FISHER'S FIVE FEARLESS FLYERS OUT DO BIRTHDAY

Billed as "The Greatest Circus On Earth for The Price" Russell Brothers Circus which played here Wednesday afternoon and night, out Bernumed Barnum as an attraction.

Premier among the multitude of very fine acts, was the aerial antics of Bob Fisher and his Five Fearless Flyers, who out did anything we have been privileged to witness in a sawdust arena, regardless of the size of the tent and menagerie.

Also the petite Miss Arialetta, was tip top in tip of the top performances with her spectacular knee-plunge, standing ankle drop, and somersault in mid air without a safety net.

Buddy, the seal of the century, charmed children of all ages by his clever juggling, musical ability and agreeableness.

The Rebas, with their bicycle loop-the-loop, were outstanding in their exhibition of balance, precision and danger, pretty Dolly Rebas doing the looping.

We could go on and on, but here's what you missed if you missed this Russell Brothers Circus: The Six Lelands, foremost teeter-board acrobats, who featured a tripple somersault from a pyramid three men high to a chair held by Miss Florence Leland; Rockless Violetta, who slides 300 feet down a cable from the tip top, suspended by her very good teeth; The Great Albertine, sliding backward down a 250 foot tight rope; Miss Tetu, Japanese girl, who did so MANY mucle grinds; Frank B. Millers educated string of Kentucky horses; Irene Ledgett's herd of performing elephants; Vic Power's military ponies and monkeys; Educated dogs, by Betty Willis, Hazel King and Vco Powers; Connors and Orton Troupes of wirewalkers, Frank Buck's "Topsy" a chimpanzee who was presented by Jack Crippen; Frances Fisher's ballet of swinging ladder girls, and Jackson Brothers horizontal bar act. Tony Leonard's Comical Clowns, were all enjoyable and unusual circus features.

Chief Keys, Johnny Jarnigin, Genevieve Hughes, featured in the different Wild West Show under the direction of Fred Ledgett and the sideshow stand-outs included Tiny Cowan, 580 lb. 18 year old boy; Zabelle, human pin cushion, and Rex Leroy, the man without a stomach.

Weather, and very bad at that ruined the attendance at both performances, but William B. Antes, one of the amiable officials of the show stated that they were well pleased with the reception given by Coryell county and Gatesville and that this place would be included, if at

WORLD SERIES BASEBALL FOR 1937, IS OVER, YANKS WINNING

Its all over now. The annual baseball classic known as the World Series ended Sunday, when the American League New York Yankees won their fourth game from the National League New York Giants. The series lasted five games, the Yanks taking the first three and the fifth.

Lefty Gomez and Carl Hubbell battled the first game, but Hubbell only lasted six innings when he allowed the Yanks 10 hits and seven runs. Melton came in for him and the Yanks made 2 more hits and another run ending the game. YANKS; 8 runs, 12 hits, 0 errors. GIANTS; 1 run, 7 hits, 0 errors.

In the second game Ruffing pitched for the Yanks and Melton for the Giants. Ruffing did a good job of pitching as well as hitting, getting two good clean singles during the game. Again the Giants went down. YANKS; 8 runs, 9 hits, 0 errors. GIANTS; 1 run, 6 hits, 1 error.

Friday's game was almost like the two previous games, except for the score. Schumacher pitched for the Giants and Pearson for the Yanks. The Giants just couldn't hold the Yanks hitting spree and again the Yanks pulled thru for a win. YANKS; 5 runs, 9 hits, 0 errors. GIANTS; 1 run, 5 hits, 3 errors.

Saturday's game was a toss up all the way, with the Giants taking the game due to the wonderful pitching of Hubbell. Hadley started for the Yanks but was unable to go the full game. YANKS; 3 runs, 6 hits, 0 errors. GIANTS; 7 runs, 10 hits, 3 errors.

Sunday wound up the series, with the Yanks coming back with Southpaw Goned, pitching his crew to another hard earned victory. The Giants pitched Melton, Smith and Brennan but neither could stop the Yanks hard hitters. Joe Moore, for the Giants, led the hitters thru the series getting 10 hits.

It has been a pleasure for the NEWS, to bring you the illustrated results of these games, and we invite you to be back with us next year. Each week watch our windows for football results for high, college and high school. Make this office Your Sports Headquarters at all times, you are more than welcome.

Muscular Rheumatic Pains

It takes more than "just a salve" to draw them out. It takes a "counter-irritant" like good old Musterole—soothing, warming, penetrating and helpful in drawing out the local congestion and pain when rubbed on the aching spots.

Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness generally yield promptly.

Better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster, Musterole has been used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.

3-STAR FILM BOOKED FOR REGAL

Bette Davis was winner of the 1935 Academy gold statue for the best feminine film performance of the year.

Edward G. Robinson's every picture has been great since "Little Caesar", back in 1930.

Humphrey Bogart was the main figure in the recent "Black Legion" thriller and the menacing bandit in "Petrified Forest."

Each an individual Warner Bros. star—but now all working together in "Kid Galahad", an exciting story of the prize ring and those who surround it! The picture has been booked into the Regal Theatre and is scheduled to have its first local showing Sat. nite at 10:30 also Sun. and Monday.

"Kid Galahad", written by Francis Wallace, was a great literary success when it first appeared as a serial in a national weekly magazine. Then it became a best seller as a novel.

The story deals with two rival underworld fight-managers, Robinson and Bogart, and their attempts to double-cross each other. Eddie's fighter is "Kid Galahad" (called that because of his idealistic attitude toward women), played by a 23-year-old newcomer to the screen named Wayne Morris. It is predicted by those who saw the picture in preview that this movie will shoot him right into stardom.

Bogart's "boy" is another very unusual character—William Haade, who was taken right off the skeleton of a steel office-building in New York City to play the lead in the stage production "Iron Men". He's a genuine steel worker. Directly from the Broadway play he was brought to Hollywood to do "Chuck McGraw," the heavy-weight champion in "Kid Galahad."

The fight between these two boys is said to be the bitterest ever shown on stage or screen—with no punches pulled. Morris weighs 195, Haade 210. The battle goes eleven rounds.

Contract Played At R. W. Ward's Home

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Ward entertained Thursday night with a bridge party. Lovely Zinnias, roses, and marigolds in decorative theme lent new charm to the setting for game tables in their pleasant home.

High score went to Mr. and Mrs. Horace Jackson, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Franks claimed second high score.

At conclusion of the evening ice cream and cake was served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Francis Caruth, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Franks, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Powell.

Last week Mrs. Ward was hostess to the Thursday Contract Club. The same attractive decorations were observed in the room where the four bridge tables were arranged.

High scores were won by Mrs. Francis Caruth and Mrs. D. R. Boone.

Mrs. Ward served a delectable salad course to her guests; they were: Mesdames Robert Brown, Rufe Brown, Bates Cross, D. D. McCoy, Tom Mears, Elbert Stone Clay Stinnett, Bob Saunders, Harry Flentge, C. E. Gandy, Francis Caruth and D. R. Boone.

WHEN baby came, we got a phone so we could keep in touch with the doctor. Now it gives us so much pleasure that we'll never be without it. We talk with friends and neighbors. The Mrs. phones her mother frequently. And it makes it real cheerful here on the farm even in the most disagreeable weather. It doesn't pay to be without a phone; it costs so little.

KEEPS ACCURATE RECORD

A cooperator in the Eliga Home Demonstration Club, Mrs. H. J. McVey, shows a carefully kept record of her canned products. On the form labelled CANNING ACCOUNT Mrs. McVey has recorded the following: 11 cans English Peas, 4 qts. green beans, 32 cans shelled beans, 7 cans black eyed peas, 1 jar of butter beans under vegetables; 20 qts. tomatoes, 36 qts. peaches, 6 qts. of apples, 12 qts. plums, 7 containers green grapes, 4 pints pineapple under fruits; 20 qts. cucumber pickles, under pickles; 70 containers pork and sausage under meat; 8 qts. peach preserves, 10 qts. apple preserves under sweets.

By marking down the amount canned of each product every time she does some food preservation, Mrs. McVey achieved a well-kept, complete, and true account with the least expenditure of effort.

AN IDEAL FOR STORING EMPTY JARS

Mrs. Jake Hodel, Coryell City showed the agent the way she stores her empty jars. As she empties the food out of them the washes and scalds the jars and wraps them neatly in newspapers and packs them in wooden crates. "I use the newspapers" is the thrifty comment made by her.

SEEN AT SLATER

Some real home improvement being conducted by Mrs. Charlie Maynard makes her house shine outside and inside like a new one. Repainting the outside with white and the interior walls and ceilings in pastel tints and the floors and baseboards a darker tint freshens the whole home atmosphere. Some 1 x 12's piled outside were explained. "I'm going to have a closet in the kitchen". Running water, new sink, and drainage facilities "save a thousand steps", says Mrs. Maynard.

DALLAS BLACKBERRIES AT MOUND

In looking around for berry patches with good production of quality fruit, Mrs. Grady McHargue of Mound supplied the agent with a quart of Dallas blackberries. "They don't come to pieces" is her true remark concerning canned Dallas blackberries.

SCHOOL LUNCH SUGGESTIONS

"What am I going to carry in my lunch today?" is a constant query now that another school session has begun. In the interest of supplying nutritional needs and satisfying the appetites of growing boys and girls these suggestions are offered.

The following recipe is for a sandwich spread which can be prepared in bulk, canned, and opened when needed:

SANDWICH SPREAD

Measure everything after it has been ground and drained:
1 quart green tomatoes
2 red sweet peppers
2 green sweet peppers
Add 1 tablespoon salt and let set a while to drain.

Then cook with 1 cup of water until tender.

Add six ground sweet pickles. Keep hot and mix with the following dressing:

- 1 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons prepared mustard
- 2 heaping tablespoons flour
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1 cup of sour cream
- 3 well beaten eggs

Heat to the boiling point and add for the above mixture.

This spread can be used alone on bread for sandwiches or it can be used to moisten other filling combinations.

SANDWICH FILLINGS

1. Cheese-grated American or cream cheese with chow-chow, chili sauce, green peppers, celery, parsley, onion, chopped nuts, chopped cabbage, pimiento, or pineapple.

2. Egg-hard cooked eggs, minced, moistened with dressing and seasoned with chopped pickle or shredded lettuce or cabbage, pimiento, green pepper, or cheese. Thin slices of crisp broiled bacon could be added.

3. Fruit-equal quantities of dried figs, raisins, dates and nuts ground together and flavored with lemon juice. Cooked and pitted prunes combined with mayonnaise. Canned peaches with peanut butter and mayonnaise, bananas minced with butter and chopped nuts. Ground apples, cranberries, and butter.

4. Butter-Spreads better when creamed. Spices, cheese, fruit juice, onion, or parsley worked into the butter, add flavor.

5. Meat-Diced cold pork or chicken or canned salmon, tuna, lobster, or shrimp combined with apple or cabbage cut fine, or pickles and salad dressing.

6. Sour Cream Dressing- A satisfactory moistening agent for fillings is a cup of sour cream beaten until stiff and mixed with 1 1/2 tablespoons of sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, pepper, and 3 tablespoons vinegar (added slowly).

A miscellaneous Publication No. 246 by the United States Department of Agriculture entitled "Menus and Recipes for Lunches at School", gives further school lunch suggestions. This bulletin is available from Congressman W. R. Poage or at the County H. D. A.'s Office.

ANNA MAY PERRYMAN
DISTRICT CLOTHING
CONTESTANT

Anna May Perryman, county 4-H Clothing Demonstration winner, competed in the District 8 Clothing Contest at Bryan Wednesday, October, 13th. Anna May was one of the eight contestants in this Extension district in Texas and made a good representative from Coryell County. Each contestant modelled her garments and then made a short talk on "My Clothing Demonstration". In part, Anna May said, "I have been a clothing demonstrator for two years. In the first year I improved my clothing storage besides keeping the clothing book of inventory and account". She also expressed enjoyment of the accomplishments of the demonstration.

Miss Dora R. Barnes was in charge of the contest as she is the Clothing Specialist for the Extension Department. She handed back the books and stories to the contestants and recommended Anna May Perryman's to the group for its good organization and correct labelling.

Dairy income is regular income

The dairy farmer sells his product every day.

Spring, summer, fall and winter—good weather or bad weather—the milk crop is the surest and most regular farm earner.

Every day of every year, Borden distribution and salesmanship are at work to speed the flow of milk from the farm and of milk money back to the dairy farmer.

It is this highly specialized job of creating new milk products and finding new milk markets that helps make each dairyman's income a better year-around income.

WORLD COMMENT

Joe Burns

AT CHICAGO

The ambiguity of President Roosevelt's address at Chicago, in which he condemned aggressor states and advocated that they be "quarantined," prevents the forming of any definite conclusions as to the future course of the Government in foreign affairs.

Actions of the next few weeks should reveal the measures which this government is willing and prepared to take against Japan and other treaty-breaking aggressor states. Nevertheless, those millions of Americans who would be called up to die the sun-baked steppes of Asia should this country become involved in hostilities deserves to be told just what are the plans of the President and his foreign advisors.

A number of suppositions have arisen as to the true significance of the chief executive's remarks. None of these can be substantiated, yet all are subjects of concern and interest.

The first and most logical supposition is that President Roosevelt is genuinely alarmed by the turn of events in Europe and Asia, arising from the Spanish civil war, the Italian conquest of Ethiopia, the present Sino-Japanese conflict and the feverish preparations for war on the part of the Fascist dictators of Germany and Italy. The President's advisors abroad have undoubtedly warned him that another World war is in the offing unless the Democratic states unite in a common front against those who would pervert the peace and liberty of the world to military aggrandizement.

Any policy which this Government might pursue against Japan or any other peace-breaker must necessarily entail a degree of danger for the U. S. A. For example, should the United States join with Great Britain, France, and the other League powers in an economic and financial boycott of Japan, this Nation would be placed in a position to be attacked as a retaliatory measure by the offended party, Japan.

The Democratic states of the world—lead of course by France, Britain, and America—have been drawing closer together since it became apparent with the advent of Herr Hitler in Germany that henceforth the world will be divided into two contending parties—those adhering to Fascist or dictatorial principals, and those espousing the sacred cause of Democracy.

The monetary agreement between the three great Democracies was designed to strengthen France—financially the weakest member of the entente—and to provide a free flow of trade and money between the three powers. France and Britain have been exchanging military and naval secrets since the war and now are in alliance.

How far will the U. S. go in supporting Britain and France against Italy and Germany in Europe and against Japan in Asia? While that question can not at present be answered with any degree of accuracy, two relevant facts emerge that are of interest.

First the general demand for instituting the neutrality act at the beginning of Sino-Japanese hostilities reflected the determination of the American people to remain aloof from any and all Asiatic or European embroilments, even at the cost of a loss of trade and of investments in the areas of warfare.

But the Government, by refusing to withdraw the Asiatic naval squadron from Shanghai and surrounding waters, and by continuing to protect American civilians and property in the battle areas of North China and Shanghai, thereby served notice that this country does not intend to withdraw into a shell of neutrality and non-intercourse with warring nations upon the outbreak of hostilities anywhere.

Secondly, President Roosevelt, as indicated in his Chicago speech, is of the belief that the United States can best serve the cause of peace and render the greatest contribution toward maintaining the institution of Democracy by cooperating with Britain, France and the smaller democracies rather than by maintaining strict neutrality.

There is another factor worthy of note. Japan is now this country's most profitable customer. The Japanese trade is not only far greater in total volume than our trade with China, but presents a larger favorable trade balance. Any action against Japan is not going to be hindered by a reluctance on the part of industrial, financial, commercial and shipping interests to forfeit this lucrative trade and favorable balance of trade.

There is another supposition as to the reason for the Chicago address which can not be overlooked—one that has been considered seriously in the press of the country. That is, that the reaction to the court reform bill was so adverse on the trans-continental tour of the President that he found it necessary to divert the public's attention from domestic to foreign affairs.

This method is a favorite of one of the European dictators. Several of the Nazi coups, including the 1934 blood purge of Nazi party members, the invasion of the Rhineland by goose-stepping Reichswehr soldiers, and the Italian conquest of Ethiopia were authoritatively said to have been planned and executed with the idea of turning the eyes of the people from financial difficulties to victories in the foreign field.

Boake Carter estimated that F. D. R. has lost 2,000,000 votes since January 1, largely as a result of the court reform bill and the efforts to reorganize the Federal government. It is known that one of the prime reasons inspiring the Western trip by the chief executive was the de-

TERRACING HELPS CONTROL EROSION IN COUNTY

Terracing may be the answer to a farmer's prayer for erosion control in many cases, but a poorly constructed terrace can do more harm than good, E. E. McAlister, of the Soil Conservation Service, warned today. He advised that terracing, the purpose of which is to break the speed of runoff water by diverting it across the slope to a protected outlet, is fast gaining favor in Coryell County.

Hasty or careless construction may result in severe gullying McAlister said, while a well-built terrace can save loads of soil in a few months of operation. He recommended careful planning of the entire system, including suitable outlets, before actual work is attempted.

"Breaks in the terrace ridge pour over large volumes of water over a narrow strip of land and bring on field-destroying gullies," he explained. "The only way to prevent these breaks is to plan the terrace system carefully. Each channel should have the proper slope; each ridge should be low and broad-based; and the whole system should be provided with an outlet channel to dispose of surplus water."

Soil conservationists regard the outlet channel as a highly important part of the terrace system, since it will rapidly develop into a gully unless it is well protected. A good cover of grass is usually advocated by the Soil Conservation Service to furnish the necessary protection. Whenever possible the water from terrace systems in the Gatesville camp or is spilled into a good pasture, protected woodlands, meadow or meadow outlet. When such disposal is not feasible, it is advised that terrace construction be delayed until a good sod is established in the outlet.

Further information on terracing as a means of soil protection may be obtained through Soil Conservation Service or through the local agricultural agent, Guy Powell.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Rogers and son, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson visited Mr. and Mrs. Marvin O. Parr in Ft. Worth Sunday. While there they attended Dr. J. Frank Norris' Church.

Mrs. Walter Schaub and little daughter, Linda Ann, arrived home Wednesday after spending a week in the local hospital.

sire to sound out sentiment on the Supreme Court bill in the states where some of the chief opponents of the bill live, namely, Wheeler of Montana, O'Mahoney and McCarran of Nevada, and Burke of Nebraska.

Reports indicate that the public reaction to the chief executive's trial balloons on the court subjects were distinctly unfavorable. The President quite clearly understands that this section of the country, including the Pacific Coast region and the Midwest, which gave him majorities both in 1932 and 1936, does not want to tamper with the Federal judiciary or reorganize the Federal government.

Hornets Go to Clifton Tonite

Coach Earl Worley will lead his buzzing Hornets into the lair of the Clifton Cubs tonight at eight. This will mark the Hornets first journey of the season and they are going with high hopes of making it four wins in a row. Last year the stingers went down in a bad defeat at the hands of the Cubs. This year they are out for revenge and from the looks of things, it can be gotten.

Sidney Gregory may not see any service in tonight's game, due to head injuries received in scrimmage Tuesday, however, he is coming around nicely at this time.

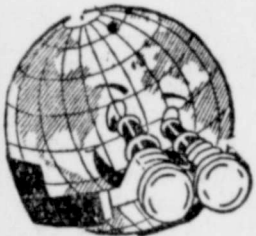

A large crowd is expected to attend the game from Gatesville together with the High School Band and Pep Squad. Lets all go over and give the boys a big boost, they may need it.

SPORTS AS SEEN

By Hazen Ament

ON THE SIDELINES

Now that the World Series is over, most of our time will be spent chatting about football. It seems there's going to be a lot to write about too. Even right here in Gatesville, if these Hornets keep up the good work that they have so beautifully started, there will be enough sports to fill our column.

Did you know that Gatesville can, and is boasting one of the best high school linemen in the state. This man is none other than Big Bain Blankenship. Off times too little is said of our Hornet line. This year it is impossible for anybody to skip them.

Up to now, the local high school Hornet line has neither bent nor broken, it holds like the walls of the Court House. (The reason I am using the Court House for instance, is because I am looking at that very wall right now and its a good-un too.) Coach Worley can justly be proud of his line, because it is functioning perfectly.

When Gatesville crosses the beautiful hills and valleys Fri. evening, and runs into our neighboring town of Clifton, it will be just like a whirlwind on the western plains. They will beat Clifton from the start of the game till the final whistle.

Bro. Chunn told me today that the Hornets would beat the Cubs by two touchdowns. We agree with you Bro. Chunn but lets make it four touchdowns, in order to guess closer.

If the Hornets are in good form tonight as they were Tues. evening at scrimmage, look out Clifton. In our estimation the team looks better than ever before. Even tho they have been undefeated there seems to be very little bragging and boasting among the players.

This column is in receipt of a letter from one of Baylors (should be football players, but couldn't make the grade) backers. "It's too bad boy, that you couldn't have had the opportunity to tell all the people in Central Texas about your guess on the Baylor-Arkansas game. It was a good guess, but you must admit it was an upset game."

The Hornets Club is really hot this year, they're doing things in a big way. Why don't you other fans join the club and get in on some of the fun and responsibility. They'll tell you all about it and be glad to have you.

Guess who was occupying one of the seats in the press box last Fri. nite? Yep! you, are absolutely right. It was none other than our old friend Ted Harris. It did us right good to see the old boy back in Gatesville, cause you know he had been away from here almost five-days.

By-the-way, we want to say right now, that we are indeed grateful to Supt. Brooks for the nice new press box. We found it to be ideal Fri. nite, and say, its water-proof too.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE Kidnapped and brought by plane to Shangri-la, an idyllic land in the fastness of forbidding Tibet, Robert Conway, British diplomat, with his brother and three others, wonder why they have been detained there. In an interview with the High Lama, Conway discovers that he has been chosen to guide Shangri-la through the troubled years which the Lama sees ahead. It is Conway who must guard the beauties and treasures of art, literature and music stored at Shangri-la against the day when the forces of greed and evil in the outer world shall have spent themselves and humanity, seeking salvage and understanding, will turn gratefully to Shangri-la.
After he has explained the ideals and purposes of Shangri-la, the Lama dies peacefully and Conway — already half in love
with the place and with a girl, Sondra, whom he has met there — withdraws to take up his new burden.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Chapter Six

When Conway rejoined the others
he found his brother, George, waiting for him in a fever of impatience.
"Bob!" he cried. "I thought you'd never return. Come on! Everything is all ready."

Conway stared at him abstractedly.
"What's ready?" he asked.

"The plane. They're here and we arranged to have them take us back with them." George turned and scowled at the others. "I don't know what's getting into these people," he said, "but they have resolved to come with us."

and Lovett. They all nodded confirmation of what George had said.
"We're going to wait for the next trip," Barnard said, acting as spokesman for the group. "We kinda like it here."

Conway turned to George. "Freshie," he pleaded, "you mustn't do this.
You've got to stay." George started to protest but Conway silenced him.
"I'm going to tell you what has just happened to me," he said. As rapidly as he could, he told the group about his interview with the High Lama. They listened in silence but when he was done George was still unconvinced.

"Ever since I can remember," George said, "you've always looked after me. But now I think you're the one who needs looking after.
They've knocked the pins right
from under you here. Good heavens, Bob, things like that don't happen in the twentieth century. You've been hypnotized by a lot of loose-brained fanatics. Look here, why don't you do this. Go with me now.
Later on, when you're away from here and can think logically, if you still feel you want to come back, that's fine. What do you say? The porters are waiting and, heaven knows, I had a world of trouble getting Maria to make the arrangements."

Conway stared at his brother.
"Maria? You're crazy, George! You can't take that girl away from here.
Do you know what will happen to her if she leaves Shangri-la? You'll have an old woman on your hands.
She came here in 1888. Do you realize she's more than sixty years old?
If she leaves this valley she'll revert
to her real age."

George laughed hollowly. "Sixty years old." She isn't a day over twenty! And I'll prove it to you!"
Rapidly George went into an adjoining room and returned with Maria, timid and frightened.

George placed a protecting arm around her shoulder. "Maria, dear,"
he said, "don't be frightened. I want you to show your locket to my brother."

Silently Maria opened a gold locket around her neck and extended it for Conway to see. There was a picture inside and, engraved on the cover, the following inscription: "To my darling on her 16th birthday, April, 1932."

"Don't you see Bob," George pleaded, "the whole thing's ridiculous!"

Conway scowled. "Did you say
the porters are down on the plateau?"

"Yes."

"And our clothes?"

"Yes."

Conway made his decision. "Come on," he said. "We're wasting time!"

As they made their way through the garden of the lamasery Conway paused for a moment and looked back. Up on the same terrace where he had first seen her — almost hidden by the floral arbor — Sondra

was watching their departure.
Chang was standing at her side.
Conway looked at her for a moment
and then he turned and disappeared from view. When he had gone Chang placed his arm around Son-dra's shoulders which were shaken
with sobs. "He'll return," he said,
simply "I know he'll return."

Days later, with the entire party nigh unto exhaustion, George was carrying Maria painfully on his shoulder as they edged their way precipitously around a narrow ledge.
Conway was behind them and he was suddenly startled as he stared into Maria's face. Every vestige of youth and beauty had left it. It had become small, withered and aged. While he watched, Maria gestured feebly and George laid her gently on the ground.

"Forgive me, George," she whispered. "I lied to you. Everything they told you is true. I made the mistake of falling in love with you. That locket. . . . One of the porters brought it in on his last trip." She turned to Conway. "Go back," she said. "There is still time.
Sondra loves you. . . . You'll be happy in Shangri-la."

They buried her there on that bleak, snow-swept hillside.

George, filled with remorse by what he had done, begged his brother to return to Shangri-la.

"Shut up!" was Conway's only reply. "I'll take you back where you belong — and my job will be finished." He turned and trudged ahead.

For a time George followed him,
pleading all the while that they turn back. Conway went on in silence.
Despairing of changing Conway's mind, George stopped suddenly while they were edging along the rim of a deep ravine. "Goodbye,

Bob!" he shouted. "I've been a burden to you long enough! Please go back." Turning, he took two steps to the edge of the chasm, and leaped off.

A year after they had met on the "S.S. Manchuria," the same four men who had been the first to greet Conway's return from Shangri-la were seated in a booth in the grill room of one of London's fashionable clubs. They were awaiting the arrival of Lord Gainsford.

"I was amazed when I got Gains-ford's cable to meet him here tonight," Robertson said.

"Hope he has some news of Conway," said Carstairs.

Gainsford came into the grill and greeted the quartet. When the scotch and soda had been served Gainsford drained his glass.

"Gentlemen," he said, "you see before you a weary old man who has ended a chase that lasted fully ten months. From the night that Conway left the 'Manchuria' and Chiang-Chow until two weeks ago
I have just missed him by inches."

"In all my life, gentlemen, I've never encountered such determination. During those ten months Conway did the most astounding things.
He learned to fly, stole an army plane, was caught, put in jail — and escaped. He tried to bribe British officials, Hindu merchants, native porters — even bandit revolutionists. He begged, cajoled, coaxed, fought — always pushing his way toward the Tibetan border. Finally,
I trailed him to the most extreme outpost of Tibet."

"As usual, he was already gone.
But those natives will never forget him. The man who was 'not human' they called him. Six times he attempted the mountain pass where no human has ever dared travel.
Six times he was driven back. The seventh time he tried it he didn't return."

"And that, gentlemen, is the last
that any known human being ever saw of Robert Conway."

The group was silent for a time
while the steward replenished their drinks.

"Do you think," one of them
asked, "that he'll ever find it again?"

"I don't know," Gainsford replied.
"Shangri-la may be a fact or it may be a state of mind — but one thing will always remain with me — its magnificent conception." Gainsford lifted his glass.

"I give you a toast, gentlemen. . .
Here is my hope that Conway finds his Shangri-la!" They all raised their glasses and Gainsford added, softly: "Here is my hope that we all find our Shangri-la."
