Hornets Take First; Flat, Consolation in Tourney

By John Frank Post Jr.

The Gatesville girls, by defeating the strong West team in the finals, 15-9, captured first place and the beautiful bronze trophy in the girls invitational basketball tournament held here last week-end. The Hornets outplayed West throughout the final contest, taking an early lead that they never relinquished. West, however, was a trifle tired as the game with the Hornets being their third in six hours. The Trojans played some fine basketball in defeating a good Abbott club in the quarter-finals 31-20, but the game took a lot out of the Trojans and they were not in the best of form when they met the local aggregation.

Flat, after being defeated in the first round by Jonesboro 23-14, went on and won the consolation Trophy by defeating Bruceville-Eddy, Evans and Pearl in that order. Flat has a fine team which is improving fast, and one that might deal the Hornets a little misery in the county tournament. The best game of the tournament was of course the finals. After watching West easily defeat a fine Abbott team, your writer thought that the Hornets had little or no chance to win from the Trojans. But Coach Schwarz, after watching the West cagers in action against Abbott, outlined a special defense to stop the Trojan's high-powered offense, and it did. Any set of guards that can hold that trio of smooth working West forwards to nine points in one game has something on the ball, believe you me.

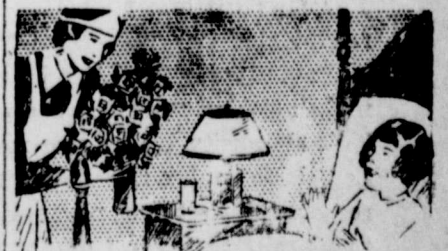

The Hornets really won the game by out hustling their opponents. Two fast-breaking little forwards, Madylene Patten and Ruth Rutherford, ran circles around the tired West guards and time after time broke loose and sank a crisp shot. Gatesville did not take any long shots during the game, but depended on their speedy passing attack to take them under the goal.

Six girls started the game for the Hornets and the same six finished it, but not a time did any of them let up. They played hard and fast all the game, and at the end they were so exhausted that they could hardly walk off the court.

Willis, sharp-shooting West forward, won high-scoring honors by tallying 29 points in three games. Against Abbott she scored the amazing total of 17 and chalked up 7 in the Turnersville game. She cinched the scoring honors by making five points in the final game with Gatesville. Vida Glass of Flat was right behind her, having scored 27.

WITH THE SHIP OF STATE

WASHINGTON PARADE

Washington, D. C.—At this season of peace and goodwill newspapers on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts are carrying column after column of "Letters to the Editor" strangely reminiscent of similar outpourings way back in 1916—Demands that we fight for somebody about something with the choice of a subject for chastisement pretty well divided between Japan and her Chinese aggression, Germany for helping General Franco in Spain, Italy for annexing Ethiopia and Russia for being a Soviet. The sum of the demands seems to be that we should tell somebody where to get off but most of the writers and editors agree with them—Do not go so far as to explain our moves if the somebody doesn't get.

Official Washington, while watching the foreign situation without pleasure or amusement—especially the Shanghai sector—is far too much occupied with domestic problems to risk any unnecessary entanglements although there are the usual advisors who whisper that the threat of war would snap us sharply out of the present business recession.

The more experienced and astute members of Congress are chuckling over the recent promises of Leaders in business; Notably Mr. Swope of General Electric and Mr. Du Pont, that a lifting of taxes would result in an enormous outpouring of corporate funds and hence a wave of reemployment and consequent prosperity. The statements closely parallel the opinions back in '30 and '31 when private industry without any assistance from the Government was optimistically expected to push the nation around prosperity corner.

Actually, certain industries believe that something in the form of a new NRA is so sure to be created at this session of Congress that several of the big food chains are already getting their houses in order by closing any of their branches which produce a return of less than average for the chain and dropping off the highest paid managers.

Suggestions to Dairymen

Normal milk production may be maintained during cold spells if the cows are kept full of hay, this hay being fed prior to the feeding of grain feed, and in addition be given warm water to drink. Water may be kept warm by placing a tin can in the water tank with fire built in it, or by drawing fresh water out of the well and giving cattle access to it before it becomes cold. Cows will not drink sufficient ice cold water to maintain milk production. Since milk has such high water content it is absolutely essential the cows be given access of large quantities of water if normal production is maintained. The matter of feeding hay to feeding grain and in large quantities will go a long way toward maintaining production, and prevent the continued slump in milk production.

C. C. C. CAMP NOTES

Farmers in the Gatesville area have taken advantage of the unusually fine weather this fall for terrace construction. From three to five large terracing rigs have been in continuous operation during the entire fall season. Four of these terracing outfits are privately owned, while the other is county owned.

On farm cooperating with the Soil Conservation Service at the Gatesville camp, this equipment has already constructed 70 miles of terraces which are now controlling erosion on approximately 1345 acres of farm lands making a total of 235 miles of terraces protecting 4,444 acres to date. In addition to this, much terracing has been done on farms not under agreement with the Government and on which actual figures are not available. At the present time all of these rigs are still in operation with the Osage, Coryell City, Gatesville, and Ewing communities; and before the end of the present season it is anticipated that considerable more work will have been completed.

Costs on terracing in this area have varied due to the wide range of soil types and weather conditions encountered. The cost of terraces built to Government specifications with a large terracing rig should range from $45.00 to $70.00 per mile.

Farmers who have constructed terrace systems on their farms this fall should realize the importance of their investment and immediately complete all ends and fills in order to put their fields in condition to withstand erosion this winter. Proper methods of cultivation and maintenance of terraces must be given first consideration in order to receive the most complete and satisfactory protection from erosion.

IT'S UP! IT WAS PUT UP EARLY THIS WEEK! IT'S PRETTIEST

You can tell what country you're in now, without looking for the Post Office.

Yessuh, Old Glory is flying on the new flag pole on the Court-house lawn.

This spring and summer, there will be more compliments paid this flag, (not saying there shouldn't be) than you've most ever heard.

Anyway, we think it's a good move to identify Coryell county and Gatesville as the good old U. S. A., or a part of it. You'll never go to a European town of the native land.

Without seeing dozens of flags Besides, well, it's a good thing!

Basketball---

points in the four games the Flat crew played.

Turnersville 17 Bruceville-Eddy 13

In the curtain raiser of the tournament a speedy little Turnersville sextet advanced into the quarterfinals by scoring a four point victory over a weak Bruceville-Eddy outfit, 17-13. The Turnersville Cagers were one point ahead at the end of the first quarter, two points ahead at the half and four points ahead at the end of the game. Helen Humes was high point girl for the winners with seven points, but Parham of Bruceville-Eddy was high scorer of the game with 10. Jones, Turnersville guard, played good defensive ball during the contest.

Jonesboro 23 Flat 13

In the next game Jonesboro outclassed Flat to romp off with a 23-13 decision. Jonesboro was ahead all the way, most of the time with a comfortable lead. McNelly was high scorer for the winners with 12 points, while Rutherford scored 10. Glass was outstanding for Flat with 7 points to her credit, beside playing a good floor game.

Gatesville 30, Pearl 14

In the feature battle of the evening the local Hornets defeated the Pearl Dragonettes 30-14. The Hornets did not play as they can play, against Pearl, but seemed to loaf through the game. Eubanks of Gatesville and Preston of Pearl tied for the scoring honors with 8 points each. Treva Davis, the only Hornet who really hustled when she was in the game, scored six points and played a fine all-around game. Weaver and Hinson played good defensive ball for the winners.

Crawford 20 Ireland 13

The Crawford sextette advance into the second round by defeating Ireland 20-13 in the last game of the evening. Crawford was never worried and did not play hard in the last three quarters. Dickenson of Ireland was the outstanding player on the court, being the mainspring of the Ireland offense and scoring 10 of her teams 13 points. Tripplette was high scorer for the winners with nine points.

Abbott, 32 Evant 16

Featuring a powerful offense, the Abbott cagers routed the Evant team to the tune of 32-16 to go into the second round. Evelyn Ragan, lithe forward, was the star player, tallying 13 points and playing a fine floor game. She was the center of the Abbott offense and was the best forward in the tournament. The other Abbott forwards, Mi-Keska and Kennedy, scored 8 and 11 points respectively.

Flat 27, Bruceville-Eddy 7

The Flat team served warning that they were going to be in the thick of the fight for the consolation trophy by running over the Bruceville-Eddy outfit, 27-7. Palmer, Flat forward, was high point girl with 11 points. Thompson, Flat guard played good defensive basketball.

Pearl 26, Ireland 14

Ireland suffered their second straight set-back and were eliminated from the Tournament by the Pearl cagers, 26-14. Dickenson was again outstanding for the losers, scoring 10 points. Preston was high scorer for Pearl, tallying 12 points.

Jonesboro 14, Turnersville 16

In a tight, hard fought battle between two old rivals, the Turnersville lassies eliminated Jonesboro from the tournament running by the scant margin of two points, 16-14. Jonesboro was leading 6 to 5 at the end of the first quarter, and Turnersville was in the van 12-6 at the half. Both teams scored two points in the third quarter, but Jonesboro got hot about five minutes before the game ended and gave Turnersville a real scare. Turnersville held them off and escaped with a two point win. Holden was high point girl for the losers, tallying 10 points while Weaver scored 8 for Turnersville. Jones, guard for Turnersville, won herself a berth on the all-tournament team by her play in this game.

Gatesville 29, Crawford 7

In the next game the champions to-be outclassed a Crawford sextette and added another win to the record, 29-7. Gatesville was never in trouble and Coach Schwarz played his second stringers most of the game. Rutherford chalked 13 points to win the high scoring honors while Thompson and Davis, two second stringers, scored eight and six points respectively.

Abbott 20, West 31

The West Trojans played some of the best basketball of the tournament when they defeated a fine Abbott squad, 31 to 21. Willis scored 17 points while her fellow-forward, Pledger, scored 14 to account for most of the Trojan's points. Ragan scored 9 points for the losers and played a good all-around game. The Trojans had a well balanced team, and it looked as if they would win the tournament, having played the best basketball that had been played so far.

Flat 17, Evant 10

Flat advanced into the consolation finals with Pearl by defeating a weak Evant outfit 17 to 10. Cross was high point girl with 10, while Thompson played a good guard game for the winners.

West 19, Turnersville 6

In the semi-finals West had little trouble in coming through with a 19 to 6 victory over Turnersville. The fine West guards held the Turnersville forwards in check throughout the game, and 6 points that the Turnersville team did make came on three long shots. The West guards did not allow the Turnersville forwards to take one crisp shot during the whole contest. Thustos, West forward, was the high scoring individual of the game with 10 points, while Willis, high scorer of the Tournament, scored 7.

Flat 12, Pearl 6

In a tight defensive contest Flat defeated Pearl for the consolation trophy by the score of 12-6. Flat was leading 5 to 3 at the half and in the last half scored 7 points to Pearl's 3 to win the decision. Vida Glass was high scorer for the consolation champions with 8. Thompson turned in a fine defensive game for the winners.

Gatesville 15, West 9

In the finals of the tournament an inspired Gatesville Hornet team won the trophy by taking the measure of the West Trojans, fifteen to nine. Six girls played the entire game for Gatesville, and every one of them was a star in her own rights. Margaret Weaver, roving guard, gave the greatest individual performance of the tournament in this game. She was all over the court, taking the ball off the backboard, intercepting Trojan passes, and blocking the West forwards' shots at the goal. Sarah Hinson though she did not play as brilliantly as Weaver, played one of the best games of her life, as did James, the other Hornet guard. Any set of guards that can hold these sharp-shooting West forwards to nine points can make anybody's ball club in anybody's league. "I wouldn't trade them for any three guards in the state", Coach Schwarz chirped happily after the game. Red Eubanks, cool-headed captain of the Hornets, played a good game. She was the main spring of the Hornet passing attack that won the game. Those two little forwards played the greatest games of their lives and had a large part in the glorious Hornet victory.

Folks we saw some real action last Friday and Saturday in the Girl's Basket Ball Tournament. Also, we saw considerable action stopped, due to good guarding. Scores indicated that.

The "Hornettes" walked off with the main mug, but it was a "slow drag" and they were lucky to take West with their "six-footers". At least, on a pregame glance, they looked like that.

Now, since Jinx has made his

All-Conference selection, after looking them all over, and getting the lay of the land, we believe we can risk our "reputation" as a commentator on sports. (That's something new, since we didn't think we had any).

looks like the bunch that would hold any other squad that could be picked and that's just about what an All-Anything squad would be.

Casting all caution to the wind here goes: Ends: Boyd, Baylor; Heussner, Baylor; Tackles: Hale TCU; Sprague SMU; Center: Aldrich TCU; Guards: Routt Aggies Kriel, Baylor; Quarterback: Patterson, Baylor; Half Backs: Todd Aggies; O'Brien TCU; Full, Braziel, Baylor.

Explanations may be in order, but we, unfortunately haven't seen many games this season, and this

WASHINGTON PARADE—

The rising interest in candidates for the 1940 campaign is focussed at present on New York, the President's home state, and on the two outstanding figures of the recent city election, Mayor LaGuardia and District Attorney-elect Dewey and both nominally Republicans but both are tainted with a radicalism which makes them unpalatable to the G. O. P. stalwarts of the East and Mid-West.

Those Republican advisors who advocate the annexing of LaGuardia for the Vice-Presidential place on the ticket are meeting determined opposition not only from within their own party but on the part of new dealers and proponents of a progressive third party.

Dewey is believed to be both too young and lacking in political background at present to be of national consideration but there is a growing movement in New York state to run him for Governor next year with the help of the powerful American Labor party.

But in New York state, as in the nation it may be safely predicted that forthcoming elections will not be along strictly party lines and the adage 'Politics makes strange bedfellows' will again prove its truthfulness.

KEY TO SUPER-RACE MAY BE USE OF RADIUM AND X-RAY

From this humble beginning by Pierre and Marie Curie emerged a great branch of knowledge which has brought more than 2,000 scientists to Chicago for the Fifth International Congress of Radiology. In this rare picture, taken before the turn of the century, the Curies (right) are shown in the crude laboratory where they discovered radium.

2,000 SCIENTISTS ATTEND OPENING OF RADIOLOGY CONGRESS

Tribute to Madame Curie

CHICAGO, Sept. 13—Exploration into the still unsolved mysteries of radium emanations and X-rays in their effect upon the offspring of flies and other simple organisms may supply the clue to the artificial development of a super-race, according to Dr. Francis Carter Wood, chairman of the Radiobiology section of the Fifth International Congress of Radiology which opened today.

Pointing out that such a sensational theory is still a matter needing more study, as it is now based on preliminary experimental work, Dr. Wood, Director of the Institute of Cancer Research in New York City, said: "The biologist, in experimenting with male and female vinegar flies and other simple forms of living matter has observed that radium and x-ray radiations produce mutations. That is, the rays produced marked changes in the physical structure of the offspring, and these changes are inheritable.

"This has been demonstrated by Dr. M. Demerec, of Carnegie Institute's Department of Genetics, working with X-rays at Cold Spring Harbour, New York. Dr. Demerec's findings are featured on the schedule of the Congress. Naturally they raise the question of applying and controlling radium and X-rays in such a way as to improve the physical and mental qualities of the human race. Hitherto most of the mutations produced in flies have not been beneficial. Similarly, exposure of expectant mothers to X-rays may result in damage to the child, or even miscarriage.

"It has been seriously discussed," Dr. Wood stated, "as to whether the basis of hereditary changes which have led to the development of life on earth may not have been due to the radiations from distant spaces known as cosmic rays. We would scarcely have known of these cosmic rays if Madame Curie had not worked in her small shed in the back street in Paris."

Dr. Wood pointed out that the extension of the uses for radium into the field of heredity is no more improbable than was the discovery of radium itself. "I remember" he said, "an old friend of mine, a famous professor of Physics, who told me in 1896 that physics was finished. No new or important discoveries were to be expected.

Commenting on Eve Curie's life story of her mother, now appearing in the Saturday Evening Post, Dr. Wood declared that while research men work for years without apparent results, sometimes under the handicap of insufficient funds and equipment, there are compensations.

"I have a feeling," he said, "that if Madame Curie, as she lay looking at the mountains on the last day of her life, had been asked, she would have said that she lived an enormously happy life. Because she had always been doing the most fascinating thing in the world, and that is extending the boundaries of human knowledge."

The Radiology Congress has attracted more than 2,000 outstanding scientists from all parts of the world. Their four-day meeting is devoted to discussion and analysis of the latest developments in the fields of radium, radio therapy, short radio waves and other rays, in their relations to living matter and the treatment of disease, particularly cancer.

VOLUME V

GATESVILLE, TEXAS, TUESDAY DEC. 14, 1937

NUMBER 101

FROM THE COUNTY AGR'L AGENT

Use of Native Shrubs Stressed
Miss Sadie Hatfield, States Specialist in Landscape, with the A. and M. Extension Service, met with eight Home Demonstration Agents and two assistant Home Demonstration Agents at Crockett Texas Dec. 5-8 for a special landscape conference.

Part of ground beautification in the rural sections implies a wide and rolling unbroken lawn. This lends an hospitable approach to the home. Too uniform treatment should be remembered in all of the planning, planting and care. Some very good bulletins have been prepared which deal with ground beautification and these may be had from the A. and M. College College Station Texas or thru your county agents. Definitely they are:

B-100 Conservation Landscaping the Home Grounds
B-76 Beautifying Country Home
FB-1132 planning the farmstead
FB-1087 Beautifying the Farmstead

FB-1591 Transplanting Trees and Shrubs
FB-1767 Propagation of Plants and Shrubs
FB-1495 Insect Enemies of Flower and Garden

Miss Hatfield follows certain landscape principles in planning to plant shrubs about the house. These are: Accent entrance with strong shrub which is to say, use warleaf ligustrum, lodesne privet dwarf arbor vitae, or juniper in the doorstep planting.

Have the pants high at the corners by the use of Japanese ligustrum, cedar, wild peach Armur river privet or Yaupon.

Place low plants under the windows and include such as abelia swanpe myrtle vitex, Japanese quince ("Japonica"), Cenizo Nandina.

Fill wall space with a flowering shrub like crepe myrtle red bud and haw.

Six exhibit structures being erected for the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition on San Francisco Bay rank among the largest wooden structures ever built.

More than 2,600,000 motor-tourists will visit the 1939 World's Fair of the West in 830,000 autos.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

LITTLE Joey was at home rocking the cradle of his ten months old brother. In the same room was

Mrs. Jones who had come to visit his maw. Joey's mother had chosed this very moment to run out into the kitchen to see the groceryman about the vittles. All of a sudden the baby began to cry something awful.

"Joey," said Mrs. Jones, "You'd better run out and get your mother. I think the baby is sick, or needs to be changed."

"Naw," said little Joey, "when he first came here I tried to have him changed for a bicycle. But mama wouldn't do it."

KNOW TEXAS

Denton, Dec. 14. Although Texans are worth a great deal together, their ranking fall when taken separately. In other words the state itself is valued at $10,939,000,000 in the World Almanac, but the average Texan just gets by with a $1,906 valuation. Considering that the average New Yorker is estimated as being worth about $3,276, it sounds as if Texans are having a hard time but there's consolation in the fact that Mississippians are just valued at $1,242 per capita.

Even in the era of the free press, it is difficult for Americans to procure unbiased news reports from abroad. This is true both because of the censorship prevailing in many of the foreign countries, with the resultant difficulty of sending news dispatches without official permission, and because of the bias often written into the news facts of a foreign story by a writer.

In such a period of international turmoil through which we are now passing, it is particularly essential for the American people to be in close contact with what is transpiring abroad and equally essential for the news which they do receive to be correct and impartially written.

For what event since the Civil War has so affected America more than the World War? Not even the crash of 1929 may be given precedence over that event. Since the War, foreign news has occupied an increasingly large space on the front pages and in the editorial columns of American Newspapers.

In an effort to present both sides of the Sino-Japanese conflict, we include herein an argument presented before us last week by Mr. Sam Hilburn, a native Texan who has lived the past 14 years in Japan as a Missionary. Mr. Hilburn is equipped both intellectually and because of his long association with the Japanese people to interpret and present the Japanese viewpoint as to why the Chinese war was—in their belief—imperative.

Here, in brief and in your writer's words, is the argument presented by Mr. Hilburn for the Japanese:

There are 70,000,000 or 80,000,000 Japanese living in an area much smaller than Texas. Only one-seventh of the total area of Japanese proper is suitable for agriculture. The remainder is mountainous and contains few natural resources.

Unable to support themselves the Japanese have turned to manufacturing and commerce as a means of supporting their teeming millions. Fortunately for them, they have as next-door neighbors, China, who for the present, is not capable of producing its own manufactured goods and must rely upon importations to supply the needs of its people.

The Japanese sought to supply these needs and were satisfied to do so for years. But the flaw in the picture was this. Hardly had Japan emerged from its medieval lethargy early in the nineteenth century when the Russian giant began creeping down into Manchuria, threatening Japanese investments there and the entire market in China.

To protect Manchuria, the acquisition of which Czarist Russia would have spelled doom for Japan as a sovereign state, likewise China, Japan waged war against Russia in 1905-06 and defeated Russia.

In this century, Russia—this time under the Communist re-

"HIGH, WIDE and HANDSOME"

starring
IRENE DUNNE with RANDOLPH SCOTT

Directed by ROUBEN MAMOULIAN • A Paramount Production
Novelized by HENRY LACOSSITT

SYNOPSIS

Just before the discovery of oil at Titusville, Pa., in 1859, Sally Watterson comes to the town with her father's medicine show. She marries Peter Cortlandt, oil pioneer, whose first well is a gusher and starts a boom. A group of Eastern capitalists act to obtain control of the industry by raising the freight rates. The farmers decide to pipe the oil across the state. There is constant warfare between thugs hired by the railroads and pipeline workers. With one day to go to fulfill the refining contract, the line is still three miles from the refinery with a huge cliff to be surmounted. As the workers start to climb over this cliff with the line, thugs come up to stop them but Cortlandt and his men decide to fight it out.

CHAPTER IX

PETER and his men worked with incredible speed. Slowly, the pipe climbed up the cliff as men slung in seats supported by block and tackle strung from above, fitted the pipe in place, bolted the ends fast. It was harrowing, back-breaking work. It was work against time. They only had till noon next day and it already was late afternoon.

Fervently, Peter breathed a prayer that Sally would bring her men. In his excitement it did not occur to him to wonder where she would get them. He worked in a sort of stupor, automatically, as if his mind were suspended. But he was recalled by an alarmed shout from below.

"Peter!" It was the foreman. "Look!"

They all looked. Across the fields raced the teamsters' wagons. The men at the cliff looked aghast, then fury swept them. They were so near...

"All men down!" shouted Peter. "Get your wrenches and hammers and stand close!"

They prepared for battle.

At the base of the cliff a shallow stream ran and across the stream they had erected a temporary bridge. They chose to defend the bridgehead on the other side from the cliff. Bunched there, their lack of numbers would not hurt them as much because they could not be attacked in the rear.

They waited silently. The teamsters got out of the wagons. Red, leading them, deployed them in a semicircle that, advancing, would converge on the knot of oil workers in the center. And they advanced silently, their long bullwhips in their hands. They advanced slowly to a point not far from the oil men, then, at Red's order, charged, whips lashing.

The lashes caught the oil men, cut them, sent them back toward the stream, but they rallied. The teamsters, if left at long range could whip them to death without injury. They must close with Scanlon's men.

They surged forward, through the shower of lashes, to meet their foes, reached them, dealt out blows with wrench and hammer. Before the rush the teamsters gave ground, but they, too, rallied, using their whip-butts at close quarters.

Now the oil men were surrounded. The teamsters attacked from every side, following their advantage. But Red had the pipe in mind. "Hey!" he yelled. "Git on that pipe! Drag down the scaffolds and ropes!"

Red went down and Peter was on top, now. He smashed at the hated face, gouged at the eyes. Besides his own personal feud, he knew if he put Red out the teamsters would be leaderless.

But Red threw him off, rolling down the little slope toward the stream. He charged Peter, momentarily off balance and crushed him under, but as in that fight long ago, Peter's flying mare threw the teamster to the ground. Peter, on top again had his hands on Red's throat.

"All men down!" Peter yelled. "Get your wrenches and hammers and stand close!" They prepared for battle.

Some of the teamsters, following the orders, left the fight, pressed across the bridge to the pipe and scaffolding. With Red, they began to pull down the pipe supports.

Infuriated anew, the oil men fought across the bridge to the cliff, threw back the destructionists for a moment, but were again engulfed in a new attack. The fight became a wild, confused scramble at the base of the cliff around the gear and pipes.

Peter, fighting superhumanly, found himself facing Red Scanlon. For a moment they glared in hatred, then they closed. And if the others were not in this to the finish, Peter and Red were. All the rankling feelings they held for each other rose in them as they fought, kicking, clawing, flailing their fists.

The grip grew tighter, as Red struggled desperately to break it, but he grew weaker, his breath coming in great rasping gusts, but a teamster saw his plight. He struck out with the butt of his whip and Peter dropped, stunned.

Red staggered to his feet, looked down with hatred at his enemy. A nearby wrench caught his eye and he picked it up.

"For once," he snarled, raising the wrench, "and for all!"

But the wrench did not fall. It held suspended as, nearby, someone shouted in fear. It was a teamster.

"Great Godalmighty! Look!"

They looked, oil man and teamster alike, and for a moment the fight stopped. For a moment, too, there was an eerie quiet there at the base of the cliff. It was broken by a wild yell from one of the oil men, a yell of fierce triumph.

"The circus!" he shouted. "Sally's brought the whole damned circus!"

Lets Talk about Clothes

Denton, Dec. 14. With every advertisement in every paper in the United States telling you exactly what "he" wants for Christmas, it's a queer thing that so many "he's" never get those perfect gifts.

Realizing their feminine talents for picking the wrong presents, girls at Texas State College for Women proceeded to take a male vote on things not to give.

First of all, wailed one masculine victim, "steer clear of the belt buckles for me—I wear suspenders." Another chimed in, "and I like to pick out my own clothes anyway."

"What! Ne ties?" questioned the despairing interviewers. The answers were in favor of ties if discretion is used. However, just because you've seen Robert Taylor wearing a new flavor of bow tie don't think your Tommy will look the same in it. And do make an attempt to learn whether black or brown predominates in his usual costume.

Positively no house furnishings says another guinea pig, unless it's in the way of a smoking stand or other tobacco utensils. "I don't smoke," adds his brother, trying to be helpful.

One astounding fact uncovered was that the longer a man carries a billfold and the more dilapidated its appearance, the more likely he is to keep on carrying it. So unless he drops a few definite hints along billfold lines you had better let him use the old one in peace.

The gun and camera brigade are unamimously using their objections to gifts connected with their hobbies. It seems that they think their knowledge of such equipment has made them superior in matters of selection.

game—is still threatening Japan and its Chinese market. Since the revolution of 1926, a vast Communist regime has been organized in the Chinese hinterland and 200,000 Communist troops trained and organized among the Chinese people.

Moscow, up to the time of the current war, continually urged the government of Chiang Kai-Shek to pursue a belligerent attitude toward the Nipponese and to form an alliance with the Soviets. Old Williamsburg Beauty Lives Again In Charm of Great Restoration Work

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., restored to its original beauty by John D. Rockefeller so visitors may see it as in the Eighteenth Century, is one of America's most popular shrine cities. Charm and simplicity of George Washington's days have been so successfully re-created that the town last year drew 100,000 visitors from every state and from fifty-one countries. In one month there were history lovers from all states and from sixteen other countries.

Nothing resembles a museum. Buildings and houses have been restored, or rebuilt, as when Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry and other great characters today in our history were commonplace figures in the lovely town, then the capital of the colony of Virginia. Even the new Williamsburg Inn, just opened, fits perfectly into the scene, the architects and decorators have done their work so cleverly. There is one great concession to the demands of today, however. The hotel is air conditioned for utmost comfort of winter and summer guests.

In Washington, William B. Henderson, executive vice-president of the Air Conditioning Manufacturers' Association, declared the success with which the architects made the equipment a harmonious part of the Inn is striking evidence of the adaptability of air conditioning to even extreme architectural requirements.

Since Mr. Rockefeller began the restoration in 1926, 450 modern buildings have been razed, ninety-one Colonial structures preserved, sixty-seven rebuilt and literally worldwide search made for the appropriate furnishings and fittings for restoring the town to the beauty and dignity it had as the center of Virginia's social, religious and political life. The pleasant hospitality of the Inn is like that of a country home. Private collections of fine antiques were the inspiration for the furnishings. The rugs were made to order. Table linens, especially designed, were woven in Ireland. Pilasters from a London Regency house of 1801 are a feature.

alternative left to the Japanese was to act.

This Japan did in 1931 and again this year. In 1931 Japan seized Manchuria from China, rescuing it from the unruly bandit government of General Chang Hseuh-Liang. The so-called Empire of Manchuko was organized with a puppet ruler on the throne. Thus Japan secured her first line of defense against the Communist menace.

But Russia turned from Manchuria to the South, seeking to penetrate China through outer Mongolia, now under a Soviet administration, and Inner Mongolia and organized a government friendly to their interests.

In order to further strengthen their line of defense against Russia and secure the protection of their interests in China, they marched in to north China this year and are now engaged in the process of conquering that area, thus, in their belief, effectually stultifying the march of Communism into China.

This is the viewpoint of both the Japanese and their government, Mr. Hilburn said. They do not believe, he stated, that their troops are waging war of aggression against China, but are saving China from the Communist menace and at the same time protecting their interests there.

Their belief in the inherent rightfulness of their cause explains the intolerance and impatience of the Japanese with the foreign governments which have put obstacles in their path in China.
