KARL A. CROWLEY FOR GOVERNOR?

Increasing discussing is being heard through Texas of the possibility that Karl A. Crowley of Fort Worth may enter the race for Governor of Texas in the 1938 Democrat Primaries.

One of the original Roosevelt men in Texas, Mr. Crowley was active in swinging the Texas delegation for President Roosevelt at Chicago in 1932.

At the beginning of the Roosevelt Administration he was appointed Solicitor of the Post Office Department and has since held that place as chief law officer for Jim Farley, who operates the biggest business in the world.

In constant demand as a speaker through Texas, Mr. Crowley, because of his heavy duties in Washington has been unable to accept many of these invitations, but the few speeches he has made in Texas in the last few months on Farm Tenancy Problems, Texas Opportunity in Foreign Trade, the Cattle Industry, Roosevelt's Court Plan, and Federal Taxes and Expenditures have, because of their statesmanlike quality, been widely commented on editorially in the newspapers of the State and among thoughtful people.

Mr. Crowley is forty-three years of age and has been active in State and National politics for the past twenty years. He was a delegate to the National Convention in Houston in 1928; in Chicago in 1932; and in Philadelphia in 1936, where he was chosen as the Texas member of the committee which wrote the party platform on which President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner were elected in a landslide of unprecedented proportion.

BURNS PROVE FATAL TO WILLIS LEE CLEMONS

Last Friday morning at 11 a. m. little one year old Willis Lee Clemons was burned by accidental firing of gasoline where it had been spilled.

The little one was rushed to the Milton Powell Hospital at Gatesville where every means at the physicians command was used to relieve the child but in spite of this death came and called little Willis Lee away from pain and sorrow.

Interment at Coryell Church Sunday afternoon, August 29, 1937. Rev. Roy Clayton and Rev. A. Myers officiating. Pall bearers were the grandfather W. D. Ray, Harris Clemons, Odell Pack and Bert Davis.

More than fifty automobiles loaded with relatives and sympathizing friends followed the little one to the grave.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Holcomb the past week were Mrs. Jack Holcomb and children of Fort Worth.

Mrs. Creg Davidson has accepted a position at Davidson Brothers.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

THIS one about the colored brother isn't as new as some others, but you can never tell about these new ones. They may wear and then again they may wear out. This here one has been used in my own circle of acquaintances for twenty years, and it ain't showing any signs of breaking down in the arches yet.

A colored fellow was about to walk into a somewhat well known blind tiger in a small town when he felt a tap on his shoulder.

Glancing around he beheld the preacher of his church.

"Brother," said the parson, "don't you know that when you all enter dat place of sin de devil is walkin' right behind you?"

"Well, parson," said the brother, "it ain't gonna do him a mite of good, 'cause I only got two bits wid me."

The Will Rogers Shrine of the Sun which will be dedicated on the fifth and sixth of September. It is 2000 feet above Colorado Springs, Colo., and was built by Spencer Penrose (inset), whose dramatic career is described in the current Saturday Evening Post.

Will Rogers Shrine of Sun Dedicated Labor Day Colorado Springs

The saddle of a Western horse threading up winding Cheyenne Mountain highway Monday was empty.

The riderless horse lead a procession of friends and admirers of the late Will Rogers up the mountain's slopes to the base of a 100-foot granite spire dedicated as the Will Rogers Shrine of the Sun.

Spencer Penrose, mining and resort baron of Colorado Springs erected the pink granite tower as a monument to the memory of his friend Rogers, the cowboy-humorist, who died, with Wiley Post, globe-circulating aviator, in a plane crash in Alaska.

Penrose, who came to the West a Harvard-bred tenderfoot and amassed a vast mining fortune, built the shrine on a craggy promontory standing half a mile above the eastward sweeping plains.

The story is that Rogers, many times guest at Penrose's sumptuous Broadmoor Hotel, once saw the promontory splashed with incredible colors by the sun, breaking through thunderstorm clouds.

Penrose was impelled, so the story goes, by his memory of Rogers' speechless admiration of the crag's color display to build the pink stone spire at its top.

The dedication ceremony was a solemn interlude during a traditionally boisterous and rollicking Western rodeo, one of Rogers' favorite diversions. The rodeo opened last Saturday.

Rodeo riders, some who knew the rope-twirling sage, were in the procession to his shrine. Also there were Indians, aviators, politicians and some plain people.

The procession started its trek when the shrine tower's chimes peal in their first notes the somber melody of "Empty Saddles." At the shrine, a quartet sang the song which Rogers asked be his funeral hymn, "Old Faithful."

Three Oklahoma kinfolk of the cowboy philosopher, unveiled the shrine's huge bronze bust, the work of Jo Davidson. The kinfolk were W. M. Gula, Gunter Lake of Okmulgee, a nephew; and Mrs. Laska Luckett, a niece.

The bust facing southwest outside the shrine tower looks toward Rogers' native Oklahoma plains, visible 150 miles away on clear days.

President Turston J. Davies of Colorado College spoke the dedicatory words. United States Senator Johnson was the master of ceremonies.

Penrose and Fred Lookout, a full blooded Osage and a close friend of Rogers, performed the final acts of the ceremony.

While a squadron of planes dropped flowers on the monument, Lookout in Indian word and gesture, delivered the shrine to Rogers' spirit.

Broadway LIMITED

by W. A. S.

New York, N. Y.—Ann Pennington, whose name long, long ago was spread in electric lights across famed Broadway marquees, twinkles once more . . . Shortly before dawn rolled up on 52nd Street, I watched the ex-Follies star display her still shapely rouged knees on the floor of a Swing Lane night spot . . . the years have dealt kindly with the little dancer . . . who does several shows nightly . . . showing the same pen as of yore . . . Maybe old-timers did have the stuff in them! . . . Witness old George Isaac Hughes . . . who astonished the medical world by becoming a father twice after passing the age of 94 . . . several skeptical M. D.'s investigated . . . and were compelled to admit the authenticity of Hughes' paternity . . . I remember meeting the old gentleman when he appeared on a radio hookup in 1935 . . . and seemed as vigorous as a youngster of 60 . . .

although he had already reached his 95th milestone . . . Old viscount Astor, native New Yorker, gave credit "to the use of stimulants for a long and healthful life" . . . His Lordship passed out of the picture at 81 . . . When past 70 he "cut down" his liquors to only one bottle of champagne, a cordial and two cigars with each meal . . . Between the old nobleman's prescription for health and the contradictory rule of life-long teetotalers you can make your own choice . . . but should you choose Lord Astor's method, make sure you have his constitution . . . Many old tipplers are just about ready to start some serious drinking, when the average modern is already as tight as a drum . . . Century-Fox studios write in to say there's a job waiting for someone who looks the way der Kaiser did in the closing years of the World War . . . He is wanted for a featured role in a picture on wartime intrigue . . . which brings to mind: the movies often purchase books or plays merely for their title and not the story . . . Warner Bros. were all ready to buy the title of Marcus Griffin's "Fall Guys"—an expose of the "rassling racket"—for one of their comedies . . . when Griffin, while dining in the Montclair's Casino-in-the-Air with Jack Dempsey and Hannah Williams, was introduced to an important Warner employee . . . Naturally the talk led to Griffin's book, and the film fellow said that he would recommend it to his bosses as excellent film fare . . . and now it appears the "story" of "Fall Guys" will be screened . . . but under a different title . . . which only goes to prove that in the movies—well, just you guess . . . Eleanor Powell overtaken by a multitude of autograph fans satisfies them by doing a tap dance in the street—rather than spend hours giving autographs . . . At the Paradise Rudy Valee points to a much-divorced damsel and remarks: "her idea is to keep on getting married until the right man comes along." . . . A little later a member of a prominent theatrical clan who happens to be the only one of that family without any particular talent for the arts is introduced to a society dame. "And what do you do?" inquires the Park Avenue slummer, "Who me," replies the unfortunate fellow. "I freckle in summer." . . . In Lindy's a young man finds a friend in rather bad shape . . . and decides to guide his wandering footsteps homewards . . . Arriving there the sober one puffs and heaves and struggles until he finally drags his bulky friend to the top floor of his walk-up abode . . . at that point the gentleman in difficulty pulls himself together and in solemn tones says: "My friend, your solicitude for my welfare touches me so deeply—hic—I shall now show my appreciation by carrying you back down the steps."—and furthermore he does! . . . Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

No matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month.

Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Luncheon Draws More Than One Hundred

More than one hundred citizen gathered at the First Methodist Church basement where a delightful luncheon was served to the visitors, guests, members of the Chamber of Commerce and others.

Hon. W. R. (Bob) Poage, Congressman from this district the Eleventh, after an introduction by Postmaster J. Hurl McClellan who was called on by Judge R. B. Cross, delivered the address of the day, recounting the trials and tribulations of the people of this section prior to March 4, 1933, when the present head of our government lead us out of the wilderness and by putting government forces, finances and friends in the field, showed the world what could be done by a government interested in its people when the business of the world stopped.

For the farming and agricultural sections of the country, Mr. Poage stated that no less than a dozen congressional acts affected directly the finances and future well-being of the agricultural population of this section. Other measures by the recently adjourned Congress have tended to reduce the expenditures of the government, and yet take care of the portion of the population of the country which has heretofore been overlooked.

Appropriations which have been made since 1933 for the construction of federal buildings, Mr. Poage stated, have been curtailed, and efforts are being extended in other directions, since business is tending to recover, and it is not expedient for the government to continue its program of federal building construction at this time, which in a way alleviated conditions during the depression.

After adjournment at the church a flag raising was held at the new post office, under the auspices of Scoutmaster J. M. Witcher and the local Boy Scouts of America.

Out of town visitors included mostly employees of various post offices and postmasters, and were:

Postmaster T. M. White of Hamilton, Mary Beth Oliver of McGregor, post office clerk; Sam H. Amsler, postmaster of McGregor; Mr. and Mrs. Oran Knudsen, Hamilton, clerks; C. E. Edmiston, Hamilton; W. ## FEATURES of INTEREST

State Convention of S. C. S. to Be Held in Temple September 13th

range inspectors as having 70 per cent density of cover.

High Quality Pasture

Subsequently, R. M. Burnam of College Station, state range performance supervisor, rated this pasture as having 65 per cent density. "How does this compare with high quality pastures elsewhere in the state?" he was asked. "The best pastures," Mr. Burnam said, "wouldn't run more than 65 per cent."

The pasture contains much Buffalo and Bermuda grass. At one place inspected in the pasture Buffalo grass, which normally bears seed close to the ground, carried seed pods as high as six inches off the ground.

Mr. Foote remarked at this point: "I've seen the time when a jack-rabbit couldn't find a place to hide in this pasture!"

Mr. Foote said that his father, over a long period of years, found it most profitable practice to run one cow to eight and one sheep to the acre, with supplementary feeding during the winter.

Federal Plan Explained

During the winter the following supplementary ration is fed, Mr. Foote said:

Cattle—In December, one lb. of cottonseed cake a day per cow; in January, February and March, two cakes a day per cow.

Sheep—In January, February and March, one-fourth pound of cake per day per head.

"Why graze so conservatively?" Mr. Foote was asked.

"I want to have enough grass to insure feed, even during extremely dry years," he said. "Otherwise I might be forced to sacrifice stock at low prices, and in one year wipe out any accumulated profits."

"The drought of 1887 taught my father the need for plenty of pasture, and he has continued this policy ever since."

"The drought of 1925, along with the grasshoppers, nearly wiped out my grass. I sold a cow with a calf her size that year for $10."

FROM THE COUNTY AGR'L AGENT

Fred Robinson sold at the recent Brady sale three of his registered Delaine rams to Ira McDonald for the consideration of $160. Mr. McDonald is the president of the Texas Delaine Sheep Breeders Association. Robinson's rams are being widely distributed over Texas, which is a definite quality.

In an effort to improve the quality of his flock of Angora goats, Jud Jones purchased a few days ago 100 choice yearling nannies. These goats were bred and raised on one of the better ranches between Junction and Kerrville.

J. H. Nabors of Pearl has secured from Sappington and Bragg of Talpa a very excellent Stud Delaine Ram of A. B. Cook breeding to be used with his registered Delaine ewes.

At the recent Angora Show and Auction held at Junction, Rob Jones purchased eleven very fine nannies and one billy as a nucleus for his breeding flock which he intends to establish. Nannies bought were from well known breeders such as Jack Turner, Joe M. Gardner, W. H. Rawlings & Son and G. A. Bonner. The Billy was bought from Jack Turner. Mr. Jones has taken a forward step which it is hoped many more men in the county will realize is essential to the goat industry of this county. Many and better goats for Coryell County is a worth while undertaking.

C. C. C. ENROLLMENT

A call for approximately 11,000 white and 1200 colored boys to be enrolled into the Conservation Corps during October has been issued by Adam R. Johnson, Director of the Texas Relief Commission, to various County Welfare Boards.

This number far exceeds any former enrollment and will give almost all boys in the state an opportunity to enroll if they are unemployed, 17 to 23 years of age, in need, and whose parents or themselves, due to financial limitations are not in the position to secure or provide comparable training. Full strength of the Texas quota 18,000 white and 1,700 colored and due to discharge of enrollees reaching the age of 24 and on completion of the maximum enrollment of two years replacements necessary.

Heretofore, rules did not allow boys from other than the two groups receiving or eligible to receive public assistance be accepted, but these have now been modified. Such boys who have no dependents may allow two thirds of their pay to remain on deposit and upon discharge, or completion of their enrollment, receive the full accrued amount.

Where there are no dependents, an allotment will be made each month direct.

Over $500,000.00 each month is brought to Texas through these allotment checks to dependents, which materially relieves the burden that otherwise be carried by the communities.

(Signed: Mrs. Frank Kelso)

MORE WORKED ASSIGNED TO LOCAL R. A. STAFF

County representatives of the Resettlement Administration will have larger responsibilities in the future, it was announced by William W. Hartley, county farm supervisor, upon his return from a week's conference at College Station.

We were informed by national headquarters that Washington and Dallas offices will shift more and more work to the local offices," the supervisor said. "Recent drastic reduction in personnel at national and regional headquarters is expected to be only the beginning. But no reductions are expected in the county offices."

At least one-half of farm families in this county receiving rural rehabilitation aid must be "graduated" within the next few years, to an independent and self-supporting place in the community, the local supervisor said. As these "graduates" go out, their places are to be taken by new farm families drawn from the bottom of the pile, who are in turn helped up the ladder.

Mr. Hartley served on the committee on a home-grown meat supply. This committee recommended that no loan be made unless it provides for the family to have one small beef animal, three meat hogs, and 50 chickens. This was for family of 7. The committee urged greater effort for agreements whereby the farmer can have pasture, and the landlord allow him to fence it and remove the fence if he changes to another farm.

The local home management supervisor, Pauline Garner, served on the committee on Making and Supervising Farm and Home Plans.

SOME FEAST

Claiming the production of the world's largest watermelon, weight 183 pounds, Cass County nevertheless stands second to Parker county in the amount of production per acre, in which Parker leads the nation. According to the 1935 census over 3,975 melons were produced in the 70 odd counties who farm them throughout the southern central part of the state. The yearly crop is valued at $556,000.

SKUNK SALES

Denton, Sept. 6.—Possums and skunks may not sound very enticing, but these two animals yield a larger number of pelts to trappers in Texas than any other animals. Out of the 1934-35 catch of 912,276 raw furs, over 600,000 of them were opossums and about 120,000 were skunks. The season's fur catch was valued at $600,000 but in past years the amount has been estimated as high as $3,000,000. Other fur-bearing animals which are breadwinners in the southeastern and southwestern part of the state are fox, raccoon, badger, civet cat, muskrat, mink and beaver.

The first State Convention of the Texas Soil Conservation, an organization of farmers and farm-operators of Texas, will be held in Temple Monday, September

V. C. MARSHALL

13, with V. C. Marshall of Heidenheimer, Bell county, State Chairman presiding.

Every section of the state will be represented at the conservation meeting which will effect a permanent organization of the present temporary set-up.

The meeting was called at Temple because of the central location, and also because Temple is the headquarters of the first and largest soil conservation project in the country.

The Association's program will be to effect a practical cooperation between the Federal and State Government and the farmer and to see that the most effective soil and water conservation program possible put into effect in this state.

Joseph C. Peacock, formerly of Palestine, is executive secretary of the Association which was organized early this summer in Austin. Temporary offices are in the Professional Building, Temple.

The Convention will be held in the Temple Municipal Auditorium with important leaders in conservation work on the program.

The Hornets have been keeping up the same daily grind the past few days in order to be ready for Moody. The Bearkats have a great advantage over the Hornets in that they started practicing a week earlier and will have a hard game under their belts by they meet they meet the Hornets.

One bright spot in the workouts during the past week was Fuzz Voss. Since the opening of these training sessions Voss' blocking has improved remarkably, and when he charges into that line he has the same old beautiful look of a runaway freight car on a 12 per cent grade.

The McGregor Bulldogs held their first formal practice session yesterday at 3:30 o'clock. They open their season on September 17 against Moody, who plays Gatesville here in our opener on the twenty-fourth.

The Hamilton school board has secured Pete Roach to guide the destinies of the 1937 Bulldog squad, a capacity left vacant by the resignation of Roy White. DENTON, Aug. 7 — Fly-away hats plus fly-away shoes equals fly-away season. And that's exactly what fall has turned out to be. Shoes are continuing on the high road they began last year, with definite and extreme variations.

The most notable trend in shoe styles is the added grace of sport types. No longer must one year the unflattering, enlarging, fashion of yesteryear, since shoe manufacturing moguls have definitely streamlined the work shoes or milady. Soft suedes and leather are being draped just as if they were so much cloth.

All the newer shoes are high over the instep. One black suede dinner boot has the high front cut in wing-like divisions, the edge banded in patent. Even suede ties, which will be so prominent in the sport field again, are laced up high with the arched sides curving into eyelets. Gores are used as much in the the new shoes and in dresses and the elasticity thus given promises a season of comfort as well as beauty. Slip ons are more popular than ever, and the elastic insets have solved most of the fitting problems formerly attached to them.

Classic shoe of the season and the most favored by girls at Texas State College for Women is a hicut, slip on pump of suede. An over turned scroll of suede rests up on the instep. The graceful line of the scroll and the fine molding of the shoe itself are destined to place it with shoe immortals.

RANGE TWO OCEANS IN FILM HUNT FOR VIVID SEA SCENES

The practice of utilizing "second units" in film production to save time was elaborated by Twentieth Century Fox when it employed a 3rd company for distant location scenes for "Slave Ship" which opens Saturday at the Palace Theatre, with Warner Baxter and Wallace Berry as co-stars.

The main dramatic threads of the story were made at the studio by director Tay Garnett, while a second company under Gil Pratt made sea background scenes off the coast of Florida. The third company, under the direction of Otto Brower went off on the schooner Lottie Carson for a ten day journey in rough seas off the California coast.

Three companies were necessary because of the geographical extent of the story which embraces the operations of the last American slave ship to engage in the transportation of Negroes from the African coast to the North American continent.

Utilization but one company for this film production would have consumed four months of time and resulted in a tremendous increase in the cost of the already expensive picture. All location work was under the supervision of director Garnett.

All good things begin with an idea. Improved motor fuels, better motor oils are no exception to that rule. So Humble's continuous improvement policy puts a premium on ideas. Then they test it in the laboratory, that graveyard of many ideas which look good on paper. If the idea passes the laboratory test, the supreme test of all awaits it—the open road. The new product, the improved product, goes through a gruelling grind no ordinary driving would ever give it. Then—if it stands up—it's offered to you.

Chapter One

Stephen inserted a piece of paper in his typewriter and sat staring at its imposing letterhead: "Cataract Textile Mills, Milhampton, Mass." The knowledge that he was a necessary cog in the wheels of the mill filled him with pleasurable satisfaction. He knew that he had made good and that old man Lieber liked him. He began haltingly to type. "Dear Helen," he wrote, and stopped again. A wave of painful reminiscence suddenly swept over him.

Helen! It was so long since he had seen her, and he hadn't once written to tell her of his whereabouts. The shock of family disaster had made it impossible for him to see any of his old friends. His father's financial crash and subsequent suicide, the liquidation of his business, the Dallas home disposed of under the auctioneer's hammer, his own flight from Redding — Helen was, somehow, a part of this, a part of his painful past. He had failed miserably in a series of jobs and had been too ashamed and dejected to write.

Well, all that was behind him and he was going to see her again. A voice roused him from his reverie. "Dallas! Dallas!" cried Lieber excitedly, bursting into the office. "your ads are bringing results already! Parker Warehouses wants to see the line. You'll have to put off your vacation —"

At the sight of Stephen's crestfallen face Lieber's expression softened. He knew Stephen was friendless in Milhampton.

"Oh, all right, then. Write and say I'm too busy to be there for two weeks."

"Thank you, Mr. Lieber. I —" Stephen began, but Lieber checked his words with a magnanimous gesture. "Here, look at your ad."

Stephen thumbed the pages of the magazine. A full page photograph caught his eye. It was a portrait of a lovely dark-haired girl, and it sent a sudden electric thrill through him. Beneath the caption he read, "Mrs. Cornelius Morrison." Breathlessly, incredulously, his eyes devoured the printed words. Helen had just been married. What good was his vacation now? What good was anything, if the people you loved left you? Suddenly he felt lonely and friendless and utterly miserable.

Every night at eight o'clock Stella Martin waited beside the white picket fence that enclosed the tiny plot in front of her father's house. Every night she searched the faces of the millhands making their weary way homeward for the sight of Stephen Dallas, and every night she hoped anew that he would see her in her cool, freshly laundered frock, her blonde hair attractively arranged and her face glowing with youth and health. But Stephen never noticed. Perhaps, Stella considered, it was because her father and brother were ordinary millhands, and anyone with half an eye could see that Stephen was a gentleman.

Her opportunity came when Charlie, her brother, forgot his lunch box at home one day. Stella put on her prettiest blouse and went to Lieber's office. Stephen looked up from his desk as she entered.

"Could you tell me," she asked shyly, "where I could find Charlie Martin? He works on the carding machines."

Stephen rose. "Why — uh, — they're shut down now — he'd be out in the yard, most likely. Look, I'll show you from the window."

She stood close to him, and looking around he found her right at his shoulder. For a moment his pulse quickened. It was incongruous to send her into the yard, and he rang for one of his assistants to find the boy. Stella demurely accepted a chair. When she thought Stephen wasn't looking she stole secret little glances at him.

Lieber stuck his head in the door. "I'm going to lunch, Dallas," he announced.

Stella rose and greeted him with a smile. "Why, it's Martin's girl. You're all grown-up! And so pretty! Ain't she, Dallas?"

Stella flushed and laughed, looking to Stephen for confirmation, but he was too embarrassed to say anything. Lieber looked shrewdly from one to the other.

"Say, how long you two know each other?"

"We — we haven't really met," said Stella demurely.

Lieber smilingly introduced them.

"My brother forgot his lunch, and I didn't want him to go without, so I brought it to him —" Stella explained.

Lieber regarded her approvingly. "That's a nice girl — good to your brother, and good to your poppa, too, I bet! I wish I had someone thinking so much of me, hey, Dallas?"

Word came that Charlie Martin had gone out to eat, and Stella, with a pretty gesture, offered the sandwiches to Stephen and Lieber. They had a happy indoor picnic, using Stephen's desk for a table.

It was natural enough, after that first informal meeting, that Stephen should wish to see more of Stella. She was so fresh, so young, so alive, she revived his deflated spirits. They went for walks and rides together in the surrounding countryside. Stella was blissfully happy during those long summer days. They sat, on one particular warm afternoon, on top of a rolling grain field. Stella grew confidential.

He leaned toward her, looking deeply into her eyes.

"... so then they all got the idea at my business course I was, well, different — and that's no good because you can't get along with the people you got to live with..."

Stephen smiled. "You are different, Stella."

Stella regarded him with glowing eyes. "I want to talk like you, Stephen. I'm so crazy to learn. I want you to tell me when I'm wrong and keep on telling me until I talk just like you do."

Stephen was touched. "All right, then. Not like I do, Stella, but as I do."

"As," Stella repeated eagerly. "See, Stephen, I need someone to tell me. You see... that's been the trouble. I've never had anyone to well, take an interest in me. You don't know how much your help has meant to me. I only wish I could pay you back some way."

"Stella," Stephen growing tender, "You've done a great deal more for me than I could ever possibly do for you. You remember that first day at the office? I was in a pretty bad way. Starving for a lot of things I'd lost. Then I saw you... a beautiful and exciting girl —"

He leaned towards her, looking deeply into her eyes. Stella laughed, but her heart beat frantically. Suddenly she stopped. Stephen, too, grew serious. There was no concealment in her eyes — they shone with love and worship. Impulsively Stephen kissed her, desperately, passionately, the kiss of a man who is rewarded at last after a long fast.

THE OLDEST TEXANS

Although the Vanishing American has done a great deal of there are still about 2,100 full-blooded Indians. Estimates of the Indian population at the beginning of the white man's settlement run from 30,000 to 200,000. Many full-bloods are now counted in the Mexican population, their ancestors having migrated back and forth across the border so there may be many descendents of the original inhabitants of the state than tabulation shows. The only distinct settlement left is the Alabamas and the Coushattas on the Polk County Reservation.

The Foote's have been breeding registered bucks since 1887, Mr. Foote said, and have had registered bulls on the ranch since 1892. This spring the shearing sales weight of Mr. Foote's flock averaged 11.3 pounds per head.

Most of the cultivated land in the ranch is strip-cropped. About 90 per cent of the cultivated crops are cotton, corn and oats, Mr. Foote said. He raises no legumes.

Records Kept 45 Years

The elder Mr. Foote came to Coryell county in 1874. The original homestead has been in the family since 1847. The ranch at the time it was divided among 5,870 acres. The elder Mr. Foote began to keep permanent records in 1892, and complete records of the ranch have been kept ever since.

N. Foote, chairman of the county AAA committee and active in county and community affairs, believes there is a big opportunity in livestock for farmers who manage stock properly utilized.

Asked what effect he thought expansion of the livestock industry, he said:

"I believe it would do more good to a greater number of people."

Asked what he thought of the opportunities in livestock for the cotton farmer he said, competition is getting so great we have got to use every idea we have."

Mr. Foote's hobby is collecting antiques. He has an original of a letter written by Martha Washington, and a deed in the handwriting of George Washington.

He has the dismissal of his great grandfather from Grange-man's Lodge, Castle Dawson, Ireland. He has the outfit—saddle, bridle, martingale, saddle bags, etc.—that his grand father used in the Civil war. He also has the militia uniform of his great grandfather wore during the American Revolution.
