★ YOUNG W. LEE IS IN JUSTICE OF PEACE RACE

Added to the ever growing list of candidates for the coming democratic primary, is the name of Young W. Lee of Gatesville, who is definitely "cut for" and "in" the Justice of The Peace race.

Mr. Lee is widely known over the county having been agent for daily papers in the county and has consciously or unconsciously done lots of 'campaigning' during the last few years.

As yet, we have no "statement to the Voters", but imagine one will be forthcoming.

Hornets and Pearl Tangle in Dual Meet Today at Pearl

The Hornet track and field team will meet an experienced squad of Pearl Dragons in a dual track meet at Pearl this afternoon at two o'clock with Gatesville favored to come out on top.

Jack Petty, who topped large first places in the Dragon's meet with Ireland last week, will be the Hornets' chief stumbling block. This boy won the 100 and 440 yard dashes in the county meet last year, and promises to do the same this year. The Hornets, with Zack Fore on the job, should take the half mile and high hurdles, and Joe Ned Brown should cop first in the low hurdles and a close second in the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Hornet's Newlin or Weaver should take the mile, Alvis Ingram and James W. L. over will probably finish one-two in the pole vault, while Lester Williams, Harry Voss, and Roy Adams should cop the first three places in the shot put. Gilbreth will take the discus throw, while Neal Hensley should take the javelin throw. Nothing is

TOM ROBINSON TO ADDRESS THE BAPTIST

Tom L. Robinson a local lawyer, will be the chief speaker on the women's program at the Baptist church Tuesday, March 22 at 3 o'clock. He will discuss "Rights", a subject preparatory to the study in stewardship, John Simpson's "He That Giveth" to be taught by Mrs. Ercell Brooks. Chapter I, The Church Member's Responsibility in Giving Service and Money to the Church will be stressed in this first lesson.

The local church will be compared with a dress factory in explaining the responsibility of the capitalist, the laborer, the customer, raw material, machinery, and the advertising department to the factory (the church) and their obligation to one another in manufacturing the commodity, a Christian garment that gives to its wearer physical comfort, mental nourishment, moral guidance, and spiritual uplift. The purpose of this first lesson is to impress upon church members that it is well that they say to themselves! "So live so work, and so give that when their summons comes to give an account of their stewardship, they can give it with joy, and not with regret!"

JACK TIPPIT'S FOURTH BIRTHDAY

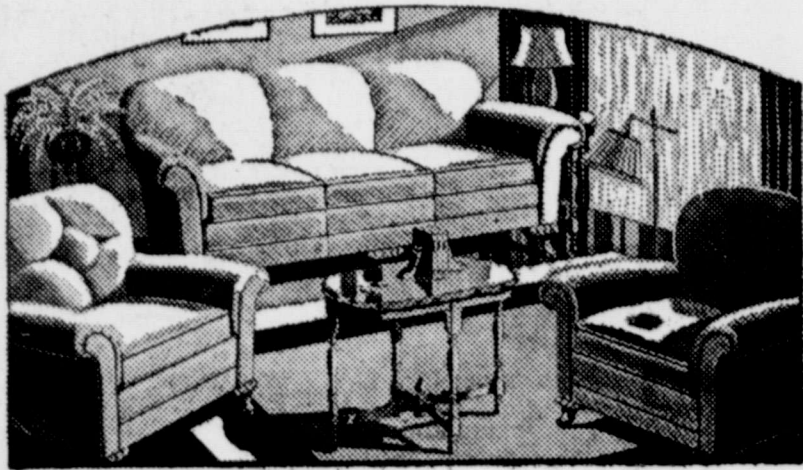

About thirty five little friends enjoyed the fourth birthday of Archie Jack Tippit at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Tippit, on Friday, March 11th, at 2:30 o'clock. All about the room were Easter nests, rabbits, spring flowers and pastel streamers which adorned the ceiling and doorways. The cake on the dining room table was a pretty confection in pink, green and white with four candles in rose holders. A large beautifully decorated basket of presents brought by his neighbors and friends were opened and admired by all the little folk. Games such as, "Hopping Races," "Pinning Bunny's Tail" hunting snakes and Easter eggs caused the afternoon to pass by too quickly; the games were under the direction of Mrs. Tippit and Mrs. Violet Beiter, primary teacher in the Flat School. Kodak pictures were made for Jack's memory book and was also a pleasant diversion. Dainty refreshments of pink and white cups cakes and fruit punch were served by Mrs. Tippit assisted by Mesdames Doc Brazzil and M. A. Webb, to the following children: Billy Rogers Clawson, Floyd Bruton, David McGee, Richard Penny, Carmoleta Hancock, Nova Clawson, Lula Fay Short, Lola Jean Hancock, Vergie Phillips, Edwald Altum, Christine Jones, Alton Lee Netherlin, Ernest Hewitt, Dorothy Mae Netherlin, Imogene Clawson, Curtis Fuller, Janet Poe, Marion Lucky, Yvonne McCutcheon, Hazel Ayres, Helen Holt, Billy Lamb, June Glass, Janice Fay Geiselbrecht, Ila Christine Glass, Creston Brazzil, Polly Anna Clawson, Sandra Cross, Fino Tippit, Bob Webb, Barbara Jean Glass, Bobby Arnold Jr., of Gatesville, Tommy Black of Port Arthur, and the little host, Jack Tippit. Others enjoying the delightful occasion were Mesdames Carl Clawson, Ollie Corroll, Thomas Glass, M. A. Webb, Doc Brazzil, T. A. Botkin, of Hubbard, Mike Allen of Port Arthur, Bob Arnold of Gatesville, Bernie Brazzil and Dan Cross; Misses Violet Beiter and Alleen Yett and the hostess, Mrs. Archie Tippit.

"PENNE D" SHOTS

By LARIATIN' LOU

Center of attraction this week, of course, is the "teaser" talk locally are getting in a "nearby settlement" (Ft. Worth) Stock Show and Rodeo.

This show is just a "preliminary" to the ultimate in Rodeo to be held here June 3-4. C. O. D. (Come on down, Ft. Worthians and see a big show.

"Hands" who left our little city this week for the "big time" in Ft. Worth are in the "Personal" column of the Noos. If you went and your name's not there, it must be your fault.

"The Lords That Be" for the local show are making extended efforts to get premier performers for the 3-4, and Jack Hoey, Lucky Strike's only worry on "chanting" will be here to call the shots for the Rodeo, same as last year.

Mary Keen, trick rider and bulldogger of the feminine variety is being approached by "Doc" Spence in an effort to sign her for the 1938 show.

C. of P. Frank Farquhar "went western" in Ft. Worth Wednesday, where the "wild west begins" and came back with a pair of high-beeled toe-pinchers.

Other repeats who gave their words they would be here for the 1938 "sell-out" are Tack Bolton and Royce Sewalt.

"Doc" Spence is scouring SW Texas looking for "salty" broncs which ain't as much as had a rope over their necks.

SPRING

SPRING! A World of Beauty, unveiled from a drab panorama of darkened hues Winterized by cold and darkness of a dying and deadened foliage—an awakening which comes to life, suddenly as if by magic, to unfold its tender beauties upon a waiting eager world! That's SPRING!

SPRING! A time when poesy, poetry, the sentimental, the lovely, the young in everything is paramount! A rising spirit and influence that permeates the entire being and makes one young and hopeful in spite of probable imaginary adversity.

SPRING! Butterfly time, fishing, birds,—a paradise and riot of color, youth, imagination, and the entire scale of lovely and animated feelings and beauties, are carefully unfolded before the senses, as only Mother Nature can do it!

There will be 300 trench silos in Coryell County in 1938. Will you be one of the 300?

The women are canning food for the family and now the men are canning feed for the livestock. The trench silo is the method being used. Putting feed in the trench silo to be saved for future use is a proved practice.

Up-to-date suggestions and discussions will be given at the following meeting by G. G. Gibson, Assistant Dairyman, Extension Service, A. & M. College and J. W. Ridgeville, District Superintendent of the Borden Company, San Antonio.

March 21st, Monday, 7:30 p. m., Purnela, School Building.
March 23rd, Wednesday, 7:30
p. m., Plainview school building
March 24th, Thursday, 7:30 p. m., Turnersville school building.
March 25th, Friday 7:30 p. m., Gatesville District Court room.

A talkie picture bringing out most interesting phases of farm life will be shown as a part of these trench silo programs. The entire family will enjoy this picture. The information contained therein and the suggestions brought out in the discussions dealing with trench silos and their applicable use on your farm will make it most profitable for you to attend.

Arrangements have been made with machinery operators to dig the trenches for those interested at a very nominal cost. Plans are under way for a portable ensilage cutter to be available, as well as row binders to harvest the crop to be used for ensilage.

The constructing, the filling, and the use of trench silos is applicable to the largest livestock land in the country as well as the smallest producer in the county.
Trench silos are in operation with the capacity ranging from one ton to several thousand tons.

Attendance at these trench silo meetings will be educational as well as profitable.

Other meetings in other parts of the county will be held at a later date.

WORLD COMMENT

Joe Burns

The Nazification of Austria is now a fact.

The "anschluss" or union of the two Teutonic states has been consummated at long last without war and with little bloodshed. What the Allies sought for 20 years to prevent has been accomplished by a former Austrian housepainter and corporal in the German Imperial army.

One of Hitler's most cherished dreams and the cardinal point of the Nazi program is now a reality. With the resignation of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, who quit after threats of personal violence to his family and an ultimatum demanding his resignation or the invasion of Austria by German army units has gone the past prominent Austrian to oppose the union, either official or de facto, of the two countries.

The events leading to the final capitulation were among the most drastic and brutal in post-war European history. Certainly they were among the most portentous. Following the Berchtesgaden conversations between Hitler and Schuschnigg a few weeks ago, it remained a matter of controversy as to whether Hitler was actually in control of the situation in Austria. Schuschnigg was known to have made concessions, such as admitting five Nazis or Nazi sympathizers to the cabinet and liberating thousands of jailed Nazis, but, as is now known, he did not deliver Austria to Hitler hand and glove.

In a surprise move, Schuschnigg scheduled for last Sunday a plebiscite by which Austria would express its preference for independence or union with Germany. This action provoked the ultimatum from Hitler.

A high Austrian official, explaining the swift events, said: "A German envoy arrived in Vienna yesterday on behalf of Adolf Hitler and demanded that the Government cancel the plebiscite within one day or otherwise German troops would march into Austria."

The resignation of Schuschnigg precipitated a gigantic victory demonstration by thousands of Nazis in Vienna and other leading cities.

Dr. Arthur Seyss-Insuart, who was appointed to the cabinet after the Berchtesgaden conversations, is now Austrian chancellor. Working under direct command of Hitler, Dr. Seyss-Insuart ordered the Austrian army not to oppose any German troops who might cross the border.

Signifying the final degradation of Austria's sovereignty, Field Marshal Herman Wilhelm Goering and Rudolph Hess, deputy leader of the Nazi party, came to Vienna from Berlin to aid in the Nazi victory celebrations.

What is the significance of the loss of Austrian independence to the world at large? Contrary to the impression left by many of the black headlines in American newspapers, war is not imminent in Europe.

Hitler assumed control of Austria with full knowledge that no major power would interfere with his scheme. France is impotent under serious social, political and financial problems which make it imperative that she avert war at any cost short of actual loss of independence.

Italy, tied to Hitler's apron strings by treaty, is too involved in Ethiopia, which is still resisting the Fascist conquerors and in Spain to risk opposing Hitler. Britain, too, is pursuing the motto of peace at any reasonable price. British youths will not fight to maintain the independence of any European states other than France and Belgium. This they have repeatedly reiterated. Britain statesmen are aware of this peace sentiment among those in the United Kingdom who would fight in a war today, and so is Adolf Hitler.

Tiny Austria has fallen, as did Ethiopia and Manchuria and as China is today succumbing to the hosts of mighty Nippon.

The danger of war today lies not in the new tieup between Germany and Austria. If war comes, it will be because the appetite of Hitler for new territory, whetted by the Saar and the Rhineland and now Austria, is insatiable.

Nazi agitation for the political autonomy within Czechoslovakia or union with the Reich of the 3,000,000 Sudeten Germans, living on the western border of Czechoslovakia bids ill events in the future for the last remaining democratic state in Central Europe. Hitler will not stop with Austria. The state of the Czechs (Bohemians) and Slovaks will be next on the Nazi list—either to be swallowed in its entirety by the Third Reich or deprived of its citizens of German blood.

Who can stop Germany now? Will Czechoslovakia resist German encroachments? As stated before, therein lies the greatest menace to European peace and world peace today. Czechoslovakia is the only state in Central or Southeastern Europe who can and would fight Germany rather than submit to Nazi domination.

Peace has these factors on its side. No statesman and no people in Europe want war. Neither Hitler nor Mussolini will resort to war so long as he can achieve his aims for an expanded state by peaceful means. Hitler has won many victories since 1933—and all by peaceful means.

Germany has as much to lose today by war as has either France or Great Britain or Soviet Russia. Germany is growing today, and every new conquest makes the German state more powerful and capable of other and greater conquests. There are 100,000,000 or more Germans in Europe. About 78,000,000 of these now live in Germany or in areas under German domination, such as Danzig and Austria.

Hitler certainly has other and more fertile fields for conquest in his mind than Austria. For the conquest of Austria was more a move of sentimentality and strategy than actual increase of military or financial might. Austria is poor in resources and since the war has maintained itself with funds supplied by the Allies.

But Austria gives Hitler 7,500,000 people, at least 1,000,000 of whom are of fighting age. And Austria gives Hitler a wedge with which to intimidate Mussolini, who now must face the mighty Nazi legions at the Brenner Pass, and Yugoslavia and Rumania and all the other Danubian states.

Look at your map of Europe. Czechoslovakia is now virtually isolated by Nazi-controlled territory. Germany is now only a short distance from the Adriatic Sea, which until now has been controlled by Italy.

Inclusion of Austria within the Reich pretends the need of Italian influence in Europe. Mussolini must now turn to his conquest in Ethiopia and to other possible areas of conquest in Africa, perhaps Spain and the Near East.

For Central and Southeastern Europe is now responsive to one Adolf Hitler. Hitler is the most powerful figure in Europe today.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
 Returning from a marital vacation during which he played poker with his old gang (His wife, Lucy, was told he was in Florida.) Jerry Warriner finds that Lucy is not home. She returns with Armand Levelle, her handsome voice teacher. Returning from a dance, they explain, their car broke down and they stayed overnight at an inn. Jerry will not believe that their accident was entirely innocent and, in the heat of their argument, Lucy reveals that she knows about his deception regarding his supposed business trips. They agree to divorce and Lucy wins an interlocutory decree as well as the custody of their dog, Mr. Smith. Lucy meets and becomes interested in Dan Leeson handsome young Oklahoma oil magnate, who gives her a rush. Jerry meanwhile, has secured a court order permitting him to see the dog, Mr. Smith, two hours each week. Lucy announces that she and Dan Leeson are engaged and will be married as soon as the divorce decree becomes final.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.
Chapter Three

With their engagement settled, Lucy and Dan began a feverish round of theatres and night clubs, for Dan had never been to New York before and was anxious not to miss a thing. They wound up one night in one of the smaller clubs on Fifty-second Street and had hardly been shown to their table when Jerry Warriner came and smiled down at them.

"It's a small world, isn't it?" he said. "Lucy, I want you to meet a little friend of mine." Jerry turned to the vivid, platinum-haired girl beside him. "This," he announced, "is Toots Binswanger. Toots this is my wife, Mrs. Warriner and this is Dan Leeson the man she's going to marry."

Toots smiled and tried not to appear too bewildered by the introduction. Jerry signalled the waiter to bring more chairs. "We'll stay for just one little drink," he beamed, "to celebrate your engagement."

"You-all can stay, sugar," Toots said. "I must be getting back for my number." She smiled at Lucy. "Ah work here you see, an' it's almost time for me to go on. I'll be back as soon as I've finished." Toots nodded brightly and hurried off.

"Charming girl, isn't she?" Lucy commented.

"Does she sing well?" Dan asked. "Well, her singing isn't up to Lucy's," Jerry said gallantly. "But there's something more to Toot's work — a sort of elfin charm — a je ne sais quoi, if you see what I mean."

"I think I do," Dan said. "These Southern women have a sort of natural grace and Toots — I mean Miss Binswanger — is —"

"Exactly," Jerry beamed. "But enough of Toots. Tell me about yourselves." He turned to Lucy. "So you're going to live in Oklahoma? How I envy you! Oklahoma!" Jerry closed his eyes ecstatically. "Lucy, your a lucky girl. Is it to be Oklahoma City?"

"Tulsa," Dan interposed. Jerry was even more enthusiastic. "Ah, Tulsa. Peace at last, Lucy. Trail's End and Kismet. No more knocking around from one night club to another of an evening, no miserable prowling in New York shops. I shall think of you on every opening night and I shall say to myself, 'She's well out of it.'"

Leeson, unaware that Jerry was "ribbing" Lucy, nodded approvingly. "New York," he said, "is fine for a visit but —"

Jerry and Lucy joined in the chorus in unison: "But I wouldn't want to live here." Dan looked at them, bewildered. Lucy turned to Jerry.

Toots smiled warmly in their direction. She was wearing the costume of a belle of the Civil War days with a little plumed hat, lace panties, hoop skirt and she carried a tiny parasol. Toots began her song in a small, sweet voice. At the end of the first chorus Toots removed her bonnet and tossed it with her parasol, aside. She continued to sing and then, with another graceful movement, she stepped out of her dress — hoop skirt and all. Jerry turned and smiled at Lucy.

"Cute isn't she?" he asked and she started to applaud again. Toots turned toward their table — she was now wearing only a flimsiest of panties and a brassiere — and shook her finger roguishly at Jerry.

"There," Jerry said triumphantly, "that's what I mean by elfin charm."

Dan, who had been watching the performance, aghast, recovered his breath. His eyes were popping as he watched Toots. "Why never in all my born days," he began. "She can't possibly —"

"She can't, huh?" Jerry asked. "You watch!"

At that moment two burly, rough-looking men walked out on the floor. "Hold it, sister," one of them said.

"Oh — oh!" Jerry shook his head. "The voice of the law."

As the detectives led the protesting Toots from the floor Lucy turned and smiled sweetly at Jerry. "What ever will you do with the next sixty days?" she asked.

"Don't worry about me," he assured her. "I'll do all right."

The next afternoon Jerry met with Lucy and Dan Leeson, as he had promised, to discuss the sale of their coal mine. They had not been talking long when they were joined by Leeson's mother, an austere, forbidding looking woman obviously bending every effort to improve her social prestige. This afternoon she was unusually dour. When she had been introduced to Jerry she turned to her son, questioning.

"Warriner?" she asked. "Did you say Warriner?"

Dan nodded and looked slightly uncomfortable.

"But isn't that Lucy's name, also?"

"Yes, Mother," Dan explained patiently. "This is Lucy's — er — former husband. We're discussing a business proposition."

Mrs. Leeson turned to Jerry. "I'm very glad to meet you, young man," she said. "I had tea today with some people who knew you both before your divorce. They spoke very well of you," she added significantly. Then she turned to Lucy.

"There was a woman at this tea, Lucy," she said, "who stated rather bluntly that Mr. Warriner here played a gentleman's role in permitting you to divorce him. Do you understand what I mean?"

"Whoopee!" Jerry exulted. "Some one thinks I'm a gentleman."

"I'm sure Mr. Warriner will welcome the opportunity to blast the silly story I heard this afternoon," Mrs. Leeson said. "Briefly, it is this: A woman said that Mr. Warriner permitted you, Lucy, to divorce him so that your reputation wouldn't be ruined. It had something to do with an episode involving a handsome voice teacher." Mrs. Leeson scowled at Jerry. "Mr. Warriner," she demanded, "what have you to say to that?"

Jerry looked at her soberly. "The woman was potty," he said. "Our divorce was one of those domestic tragedies you read about. A trusting woman and a worthless man. I was never good enough for Lucy and — well — one day she found it out. That's all there was to it. Lucy is above suspicion and always has been."

What is the foreign policy of the United States?

It is impossible to formulate a logical answer to that question. The American people do not know that the foreign policy of their government is. Neither is. Neither does the Congress, nor the President.

The most frequent answer made to such a question—certainly a logical one—is that the foreign policy of the U. S. is one of abstinence from foreign affairs. Yet American mines and warships are still in Chinese waters and in the Asiatic war zones. And the American flag is still flying in the Philippines, 9,000 miles away and entirely out of the sphere of American influence.

Truth of the matter is that the United States has no fixed foreign policy. The American people are so radically and decisively divided over the question of this government's participation in foreign questions that it is impossible for the Secretary of State to follow any fixed, enunciated policy.

The President at Chicago made a frank bid for cooperation among the world democracies, meaning France, Great Britain and the United States. He suggested that the dictatorships be "quarantined." Undoubtedly a large section of public opinion supported him in this stand. But the isolationists attacked the proposal as one likely to involve us in European entanglements.

The British and French were visibly disappointed. But the President was forced by public opinion to abandon his proposal.

Now the President proposes to so increase the strength of the army navy and air force that no foreign power will attack us or our possessions. Here to fore armament programs have been heartily endorsed in congress when the cry of unpreparedness was raised. But serious opposition has arose against the billion dollar armament bill, and although the measure will likely be passed, the opposition demonstrates the lack of a needed unanimity of opinion on the part of the people as to our foreign policy.

Under such conditions, the Administration must deal in generalizations in all its foreign relations and pursue the same policy informing the people as to our affairs abroad. Our policy at best must be one of blundering along, hoping for the best, and lending what subtle help we can to the democracies in their life and death struggle against dictatorship.

The results of such a policy can best be seen by reviewing the record of Britain's foreign policy during this decade. Caught napping with an obsolete navy and inferior air force, Britain, willfully or otherwise, permitted the conquest of Manchuria, Ethiopia and now Austria to proceed without interference.

Even now British foreign policy is uncertain. Prime Minister Chamberlain condemned the annexation of Austria by Germany in strong language before the house of Commons, but specifically refrained from pledging help to Czechoslovakia in the event of a forceful attack by Hitler.

France will fight to protect the Czechs. But the democratic front is weakened by the lack of a definite policy on the part of Chamberlain's government.

How is America to meet the dangers of Fascism if France and thin Britain fail before the ever-widening group of Fascist states? South America would be the prey of land-hungry Europe if Fascism succeeds in sweeping all before it. Then we should find it necessary to fight.

There is a growing sentiment among thinkers and writers that the U. S. should collaborate with Britain and France in opposing the Fascist states. It is maintained that we should establish our first line of defense against Fascism on the shores one Europe instead of in South America or in the Atlantic. Whether this sentiment will find expression among the people and in a new foreign policy by this government no one can foretell.

But certainly this is a time for deep thought on the part of the people. Events are now transpiring in Europe which will make history hundreds of years from now. History is truly in the making—the most momentous and potentially dangerous history of since the world war.

Dear Friends:

The House has just passed the so-called Revenue Act of 1938 or the Tax Bill. This measure is even longer and more complicated than the Farm Bill. As printed in the House the bill has 313 pages. It revises most of the Federal tax laws. The published record of the Committee's hearings on the bill contain 1215 pages of testimony. The bill was not passed for the purpose of providing new revenues but rather to 'improve our existing revenue system, to remove inequities, to equalize the tax burden, and to stimulate business activities'. It is expected that the bill just passed by the House will produce approximately the same amount of revenue as the present law, but it will tend to stabilize the revenue, balance our tax system and it is believed will substantially stimulate business.

There is no change in the proposed rates for individual income. There is an abandonment of the so-called undistributed profits tax that has hampered many small corporations. I favored relieving all but very large and very closely held corporations from this tax which I think has made it impossible for many lines of business to expand. I do not think that anyone should be able to avoid taxation by incorporation of his business and I am afraid that when the House adopted the so-called McCormack amendment that it went so far in an effort to relieve corporations that it gave some closely held corporations an unfair advantage over individuals. I voted against this amendment as I did against all amendments to hang excise or tariff taxes on imported goods. I did vote for an amendment to increase by 25 cents per gallon the Federal tax on hard liquors and the amendment carried.

The bill also gives some relief from capital gains tax and simplifies the Estate and gift taxes. It removes entirely a number of the nuisance taxes including the tax on tooth paste, chewing gum, toilet soap, etc. but does not remove all of the cosmetic taxes. It removes the tax on sporting goods, cameras, watches, etc. I hope that in the near future we can remove the remaining nuisance taxes and restore the two-cent postage rate.

The bill was far from perfect but it was necessary, as is true in most cases of complicated legislation, to accept it as a whole or reject it. This is one of the difficulties of a House with a large membership. Certainly if each one of the 435 members refused to support a measure because it did not in all respects agree with his views, we could never have any legislation. I, therefore, voted for the bill.

We had the largest snow of the winter here yesterday but today it was practically all melted. Things are not nearly so far advanced here now as they were when I was at home a month ago and we will all be happy to see the trees beginning to leaf out.

I am still receiving dozens of letters from people who are looking for jobs. I try to help our people all I can because I realize just how vital it is to the people who write even though it is impossible to secure for them what they want. I always like to reply to everyone who writes but it is surprising how many people do not sign their names and how many more do not give their addresses. Please folks, print your name and address on the letter (the envelope is likely to get thrown away).

Dr. T. O. Walton, President of A. and M. and Dr. Bennett, Head of the Soil Conservation Work were here this week and I met with them to try and push the location of a cotton use research laboratory in Texas. We have no promise but we feel very hopeful of securing this for our State.

Best Wishes to my friends.

The Golden Gate International Exposition on San Francisco Bay will open February 18, 1939, and will run for 288 days.
