplied from the city. The full quota of the camp is 187 boys.

Utility service in the city is of the highest order. Gas is supplied by the Community Natural Gas Company, water by the municipality and phone service by Gulf States Telephone Company. Electric service is provided by our company from the Central Division highline loop. The city has a street lighting system of 80 lights, making it one of the best lighted towns of its size in the State. In addition, the city park, swimming pool, courthouse and athletic field are illuminated.

Two successful and well-edited newspapers are published in Gatesville, The Gatesville Messenger and Star-Forum, published and edited by Mr. Pat Holt, and the Coryell County News, published by Mr. W. Mat Jones and S. F. Bethel.

Among the organizations which are factors in the commercial and cultural development of the city are the Lions Club, American Legion, Woodmen of the World, Morris Federation and Business and Professional Women's Club.

Eighty-three years young, the City of Gatesville is a fine, thriving community, a good place to live and a good place to work. Our company is proud to have played a part in the city's development of recent years and looks forward with anticipation to continued growth and progress in the years to come.

CENTRAL TEXAS 4-H CLUB BOYS SHOW INTEREST IN FEEDING LAMBS

Central Texas 4-H club boys are showing an increasing interest in raising sheep as their 4-H demonstration, according to reports of county agricultural agents in that section.

James Billingsley of Hamilton county started in the sheep business two years ago with a flock of 50 registered ewes and one registered buck. He borrowed the money to buy the flock.

Recently he sold four stud bucks for $275, within $100 of the purchase price of the entire flock. James has four other registered bucks which should bring well over the $100 to finish out the amount of the original price. After these are sold he will still have the original 51 head and also 31 ewe lambs.

Demonstrating the finishing of home grown lambs on home grown feeds, six Bosque boys have started feeding 56 lambs since July 1. The boys are feeding them under the supervision of the county agricultural agent who also helped the boys select the animals.

The boys are demonstrating straight commercial feeding with

In 1936 James Billingsley of Ellis county traded a $25 cow for five ewes. The first year he sold a $12 clip and an old ewe and a buck lamb for $12. This year he sold a $30 clip and will soon sell three buck lambs. He now has a flock of 17 and plans to increase his breeding flock until the lamb crop will be large enough to enable him to feed out his buck lambs. He plans to use the profit he has already made and that he will make to pay for his college education.

Natori from Black Star

Japanese working girls make up in the dressing room of their factory dormitory. Nippon's great industrial plants, described in this week's Saturday Evening Post, have "a boarding-school air" with living quarters, dining halls and recreational facilities for thousands of "farmers' daughters" who earn 18 cents a day.

Philadelphia, Aug. 23.—Japanese imperialism is founded mainly in the activities of the American traveling salesman and the Nipponese farmer's daughter, according to J. P. McEvoy who says in today's Saturday Evening Post that the two groups have brought together cheap labor and modern mass production machinery to form a combination which threatens world markets as ominously as the march of Emperor Hirohito's troops menaces China.

Mr. McEvoy, describing peculiarities of Japanese business methods from first-hand observation, stumbled over what he believes is the strangest paradox in the Far East today. On every hand, he says, the visitors in the Orient hear pessimistic complaints from fellow travelers that Japanese competition will inevitably put Western manufacturers out of business, yet these same people usually turn out to be alemen on their way to the Empire of the rising sun—hordes of them who "tumble all over one another to sell the latest devices at the lowest costs"

Factory Girls Earn Eighteen Cents a Day

But the real force behind Japan's startling economic upsurge, the Post writer says, is the farmer's daughter—Thousands of her, from fourteen to twenty, working for the unbelievable wage of eighteen cents a day. She comes from the country and in Japan the peasant has a small farm and a large family. They work, sleep and eat in the factory, remaining there for three or more years and return to their homes after saving enough to get married. Mr. McEvoy writes: "There are thousands of country villages in Japan that have practically no young girls left in them. The girls have gone to Osaka, to Kobe, Tokyo and other great industrial centers.

As an illustration of how the system works, Mr. McEvoy selects Kanebo, the greatest makers of cotton goods in Japan, a concern with eighty factories and 80,000 workers, of whom 50,000 are literally farmers' daughters. 3,000 peasant, half of them girls, are employed in the Kanebo mill in Osaka. More than 1,000 of these live in modern steel and concrete dormitories. Six to ten girls share one big room with polished floors, shiwood, spotless matting and bright white paper. The rooms are cheerful and are decorated with flowers.

Factories are "Boarding-School Air"

Work fills nine hours a day, six days a week. The girls tend their machines in blue wollen middy blouses and pleated skirts supplied by the company. After working hours they change to the familiar gay kibonoes. Food is plentiful in a great dining hall that seats 3,000, and three hearty meals a day served at an individual cost of twenty-two sen, a little more than six cents in American money. Classes in a variety of subjects, are provided and there are facilities for sports.

Mr. McEvoy reports that the girls all look healthy and happy and that "there is a boarding-school air about the place." They send part of their wages home to their families, but in three years they will have saved about 300 yen or ninety dollars. A yen buys as much in Japan as the dollar buys in the United States, so the farmer's daughter has the equivalent of $300 at the end of her working period. "All of them," Mr. McEvoy writes, "from employer to employee, are fired with patriotic zeal because they are helping their country forge ahead in the world war for markets."

IN MEMORY OF GERRY DON BATES

Our hearts are made sad,
With the thought he is gone,
But God is the Master, not we
He sent the death angel,
And gently said come,
I want Gerry Don, with me.
There's naught we can do,
But what we have done,
Of course we would keep him
Here, too,
But God has said come,
So comfort your heart
Till the day you can see Gerry Don.
Little Gerry Don passed quietly from this life August the fifth at the local hospital. He is survived by his parents, two sisters and one brother Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Bates, Murrel, Bonnie Faye, an Billy of the Slater community.

Their friends and loved ones grieve with them at the passing of their little son and brother. The sky is just a little darker, and the sun does not shine quite so bright in the bereaved home, but may God do for them what we cannot do, send comfort.

Lets Talk about Clothes
TEXAS STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN (CIA)

Denton, Aug. 23.—Since designers realized that the knitting bug administered more than a temporary bñe, autumn needles are directed into bigger and better channels. Novelty and smartness are watchwords in today's knitting circles.

Most outstanding among the yarns presented are the nubby tweeds, which can hardly be distinguished from the woven tweed which has always held the center of the winter suit whirl. One can now get the savvy and grace of a well-fitting knit suit along with the rich colors and texture of British tweed.

Simple sweater and skirt combinations now give way before a fashion expert's paradist of two-third boxy coats, trim packets with velvet scarfs, and smart-looking three-piece suits. On the dresses, which feature slightly squared shoulders and slightly swing skirts, contrasting stitching is making a hit with girls at Texas State College for Women. This stitching is used sometimes to outline gores set in the skirts.

One typical suit is in black flecked with bright colors, which incidentally is the favorite mixture this fall. The jacket has four patch pockets and zips up the front. A cape tops the outfit with full shoulders and plain back, hanging hip length. Other favored colors are bottle and reseda green, browns, dark blues and rusts.

Dressy knit clothes are being shown in a crepe fine gauge lightweight wool, with crochet used jauntily for trimming. Bright buttons and lace collars are in the picture too.

Designers have worked out patterns which guide the knitter stitch by stitch to sure success so the more complicated designs this season will not be a painful as they sound.

MAX SCHACH PRESENTS Elisabeth BERGNER in DREAMING LIPS

SYNOPSIS

Miguel del Vayo, internationally famous violinist, meets the childlike, spoiled little Gaby, wife of Miguel's friend Peter who is concertmaster of the London Philharmonic Orchestra. Gaby, despite her intense devotion to her husband, falls deeply in love with the lonely Miguel, who returns her affection. Miguel insists that Gaby divorce Peter and marry him, but she puts it off, unwilling to hurt her husband. Finally Miguel is called away to America on a concert tour, and Gaby vows to be waiting for him when he returns.

Chapter Four

The rain had been coming down since early morning. Not merely falling, not dripping nor spattering, but pelting down in driving sheets as if hurled from the clouds by some malevolent force.

Miguel, with ulster collar upturned and hands thrust deep into his pockets, waited grimly at the station. In a few minutes the train would pull in; he would board it, hating himself for doing so; and it would carry him to Southampton, sneeze. By the time they had reached home he was shivering. Gaby, concerned for him, made him go to bed at once, ordered a hot water bottle.

"Pshaw," railed Peter. "What a fuss over a little sneeze!" Nevertheless, he had begun to grow feverish. Gaby, now really worried, commanded him to take the thermometer in his mouth.

"You know," he mumbled with the thermometer between his lips, "I like all this fuss that's being made about me."

"Don't talk with the thermometer in your mouth," admonished Gaby.

"Oh, come on, don't look like a funeral, I shan't die. In fact, I am immortal. And do you know why? Because I cling to life — and why do I cling to life? Because I cling to you!"

"I see," said Gaby. And if it weren't for me, you wouldn't cling to life?"

"Why should I?" he asked simply. And she knew that he meant it.

"Peeps," whispered Gaby. "Peeps, suppose I should die?"

"I would die too," he answered promptly. "I would take the next bus to the cemetery."

"What if I ran away with somebody else? . . . Don't laugh, Peeps. What if I fell wildly in love with somebody else and left you?"

"What if I ran away with someone else?" she asked.

to the boat that would take him across the sea, far from the only thing he had ever really loved, ever really wanted.

A cab drew up near the station platform. Peter alighted, splashed through a puddle at the curb, and was at his old friend's side. He grasped Miguel's hand in affectionate farewell.

"Gaby didn't come," said Peter. "But it wasn't her fault. I wouldn't let her come out in the rain."

Miguel nodded silently. He had not expected her. They had already said their farewells.

"She sent you her love," Peter continued. "I know you will understand."

Miguel nodded again. "Yes. I understand." A train rumbled into the station.

"Good luck, goodbye, and bon voyage," added Peter. "And don't be angry with Gaby."

Then Miguel was gone, and Peter, sloshing through the steaming rain and the sudden little ponds of water, crossed the street to look for another cab. He ran head on into Gaby, crouching out of the rain under a shop awning, whence she had watched Miguel's departure.

"Gaby! What are you doing here? I told you to stay at home."

She laughed with impudent gaiety. "I came down to spy on you and Miguel." Peter, used to her inexplicable little pranks, bundled her into a cab and they drove home.

On the way Peter began to

A BALANCED DIET ISN'T "ALL" FOR THIS YOUNG MISS

A MODERN scientific baby—adorable, pudgy, curly-headed Betty—eats the prescribed cereals, fruits, and vegetables, and drinks a quart of milk each day. Mother can't be too careful in safeguarding the health of this precious little mite. Equally as important, though, as balanced diets and buying the "best" is the care which food receives before it is served. Foods, to build healthy, perfect little bodies, must be absolutely fresh and pure. Unsanitary window boxes and other makeshift methods of refrigeration will not keep baby's food properly. Constant cold, with the addition of a constant circulation of moist, clean air, such as is provided by the modern air-conditioned ice refrigerator, is the safest year-around formula for keeping all foods, especially baby's.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

No matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month. Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age." Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

The SNAPSHOT GUILD CONCERNING BEAUTY

It has been said that in photography "an artistic picture is a thing beautifully photographed, rather than a beautiful thing photographed."

Essentially true, but regardless of subject, it can't be done unless the photographer can perceive some beauty in the "thing." The "thing" may be just a piece of rope, a cracker barrel or an old shoe, but in certain surroundings and portrayed under the effect of the right lighting, it may truly reveal beauty and make an artistic picture.

There is no rule of photography for discovering beauty nor any fixed criterion of what is artistic. Fundamentally, it's "every man for himself" in those respects, but there are certain sound admonitions that must be obeyed if you wish to make a picture that will be generally acclaimed as artistic, unless, of course, you prefer to join the fancy-free surrealist school of art and take your chances. Briefly, these admonitions are as follows:

1. Provide every picture with a single, dominant idea that will easily be comprehended by anyone to whom the picture is shown. The idea should be expressed by a principal object. Avoid divided interest. Exclude elements that distract attention from the principal one.
2. See that the setting is in harmony with the principal subject and surrounds it with an atmosphere that contributes to emphasizing the main idea, or at least does not detract from it.
3. Work for well-balanced composition in your view-finder before you let the picture through your lens. Generally the dominant subject should not be in the center. Experiment with your viewpoint.
4. Study the light and shadow areas. Observe their relation to the principal subject. Consider the strength and sharpness of the shadow contrasts. Note especially the highlights. It is the effect of shadows and highlights that often gives beauty to an ugly object.
5. Allow ample exposure to bring out desired details.

The artistic effect in the case of many subjects often may be improved by the use of a color filter over the lens, or by a pictorial diffusion disk. Again it may be improved in various ways in the process of printing or enlarging, such as "dodging" to heighten or subdue the lighting of certain areas, by masking portions of the negative, or by trimming the print. Also it may be improved by choosing a printing paper with a surface best suited to the subject.

How a rusty, old chain and anchor can reveal beauty—or what do YOU think?

In employing these devices it is again "every man for himself," but remember they will scarcely serve if there was no original beauty in the composition of the picture when it was framed in your viewfinder.
