CITY WATER NOW TESTED REGULARLY BY STATE HEALTH DEPT.

City Secretary Eliand Lovejoy is sending specimens of the city water to Austin once monthly, as a precaution in keeping the city water supply healthy.

The latest report, on samples taken at the school, another at the standpipe, and the third at the end of the city water distribution system at the depot.

On all three specimens sent to the State Health Department at Austin, the report was "Good. No contamination".

These tests will be made monthly from different parts of the city water system, according to Mr. Lovejoy.

Girl's Basket Ball Tournament Here Dec. 10-11

With the "swan song" on the fast fading football season Basket Ball the "court" game for both sexes will be taking the spotlight with one of the big incidents of note coming up at the high school gym on the days of Dec. 10 and 11th.

At this time, according to Coach Schwarz, a Girls Basket Ball Tournament will be held, with the following teams entered: Abbott, West, Crawford, Bruceville-Eddy, Evant, Ireland, Turnersville, Pearl, Jonesboro, and Gatesville. Others are to be entered according to Coach Schwarz, but so far, have not been heard from.

So far, we have not seen any of the fair sex in action this season, but the locals have made the tournament at Evant, and teams all over the county are getting up steam for a strenuous season.

In this tournament, Coach Schwarz announces cups or trophies will be given for First, Second and Consolation, for those who enter and come out ahead.

Supt. Virgil Jones of Turnersville took the fast aggregation from Pearl on for a game last night.

Teams outside the city limits have been playing with the dribble and shoot game for quite some time, and are going to be ready for all comers.

We imagine the late Hornet football team, or members of it, will begin stripping shortly to trunks and vacuum cup and will be gathering floor burns in preparation for the coming very interesting indoor battles which are ahead for winter.

Now here's something! We like to report the scores of games from all over the county. This can not be done without help, here's what we ask. Coaches, team capt, or some official, get bunch of 1 cent post cards and mail the NEWS the following information: Teams, score, high point men (each side) and any other pertinent information regarding your team or contest. Then follow the NEWS sport column. You'll be pleased and so will we. It takes co-operation!

WATCH YOUR DRIVING WARNING ISSUED CITY DRIVERS

Lights! Lights! Watch your driving around the lights, so says Chief of Police Frank Farquhar. He has some nice little red tickets that might make you see red, if you don't see red before. Incidentally, Chief Farquhar says: "Right turns are permissible, after, and ONLY after a FULL stop".

"No U turns are to be made at any light under condition".

"Of course, no LEFT turns are to be made on Red lights!"

"Watch Boulevard Stops, and 'Boulevard'."

"Watch your speed!"

These are 3-alarm warnings issued by the City and Chief of Police Frank Farquhar!

KNOW TEXAS

Failure—Falling

Denton, Nov. 26. Back in '31 and '32 hopes fell as Texas business failures mounted to almost a thousand a year. Still farther back in '21 the disheartening tabulation had reached between 100 and 200 a month. But in 1936 despite pessimistic predictions and morose calculations the figures show that there was the lowest average of failures on record in this State. With a total of 178 for his year the monthly average was less than fifteen.

History Through Titles

Among the titles of early newspapers can be found an indirect history of Texas. First comes "El Mejicano" in 1813 at Nacogdoches and after several other papers with a Mexican touch, "The Constitutional Advocate and Public Advertiser" was issued in Brazoria in 1833. "Advocate of People's Rights" was another step up and in 1834 the "Texas Republican" appeared.

Another Brazoria paper "The Single Star" reflects the period of statehood and in 1839 one finds the annexation problem mirrored in the title "National Intelligencer" a Houston paper. A still later publication begun in Austin in 1846 looks to the future as the "New Era".

Jack Pederson of Brownwood was a guest in his grandparents home, Mr. and Mrs. N. Pederson during his holidays.

Miss Dorothy Ayres of Austin was a weekend guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leake Ayres.

When poultry house lighting is started in the fall, to help control egg production, lights are kept on regularly until about April 1.

The 400 foot Spire to the sun of San Francisco's 1939 World's Fair will be lighted with intense white on the outside, a rose red within.

WORLD COMMENT

FASCISM IN BRAZIL

There is little reason for American diplomats to develop a case of jitters because of the alleged establishment of Fascism in Brazil. While the news reports emanating from Rio de Janeiro, the Brazilian capital, use the word "Fascism" to describe the new governmental set-up inaugurated by President Vargas, President Vargas himself denies that he has established a totalitarian state in this hemisphere's largest sovereign state and there is every reason to believe that what he says is true.

It must be remembered that dictatorships existed in South America and Central America long before the rise of the Fascist dictators in Europe. Since the 1830's when most of the Latin American states achieved their independence from the Spanish and Portuguese yokes, dictators have risen to power and fallen in South America. There are states in Europe. Analysis of the factors involved in the case of Brazil indicates that the Vargas coup was nothing more than the establishment of another dictatorship—this one civilian—in South America.

There is one comparison between the motives impelling dictatorship in Brazil and dictatorship in Europe; the rising danger of Communism. For some time the Communists have been a real menace in Brazil and in large part the Vargas coup was inspired by an imperative need to deal with Communists, unhampered by constitutional law and an independent judiciary. Germany and Italy swung to Fascism as a last resort against the rising flood of Communism.

But with the factor of Communism out of the way, the analogy ends. Let us analyze briefly the factors responsible for the rise of Fascism in Germany and Italy, on the one hand, and of dictatorship in Brazil, on the other. In doing so, I believe it will not be difficult to see that the new Brazilian state is not Fascist.

Fascism—typified in Germany by national socialism—arose in Germany and Italy upon the ruins of an old social order, broken down under the stress of war. A new social order emerging, from the chaos of defeat in Germany and of economic strangulation in both Germany and Italy, demanded of the old regimes action which they either would not or could not take.

The messiahs arose demanding a revision of the status quo in Europe, with the "have nots" getting their share of the spoils in Africa and Asia; demanding, at home, totalitarian state dominated and controlled ostensibly, by the masses.

The basis of Fascism today, and the sole reason for its continued existence in Germany and Italy, is its incessant demand for new territories with which the living standard for the German and Italian people living under Fascism, the regimes now in control at Berlin and Rome would topple the wrath of their exasperated peoples.

None of these factors explains the rise of dictatorship in Brazil. Although the program of President Vargas includes the suspension of payments on the foreign debt, and although the depressed price of coffee—the principal Brazilian article of export—has caused some suffering among the laboring classes, there is no economic stress in Brazil comparable to that in Germany and Italy during and after the war.

President Vargas cannot expect to hold his people together by any program advocating territorial expansion at the expenses of Brazil's neighbors. The population could be tripled and there would still be plenty of tillable land for everybody who wished it. Likewise Brazil is blessed with adequate natural resources, many of which are lacking development because of a scarcity of capital. The scarcity of capital impelled President Vargas to suspend payments on the debt, a fact mentioned above.

The dictatorships in Germany and Italy have exploited the moneyed classes, although their rise to power was expedited by the quarrels among the upper classes and by financial support of bankers and industrialists, in many cases. Many of the tenets of socialism have been appropriated by the European Fascists and applied to the economic orders in their respective states.

But President Vargas is a conservative and a capitalist. His movement is designed as much to protect the existing social order, primarily against the discontent of the masses, cannily exploited by the Communists, as it is to alleviate the sufferings of those of low social and economic state.

It seems to me quite clear that while Brazil distinctly has a tight little dictatorship in control of her destinies, there is no basis for asserting that Fascism has gained its first foothold in the Americas in Brazil.

The large crowd that came from our surrounding towns and communities were anxious to help in the dedication of our new building; the program was well rendered and well carried out by able speakers. Supt. S. W. Dickerson was master of ceremonies and played the right man in the right place. Supt. L. A. Woods was the principle speaker of the occasion. Dr. Woods address was able and forcible, and enjoyed. He has done more for

The Ireland boys 15 to 11 for Pearl. Then came the outsiders from Aleman, to match the outsiders from Ireland, another interesting game. Ireland boys made 26 points to Aleman's 23. Other interesting games will take place later in the Ireland Gymnasium.

KNOW TEXAS

Pirates Ahoy-

Denton, Nov. 30 —Children who demand proper cave facilities for playing "Pirate" can easily find them in Texas. The eight principal caverns include Austin Cave, Cascade Caverns near Boerne, Longhorn Cavern near Marble Falls, the third largest cave in the United States and Wonder Cave at San Marcos. Unexplored ones are Devil's Sink Hole in Edwards County, Jeff Davis Cave in the county of that name; Robber Baron's Cave near San Antonio, which has one known channel two miles long; and Treasure Cave near Richland Springs, which is said to be the location of buried treasure. Page Robert Louis Stevenson!

Piney Woods Prospects

A two hundred million dollar industry is not to be sneezed at, and that's what speeded up the pulses of Texas business men when the possibilities of large scale newspaper production in this state became known. The discovery that young slash and yellow pine had no rosin and was therefore suitable for manufacturing into newsprint opened the way for predictions that the huge industry now centered along the Canadian border will move southward eventually. The Southern pine belt extends through East Texas and along the entire gulf coast to the Atlantic, and the growth of trees is much more rapid in the north.

BIG SUPPLIES OF AMERICAN COTTON DEPRESS PRICE

In the 1931-32 season cotton sold at five cents a pound, according to a statement recently prepared by E. A. Miller, agronomist of the Extension Service of Texas A. and M. College, who has long been prominent in cotton improvement work. The statement was made in connection with the current informational program now being brought before Texas farmers and ranchmen. Cotton supplies, made up of production plus the carry over of cotton from previous years, amounted to almost 26 million bales at the end of that season, Miller pointed out. This is the largest supply of cotton for any of the 18 seasons between 1920-21 and 1936-37. During the three seasons, when supplies of American cotton were about 20 million bales, the price was around 12 cents a pound. For the 1937-38 season, with an estimated supply of almost 24 million bales, the price has slumped to around 8 cents.

HORNETS CLIMAX SEASON WITH 6-0 WIN OVER OLD FOE

WITH THE

SHIP OF STATE

Washington, D. C. It is just one hundred and forty years since President John Adams invoked that part of section three of article two of the then ten year old constitution of the United States which reads "He (the President) may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both Houses, or either of them..." Since then special sessions of Congress have been called twenty-four times, or, on an average, about once every six years.

For the first quarter of a century these emergency calls were no novelty but they dealt mostly with foreign affairs—the threat of war with France, The Louisiana Purchase, The War of 1812.

Thereafter, for nearly another quarter of a century there were no calls.

Exactly a hundred years ago came the first summons to consider domestic problems and it was called for just the same reason as the one now in session; a business recession; better known as a depression in 1929 and quaintly called a 'panic' in 1837.

It is amusing to notice that the occupant of the White House was at that time Martin Van Buren of Kinderhook on the Hudson and that the suspension of gold payments was the point at issue.

More than one special session has been called because Congress shut up shop and went home before it had arranged to pay its bills. President Taylor in 1850 found himself left with a good sized army after the Mexican war and not a cent appropriated to pay so much as the wages of the janitor at the arsenal. Sixty years ago Congress on two occasions neglected to provide any maintenance for the government itself and President Hayes had to summon it again in '77 and '79.

Every President since Benjamin Harrison has issued at one emergency call except Theodore Roosevelt and Calvin Coolidge. It was Coolidge who is reputed to have said with his New England twang "Nothing's so bad what it wouldn't be worse if Congress was to try to fix it."

Perhaps the most encouraging thing to remember about the President meeting is that while we have grown so big that our internal pains call for much Congressional doctoring, that same bigness has removed us from the fear of foreign trouble at a time when all other nations of the world must face the threat of war as well as depression at home.

At the same time the increasing aggressive attitude of the Fascist powers in Europe and Asia and the rise of Fascism in South America where Brazil is the most recent to join the ranks of Dictatorial government is causing ob-

Gatesville High School Hornets closed a brilliant season Thanksgiving day on Wood Field when they nosed out a much weaker but scrapping McGregor Bulldog team by the scant margin of 6-0.

Points, predictions, former team standings, and all other indications are so much chaff when these teams meet regardless of where they meet. This melee, for our, and your lifetime, has been a central Texas Classic, whether or not, the big paper scribes give it any break. Some 2,000 fans filled Wood Field to capacity, and braved the strong southwest wind which hindered punting and aerialistics.

Between halves, both colorful parades, spirited music, and pagantry, reminding of the barely more colorful exhibitions by cheering sections and bands of the Southwestern Conference.

Folks, here's some selections by Doc Rutherford, that give us some ideas on Class B All-Conference teams in this section.

Doc's selection are: LE, Plsek, West; LT, Davis, Itasca; RT, Williams, Gatesville; RE, Gilbreath, Gatesville; Q, Rogers Mart; FB, Voss, Gatesville; HB, Baker, Itasca; HB Gambrell, West. There's the team, Doc, says and here's the other selections. Best Passer, Hinsley, Gateville; Best blocker, Jordan, Itasca; Best Punter, Gambrell of West; The best runner Baker, Itasca and most valuable Rogers of Mart. Doc has seen eight games, including Itasca.

Unfortunately, we have not been fortunate enough to see Itasca, but they have set the district on fire, closing the season in high. So, evidently, this is a pretty jam-up selection. We haven't yours yet!

Statisticians are firing at us, and luckily since our season's original sports scribe took another position in mid-season, leaving us statistically bare. These were brought in by a dyed-in-the-wool Hornet fan, J. W. Ramsey. This gives the dope, according to this man on the High Point men among the Hornets. We can't verify this, but here they are:

Voss, 54; Gilbreath, 52; Brown, 51; Fore, 38; Hinsley, 19; Gregory, 13; Weaver, 6, and Taylor, 6. Total 251. Funny, but that's more points than (Continued on last page)

Lets Talk about Clothes

Denton, Nov. 30—How is your is your rainy weather beauty? When the landscape puts its worst foot forward with a dripping, bedraggled exterior, do you follow suit?

Or do you follow those smart women who have discovered there is a way to dodge the usual shabbiness of rain clothes? A few year ago no one could escape it—raincoats were made of stiff, awkwardly heavy cloth hats were a trifle queer, and rubbers were the horror of one and all.

Now you have your choice of several happy solutions. If you're just going to be out in the rain occasionally, your best bet is an all covering cellophane hooded cape. With it you just wear whatever you originally intended to have it well protected. For practicality a natural-colored one is best, but for frivolity a bright red or blue is tops.

Then you need not ruin your cheerful cellophane appearance with a pair of clumsy, box-car rubbers. Manufacturers have made galoshes into works of art, and girls at Texas State College for Women are trying out every style.

For long walks in the rain or dashing around town during the day try the sporty ones with alligator toe and heels. For all around wear (these are THE buy if you can just have one pair) look over the new one with suede finish and patent leather trim.

Since evening sandals often often have to tread muddy paths too, there are some fur trimmed velvet ones that can be brushed.

If you have the passion for complete outfits you may wish to invest in a rainproof coat that looks like an ordinary sport coat. Combine it with an attractive brimmed hat of the same material and you will have left that rain-tacky feeling behind forever.

The call "all aboard", used on railroads, originated in ship travel.

SYNOPSIS

Just before the discovery of oil at Titusville, Fla., in 1859, Sally Watterson comes to the town with her father's medicine show. When the medicine wagon catches fire, she is rescued by Peter Cortlandt, a young farmer. Cortlandt, who is drilling for oil on his property, falls in love with Sally and asks her to marry him. Sally consents. On their wedding day, Peter's well comes in as a gusher. The farmers organize to ship the precious fluid to Eastern refineries. But a group of capitalists headed by Walter Brennan decide to get control of the oil market by raising the freight rates for oil shipment. Cortlandt is sent to negotiate with Brennan.

CHAPTER V

GRANDMA and Sally worked happily through the afternoon. They whisky into a glass brought hastily by a waiter.

 "Mr. Brennan," said Peter, "we got to have—"
 "Sh!" said Brennan, smiling. "The little lady's singing."
 Molly was by the table, now. Exasperated, Peter waited. He endured her flirtation with him, much to Brennan's amusement and that of the others. When she had finished, Brennan handed her a bill, said: "Another chorus!"
 Molly started, but Peter wouldn't wait this time. "Listen, Brennan!" he snapped. "I didn't come here to listen to singin'. I'm talkin' for men who ship four thousand barrels of to go back and tell 'em you refuse to lower your rates?" Brennan chuckled. "No, indeed, Mr. Cortlandt. Tell them I'm going to raise them again—tomorrow!"

 The chuckle became a hearty laugh. In a fury, Peter rose, strode from the place with the laughter ringing in his ears.
 At the Association offices they heard the news grimly, but none backed out on Peter when he asked if they would fight. Although it seemed hopeless, they would fight, for they were stubborn and sturdy, these men; they had fought things before; Brennan was just another obstacle. . . .

"Then that's final. You want me to go back and tell 'em you refuse to lower your rates." Brennan chuckled. "No indeed, Mr. Cortlandt, tell them I'm going to raise them again—tomorrow!"

baked the cake, got the candles ready. They decorated the house gayly, wrapped presents. Then, when all was ready, they sat down to wait for Peter.

Peter, meanwhile, was having his troubles. He couldn't find Brennan. The railroad man always had just left wherever Peter went. But, late in the afternoon, he heard that Brennan was at the shantyboat with several of his friends. Angrily, Peter went to the boat.

Within, a tinny piano played lugubrious tunes, while a painted woman sang sad songs. This was Molly, star of the boat. At a table, Brennan, laughing pleasantly, applauded and called for more. Peter approached brusquely.

"I'm Peter Cortlandt, Mr. Brennan," he said. "We had an appointment. It wasn't here, but—"

"Certainly," said Brennan genially. "Sit down, Mr. Cortlandt. Here, by me. Have a drink. . . ." He poured oil a day on one o' your railroads. That's important!"

 "Yes, indeed," laughed Brennan. "Important enough for important capital to come in and organize the business."

"What about us!" shouted Peter. "What about us who started it, put our savin's in it?"

"Why," said Brennan unctuously, "I admire you. You've given the country a new industry, Mr. Cortlandt."

"And you want to add it to your collection, don't you? You're the one who's raisin' the freight rates so high we'll have to shut down."

"Why don't you raise the price of oil, Mr. Cortlandt?"

"Because our business depends on givin' oil to the poor man cheaply. You got to lower your rates!"

"Really, Mr. Cortlandt, you must permit me to run my own business."
 "Then that's final. You want me

It was long past midnight when Peter got home. He looked into the big room and his heart turned with anguish. Sally was asleep in a chair, the presents she had intended for him around her. On the table, a table set for a birthday feast, the cake with its drooping candles looked forelorn.

He hurried to her, took her in his arms, held her close.

"Ch, honey," he said. "I'm sorry." He kissed her. "I couldn't get away. There was somethin' extra special."

"I waited, Peter," she said. "I waited and waited." Tears started in her eyes, but she fought them back. "Peter," she went on, "it always seems there's something extra special lately."

"I know, honey. I feel terrible about it. You bakin' a nice cake and everything."

"It doesn't look as nice as it did, Peter," she said wistfully.

"I bet it tastes good, though," he said brightly. "Can we have some now?"

The tired, penitent look on his face brought a rush of deep sympathy to her heart. "Course you can. But you rest now. Here, put your head in my lap." He did and she cradled it in her arms. "Wish you'd give those railroad men a good lickin' and send them about their business. Then maybe we could get down to livin'. Maybe we could get our house started. . . . I was up there on the hill today, Peter. Our hill. My, it was beautiful! I don't guess there's a spot in the whole world so beautiful. . . . Can we start it soon, Peter? Can we?"

Her voice was alive, was eager with her dream, but he did not answer. She waited a moment, then looked down.

Peter Cortlandt was asleep. She felt despair, then. She felt, somehow, as if she were alone, surrounded by inexorable forces that sought to destroy her, destroy her love and happiness. Dry-eyed, she stared into the darkness of the room as Peter slept in her lap.

How would it end?
