District Court Features Evant Damage Suit This Week

Opening Monday morning in District Court the case of Grover Wiley vs. Dempster Mill Manufacturing Company, suit for damages, which will be the principal case of the week, with a corps of lawyers handling both sides.

The suit grows out of the falling of a water tank in Ewant.

Since our last issue, a divorce was granted in the case, Velma Brown vs. Carl Brown.

PEEL CAFE BUILDING LEASED TO WESTERN AUTO ASSOCIATE STORE

The Western Auto Associate Store, home-owned and operated by W. T. Hix has leased the Peel's Cafe Building and will move in sometime between now and the first of May.

The Cafe building operated by Mr. Peel for many years will be remodeled both inside and out for the Western Auto Associate Store. The Western Auto Assn. Store will continue to offer outstanding bargains and prices with a money-back guarantee on every article sold.

According to Mr. Hix he will be able to offer a more complete service on tires and oil in his new location. There will be plenty of parking space all around the building and a drive in service department in the rear of the rear of the building.

The Western Auto Supply Co. operates 1200 of their associate stores and there will be from time to time offered due to their cooperative buying power.

A complete radio shop will be installed and service will be given every make and model of radio. There will also be a complete department for charging batteries.

Mr. Hix states he will carry a more complete line of auto parts, accessories, hardware, bicycles, electric supplies and garden equipment.

The Western Auto Assn. Store has recently completed a franchise with Frigidare division of General Motors and will handle the new 1938 Frigidare with the sensational new meter miser which cuts the current drain almost in half. These 38 frigidaires will be on display in the next few days. Further notice will be given in this paper about the date the Western Auto Assn. Store will move in their new location at Peel's Cafe Bldg.

Hornets Face Off With Strong Bynum Cagers In District Meet

The Hornets will face off against Bynum in the Waco gym at ten o'clock Friday morning in the first game of the district meet. The Hornets have beaten the Bynum cagers twice this season but the latter will be hard to take.

If they get by Bynum they will meet the Rosebud Panthers a very strong team at 6:15 Friday night and should they come thru that game unscathed they will play the winner of the Groesbeck-Corsicana game at 11 a. m. Saturday morning in the semi finals.

The Rosebud, Corsicans and Gatesville are the teams that are challenging Waco's supremacy.

The Tigers drew an easy team with the winner of Navarro county and none of the teams in that county are considered very strong. They then meet the winner of the Valley Mills-Tokio or West game in the semi-finals.

The Hornets have a much harder schedule than any team entered and if they come thru with the district title it will be no fluke but a hard earned victory.

The Gatesville traveling squad will go to Waco Thursday and work out in the Waco gym and find a way to set their zone defense on that large court.

They will play the Ireland Cardinals Wednesday night at 7:30 in the last game they will play before the district meet. Every fan in Coryell County should come out and show them that they are behind them all the way.

THEY'RE BLACK AND WHITE THIS YEAR; NUMBERS GOING OUT NOW

D. H. Culbertson, Tax-Assessor-Collector is back in the "numbers" racket now, and he's "packing them out", we guess if you're got the "wherewith", since we saw one on a car yesterday morning.

They're somewhat bigger than 1937, the numbers are black with a white background.

WERNER RETURNS FROM CONFERENCE AT THORNDALE

Rev. L. J. Werner returned Thursday from a two day conference of the Central Texas Circuit of the Lutheran church at Thorndale Texas. Rev. E. A. Heckman of Reisel presided at the conference and Rev. Elmo Miertschin of Eola was elected secretary.

The Lutheran Church this year is celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Lutheran Saxon Immigration into this country and the beginning of the Lutheran church in America.

Rev. Werner read an essay before the conference on the last day of the session.

POAGE SOLVES FARM PROGRAM: MARRIES "COTTON"

Cupid got busy and his latest "victim" Valentine day was none other than that popular young Congressman W. R. (Bob) Poage who succumbed to Mr. Cupid's darts and solved the "Cotton" program by the marriage route.

He married or was married to Miss Frances Cotton of Eastland in a quiet ceremony at the home of her mother Mrs. Frank Wilcox Dr. John W. Raifley president of Oklahoma Baptist university at Shawnee Oklahoma performing the "operation".

Such cupidity! And he was here only Friday afternoon and didn't say a thing about it!

'THIRTY' FOR ODD MCINTYRE

NEW YORK Feb. 14—O. O. McIntyre the small town boy from Gallipolis Ohio who won fame and wealth interpreting the big city died today.

The columnist was taken ill on Saturday. Following his lifelong practice he refused to call a doctor. He died at about 2 a. m. today in his Park avenue apartment.

McIntyre — Oscar Odd McIntyre was his full name — would have observed his 54th birthday on Feb. 18.

His death apparently was caused by a heart attack.

McIntyre applied to New York the principles he learned when he was a reporter for the Gallipolis Journal in 1902. At his death his column "New York Day by Day" was syndicated in 380 newspapers earning him a huge salary.

Poage Explains Farm Bill as Passed by the House

Congressman W. R. (Bob) Poage speaking at a gathering estimated at approximately 1000 farmers, merchants, land owners, tenants and other interested parties, explained his conception of the new farm bill which has just passed the House of Representatives and is now up for passage or rejection by the Senate.

Mr. Poage explained the high spots of the program, and as copies of the bill are to be mailed to each and every farmer in the county by the County Agent's office and Congressman Poage, a summary of the bill will not be given here.

Mr. Poage made five speeches before his arrival here, and followed the explanation here with three other speeches, one of them at Oglesby, which began about 4:30, due to his late arrival here.

It was expected Friday that the bill would pass the Senate some time that day, but late Mon-

Opening Of Oglesby's Gymnasium Held Thursday Feb. 3

On Thursday night Feb. 3 1938 Oglesby's big new Gymnasium was thrown open to an audience of more than 700 people who gathered for the dedication. The throng of people came from all the places between Waco and Gatesville and there were numerous representatives from both these cities. Even with this great gathering many more could have found room.

As master of ceremonies Prof. C. D. Boyer Supt of Oglesby schools was in and out all thru the program.

The first number was the song "America" led by Rev. W. C. Taylor pastor of the First Methodist church with Miss Lossie Humes at the piano. As this song was rendered the audience stood and several hundred voices joined in the rendition. This was followed by a brief talk by Prof. Boyer.

The second number the Rhythm Band sponsored by the teachers Mrs. J. E. Huddleston and Miss Jeanette Powell. First to Four-grades. To this writer this was the finest number of all. Forty or more little uniformed students the men and women of tomorrow being trained in the cool inspiring beauty of the rhythm of sound and motion. That rhythm stamping itself indelibly upon the minds of those men and women of tomorrow. Through this performance Miss Jeanette Powell was at the piano. The entire movement was masterful.

This was followed by a piano solo by Mrs. Olin Lowrimore. Then came Jack Knight a student of Baylor University who in a masterful vocal performance rendered two solos "Thank God For a Garden" and "Gold Mine in the Skies."

T. P. Rucker president of the school board and speaking for that body held the floor for a period to deliver a speech of acceptance to the contractor Mr.

FATHER-SON BANQUET HIGHLIGHT OF BOY SCOUT WEEK

The Father and Son banquet held Saturday night in the local gym climaxed a week of celebrating the twenty-eighth anniversary of the Boy Scout organization. Each night during the entire week the boy scouts of Gatesville with J. M. Witcher as Scout master enjoyed some form of celebration.

A radio talk was given by President Roosevelt Monday night to the boy scouts of America. On Thursday night Gatesville people witnessed a torch parade which was put on by the local scouts and on the following night the boys camped out cooking their own supper and spending the night in the open.

Day the bill had not passed, more opposition than was expected was encountered in the Senate.

Guy Powell, County Agent introduced Mr. Poage, briefly, and he had been detained in other speaking locations, and began his speech here about 30 minutes late.

Tone of the meeting seemed to be amicable, and Mr. Poage was well received by the audience, which applauded loudly when he approached the speaker's stand.

Supt. Brooks Honored At Central Texas Meet of Teachers Fri-Sat.

Superintendent Ercell W. Brooks was again honored by the Central Texas division of the Texas State Teachers Association and Saturday of last week by being made a delegate of the Texas State Teachers Association and president of the Central Texas Schoolmaster's Group.

Mr. Brooks during the year which ended Saturday was Secretary-Treasurer of this section of the Teacher's association and E. D. Shelton Principle of the elementary school was Chairman of the Elementary Division.

At this meeting Miss Martha Moore read a paper on "What a High School Girl Thinks Should Be Done to Make Biology Better Fit Her Needs".

Other teachers from over the county that attended this meeting were: W. E. Lasseter; E. D. Shelton, Misses Louise Hall, Lucile Evans; Lois Scott; Iris Styles, Laura Sutton, Aurora Youngue, Wilhelmina Cayce, Lois Grantham, Bess Holmes, Winona Lively, Edna Murray, Maude Alyce Parker Ann Roach Mr. and Mrs. L. Young C. D. Boyer, A. R. Pointer, and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Humphries.

HOMER WILSON DIES SUNDAY DENLY 10:30 SUNDAY NIGHT AT HOME

Homer Wilson, 63, died of heart failure in his sleep Sunday night at 10:30 at his home on South 14th Street in Gatesville.

Mr. Wilson had been to church that evening; came home and read a newspaper a short time and seemingly was in good health and spirits. Shortly afterward he retired and after talking to his family for a few minutes dozed off to sleep dying as he slept without speaking.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the First Methodist church Rev. L. W. Seymour conducting the services interment was in the Turnersville Cemetery.

Mr. Wilson was a member of the Board of Stewards of the First Methodist Church of this city and was a very active member of the church taking his place in the choir in addition to his other church duties.

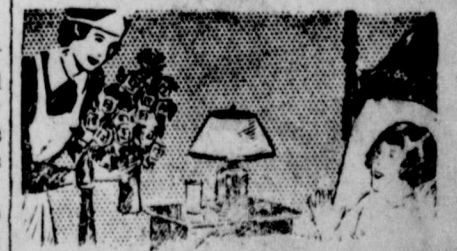

For the past several years since moving to Gatesville from

TWINS BORN TO OGLESBY COUPLE

Twins, a boy and a girl, were born to Mr. and Mrs. James F. Terry of Oglesby at a Waco Sanitarium Saturday at 1:30 p. m. Hospital attendants said parents and the new son and daughter were resting nicely. The boy weighed six pounds, two and one-half ounces, the girl, six pounds and one ounce.

The father is a world war veteran. The children were named James Sewall and Evelyn Jewel—Waco Tribune-Herald.

MEMORIAL HOSPITAL NOTES

SOIL CONSERVATION BENEFICIAL TO CORYELL COUNTY FARMERS

The farmer—Co-operators in the Gatesville camp area receive very noticeable benefits from the Soil Conservation Service program in this area, according to statements made recently by some of the co-operators.

R. B. Allan states that benefits received by him from the SCS program are very apparent.

"The strip crops on my farm really hold all the soil," Mr. Allan said. "I have noticed them immediately after some of the heaviest rains that we have had in this area, and I could see no washes going through them. The soil that is on my land at the present time will, I think stay there if I continue to strip crop my land every year. Since I bought the land with the intention of keeping it it can readily be seen that I have no intention of discontinuing a full soil conservation program on my farm.

C. E. Turner, another Gatesville SCS cooperator, called to mind the changes that had been wrought in this area by the Soil Conservation program.

"About the time the Gatesville camp first came here," Mr. Turner recalled "the farmers of this section were somewhat discouraged. Aside from the fact that low price for farm products prevailed, soil erosion was getting to be somewhat of a problem. The land was so badly eroded that productivity per acre was lower than at any time in the history of Coryell county. The problem of low prices and poor productivity was one genuine concern to the farmer.

"Then came the Soil Conservation Camp, with its program to combat soil erosion. The farmers who have cooperated have found a real means of controlling their soil and moisture losses. Naturally, the productivity of the soil is being increased also. While, of course, the soil conservation program cannot greatly affect the price level of farm products at present, the farmer at least has the satisfaction of knowing that should prices be good, he will have the products to sell".

C. W. McConnaughey presented a different slant to the soil

A. T. QUICKSALL BUYS NATIONALLY FAMOUS HOG

A. T. Quicksall, well known breeder of Ames, bought at an auction sale, by mail bid, a son of the Poland China ear which was world's champion at the recent National Swine Show. The mother of the pig was champion at the Wisconsin State Fair this year. The pig is expected in by express one day this week. This highly bred Poland China pig, along with the wonder'ol Poland China boar recently purchased by Elam Brothers, gives Coryell County some of the strongest Poland China blood in the United States.

ELMO KING, 4-H CLUB BOY, SELLS FINE PIG

Elmo King, Plainview 4-H Club member, sells fine pig to the Luling Foundation Farm at Luling, Texas. This pig was a son of the champion sow at the Texas Centennial, which Elmo owns, and was sired by the boar which P. H. Martin sold to A. and M. College recently.

The pig was one of the best individuals which Elmo has raised thus far, and was shipped at a nice price to the Luling Foundation Farm, which is developing in that part of Texas some very outstanding livestock. A letter from the Assistant Manager expressed their appreciation for the quality of the pig and stated that they felt much good would come from their owning him.

SOIL CONSERVATION BENEFICIAL TO CORYELL COUNTY FARMERS

The farmer—Co-operators in the Gatesville camp area receive very noticeable benefits from the Soil Conservation Service program in this area, according to statements made recently by some of the cooperators.

R. B. Allan states that benefits received by him from the SCS program are very apparent.

"The strip crops on my farm really hold all the soil," Mr. Allan said. "I have noticed them immediately after some of the heaviest rains that we have had in this area, and I could see no washes going through them. The soil that is on my land at the present time will, I think stay there if I continue to strip crop my land every year. Since I bought the land with the intention of keeping it can readily be seen that I have no intention of discontinuing a full soil conservation program on my farm."

C. E. Turner, another Gatesville SCS cooperators, called to mind the changes that had been wrought in this area by the Soil Conservation program.

"About the time the Gatesville camp first came here," Mr. Turner recalled "the farmers of this section were somewhat discouraged. Aside from the fact that low price for farm products prevailed, soil erosion was getting to be somewhat of a problem. The land was so badly eroded that productivity per acre was lower than at any time in the history of Coryell county. The problem of low prices and poor productivity was one genuine concern to the farmer."

"Then came the Soil Conservation Camp, with its program to combat soil erosion. The farmers who have cooperated have found a real means of controlling their soil and moisture losses. Naturally, the productivity of the soil is being increased also. While, of course, the soil conservation program cannot greatly affect the price level of farm products at present, the farmer at least has the satisfaction of knowing that should prices be good, he will have the products to sell."

C. W. McConaughy presented a different slant to the soil

Silk Boycott Proposal An Economic Fallacy

Cost of Silk is Only Eight to Twelve Percent of Stocking Price

By LATTIMER SHAW

WHEN an American woman "boycotts" a $1.00 pair of silk stockings she does 92 cents worth of economic damage to the United States in order to do perhaps 8 cents worth of damage to Japan, China and Italy.

A few minutes of research spent in verifying this important fact will reveal graphically that any widespread boycott of silk because we do not like the antics of certain members of the Japanese army would be a boomerang bringing calamity to 120,000 workers in the American silk hosiery industry.

Here's the way it is summed up by George Urlaub, executive director of the Throwsters' Research Institute, concerning the silk used in making silk stockings in this country: "Thirty million pounds of raw silk worth about $50,000,000 produce approximately 37,000,000 dozen pairs of silk hosiery having a retail value of around $330,000,000 which represents about $275,000,000 in wages, taxes, materials and earnings to American industry and its workers".

several days ago of their departure to Ft. Worth have been the recipients of several affairs tendered by their local friends Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Guggolz entertained at seven o'clock with a luncheon and Valentine party at their home on Pidcocke Street. Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Seymour were also honor guests.

The tables were neatly arranged in the party room and were

The whole thing is a matter of simple arithmetic. The spot price of raw silk, only about 90 percent of which comes from Japan, paid by our manufacturers of stockings, underwear, shirts, dresses and scarfs, is from $1.50 to $2.00 per pound. One pound of silk is sufficient to make from one to two dozen pairs of silk stockings. Silk stockings of the better grades range from 75 cents to $2.00 per pair. The average retail price is around $1.00. Therefore, at the highest price of silk, the silk in a dollar pair of stockings represents only about 8 to 15 cents. The rest is paid for workers' wages, administrative salaries, factory equipment and overhead, distribution, advertising, selling expense, wholesale and retail profits and, sometimes, an occasional dividend for stock holders. And practically the same story is true about silk underwear.

Liste stockings cost about the same as those gleaned from the silkworm cocoons and they are made mostly of British long fiber cotton from Egypt. Silk substitutes are not suitable for stockings. They lack the necessary flexibility to return to shape when bulged by knees, calves and ankles.

There is another important item in this boycott proposition. Japan buys from us about one and a half times as much as we buy from her in dollar value. In 1937 this amounted to about $290,000,000 a valuable piece of business in this "recession" or whatever the present lull in industry is.

Viewed from any angle, there seems to be no economic sense whatever in a boycott of Japanese silk and American women should go right on enhancing the beauty of their shapely legs with silk stockings in the meantime, perhaps, giving their thought to other and more practical methods of stopping the cruel slaughter in China and other countries. They can do much for the peace of the world but not through giving up their beloved silk stockings or undies. A boycott is a sure step toward war

Dear to the hearts of American women of all ages are their silk stockings. To give them up means serious harm to American industry. An American worker weaving the raw silk into fabric, Japan breeds the silkworms and sends us the raw silk from the cocoons. Our workers, manufacturers and sellers do the rest.

SYNOPSIS

Ramsay McKay, handsome and pioneering Wells Fargo agent, is drafted by his company to establish a new express route from St. Louis to California. He is caught in the gold rush. Years later, he is joined by his sweetheart, Justine Pryor, an aristocratic Southern belle, and they are married against her mother's wishes. McKay becomes a business power in San Francisco and the Wells Fargo company flourishes. Headless of all dangers, McKay succeeds in establishing the Overland Mail route from Missouri to California. The company gets the government mail contract and everything looks rosy when the Civil War breaks out and brings new problems for the enterprising McKay to solve.

CHAPTER IX

RAMSAY McKay never told his wife how many lives it cost to get the Butterfield Overland Mail Route going. He did tell her that sixteen of the thirty-two young men Giles Hawley brought out from his old home town of Rome, in New York State, were killed by Indians; but other details he spared, including the toll that her husband, with her good friends Hank York and Pawnee, took among the Kiowas, Comanches and Apaches.

But, the Butterfield rolled on time, westbound out of Tipton, at the Missouri railhead, eastbound out of San Francisco, on September 15, 1858. Riding the westbound coach, Ramsay McKay, Hank York and Pawnee reached San Francisco and a rousing public reception more than a day ahead of schedule.

Ramsay McKay had no hand in establishing the Pony Express. But while Russell, Majors and Waddell were getting that short-lived and spectacular enterprise under way he was cutting the running time on the Butterfield to twenty-one days. Late in 1860, he was surprised to learn from Henry Wells that the Pony Express had been added to the McKay responsibilities. Founders of the dispatch service had lost money beyond their ability to keep going; rather than see it abandoned Wells Fargo & Company took it over to run at a loss until the transcontinental telegraph line could be finished.

The Pony Express never competed with the Wells Fargo-Butterfield service, except as a telegraph system might be said to compete with a postal and express enterprise. On a Fall day of 1860, however, it did bring word of the election of Abraham Lincoln as President of the United States. To Ramsay McKay, that foretold Civil War, a bitter, sanguine struggle over the joint questions of slavery and secession.

Before Lincoln's inauguration, he was in the field again, preparing to move the Butterfield route north, away from possible Southern interference, to the Central Overland Trail.

Ramsay had accepted a commission in the Union army and was preparing to leave for the theatre of war in the East when he was stopped by an emissary from Washington.

"The Union regards gold from California as the life-blood of its defense," he was told. "By order of the President you will continue in your executive capacity with Wells Fargo Company."

As the war went on, and bitterness increased, Justin and Ramsay sedulously avoided discussion of the strife at home. After all, Justine was Southern born and bred. Loyal as she was to husband and to country, she could not choke off inherent sympathy.

Once, Ramsay was in St. Louis. Justine's father was away from the city; Mrs. Pryor would not receive him. He did learn from a servant and carry back the sad word to Justine that her younger brother, Nicky, had been killed in action with the Confederate troops.

But, Ramsay was faced overnight with another problem. Raiding parties of armed men were stopping Wells Fargo treasure shipments, confiscating gold and issuing receipts for their loot in the name of the Confederacy. On occasion, leaders of these bands displayed bona fide commissions from the seceded government. Early in the Spring of 1864, Ramsay was summoned to Washington, there to appear before the President, and General Grant.

Briefly, the President told Ramsay, the Union was in desperate straits. Grant was planning to throw into action every man the North could recruit. Gold was the need of the moment and of the months to come. The Treasury in Washington was depleted. But, in San Francisco and other bullion repositories of the West, there was one hundred and fifty millions of yellow metal. Confederate privateers were known to be on the Western ocean. Guerilla raiders haunted the transcontinental routes. Could Ramsay McKay get the gold in safety from the Far West to the min. at Philadelphia?

"I believe so, Mr. President," Ramsay McKay answered.

"And I believe you can," the President agreed.

On the way West Ramsay stopped in St. Louis. By sending word to Mrs. Pryor that Justine was expecting a second child, Ramsay per-

The men were too busy over Ramsay's map to hear the storm which raged above them, or to give attention to the flaming-faced Justine as she entered the room, until she had spoken.

"Ramsay," his wife called. He turned, surprised.

"Ramsay, I must ask your friends to leave my house. Do your plotting and scheming against my people in your office, if you will, but no more of it in my home."

Justine left without another word. "I wonder how much she overheard," one of the army officers speculated as the men walked down the street.

Back in her upstairs sitting room, Justine's mother was prying at her daughter's innermost heart.

"You heard what they plan to do," she said. "You can stop this murderous enterprise if you will, stop them from sending the gold to pay for the murder of thousands of our Southern boys, as they paid for the murder of your own brother."

"How?" asked Justine.

"Write out what you heard. I can get it to our people here. They can "Ramsay," Justine said, "I must ask your friends to leave my house. Do your plotting and scheming against my people in your office."

sued his mother-in-law to travel to San Francisco with him. On the journey across the country Mrs. Pryor barely spoke to him; once quartered in his home, she did not extend that much recognition.

Ramsay was out on the trail when his son was born, but was at his home on a Spring evening of 1864, for a conference called in his drawing room to avoid that army of Southern spies who permeated the very atmosphere of San Francisco. That his mother-in-law was in constant communication with individuals in this army Ramsay was aware, but he believed his home safer than his office for his purposes.

Henry Wells, Hank York, two Union army officers in civilian clothes and Ramsay met to decide finally on the means of getting the first important shipment of gold overland under the President's confidential order. The army could guarantee protection over the two extremities of the route, but across a long stretch in Utah and Wyoming, not a soldier was to be had.

"There will be two million dollars in gold in this first shipment," Ramsay explained, "and I'll guarantee we'll get it past anything but a regiment. Hank and I have rounded up a bunch of old-timers who were rejected for army service, but we guarantee everyone as a first-class fighting man."

"The Confederates know we're starting this train, but they don't know how we're routing it. What we have to do is route it so they can't get any force larger than a guerilla outfit on our trail. Now here—" get the message to Texas, and they can send men up from there to meet this treasure escort on the trail. They have done this other places; they can do it again. Write the message, I tell you, Justine. I can get it through."

Impulsively, the daughter went to her desk. She had half-filled a sheet of note paper with instructions when Ramsay knocked.

Justine crumpled the writing paper behind her back.

"I came," her husband explained, "to apologize for my thoughtlessness, and to say, Good-bye. I am leaving for the East, overland, before morning."

"Oh, Ramsay! You? You mustn't. You can't. I shan't let you."

"I'm sorry, my dear, I must." His wife drew herself back.

"If you go," she said, "you will not find me here when you return."

"It is too late to change my plans, if I would," Ramsay replied in his gentlest tone. He looked at his wife, at her mother. Both were adamant. He bowed. A few moments later the women heard the front door close.

Justine looked helplessly at the crumpled note in her hand, broke completely, tossed the paper toward the fireplace and sped to her children's room. Her mother heard the key turn in the lock, and the noise of sobbing.

Mrs. Pryor looked toward the fireplace. Justine's crumpled note had missed the flames, was on the floor near the ashes. There was purpose in her eye and carriage as she moved forward.

SOIL CONSERVATION BRINGS EXTRA PROFITS TO RENTERS

"What will I get out of this?" is a question frequently asked by tenants on farms on which erosion control programs are being worked out. According to E. E. McCallister, local Technician for the Soil Conservation Service, this question is enthusiastically answered by several cooperating tenants in the Gatesville camp area.

Stell Davis, a renter on the D. I. Glass farm near Gatesville, states: "Since the program has been in affect on this farm my cotton yields have increased considerably. Also, I can now plow right across gullies where I had to turn before and leave weeds. This gives me more land for crops."
E. E. Wallace, a renter on the Lena Edwards farm near Osage, says: "I am especially interested in pasture that is being developed here. From it I will soon be able to increase my income with profits from milk and cream from several cows. I have also noticed that on most farms in this community, 'catch rocks' have begun to appear in the fields during the last several years. These cause much damage to implements and loss of time to the farmer. An erosion control program will prevent any more of these rocks from appearing by holding the rest of the soil in the field."
Otto Hafercamp, a renter on the Francis Caruth farm near Coryell City, states that terracing, strip cropping and contour tillage has cured several seeps. He is now able to plow and grow crops on land that once stayed too wet to plow across most of the spring and fall.

Wiley McMinn, a renter on the Rufus Brown farm near Turnersville pointed out perhaps the most far-sighted reason of all for a tenant being interested in soil conservation. Mr. McMinn said, "I have always been a farmer and hope to continue farming the rest of my life. During the time I have been farming I have seen crop yields grow less and less and good land destroyed by gullying and washing away. It seems to me that the renter, who are going to have to depend on the land for a living, should be glad to help in keeping what land we have left from being destroyed."

Colorado, once a magnet for goldseekers, produced in 1937 more tame and wild hay than it did gold. Its wheat crop was also valued at more than its gold.

Hornets Nose-Out Jonesboro 16-12 To Win Basketball Championship

Gatesville High School Hornets carry the banner of the county in the District Tournament in Waco after edging out an accurate shooting air tight guarding quintet from Jonesboro in the final game on the Turnersville gym floor Saturday night 16-12.

Walsh star forward of the entire series with three personal fouls hanging like the "sword of Demosthenes" over his head before the half was skittish about the fourth which slowed him up considerably thereby making the Hornet's chances look considerable better. Jonesboro lead at the end of the half 8-7, but the figures soon changed and the Hornets kept a commanding lead thru most of the last period.

It was first Jonesboro 2; then 4, then Gv. 2, Jboro 2 more Gv. 2, Jboro 2, then on a foul Gv. got 1, and anyway, the half ended 8-7 Jonesboro.

In the second spasm with the fourth foul hanging over Walsh the score see-sawed but the Hornets finally went in the 15-12 and Newland with one shot at the basket on a foul making the grand tee-total 16-12. Extreme caution featured the entire contest and the proverbial caution was never thrown to the wind.

Coach Bill Henderson of Baylor University handled the tourney well without fouling too much to allow a little action. He was ably assisted by Vaughan Junior College transfer who is ineligible for the Bear squad at the university.

Other Games

Starting off the festivities Jonesboro and Ireland put on a great fracas with Jonesboro coming out with 51 per cent no more no less the old game ending 11-10 Jonesboro. It must have been a grand opener. We missed this one.

Turnersville outclassed Flat judging from the score to end the second round of the tourney 27-17. We missed this one too.

Next Pearl lashed out and the Hornets had to extend themselves more than the score indicates to take Pearl by a 27-count. Jack Petty Pearl's outstanding guard stopped plenty scoring.

Copperas Cove defaulted to Oglesby evidently on account of distance because Oglesby in the Gatesville Oglesby game didn't show much. We understand they have been working only a short time as their brand new gym is just now finished.

2nd Round

Saturday's games featured the hectic Jonesboro-Turnersville battle which was the stand out of the meet barring none. Jonesboro set the house afire the first half leading Turnersville by a very safe (it looked then) margin but Turnersville thought different and played the same way. With about four minutes to go the score was tied. Mack Humes of the Buffaloes doing the basketing and only an over anxious Turnersville team that made too many fouls kept the final score from going north instead of northwest. "Deadshot" Walsh made the free ones count and the score ended 19-17 Jonesboro.

The other semi-climax was the Hornets-Oglesby pushover with everyone but "Lasses" Anderson and the scorer the Hornets winning 50-11. This is no reflection whatsoever on Oglesby's fighting team because they've been handicapped by no place to play. Next year'll be different with the material they have.

High point men for each game are: Ireland-Jonesboro Glass 5; Walsh 9; Turnersville-Flat Humes 9 Donaldson 5; Gatesville-Pearl Gilbreath 9; Medart 4; Turnersville-Jonesboro Humes 10 Walsh 15; Gatesville-Oglesby Turner 10; Sims and Powell 4 each; Gatesville-Jonesboro Newland 5; Walsh 6.

Walsh leads in scoring with a 30 and Humes of Turnersville follows next with 19. Gilbreath showed only 9 but was jerked during the easy games and covered during the hard ones. Turner of Gatesville was high man for the Hornets with 10 Gilbreath following with 9.

This tournament according to Supt. Vorigil Jones was successful in every way and squabbles were conspicuous by their absence. Cooperation teamwork and sportsmanship featuring the tournament. One bad feature was the defaulting of Copperas Cove to Oglesby which was regretted.

HORNETTES WIN ONE, DROP ONE WITH BEATTIE GIRLS

After a long trip to Beattie somewhere in Comanche county and with just enough time to change to their brilliant uniform before the afternoon game which

News All-County B. B. Selections, 1st and 2nd Teams

Here's the selections from what we have seen during the 1937-38 season:

1st Team

Gilbreath Hornets Center
Walsh Jonesboro Forward
Glass Ireland Forward
Adams Hornets Guard
Petty Pearl Guard

2nd Squad

Newland Hornets Forward
Humes Turnersville Forward
Huggins Jonesboro Guard
Arnett Pearl Center
Wallace Turnersville Guard

That's not may be the best selection especially the 2nd team but we don't believe the could be handled by any two teams in the county. Some more of the boys from Ireland look mighty good on one of these teams but the 2nd string material is not much different anywhere in the county and several good seconds could be named and not use a man in these selections. This is not so in the matter of the All-County first string.

Other Highlights

We'll have to hand it to Sellers of the Jonesboro aggregation. He operates mostly on one leg having been a victim of infantile paralysis and is a remarkable player for his condition. His formerly effected leg weaken on him in pinches but he's a fighting heart and turned in some stellar games—enough so that he's hard to keep off the No. 2 team.

Two other handicapped players were Turner of the Hornets one of the smaller better players who is a loop ringer and then there is McDonald of Jonesboro who limpingly played a bang up game in the finals for Jonesboro and we imagine with considerable pain handicapping him—he had a very noticeable limp.

they dropped 34-43. The night game was a reversal the Hornets outpointing the Beattie Beauties 29-24.

That broke up a wonderful record made by the Hornets being the first they dropped in 39 starts with the score for the Hornets as follows: Hornets 1002; Opponents 373.

Beattie is the first team according to the information that has taken the Hornets into camp.

HORNETTES BEATEN 44-34

The Hornets were finally toppled from their undefeated perch by an inspired sextette of Beattie lassies 44-34 Friday nite at Beattie. Nabors captain and star forward of the Beattie outfit did almost all the scoring for the winners.

The Hornets missed the services of Madylene Patterson who was unable to make the trip. Her absence caused Coach Schwarz to lift Margaret Weaver who is a defense within herself to forward and the Beattie girls slammed their way thru the weakened Gatesville defense to make enough points to defeat the Hornets soundly.

All the Hornets was badly off form except Red Eubanks and her brilliant play was not enough to turn the tide.

- For Commissioner, Beat 4: OAD PAINTER (2nd Term)
- For Justice of the Peace: A. SHIRLEY (Re-election)

Colorado, once a magnet for goldseekers, produced in 1937 more tame and wild hay than it did gold. Its wheat crop was also valued at more than its gold.

Frank Wilson—

near Pancake in 1919 Mr. Wilson was employed at Morton Scott, House Furnishers and had earned the esteem of both Mr. Scott, his employees and citizens of this trade territory.

Surviving Mr. Wilson are his wife and three daughters: Mrs. Joe Wyatt of Dallas Mrs. R. E. West of Gatesville and Miss La Vern Wilson also of this city. He also has three sisters Mrs. George Sellers of Gatesville; Mrs. Short Weaver of Rule and Mrs. Jennie Pruitt; and two brothers Cass Wilson and Bennie Wilson of Ft. Worth.

Pall bearers were: Robt. W. Brown, Roy Pennington, Carl McCleendon, Mat Jones, Robt. Scott, Kit Carson, Will Guggolz and Oscar Weaver.

Oglesby Gym—

C. H. Graham to thank the people for their fine cooperation that made it possible for Oglesby to have this fine addition to the school buildings and to voice appreciation for the presence of all visitors Mr. Rucker also stressed the importance of choosing young people to teach them the importance and dignity of work rather than to teach them an easy way thru life. Mr. Rucker's closing remarks presented the Hon. R. B. Cross Judge of the 52nd Judicial District.

Judge Cross was the chief speaker of the evening. In his entertaining and scholarly way he told several humorous stories and with these toned the audience for a line of deeper and more serious thought.

Judge Cross' business is suppression of and judging criminals and naturally his talk ran along lines that should be helpful in eliminating crime from society. Judge Cross called upon people to think not only in terms of community or county or state or nation but in international terms that crime may be blotted from all social units that bind humanity in a homogenous whole.

Rendering some very choice musical numbers and continuing long after other activities had ceased was Mr. Alf Kreyer's famous orchestra of McGregor. —The Oglesby Outlook.

ARE YOU ONLY A 3/4 WIFE?

MEN because they are men can never understand a three-quarter wife—a wife who is all love and kindness for three weeks of the month—but a hell-cat the fourth. And make up your mind men never will understand. There are certain things a woman has to put up with and be a good sport. No matter how your back aches—no matter how loudly your nerves scream—don't take it out on your husband. For three generations one woman has told another how to go “smiling through” with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood into womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching “middle age.” Don't be a three-quarter wife. Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and go “smiling through.” Over a million women have written in reporting benefit. Why not give this world-famous medicine a chance to help YOU?
