B. & P. W. Club Program Friday Nite Features Coryell County People

Little Miss Clorice Walker of Evant is the winner of the Shirley Temple contest and won a dainty Shirley Temple dress fashioned by the young lady of Hollywood, in the program presented at the City Hall Friday evening by the Business and Professional Women's Club of this city.

Miss Wilma Franks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Franks of the State Juvenile Training School, was the winner of the Beauty contest and was awarded the title of Miss Coryell County and will represent this city and above named county in the State Beauty Contest to be held in San Antonio on Nov. 17, 18 and 19.

The winner of the Amateur Contest, Miss Kathleen Walker of Oglesby who entertained the audience with a song and dance number will be entitled to a free trip to San Antonio and has a chance of screen test and radio audition. Many other entertaining numbers such as a Cow-girl rendition, male quartet, tap dancing, string bands, piano solos, vocal solos, negro comedians and various other forms of amusement were provided by Evant Levita, White Hall, Senley, Gatesville, Copperas Cove, Ireland, Mound and Pearl.

More than a hundred persons were featured in the show but names were not obtainable at this issue.

All funds from this show will be given the County Library. The show, given under the auspices of the Business and Professional Women's Club of this city under the personal direction of Mrs. Ola Mae Parks, assisted by Mrs. D. I. Glass and others, announced by Harry Flentge, was said to be one of the best of its kind ever to be staged in this city.

NEWS AND ADVERTISERS GET 'NOTHER BREAK FROM STANTON

In the October issue of "Ad-Tips" aid to advertisers, put out in addition to the Stanton Advertising Service, the News again has two "example" advertisements in this feature.

The advertisements used in this issue of "Ad-Tips" are a 2 column 2 inch ad run by Pierce & Jackson, and a 2 column 3 inch ad run by the Gatesville Junk Company.

Since the advertising service is used by advertisers thruout the world, this gives these advertisers international publicity.

Stanton Says: "Bottom left: The Gatesville (Texas) Coryell County News again is responsible for the clever adaptations of Superservice animated cartoon spots. Small ads, treated in this way, jump right out of the pages to greet the eyes of casual readers."

Hwy. Trip To Austin Gets Commission Interest

Delegates from Coryell, Bell, Milam, Hamilton, Comanche, Callahan, and Eastland gathered in Austin to present problems confronting the Highway 36 Association being unable to be there on account of illness.

Judge Floyd Zeigler, a member of the delegation from Gatesville, stated that the Commission showed intense interest in Highway 36 as a total proposition, but were unwilling and unable to commit themselves on any definite paving or contracts. As soon as funds are available they will allocate funds to this highway. Their attitude was friendly and favorable, but nothing specific was promised.

On the North South Highway, counties represented were Dallas, Johnson, Hill, Bosque and Coryell. The Commission taking no action or making no promises, and merely took the proposition "under advisement".

Even tho these trips seemingly do not bring much back home, they are absolutely necessary in order that those delegated with this presentation of interest of his part of the country may continually hammer on the Commission keeping ever present in their minds the wishes of the voters and people here. The Commission at present is looking with much more favor on Central Texas and its needs than they have ever done. These men are doing a good work in carrying their and our problems to the Commission.

Those who gave their time and money in making this trip were Louis Thomson, Lewis Holmes, H. K. Jackson, C. E. Alvis Jr., Barney Wollard, Roger Miller, Red Chamlee, L. B. Brown, Juel Donaldson, A. L. Melton, Rep. Earl Huddleston, E. P. Berry, Frank T. West, C. Connally, Paul Cross, H. A. Winkler, Louis Behrens, Alvin Clements, Jesse Bell and others whose names we did not learn.

Cream Buyers Hold Meet for "Container" Discussion

Monday evening at the city hall, buyers of cream met and discussed marketing of cream and related products, which in the opinion of the majority, would save embarrassment at some future date when Federal or State inspectors inspected and checked their "buys" and records. Similar meetings have been held in Temple and Waco, which are designed to bring up both the price and the grade for market consumption. Merchants and buyers present.

resolutions, which will be carried out by all buyers in Gatesville.

These resolutions in part state that they will buy cream "unfit for human consumption" or in illegal containers.

Each buyer will inform his customers as to what kind of containers are necessary, and demanded by the Federal and State inspectors.

This action is not one to in any way penalize the producer, but will increase his grade, and consequently price, and also help in marketing his cream, it is said.

Those who participated in the meeting were Jim McCorkle, "Shunk" Carroll, C. D. Blackburn, Ed Melbern, Spud Brown, Gus A. Koch, Henry Daniels, Bill Daniels, S. V. Black, Francis Miller, Lester Bird, Horace Dyer, Harmon Wittie, and Ewel Swift.

The men voted to start this change in buying October 1st, as their advertisement in this issue states.

THREE CHEER LEADERS NAME FOR HIS SCHOOL

Unofficial announcement was received late last week that Miss Anita Lowrey, Miss Flegene Martin and Joe Satterfield had been named cheer leaders for the high school for the 1937-38 session.

Miss Ermatine Durham is sponsor for the Senior high school and Miss Louise Hall for the Junior high school.

Cheerleaders are the "twelfth" man on any gridiron and their colorful antics do much to carry the spirit and make the color of which football is noted.

Mr. and Mrs. G.P. Schaub and daughter visited Mrs. John Frederick who is in a Temple Sanitarium Sunday. Mrs. Fredricks home is in Clinton, Okla.

EXTENSION COURSES TO BE TAUGHT HERE: MEET TUESDAY NITE

J. E. Blair, Director of Extension, North Texas State Teachers College, Denton announces:

All teachers interested in taking an extension course in Education at Gatesville are asked to meet Tuesday, September 21, at 5 p. m. at the high school in Gatesville.

Since the distance from Denton to Gatesville is so great, it will take a large number of students to support the class. It is important, therefore, that a large number enroll.

Mr. Paul Cloud of Jonesboro left Sunday for St. Louis, Missouri. He plans to visit the Purina Mills and Purina experimental farm.

GARDEN DEMONSTRATOR HAS ACHIEVEMENT EVENT

Are Mae Black, Garden demonstrator for the Ewing 4-H club, had her achievement event Friday, September 17, at her home. At this time she estimated the value her garden has been for home use and found it to be approximately $100.

Besides using products fresh, she canned the following garden and orchard products: 43 qts. plums, 6 qts. tomatoes, 18 qts. berries, 73 qts. cucumbers, 6qts. jellies and preserves, 21 qts. tendergreens, 12 qts. turnips, 15 qts. mustard, 29 cans peas, 27 qtz. peaches. Her two sets of storage shelves are neatly arranged and she showed how she has organized and labelled her jars and cans. According to the value list used in computing in dollars and cents the worth of this pantry is $71.48.

Are Mae has done a good demonstration this year and has some telling results to show for her efforts. She completed her 4-H goals, placed second in the County Canned Products Judging Contest, and has been awarded a 4-H pin in recognition of her achievement during 1937.

SEPTEMBER COUNCIL MEETS AT COURTHOUSE ON SATURDAY

Miss Sidney Gibson, County H. D. Agent notifies us there will be a council meeting of the County Home Demonstration Clubs in the Courthouse, Saturday of this week, the 25th.

Members are asked to be present and report the "Good Neighbor" work your club is doing, and also tell if your club is planning to have a booth in the County Home Demonstration exhibit October 23 at the City Hall.

NEWS EMPLOYEES THREE EMPLOYEES

Due to matrimonial depredations, desire of "higher learning" and promotions, the News, in the process of breaking in three new employees.

Socially, we have "Jerry" Franks, probably Geraldine, who will be glad to tell of your visits, visitors, visions, and versatility. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gaines Franks.

Well, we guess, Linotypically speaking, Hubert Morse relative of John and Jack, is tickling the lead pouring ivories in the back end.

And, due to football, and the absence, or "absentee" of James Read Saunders, now in an editorial position in Leon County, Hazen Ament has agreed to take over the pen of that illustrious and notorious "ex" of the News. Hazen, has two drawbacks, Kay & Bill Ament, of a now famous "hasherie".

Evidently the good ole football spirit has captivated the sport-minded Gatesville people, especially the younger set. Some of the many who went to see McGregor vs. Moody in their first football game of the season were: Mildred Gandy, C. H. Wallace, Elbise Cook, Lloyd Neil Kirkpatrick; Patsy Olsen, Charles Smith, Mildred McMordie, Billy McBride, Weldon Campbell, Dorothy Martin, Gladys M. Phillips Harry Voss; Jack Hearne Sydney Gregory; Zack Fore; Joe Ned Brown; Esteen Poston and E. L. Talor; Mr. and Mrs. Horace Jackson also attended the game.

HORNETS ON PARADE! TONIGHT AT ?

Tonight, Gatesville High School Hornets make their 1937 debut. They're making a prevue for your benefit under the Kliegs, at the athletic field.

Coaches Earle Worley and Fred Schwarz will put their young hopefuls thru their paces, with the view of selling Hornet's Inc., to Mr. and Mrs. Gatesville-Coryell county.

It's your show, be there, and give the "boys" a big hand.

Plan School Pilgrimage to Exposition

L. A. Woods, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, visited the Pan American Exposition in Dallas last week, with members of his staff, and joined with Exposition officials in outlining plans to bring 500,000 Texas school children to the World's Fair before its close October 31. Railroads are running scores of special trains for school children and the movement will also be by automobile and bus. "The public schools of Texas should make the Pan American Exposition a field event this year," Superintendent Woods (right) tells Assistant Director General Frank N. Watson.

WORLD COMMENT

Joe Burns

Many great liberal movements in both the United States and other Democratic countries have inaugurated by coalitions of basically antagonistic forces temporarily united by some common objective. Most of these movements have been crushed either on the rocks of dissension or buy their own excesses.

Study of these forces which supported President Roosevelt and his new deal in the elections of 1932 and 1936 and which until February of this year comprised his popular front reveals that a coalition of forces of which the regular Democrats were only a component part responsible for electing the chief executive. Whereas in three preceding elections the farm vote of the midwestern States had gone almost solidly for Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover, a great shift in agrarian sentiment following the collapse of the price of farm commodities in 1931 and this vote almost en masse to the Roosevelt standard, and again in 1936 expressed approval of the Roosevelt farm measures. Most of the farmers who so voted were old-line Republicans who could no longer see any future among the industry-finance controlled G. O. P.

The American Federation of Labor dominated American organized labor in 1932 and John L. Lewis was not known except as head of his United Mine Workers when F. D. R. was nominated the first time. Labor, however, generally liked the New York nominee and he got the labor vote in both the national elections in which he headed the Democrat ticket.

The solid South was broken in the Hoover avalanche of 1928, but returned to the fold and voted solidly for Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936.

Progressive Republicans of the type of George Norris, Hiram Johnson, and the La Follette brothers—Bob and Phil—together with the radical Farmer-Laborites of Minnesota contributed their support to the Roosevelt popular front comprising Southern conservatives, labor from the East, farmers from the West and middle West.

John Lewis' attack upon the President signifies the second break which has taken place in the new deal coalitions since the 1936 election. The first—the defection of the Southern Democrats and the Western and Midwestern liberals—has been discussed at length in this space for some months.

What effect will the Lewis break have upon the new deal coalition and upon Lewis's efforts to organize the mass production workers into one gigantic industrial union?

Patently, the Lewis defection is the first voluntary one by one of the popular front groups. The Glasses and Connallys of the South and the Wheelers and Burkes of the Midwest are obviously driven from the party against their wills. They supported the party nominees in 1936 and only an unprecedented deluge of radical legislation aroused their opposition.

Lewis is voluntarily taking his 3,000,000 C. I. O. members out of the Roosevelt coalition. The loss of the new deal is greater than thought at the first glance. In 1936, it was Lewis, not William Green who led labor to the Roosevelt standard, and, in addition, tossed $500,000 into the Democratic campaign chest. Lewis, in spite of his defeat in little steel, is still drawing A. F. L. unions into his own organization and membership is fast approaching the Federation mark of 3,600,000.

LEAIRD'S DEPARTMENT STORE

Byron Leaird, Proprietor

From another angle, the chief impetus of the C. I. O. drive to organize the steel, automobile, and rubber industries came from asserted support of and backing by the White House. One can only guess what success Lewis will find when he attacks Henry Ford and Tom Grider again without the tacit support of Roosevelt. Thus indications are that both Lewis and Roosevelt stand to lose from the break.

Lewis however, by blaming Roosevelt for betraying labor, has placed the blame for the failure of the steel strikes on the chief executive and thus exonerated himself in the eyes of labor. And Roosevelt has rid himself of a political liability in the eyes of all except labor, for the attitude of the Secretary of labor and of the chief executive himself during the epidemic of 1937 strikes drew criticism from millions.

Lewis' veiled threat to defeat those legislators who are anti-laborites at the 1938 congressional primaries and elections has aroused speculation as to whether the labor leader intends to organize a labor party outside the ranks of the two major parties.

Those Democrats who were frightened out of their Constitution-conscious wits by the legislative program of the administration at the last session have feared that Lewis intends to seize control of the Democratic Party and convert it into a labor controlled party from which they would be excluded. Peter Molyneaux, editor of the Texas Weekly, has urged upon his fellow Southerners to fight this menace and save the party. And Mr. Molyneaux is not alone in his fears among Southern statesmen and writers.

It is not my belief that John Lewis will organize his own party either in 1938 or 1940. Lewis is shrewd enough to know that even should he increase his present forces by several millions he would have a tremendous task upon his hands to win an election under third party label. Consider the South for instance. The labor vote is negligible here as compared with the farm vote and vote of commercial interests. Lewis could not carry a single state of the South on a third party ticket.

North Dakota's William Lemke ran on a radical third party ticket promising the farmers of the middle West a program comparable to the "Share the wealth" scheme of the Late Kingfish Huey Long and scarcely got off home plate against Landon and Roosevelt last year. Americans simply do not vote third party tickets.

Lewis may feel strong enough by next year to go into both the Democratic and Republican primaries and elect labor Congressmen who will pledge to allegiance to Lewis instead of to Roosevelt or the G. O. P. Such action would be but a prelude to an attempted seizure of the Democratic Party in 1940.

There is no basis for worry in the Lewis announcement that the C. I. O. will extend its activities to the farm in the near future. The interests of labor and agriculture are basically antagonistic and a farmer-labor party on a national basis is out of the question for the present if not for all time. The South—fought labor and industry inspired tariffs against the importation of foreign made industrial goods for decades—and without success, because the Democratic administration is, as—stated above, responsible to labor and other diverse interests as well as to the solid South.

High wages for labor increase the goods which farmers must purchase. High prices for the products which farmers raise mean an increased cost of the living workers. Can there be any reconciliation of these interests, basically and fundamentally antagonistic since the beginning of a world of economy?

Statesmen of a dozen nations—particularly the United States—have contended with this problem without success and there has been no solution discovered in the four years of reform legislation which marked the first Roosevelt administration.

COPPERAS COVE BULLDOGS TO BATTLE KILLEEN FRIDAY NITE

Still feeling the sting of a 7-0 defeat last year, the Copperas Cove high school football team will converge on Killeen Friday night, with a desire for blood.

The game will be the first of the season for both teams and will inaugurate the new lighting system recently installed on the Killeen field.

Many Killeen folks will be attracted because of it's first game to be played under the lights, but the Copperas Cove followers will be there backing the Bulldogs in their fight for revenge.

Killeen, last year nosed out the Bulldogs after one of the latter's men made an error. This year's team promises to be much superior to the one last season, having the benefit of experience and training. This will be the second football team in the history of the Copperas Cove school.

Well, some few football games got under way last week, but most schools will start their elevens this week end. The Hornets will meet the Moody aggregation Friday night. Moody took a 20-0 defeat from the McGregor Bulldogs last week. It looks as if they will suffer another this week. Moody has a one-man backfield and their line is fragile. They made only one first down against the Bulldogs. Their offensive plays were well smothered throughout the entire game.

Mart looked great in their first game of the season, when they licked the State Home at Corsicana with a score of 27 to 7.

We see that Clifton finally nosed out Cranfill's Gap last Friday night to the tune of 13 to 6. It should have been 37-0 if Clifton has anything at all. It's liable to be a sad, sad story for the Bosque County boys when they meet the Hornets there on October 15. They will play Hamiltons this week at Hamilton. We pick Hamilton 12-0.

The Hornets are looking great. They are getting that form mighty fast this year and up to now there have been no injuries. We believe they will take Moody as usual, but will not be a pushover. They will have to work hard if they beat them 19-0.

Don't forget to come out tomorrow night and see for yourself just what they have. Their first practice under the lights.

Coach Swartz is busy with his Junior High squad. You should see them in their new red jerseys. They are really rough and tough, no joking. He has some nice material in Sparks, Franks, Kirkpatrick, Thomas, and the two Lasseter boys. The others are

FROM THE COUNTY AGR'L AGENT
LOCAL COUNTY AGENT ATTENDS STATE MEETING

Coryell County Agricultural Agent, Guy Powell, attended the annual state meeting of all the Extension Agents held in College Station September 6 to 10 inclusive. His meeting is usually held in conjunction with the Farmers Short Course, but was not held until the above dates due to cancellation of the Short Course.

County Agent Powell reports that numerous phases of extension work were discussed, and that he believes that by having attended this meeting he will be able to better aid in carrying out the extension work in this county.

4-H CLUB BOYS ARE REALIZING CASH INCOMES

Several 4-H Club boys purchased and used as their demonstration in 1936 registered sow pigs. These gilts were given the care and feed necessary for developing good type sows. They were bred to excellent quality registered boars so that the litters raised this year would have the type and quality required by buyers of breeding stock.

Alton and Elton Quicksall have sold all of their two litters of Poland Chinas. Two of them going to other Coryell County

4-H Club boys. Elmo King has sold three pigs out of his Duroc litter of five. Hardy Hay of Waco was the purchaser of the two pigs and the other was sold to a 4-H Club boy. Clovis King has sold four of his Duroc pigs, leaving him four on hand. Travis Harper has sold two pigs from his very excellent litter of "Peter Pan" Hampshires. He has sold several pigs from another litter of Hampshires which he raised this year.

These boys are to be commended for the steps they have taken toward improving the quality of hogs produced in this county.

AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHS TO BE USED IN CONNECTION WITH FARM PROGRAM RECEIVED

The northeastern portion of Coryell County was not plane table mapped under the 1937 Soil Conservation Program due to the fact that part of the county has been aerial photographed by the Watershed Conservation project of Lake Waco. The State Office has secured a copy of these prints and they will be released to the county agricultural agent's office this week. Field work will begin immediately.

Mr. Mat Jones,
Coryell County News,
Gatesville, Texas.

Dear Mat:

I have just read the account of the death of my very good friend, Boone Gordon, in the News

Boone Gordon and I have been good friends more than 30 years. He was not born in Coryell County, as you state, but was born in Lake County, California. He came to Coryell in the early 80's with his parents, who settled near Slater.

His mother emigrated from Missouri to California during the gold rush days. The wagon train with which she traveled was robbed when it reached the Mormon settlements in Utah. The Mormons took everything from the emigrants, and Mrs. Gordon along with the rest of the party was forced to finish the balance of the journey on foot. Boone said she cordially hated the Mormons the balance of her life on that account. Some Mormon missionaries once came to her home at Slater, and it is said she made them leave the premises immediately.

I shall certainly miss Boone on my periodic visits to the old home town. The ranks of the old-timers are getting thinner year by year.

Yours very truly,
James N. Powell.

ARNETT NEWS

Everyone in this community is busy picking cotton.

Mr. Frank Kuykendall of Star is visiting his brother, G. L. Kuykendall and family.

Miss Mae Cox of Blackwell is a guest this week of her sister, Mrs. Charley Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Maxwell are in Waco where Mr. Maxwell underwent a minor operation in the Provident Sanitarium.

Mrs. Charley Wise is visiting in Fort Worth this week.

Mr. Odell Huyett is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Sandlin, of Gatesville. Mrs. C. M. Hall, Miss Mae Cox, Aileen Vannoy and Pauline Turner visited near Pearl last Thursday.

The Arnett gin caught on fire one day last week, but was put out with very little damage.

Mrs. Maude Carter of Waco spent Tuesday night in the Henry Maxwell home.

The Meeks brothers of Gatesville have taken charge of the store here, formerly run by Mrs. J. F. Nabors.

IN MEMORY OF DONA NECESSARY

Dearest, kindest little sister, you could no longer with us stay.

How we all will miss your presence, smiling bravely every day.

Only God knows how we loved her, how dreary life seems, and so strange.

Comfort loved ones, gentle Jesus, for you saw fit to make a change.

There never was ne more pure, more lovable and good.

One better you could never find if all God's angels by you stood.

Were she here as an outsider, could see her loved ones stricken forms.

I know shed pray they would look to Jesus and find peace within his arms.

To her husband and her children she was faithful, kind and true.

May they face life with her courage, for I know she's want them to.

To her grieved and lovely family she'd hate so much to see you so.

She would know you love her none the less by hiding all your woe.

God help the ones she left behind as long as they dwell here.

To be pure and sweet as she

—so when you call, they will not fear.

Coral rock, which rips the bottoms out of unlucky ships, is built up by minute living animals.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

No matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month.

Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

by DEAN E. V. WHITE
TEXAS STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN (CIA)

Remember that no person ever selected his parents.
Some people hate sin because they are too old to enjoy it.
Nothing is more threadbare than a worn-out welcome.
Some poetry makes a fellow feel prosaic.

SAMUEL GOLDWYN presents
Stella Dallas
BARBARA STANWYCK
JOHN BOLES • ANNE SHIRLEY
AND Alan Hale • Barbara O'Neil
Directed by KING VIDOR

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
When Stephen Dallas' wealthy father is financially ruined and commits suicide, Stephen gets a job and marries the uncultured but beautiful Stella, daughter of a millhand. After their daughter Laurel is born, Stella's uncouth tastes and her propensity for the company of Ed Munn, a race-track tipster, drive Stephen to leave her. Years later, as a successful businessman in New York, he meets Helen Morrison, sweetheart of his youth, now the widowed mother of three young sons, and they renew their friendship. Meanwhile Laurel grows to be a beautiful girl in her early teens, and Stella lavishes all her affection on her, though at times disgracing her by her crude conduct. Stephen frequently "borrows" Laurel, whom he also adores, for visits, including trips to the Morrises' palatial home. But he refuses to consider reconciliation with his estranged wife.

Chapter Five

These long, golden, summer vacation days were fabulously happy ones for Laurel. Living with Stella, at the fashionable summer hotel which Stephen's generosity made possible for them, Laurel mingled, danced and played with the care-free children of New York's socially elect. And by virtue of her charm, her beauty and her instinctively faultless manner she was accepted by them as an equal — nay, as a favorite.

There was young Richard Grosvenor, for example — a handsome, bronzed, well-set-up youth who somehow never seemed to get enough of playing tennis, swimming, riding, hiking or dancing with Laurel. His mother could not help but observe them together, nor could she help remarking happily to a bosom friend: "She's adorable. I always hoped that when the time came for Richard — that it would be that kind of a girl."

This afternoon a picnic was afoot, but Laurel begged off. She preferred to spend the time sitting with her mother, who had been ill in bed ever since the day they had arrived at the summer resort, and hence had not met any of the other guests. Richard suddenly lost interest in the picnic too — he discovered that he had letters to write. "Couldn't Mrs. Clews and I visit with your mother while you two go to the picnic?" suggested Richard's mother.

"I'd have to ask her," Laurel hesitated. And she went off to transmit the proposal to Stella, who lay in grandeur amid many lace-edged pillows in her darkened bedroom. But Stella vetoed the idea.

"What? Meet them for the first time in my nightgown? Huh, I see myself! With a trunkful of new clothes my skin is just itching to get next to! But you go on to the picnic."

The six buoyantly excited young couples pedaled down the country road, lunch baskets fastened in front of bicycles — laughing, chattering, shouting with the fun of their picnic. In the vanguard were Laurel and her true knight, Dick Grosvenor.

The time came to dismount and eat lunch beside the dreamy pool that had been their objective. Laurel and Richard, their sandwiches finished, idled lazily on the bank in a leaf-hung little nook they had found for themselves. Laurel watched the indolent ripples in the brook; but Richard found it hard to take his eyes off Laurel.

Suddenly, silently, the boy made a decision, unfastened his fraternity pin from his sweater, and offered it to her with a gesture. Laurel looked up and nodded gravely. As solemnly, he pinned the little badge on her jacket; then, as they gazed into each other's eyes as if overwhelmed with the wonder of the moment, their lips met in a spontaneous, brief, almost timid kiss. Richard leaned forward for another kiss, but Laurel, half frightened, half coquettish, leaped to her feet and sped away on her bicycle. He followed, shouting after her.

Meanwhile Stella, in her hotel bedroom, was suddenly suffused with an idea. She didn't feel ill any more, really; she would get up, dress, and meet her neighbor's, Laurel's wonderful friends. Happily she sprang out of bed and started putting on her clothes.

But these were not merely clothes that Stella arrayed herself with. These garments were the ultimate in flashy finery; an elaborate dress highly unsuited to the warm-weather season; brightly colored, super-highheeled slippers; a hat that was nothing short of sensational; a showy white fox fur; and to top it all off with, pounds upon pounds of large, flashy, jingly "costume" jewelry that seemed almost to hide the bare spaces of her fingers, arms and neck. Thus formidably arrayed, she sauntered out.

Wandering down the hotel terrace, Stella swaggered about from table to table, accosting the guests, asking to be directed to Mrs. Grosvenor. Walking and talking with absurdly exaggerated elegance, tripping over her still-like heels and laughing shrilly to cover her embarrassment, poor Stella, believing she was making a real impression on her haute monde neighbors, only succeeded in eliciting their derisive titters. She failed to find Mrs. Grosvenor there, and minced across the lawn, past the golf course where some boys playing stopped to watch and mimic her — and finally disappeared down the road toward the village.

In the village drug store the care-free picnicking youngsters had stopped for refreshment on their way back to the hotel. Laurel and Dick sat at the soda fountain, a little apart from the others, whispering and laughing happily, completely absorbed in each other. They were scarcely aware of the buzz of conversation and giggling that went on near them — mostly concerned with a queer, bizarrely dressed woman who had suddenly appeared in the hotel and was making a holy spectacle of herself all over town.

Suddenly "that woman" sauntered in the drug store, went to the perfume counter, and began elegantly pawing over the wares. Meanwhile most of the boys and girls stared at her strange get-up, fascinated, and kept up a running fire of sotto voce comment.

"That's not a woman — it's a Christmas tree..." "And it walks!" "Does it talk?" "And how!" "Oh, it's a gag. She's an ad..."

Laurel, still absorbed in her ardent young admirer, could not help becoming aware of what was going on. Turning her head toward the object of general ridicule, she was petrified to behold her mother!

The unhappy child, impelled by some instinct to avoid a scene — to prevent her mother from seeing her among all those jeering strangers — ducked under the counter.

"Oh, please... I... I've lost my... watch... I must have —"

Without waiting for more, she rushed out of the store, stifling her sobs, eager only to get away from all of them, to be alone in her bitterness and sorrow.

DEMONSTRATION AGENTS OFFICE

USES SMALL TOMATOES TO GOOD ADVANTAGE

These little Porter tomatoes makes good juice which we put in jars for immediate consumption and take them as part of our lunches, explained Mrs. R. A. Bertrand, cooperator in the Purnela Home Demonstration Club. The juice is refreshing, looking, and good for us. The seproshiv takes the seed and skins out and leaves the pure juice and pulp. This is quickly cold pressed daily in amounts desired. One is sure of getting all available nutriment, minerals, and vitamins.

Tomato juice protects against tooth decay, rheumatism, scurvy, and lessens nervousness and irritability.

PECAN GROVE 4-H GIRLS ACHIEVE 1937 GOALS

Seven 4-H girls at Pecan Grove were awarded 4-H pins when the club met at Wilma Dean Ivy's home on the occasion of her achievement event. These girls showed containers of fruit they had canned as one of the goals is to can at least ten containers of fruit or tomatoes. These girls are Freda Beatty, Jewel Melton, Flossie Melton, Virginia Davidson, Gene Scott, Hazel Walters, and Wilma Dean Ivy. Earlier in the year these same girls accomplished clothing goals to attend the 4-H encampment in June.

GARDEN DEMONSTRATOR SHOWS ACHIEVEMENT

THIS is where we are storing our canned fruits and vegetables, explained Wilma Dean Ivy, Garden demonstrator of the Pecan Grove 4-H club, as she led the club members and achievement day guests to her well filled closet shelves. I helped with all our canning besides the things which I canned to full-fill canning goals. An attractively labelled array of jars and cans in an orderly arrangement is a definite indication that Wilma Dean has been a most active successful demonstrator for her 4-H club.

Summing up her activities, she recounted the seed planting, transplanting, preparing fresh, canning, and storing tomatoes which were the necessary steps taken in the course of the tomato phras of the garden demonstration.

4-H CLUB BOYS TO ATTEND WACO SHOW

The dates of the third Annual Brazos Valley Free Fair held at Waco has been set from October 13 to 24 inclusive. Coryell County 4-H Club boys will exhibit several classes of hogs, beef calves, fine wool lambs, wheat, cotton, and probably other products at this Fair.

Lets Talk about Clothes

DENTON, Sept. 20. — Simple logic will answer your questions about accessories this fall. Here's the way it works—black rules as background favorite, black is somber and dark, lovely ladies need color to set off their charms. Conclusion; accessories supply color.

Manufacturers worked out the problem too, so now milady needs only to get an idea about her color desires and the stores will furnish all necessary materials. Among the ideas that she might dig up is the currently popular one of matching her gloves and hosiery. These two articles in beige worn with black will instantly mark her as an expert in subtle style.

New shades of green, wine, brown, rust and gray are other accessory colors that will accent black costumes. They are reflected in bags, gloves, hats and shoes, but one must be careful not to have over three articles in the same color.

Gloves are somewhat longer and more flared this season, with patent leather, doeskin, kid and suede being used as trimming for fabrics and lace kid promising a wide appeal. Suit gloves are still wrist length, but are made more feminine by stitching and intricate patterns. Students at Texas State College for Women again choose the crocheted, square-fingered, gayly colored innovations of last year to be worn on the campus with matching scarfs.

Polished surfaces are newest in bags, since a new process has been invented to give that metallic finish. One will see bronze, copper, and silver bags this year as well as the old stand-bys of suede, patent and smooth leathers. As in fall dresses, folding, dimpling and pleating will form many bag trimmings, the shapes will be softer and quaint, and fastening must be new and original.

KNOW TEXAS

Bigger and Better Bottles

DENTON, Sept. 20 —A whole town bottled up—such is the situation in Three Rivers, where over 1000,000 bottles are turned out a day. Milk bottles, beverage bottles, food containers and medicine bottles are a few of the bottled goods produced by the large glass factory located there. The necessary raw products are furnished by a heavy deposit of white, fine grained sand near the town, which is located mid-way between San Antonio and Corpus Christi.

Tree Publicity Needed

Although the widespread plainlands with their romantic cowboy figures have received more publicity than any other aspect of Texas, its wooded area could claim their share of the glory. In 1930 the total commercial forest area was 12,624,000 acres, and three state forests in Cherokee, Montgomery and Newton counties added 5,600 more acres. Principal kinds of wood are yellow pine, oak, red gum and tupelo, but with the state forests as laboratories, experts are now making research toward growing new varieties.

Queer Names and Why

Five towns in Texas have every right to be dirty—their names are, Mud, Clay, Earth, Sand and Grit. Among other odd names is that of round top, so called because it has an old log house with a round dome situated on a round hill. Origin for one of the most optimistically named towns in the state, Rising Star, has never been discovered. And then there is the town named Floydada by mistake, because some post office employee could not read the handwriting which designated it as Floydalia.
