City Election Adds to the Political Steam Locally

W. E. Morgan Is In Commissioner's Race, Beat 1.

To The Voters of Beat 1:
After considerable thought I have decided to place myself before the voters of Beat 1 as candidate for Commissioner in democratic primary, July 23, 1938.

To those of you who do not know me I will say that I was reared near Evant and have lived in that vicinity and around Pearl practically all my life. I have had business relations with the majority of people in those two communities.

I wish to say that if elected, I am contemplating a new plan that will give the taxpayers of this beat more results for their tax dollar, without over burdening the ones that are stuck. I believe strictly in the equalization of taxes, in a fair and impartial way.

The plan I would adapt, if elected, will Sponsor our Government aid in building roads in this beat to the extent that our lateral road to market will be permanent and thus save the taxpayers the expense of unnecessary maintenance and also have more all weather roads.

I would want to publish every six months a financial statement of the beat and progress that resulted from such expenditures. I would want the people to know how much money was being spent and what for.

I intend to be available at all times to see and be sure that affairs of this beat are carried out in a most economical and efficient manner and will appreciate to the fullest extent your sincere consideration.

Sincerely Yours,
W. E. Morgan

A. E. Whisenhunt Adds Interest To County Supt's Race

I desire to serve the people of as their next County School Superintendent. In announcing my candidacy as a candidate for that office, I feel that I should in a general way inform the public something about my qualifications my purpose and some of the policies I shall endeavor to carry out, if elected, during my term of service in that capacity.

Twenty three years of my life has been spent in the school room of Coryell County. One incentive to be elected to the office is because of what it pays and I further believe that I can render to the teachers each school each community every citizen and their children valuable service. My experience as a teacher of the schools of Coryell County has taught me that no better, fair-minded and intelligent people exist; and that they are entitled to the best service obtainable in all offices.

I am deeply in sympathy with the rural school problems, likewise the duties and obligations of the higher schools of learning. It shall be my purpose and endeavor to work out each problem to all parties concerned fairly and impartially, difficult as it might arise. I believe that most school problems can be solved and should be solved by frank means, fairly and justly with the full knowledge of all parties concerned. I further assure the public if I am elected that any and all available information regarding the office, schools, and school work requested by any teacher or citizen shall be obtained and furnished by myself, gladly, courteously and promptly.

I am at present engaged in teaching school which will prevent me from making an active campaign at present, but it shall be my purpose to see and solicit the support of each voter in the county as soon as opportunity will afford.

I believe that there is a great opportunity for better schools in Coryell County and I feel that, if elected, and with your support we can develop a system of schools that will be a credit to the state.

Your vote and influence will be greatly appreciated.
A. E. Whisenhunt

Hornets Take Ireland With 30-10 Count Hornettes 33-9

Led by some marvelous goal-shooting on the part of Felix Newland the Hornets outclassed the Ireland hoopers, 30-10 in the local gym Wednesday night. The game was fairly close thruout the first half, but in the last the Hornets gradually pulled away to an easy victory.

Newland, 6' 1" guard, and Loraine Turner tied for the scoring honors with nine points each. Turner, a young player with practically no experience, has been improving rapidly with each game and his sparkling play has won him a first team berth.

In the first game the Hornets had an easy time with the Ireland Sextette, 33-9. The first string only played one quarter with the 2's showing to good advantage in the last three quarters. Eubanks lead the Hornets scoring with 12 points.

PRE-ELECTION DOPE IS SCARCE AS ENTRIES "COME OUT"

It's not only County-Wide, but it's City-Wide! And, if you read the dailies it's State-Wide! And in some instances, it's Nation-Wide! We mean politics.

Yes sir, yesterday, we got announcements from some City Papas who still are in the "city-papaship" races.

They're out on a limb, however, as there has (not with us) been no "Champeen" announced, at least, that stayed announced.

In the "Line-Up" so far, is Rufus J. Brown, who comes out Alderman, Ward 1, who, as we understand it, replaces, or will replace Lewis Holmes who "does not choose to run."

E. Routh, elected for a place in Ward 2, last "trip" is but for re-election for the second term.

Eiland Lovejoy, asks for another "hitch" in the city Assessor-Collector race; which office was inaugurated after "last election".

J. O. Brown, Alderman Ward, and R. L. (Bob) Saunders, Ward 1; don't have to run, since they are in for another session, as the result of the last election, if we have the records straight.

No "leading" or party help has been located so far, so the information along that score, remains a blank; but the prediction or the prognostication is, that won't last long and the political bigwigs will have some one on the limb ere many sundowns.

We shall see what we shall see!

STOCKHOLDERS OF GATESVILLE NATIONAL MEET, ELECT OFFICERS

Share holders in the Gatesville National Bank met Tuesday at 10 a. m. and after a brief report by the president, Dan E. Graves; M. Blankenship, C. F. Caruth, Dan Graves, Byron Laird Sr. R. E. Powell and Morton Scott were elected Directors.

In the afternoon session, the following were named as officers and sworn in, Dan E. Graves president; J. P. Kendrick vice president; Andrew Kendrick cashier; Cam McGilvery assistant cashier and David Franks, bookkeeper.

"I MOVE SO AND SO" AND THE "FIRST" HAS THE SAME OFFICERS

We have President Leake Ayres word for it!

That's how the recent stockholders meeting came off, someone got up and named someone else as an officer or director, it was passed unanimously, and it was all over leaving the officers and directors the same.

They are, Directors, H. S. Compton, R. B. Curry, R. M. Arnold Jr., Dawson Cooper, Leake Ayres and Mrs. Vivian Straw.

Officers, Leake Ayres, President, H. S. Compton, Vice President, and Dawson Cooper, Cashier.

GUARANTY BANK NAMES ONE NEW DIRECTOR IN OFFICIAL MEET

At the meeting of the Guaranty Bank & Trust Company's Stockholders Tuesday of this week, W. P. Freeman, was named the new director for this financial institution.

As far as could be learned no other business was transacted with the exception of the election

NOTES FROM THE COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS OFFICE

Many Teachers have had the Colleges' which they have attended send in a transcript of their credits. A few have not furnished this information yet. All mean to do this since salaries are based on experience and academic training. Teachers have been very courteous in this matter.

State Aid Budget for Coryell county were filed with the State Department last Thursday. Some are marked "hold" until certain requirements are met. Plans are made for eight and nine month terms in all schools in the County. Nine month terms for eleven grade schools and eight month term for all other schools. The law requires that certain condition be met if State Aid is granted. School Boards must meet the legal requirements if Aid is obtained.

The County Superintendent tries to visit each school in the County once each month. Visit since the holidays have found excellent attendance with improved buildings and good working interest among the students. Many schools are using their own reference books and the County Library to advantage.

The Coryell County School Board, will meet at 10:00 o'clock A. M. at Gatesville on Monday January 24th, unless other announcements are made through local papers.

Extension Work

Miss Mattie Ella Craven, who has conducted extension courses in Coryell County for the past 18 months will open one or more College Courses in Education at Crawford this week end. There are four courses to choose from. All teachers concerned are requested to meet at Crawford High School next Saturday morning January 15th at 10:00 o'clock. The courses will be selected and the first lesson had. Time of meeting will be discussed at this meeting.

SATURDAY 'TIL 12:01 PM MIDNIGHT IT'S 50c AFTER THEN, $1

After midnight Saturday night, January 15, the Coryell County News 50c rate will pass into history!

Don't phone, or send in and say "keep me on, I'll come in"! It'll be $1.00 "if you come in after the 15th"!

We are highly gratified at the response, and we have made an effort to see every one possible and give them the benefit of the 50c rate but there must be an end to everything, —a positive deadline, —that positive deadline in this instance, is January 15.

Tell your neighbors, tell your friends, and tie a string around your own finger; be certain to get in under the wire. Don't be an "also ran"

Grand Jury Grinds, But No Body Knows; Court Turns Out Cases

Continuing this week's work, the Grand Jury, which started early Monday is still at it behind closed doors, and with an airtight baliff on the front door. He just won't put it out! That's his business, but it doesn't make headlines.

However, with a little sleuthing and deducting from a careful check of time, an estimate, which might or might not be reliable, is to the effect that some 70 of 75 have met the 1938 January Term Grand Jurors and have been propounded with an innumerable number of why "searching" and "leading" questions. That is far as we got!

As for the actual proceedings, it is, briefly, as follows: Lora Ann Mack vs. Walter J. Mack, suit for divorce, granted, Mrs. Bernice Pack vs. Thom B. Pack; suit for divorce and custody of child.

Cases dismissed: H. M. Haynes vs. J. C. Roberts, settled out of court; Yellow Mt. Acceptance Corp'n vs. R. L. Reneau; case dismissed and settled out of court.

IN MEMORY OF MISS LAURA CAVETT

Who passed away on Dec. 26, 1937, at her home on East Main Street.

Miss Laura was the oldest daughter of D. F. and Anna Owen Cavett, who came from Louisiana to Coryell County soon after the Civil war. She was the first child born in Texas, where she grew to womanhood. She was educated in the country schools and at Huntsville Normal, teaching for many years in the schools of this county. There are many men and women over the county and elsewhere who remember and honor her as their teacher. One of whom came to say the last farewell to her.

In life she was modest and unassuming, always contented, self-sacrificing and unselfish; sympathetic and kind to those who were less fortunate than she; loyal to her friends and devoted to her loved ones.

We laid her body in the cemetery, but the memory of her beautiful life lingers with us.

—By One who loved her.

KNOW TEXAS

Pioneer Advantages

Denton, Jan. 7. "Good cheap beds of Spanish Moss" are among the advantages of Texas as described in a book by William Kennedy, Esq. written in London in 1841 after a tour thru the Republic. He describes in detail how the moss was steeped in hot water, dried, whipped and put into the ticking.

Fifty Carloads

A carload of calves every three minutes was the selling record made last October when the price of west Texas calves and the number of out-of-state buyers reached a new high in the Highland Hereford sale at Marfa. Fifty carloads of calves were sold in two hours and thirty minutes. Representatives of nine states were here to buy.

Strange Tunes

A motley mixture is poured into the folk tunes of Texas. The negro songs which form such a great part of our handed down music are filled with Spanish and French music and rhythms. The cowboy songs are usually adaptations from songs the cattlemen heard on the sea and elsewhere and sang so much on the range that the music gradually became associated with them. Some of the most original tunes came from the first Mexican cowboys.

Thanks for the Opportunity that Made It Possible for Us to Grow With Gatesville and Coryell County

Just Five short years ago this firm opened a Cash Dry Goods store in Gatesville. WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
King Rudolf is drugged on the eve of his coronation, and Rudolf Rassendyll, Englishman and double for the king is persuaded to take his place at the Strelsau ceremonies to thwart the plot of the king's brother Michael. Complications ensue when Rassendyll finds himself falling in love with Princess Flavia, the king's intended, and when the king is spirited away by the conspirators. Lured into a trap by Antoinette de Mauban, Michael's sweetheart, Rassendyll learns where the king is being held, beats off the murderous attack of conspirators determined to put him out of the way. After a touching farewell with Flavia, Rassendyll and his aides set out for the castle where the king is held prisoner.

Chapter Six

Establishing a base of operations at the royal hunting lodge, Rassendyll, Zapt and Fritz, with a retinue of their loyal friends, began mapping the thrust on Zenda castle. The king, wounded, weak and dropped into the moat and swam silently and skillfully to the castle. Johann met him as he emerged from the water and guided him to Antoinette's room, where a glass of brandy and a heavy sweater were given him.

Rupert's infatuation for Antoinette proved the undoing of all the carefully laid plans. Visiting her in her boudoir, he was surprised by Michael in the midst of violent love-making, which Antoinette had encouraged in the hope of keeping him occupied and out of the way while Rassendyll made his way to the king.

As Michael relaxed a moment, while covering Rupert with his pistol, Hentzau whipped out a concealed dagger and plunged it into Michael's heart.

Noticing the great doors to the windlass alcove were ajar, Hentzau went there and discovered Johann trying to drop the drawbridge. Putting his knife to the servant, Rupert spread the alarm and rushed for the guardroom.

Rassendyll had already disposed of the guards, Kraftstein and Bersonin, when he turned to find himself covered by Rupert's pistol.

"I really am sorry to finish you off," said Rupert, cocking his pistol.

"Just a minute," interrupted

A terrific duel which raged through the castle.

emaciated, lay in a bleak dungeon of the farthest recesses of the medieval edifice.

Michael called and tried vainly to have the monarch sign documents of abdication, promising him a handsome competence from his own civil list if he would resign and take up residence across the border.

"I haven't lived like a king," Rudolf told him, "but at least I can die like one."

At the suggestion of Michael, Rupert made one more effort to sway Rassendyll. The impudent, brazen fellow went directly to the hunting lodge, where after a search by the guards, who relieved him of his disguise, he was admitted to the prince's presence.

"Rassendyll," said Rupert, "you're a man after my own heart. Frankly, you and I are the only two persons who are worthwhile saving in this whole affair, aren't we? Now here is my plan for us. Attack the castle boldly. Let your friends be in the lead. Arrange the time with me. Black Michael will fall. The King? You don't want to find him. You won't. That's provided for. And your friends, if they fall too, only you and I are left who know the truth — understand, I, Rupert of Hentzau, and you, King of the Realm."

Rassendyll's insulting laugh at this amazing proposition flushed Rupert with anger.

Rassendyll turned to repeat the proposal to Zapt and Fritz, Rupert hurled a dagger, which hissed past Rassendyll's head and buried itself in the wall. Rupert leaped through an open window to the back of his horse and escaped.

First news of conditions inside the castle was brought to the lodge by Michael's own servant, Johann, who for a bribe had betrayed his master. He brought with him the mate of the earring Antoinette had given Rassendyll.

A plan of action was speedily mapped out. Rassendyll was to swim the moat alone, cut down the two guards of the prisoner and defend the king until Johann dropped the drawbridge and allowed the rescuing party to enter the castle.

A pale moon rode the sky that night when Rassendyll, Fritz and Zapt, accompanied by a score of their best fighting men bringing up the rear, waited on the opposite bank of the moat.

The signal came and Rassendyll

Rassendyll, "how do you know but it's Bersonin whose body is floating in the moat and not the king—Can't we have a smoke while we talk it over?"

Rupert pulled out his cigarette case, half suspecting a trick, and tossed it over.

"Half of my kingdom for a match, Hentzau."

Holding the cocked pistol in his right, Rupert fished in his left hand and threw him a packet of matches. In catching the matches, Rassendyll dropped the cigarette case by an overturned chair. He bent as if to pick up the case.

"Never mind that!" barked Rupert.

But he was a split second too late. Rassendyll picked up the chair, dashed at Rupert, who fired wildly as the chair knocked the gun from his hand. Both men picked up sabers, the handiest weapons available and began a terrific duel which raged throughout the tunnels and cellar of the castle. Fighting at corps-a-corps, each man tried to smash the other's face with his sword hilt, and in the desperate tight-lipped struggle, they finally crashed down on the floor besides the windlass.

With a final furious effort, Rassendyll rolled on top of Rupert and with a slash, cut the rope. The drawbridge dropped with a terrific clatter. As the sound of the rescuers' horses crossing the bridge reached Rupert's ears, he leaped through a window into the moat and swam away into the darkness, making good his escape. The king, although badly hurt, was saved. Rassendyll's masquerade was over. Now came the ordeal of facing Flavia.

For one mad moment, they talked of running away together. "I love your madness, dear, for one lovely moment, I too was mad. But is love the only thing? If it were I could follow you to the end of the world. I don't know why God has let me love you, but I know that I must stay."

"I think God shows his purposes to such as you," said Rassendyll. Zapt and Fritz escorted him to the border. There were tears in the eyes of both as they bade him goodby.

"Goodby Englishman," said stern old Zapt, "you're the finest Elphberg of them all."

1-MINUTE SAFETY TALKS

By Don Herold

Don't Be A Statistic

We can read that 36,800 people have been killed by an earthquake in Japan, and it doesn't make as much of an impression on us as mashing our own finger in a screen door.

We read that 36,800 people were killed, and 967,840 injured in automobile accidents last year, and it isn't so very impressive or depressive, because they are fairly well scattered and remote. Just a lot of people we don't care about.

There is nothing much in such figures to stir us emotionally to fear or caution or to a resolution to drive with exceeding care, ourselves.

Nature, darn her, blesses and curses us with a feeling that WE are going to be exceptions. It takes an unusually intelligent man to read statistics and say: "I'm just as liable to trouble as one of these 967,840. I'd better watch out, or I'll be a statistic, myself, some day."

I mean to make you cringe. I mean to make you hurt a little when you read these automobile accident figures, issued by The Travelers Insurance Company. I mean to make you subject yourself momentarily to the painful process of imagining one of those 36,800 or 967,840 to be your own child.

Then multiply that wave of anguish by 36,800 or 967,840. Every one of those bleak human units was a precious bit of life to someone. What a major national calamity our automobile toll is when we consider it in this light!

Why try to get home a half hour sooner on Sunday night, why attempt to add 25 miles to your day's trip, why go 70 or 60 miles an hour, just for the fun of it, when you should be doing 50 or 40—when the gamble is with life as precious as the life of that youngster in your own back seat or that somebody else's youngster chasing a rubber ball into the street, or even the life of a fairly cheap adult?

When you read these accident statistics, remember you are not reading of toothpicks or matches, you're reading of 36,800 times your own little Bill or Mary or John or Anna.

It takes more than "just a salve" to draw them out. It takes a "counter-irritant" like good old Musterole—soothing, warming, penetrating and helpful in drawing out the local congestion and pain when rubbed on the aching spots.

Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness generally yield promptly.

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

HUSTLING HORNETS DOWN STAR GAGERS, 36-21

Doing an about-face from the kind of ball they played against Jonesboro; the Hornets downed a gripup of high-g geared Star players by the score of 36-21. The Star outfit had previously beaten the Hornets twice, 24-21 and 19-18.

Felix Newlin, lanky guard, was the most outstanding man on the court. He made nine points in five minutes, made them before Star, or any other member of his team had scored a single point. He was high point man with 14 tallies, while Gilbreath was right behind him with 12. Loraine Turner broke forward, looped six points.

In the first game of the night the Gatesville girls defeated the Flat lassies 16-1 in a contest played under the new rules. These new rules speed up the games a great deal but lowered the scoring.

In the second game the local CCC team turned back the Flat aggregation, 29-16.

In the preliminary game to the feature battle, the Gatesville girls came back and thoroughly trounced the West sextette, 36-7.

INVITATION TOURNAMENT TO BE HELD AT TURNERSVILLE THIS WEEK-END

Friday and Saturday Turnersville will have an invitational tournament for both boys and girls with every strong team in the county on its entry list. Jonesboro will be the favorite to cop the cup in the boys division by the fact that they have previously defeated every other team entered in the tourney. Ireland, Gatesville and Pearl will offer Jonesboro plenty of competition and the winner of the Hornet-Ireland fracas, will be played Friday night at seven o'clock will have a fair chance to defeat the Eagles.

The Hornets, in view of their victories in the Evans tourney and in the one held here are just about cinches to take the girls first place trophy.

JONESBORO TAKES HORNETS

Monday night on the Turnersville court which is destined to be the site of this year's county tournament, the Jonesboro Eagles, shoved along by two uncanny long shots by Captain "Smoky" Walsh defeated the Hornets 9-7, to place themselves in the unwanted position of pre-tournament favorites to capture the title.

Byron Gilbreath, rangy Hornet center stole the show from Walsh by scoring six of his team seven points and playing a grand defensive game.

The Hornets played nowhere near the kind of basketball they flashed when they defeated the Bynum team last week. Their defense was just as good, but their offense was far below par. Their passing was faltering and uncertain, and that, coupled with their inability to take the ball off the backboard and follow up their shots, was the main reason that the Hornets were beaten.

In a preliminary game the Hornet lassies defeated the Jonesboro girls, 17-6.

TERRACING IS VITAL FOR SAVING CORYELL FARMS

Terraces are of vital importance in a complete erosion control program, but at the same time they are one of the most expensive of conservation practices and require a considerable investment for proper construction. In view of these facts any procedure whereby the maximum efficiency or benefit is received from this investment is of utmost importance and should receive due consideration.

Complete construction is one factor in securing maximum benefits from a terrace. Too often the body of the terrace is allowed to remain just as constructed by the terrace until breaks occur along low places in the terrace and washes are started at the ends. As soon as possible after the terrace body is complete fills, cuts, and ends should be made in order to insure proper drainage of the terrace and avoid unnecessary maintenance costs in repairing breaks and washes. Where fills are necessary the terrace should be made stronger and higher to allow for settling and to give extra protection against the excessive amount of water which will collect in the low places. Proper completion of ends should control the runoff water until it is discharged on a well protected area thus avoiding all washes along the terrace outlets.

After completion terrace construction is accomplished terrace maintenance is of next importance. If proper tillage operations are employed on terraced land very little other maintenance will be necessary. A terrace should never be listed or bedded since such a practice greatly reduces its height. To properly prepare a terrace for planting, use either a disk or mold board breaking plow and turn the dirt toward the top of the terrace. If land is laid out twice as wide as the distance from the top of the terrace ridge to the terrace channel, the dead furrow will be left in the flow line of the terrace channel. Such a practice will maintain both the channel and the ridge as they were originally constructed.

Since terraces are usually constructed on gullied land the treatment of these gullies is considered one form of terrace maintenance. If all the gullies between terraces are plowed in before crops are planted in the spring not only will erosion be lessened but tillage operations may be carried on more easily.

Terraces properly constructed maintained and protected by proper cultivation, will return the original investment many times in savings of topsoil and moisture.
