Address; C. E. Alvis, Sr.
Closing Chapter Ceremony

GATESVILLE ONLY GETS .81 INCHES RAIN. HARMON, HAIL

Gatesville nearly got a "bye" on rain during the stormy period just past the amount being .81.

Reports from Harmon are that the rain there was approximately 2 inches, and that $200.00 damage was done to the school house all window panes being knocked out and the roof ruined. Hail stones were reported as large as hen's eggs. However, they might have been bantam's.

AUDIT BEING MADE OF CITY BOOKS BY WACO FIRM

Wilcox Accounting Firm of Waco, with Frank Wilcox as the auditor is at work making an audit of the City Books, according to Elland Lovejoy, City Secretary.

A standard accounting firm, and preferably, out of the city is used in this work in order to get the best report possible, without any favors being shown. This custom has been followed by all city administrations, it is reported.

POST COUNTY MEET HELD LAST NIGHT

Due to a tangle in the Declamation contests among the 7th and 9th grades declaimers of this county met at the court house last night to settle the count, since only Rural representatives could be sent to the district meet at Waco. As it stood before last night the entries had to be thinned out to find the representatives at Waco.

Schools concerned included: Spring Hill, Belcher, Newland, Harmon, Plainview and Peabody.

Two Elephant Towers will form the main entrance towers at the 1939 World's Fair.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

A SCOTCH soldier was in bad for not saluting an officer or something serious like that, and a court-martial ordered him to be taken right out and shot. The Scotchman asked for time out to count his money before he handed over his personal effects to be sent to his parents.

Well, they say that the last fellow that told this story had a Scotchman in his audience, and the Scotchman didn't laugh. He got up and said, "That's nae a true tale!"

So the story-teller told him no offense was meant and all that, and the Scotchman says, "Nay, it's nae the offense I'm mindin', but the story is false! Any Scotchman would know how much money he had wi-out pausin' to count it."

INTERESTED IN THE RANGE PROGRAM? REGISTER

All those interested in the 1939 Range program sponsored by the government are urged to register immediately at the County Agent Guy Powell's office. Inspectors will be making surveys and inspections immediately.

Those who took part in the 1937 program must register as well as those who did not.

PRESTON'S FEED MILL INSTALLS NEW MILL

Climaxing a recent trip to Dallas and Ft. Worth, L. A. Preston of Preston's Feed Mill has just installed a new hammer mill in his plant which will handle in a better way feeds which are brought in for grinding.

Mr. Preston is continually improving the work of his plant in order to make the quality of feeds better.

LOCAL GINNERS ATTEND CONVENTION IN DALLAS

It's the Ginner's Convention in Dallas this week, with some $100,000 worth of new and improved ginning equipment being set up there to show the ginner's "how".

Among those from this county who are attending are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Powell who left early in the week, and Rufus Brown went up after "Tuesday".

Wyoming's World's Fair commissioner, meeting with Governor Leslie A. Miller, listed dude ranches, national parks, highways and the thrills of out door life in the mountains as probable themes of the state exhibit at the 1939 World's Fair on Treasure Island in San Francisco Bay.

Santo Domingo's President Rafael L. Trujillo wants a replica of the $4,000,000 lighthouse which marks the place of Columbus' first American landing, erected at the 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition to house his nation's exhibit.

We've a Camera, That Is, if You've Candid Shots!

It's still on! Tho, we can't say, we're covered with pictures!

Starting March 21, the News-Merchant's Candid Camera Free Contest, has continually struck bad weather.

But,— It's still on!

Take your pictures get a coupon out of the News, paste on the back, and bring to the News office and we'll get the fun started—more prizes will be added to that already offered by the Fox Company, and we'll have a "snappy" time.

Merchants interested locally are Mayes Studio & Radio Shop City Drug Store, Flentge Drug Store, Koen-Foster Drug Store, and the Gatesville Drug Store.

Last night's fire-works! Dog chewing a bone on the south side of the square, kids playing, scenic shots, public buildings, fake photos, there's a picture everywhere you turn. Be picture minded and get the picture! It's fun! You don't have to be an expert—the are none in this contest. One you have taken recently is liable to take a nice prize. Size, camera, or subject don't matter—getting a picture does!

	Ward 1	Ward 2	Total
Gandy	103	157	260
Lowrey	45	96	141
Alderman
Brown	148	251	399
Routh	148	251	399
Jackson	0	1	1
City Secretary
Lovejoy	148	252	400

In the entire count, only 400 votes were cast, whereas, in the previous election, there were 514 votes, the vote in the Mayor's race being:

	Ward 1	Ward 2	Total
Gandy	149	199	348
Lowrey	59	107	166

Indications are from these figures on both elections, that even if there was considerably less interest than previously, that "somebody got the vote out".

Safe it is to say, Mr. and Mrs. John Public have spoke, and that's that!

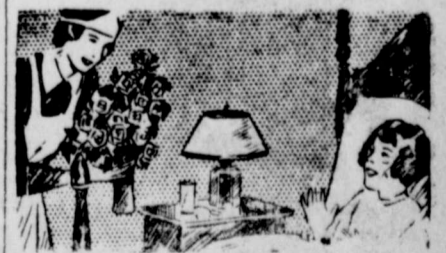

It is now 6:30 Friday night and the House is still in session. We are working on the Re-organization Bill but it will probably be next week before it is acted upon. This bill has created lots of discussion here and many members have been flooded with telegrams about it. Personally I don't feel that the bill is as important as some seem to think it is. I would like to see a number of Federal agencies abolished but I do not want to see all the present control of spending junked. There is little enough control of spending at present.

Of much more immediate importance to our people is the farm situation. Less than two months ago we passed a farm bill. Since its passage it has become evident that we should allow a little more cotton acreage to take care of "hardship cases". We, therefore, have before the House a bill that I discussed last week, which bill would give an additional 4 per cent of cotton acreage for use by the Committee in equalizing conditions. This measure is now back before the House for action on the Conference Committee report and it now includes a provision guaranteeing an allotment of at least 50 per cent of the planted and diverted acres (cotton) of 1937 to each farm, provided that the additional not does operate to raise the cotton acreage of any farm above 40 percent of that farm's tilled land. This Congress has taken another step to try to minimize the hardships that are inevitable under any restrictive bill. And in this case the passage of this bill will do more. It will in large measure remove the threat of "administrative areas". Administrative areas are a device whereby the Department of Agriculture had threatened to destroy the good effects of the bill which wiped out the old Historical Cotton Base and installed instead the tilled acres base. Congress intended to apply the same yard stick to every farm in the county but some of those who had profited by a large base while their neighbors who had diversified, were penalized succeeded in getting in a very innocent looking clause providing for the establishment of administrative areas where the Secretary and the county Committee decided they were needed. The trouble was that the Congressman W. R. Poage today announced that the Department of Agriculture had given him assurance that they would reinstate their original orders which would allow farmers to plant sweet sorghum and millet on neutral acres.

Congressman W. R. Poage had brought the subject up on the floor of the House of Representatives earlier in the day and had secured a statement from Representative Marvin Jones, Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture in answer to Poage's questioning that the Department of Agriculture "ought to correct the mistake", which Poage contended had been made.

The regulations first issued by the Department of Agriculture allowed the growth of sorghum and millet and subsequently after most farmers in Central Texas had already planted or prepared to plant sorghum and millet, the Department of Agriculture issued orders revoking their original regulations permitting this. Considerable confusion resulted due to the fact that farming operations in Central Texas had progressed to the point where farmers were for all practical purposes unable to comply with the changed regulations. This last ruling of the Department of Agriculture has the effect of reinstating the original orders and Poage said that this would be a great help to all Texas farmers as the acreage allotted to feed crops in Texas under the 1938 agricultural program is very small. Poage said that one of the most important features of a sound agriculture program should be the production of all necessary feed at home. He pointed out that most Central Texas counties would be unable to do this on the 'general crop' or 'feed' allotment made this year unless they were allowed to utilize the neutral acres for sorghum, millet and sudan grass. Central Texas farmers can not grow clover, timothy or other hays that are available to farmers in the Eastern States, Poage said and this action of the Department of Agriculture in permitting Central Texas farmers to plant sorghum and millet on their neutral acres should prove of real benefit to them.

GATESVILLE PEOPLE ATTEND FUNERAL IN JONESBORO

A number of Gatesville citizens were present at the funeral rites held in Jonesboro for Emmett McAnelly of Alvord, formerly of Hamilton County and father of Wyliss McAnelly. Mr. McAnelly was a brother to C. P. McAnelly of Jonesboro. He was buried in Dullman's Cemetery Wednesday morning.

Among those from Gatesville who attend the services were: Mr. and Mrs. Turk Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Rufe Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Dan E. Graves and Mrs. White also Mr. and Mrs. H. J. White of Arnett.

THEO FLENTGE ENTHUSIASTIC SOIL COOPERATOR

Theo Flentge, a Cooperator with the Soil Conservation Service at their Gatesville camp, has been seriously bothered with the problem of seepy land on his farm. For the past several years he has been experimenting with a system of sub-drainage, using troughs made of 1'x4' lumber layed underground from 12 to 18 inches deep.

He had been able to cultivate this wet area about 50 per cent of the time, while the lumber was new, but these wooden troughs have rotted out to the extent that they are not effective, after about three years. When Mr. Flentge had no sub-drainage in effect, he was able to cultivate the wet area about one year out of every five.

Mr. Flentge was so satisfied with the sub-drainage system that he purchased a large quantity of sewer tile last year for the purpose. However, the camp plans called for terraces above and through these seepy places and he decided to wait until terrace construction was complete before laying the tile.

The past winter has been an exceptionally wet season, and he has not yet laid the tile on this area, but Mr. Flentge has been able to prepare his land for this year's crops earlier than in several years. He stated that surface drainage by proper terracing has proven more valuable and more effective toward eliminating the seepage than sub-drainage, and he does not intend to place the tile for sub-drainage, as he feels that it will be unnecessary in the future.

Mr. Flentge is one of several farmers in the Gatesville area that have found this to be true about terracing seepy areas. Wet weather seeps are more prominent in this area than in most parts of the state, and most farmers will find that, for this season alone proper terrace systems will prove very valuable.

BELL AND CORYELL SINGING CONVENTION HELD SUNDAY

The Bell and Coryell County Singing Convention was called to order Sunday Morning, April

Poage Letter

State Committee which was not mentioned in this provision undertook to order the division of counties without regard to the righteous and indignant protests of the local committees and the people, simply that the same old group of large plantation farmers who have so long grown cotton to the door step might continue to enjoy an advantage over the little homeowner or third and fourth man who had diversified. I immediately protested such high-handed action. I recognize that any law, no matter how good, can be ruined by bad administration. I wish that we could write a requirement into the law that they do even-handed justice to all farmers of a given county. But I was not on the conference Committee that brought in the report I, therefore, did the next best thing. Last night, I talked to the Administrator of the the Southern Region. I asked that he give me assurance in writing that if the bill was passed establishing the 40-50 rule I have described that the department would abandon its effort to divide the counties. He has furnished me with a copy of a letter addressed to the Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture (Mr. Jones) bearing date to day, April 1, 1938 in which he says "If the amendments now pending to the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 are passed, much of the need for administrative areas will be relieved, and it will be the policy to establish such areas only in counties where they can be satisfactorily agreed upon by the county committees and others in the county who would be materially affected."

This I think will have the effect of securing for the farmer, at least some of the relief that Congress intended that he should have.

We have not, however, solved the problem of increased farm income. I have pointed out many times that we must very greatly increase the price or the reduction of acreage would greatly reduce the income of our people and INCOME is the thing in which we are finally interested. It was in an effort to secure a practical means of securing increased farm income that I introduced a bill last fall guaranteeing a parity price on the domestic portion of the crop (7,500,000 bales at 20 cents per pound would have brought $750,000,000.) This measure would have imposed no control of acreage or price of export cotton brought not one cent of the South would have had a fifty per cent greater income than 11,000,000 bales at 9c will bring. It is, therefore, evident that in justice we must pay some kind of adjustment to the farmer. I do not think a processing tax desirable from many standpoints but it may seem to be the only practical method left and do not know that we can pass it. However, I shall support almost any method that holds out any prospect for increased cotton income and I shall, therefore support a processing tax if I have a chance.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES

May I express a personal word of appreciation for the very cordial manner in which the pastor and his family have been received by the church membership and many of the other church groups since we arrived in Gatesville. The manner in which the members of the church are busying themselves in the various departments of the preaching, training and teaching services of the church program is indeed gratifying. We sincerely trust and hope that the interest of all will be continually on the increase. Remember that as your pastor, I shall try at all times to give my best to the work and to be sure, each of you will intune give your best as we strive to carry on the Lord's program here. Let me say further that I am at your service at all times. We shall all strive to make the church-pastor relationship the most cordial of that experienced by any of us up to this time.

Special Sunday Evening Service

The service this Sunday evening will be given over entirely to the observance of the Lord's Supper. The hour will be the same, seven thirty, as usual. Let us be reminded that this is a very important occasion for the Master has given the command that this ordinance be observed in His honor and remembrance. If we are to be obedient to the command we must not fail at this point. It is incumbent upon each of us as members of His body to thus come together in remembrance of Him. The date of the Spring Revival is near at hand. Sunday April 24, is the opening date. You will be prayerful and busy as the time draws near and during the days we will put aside all other matters and devote ourselves to the "one thing needful". Brother Joe Trussel will be with us to direct.

New York.—Comes a warmish day and the sidewalk cafes rush out tables and chairs and a piece of portable hedge and there is always someone willing to sit and blow on numb hands while eating lukewarm lunch and drinking congealed coffee. But Spring must be here because the circus has moved into Madison Square Garden and Eighth Avenue and 50th Street are a swarm with kids who look longingly at Jack Dempsey's corner place, and we think it would be a swell idea if Jack would look out at them because they'd think it was a to pick the play of the season and when the lists are almost closed along comes a flurry of hits, "Whiteoaks" with Ethel Barrymore as the century old grandmother, "All The Living" which now that it is successful will take back the title they were afraid to give it "I Know Three Thousand Lunatics". Hat check girls take a nip off and hold a dance at the New Yorker. But you have to check your hat and coat just the same. And we're awaiting, the elbo room so named they say by Alexander Woolcott where stage folk and artists and poets and movie stars will go when everything else is closed and tell each other what they really think about each other. Spanis and Cuban atmosphere still clicks best in the night clubs and nearly every place has at least one entertainer with a Spanish label, but do not try to Habla Espanol because they don't teach it where it where they came from. To and fro; Lionel Stander at the Savoy Plaza bewildering the snootier set with his antics, Glenda Farrell lunching at the Algonquin, Gregory Ratoff patrolling back and forth in Park Avenue near the Waldorf. The coast mail tells us to wander dockwards to meet Spencer Tracy and the lady who collects the little gold statuettes for him, and if he knew the size of the reception he's going to get he'd try to sneak in the back pay; and the Gene Raymonds, The Missus, Jeanette MacDonald in case you won't remember, wire that they are coming by auto, so we don't know where to go to meet them they'll have to come and find us Jim Braddock's new place opens with the title "Inn Braddock's Corner". And we'll bet you did not know that Mary Pickford Rogers worked for a week as a honest to gosh reporter on a market skid in an echo of the Whitney jailing—Insiders claim the latest stock have gone skittish—rather than the result of Washington at war—Revolutions of the old, old silent films are packing them in—Especially the early Charlie Chaplin's and the Pearl White serial "Plunder" with a young unknown actor called Warren Kretch—who is now the sauve and sophisticated Warren William—And the biggest turnout ever lines fifth avenue, for the Army Day parade just 21 years from the day we entered the world's War—which means that a whole new crop of kids to whom the last war is only a history lesson or a movie feature are ready to march—only we hope they don't—The Broadway Parade.

WACO, April 6.—Seventy-five Baylor students completed scholastic work with an average of "A" or better during the winter term and merited a place on the coveted dean's list according to reports from the office of Dean E. N. Jones.

This number is an increase of 15 over that for the fall term. The list includes two law students, three graduate students, 16 seniors, nine juniors, 22 sophomores, and 25 Freshmen.

Included in this list is Jack Reesing, freshman student at the university, and son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Reesing of this city.

HORNET BASE BALLERS SPLIT SERIES WITH STATE, 15-3; 8-6

A Gatesville baseball nine, composed of local high school boys split a two-game series with the State Juvenile Training School taking the first game by the wide margin of 15-3, and dropped No 2 on a close 8-6 decision. Francis Rutherford hurled magnificent ball in the first game, the state collected only two singles off his delivery. The Hornets gave him plenty of runs by pecking away at two state moundsmen to score steadily. The State got three of their runs when Gregory overthrew third, letting two men score and another one got in on a walk, two stolen bases, and a single. Gilbreath lanky Hornet basketball and football star, pounded out a home run and two doubles to lead the hitting.

In the second game, Hinsley pitched good ball but he was to wild. During his five inning tenure of the hill he allowed 5 runs, struck out nine but walked eight. Hinsley held the state boys at bay the first four innings but in the fifth he blew wide open and allowed runs before he retired three men. Rutherford came back on the mound but the state lads scored three runs chiefly because of poor support.

Jack Hearn speedy little outfielder, turned in some sparkling defensive plays but his hitting was weak. In the last game Dale Britain, catcher got three for three and Fuzzy Voes hit a single and a double to lead the attack for the locals.

PLAY AT ATER

There will be a play at Ater Saturday night, April 9th. The play entitled, "Wild Ginger", will be staged by the Ireland Dramatic Club.

"PENNEDED" SHOTS

By
LARIATIN' LOU

There's nothing in sight now, but Gatesville and Coryell county welcome to the world, the Rodeo and Home Coming Exposition which will be held hereabouts June 3-4.

Right now, that "hot" (not when this is written) west side of the Arena has a "til-top" which will be a great relief to the fans who will be in attendance in the afternoon sessions.

Eiland Lovejoy, City Sec., Bob Saunders, Hugh Sanders and little J. R., went to Leon county (Center) the home of the Black-eyed Pea Festival and saw their recent Rodeo.

A deal has been made to use the rodeo horses from Huntsville, where they put on a free entertainment for the states "keptives".

Also, the humor which will grace the greensward comes from the rodeo conscious town of Belton.

Committees have been appointed and this Rodeo is coming to a "head" fast now that election is over, and all that.

Cost of the Tower of the Sun at the 1939 World's Fair of the West, central spire rising 400 feet above Treasure Island, will be over $1200 for each day it is viewed. The Exposition will run 288 days and the tower will cost $350,000 to build.

WORLD COMMENT

Joe Burns

Folling the discussion in this space last week of the responsibilities of voters and the obligation of voting, the writer under took research to uncover the opinions of others on the same general topic.

Dr. Frederick A. Ogg, professor of political science in the University of Wisconsin, author of numerous textbooks on American government and history, contributes this comment upon the topic discussed in the last column.

We consider it pertinent enough to quote from his new book, "Essentials of American Government," written in collaboration with Dr. P. Orman Ray, professor of political science in the University of California.

"How actively do those of our people to whom it falls, as voters, to supply the control which our system of government contemplates accept the responsibilities involved? Thereby hangs a somewhat dismal tale. The census of 1920 showed the total population of the continental United States to be 105,710,620. Of this great body of people, somewhat more than fifty-four millions were citizens of twenty-one years or over. Of this latter number, many (no one knows precisely how many) were, of course, ineligible to vote, because of inability to meet the qualifications imposed in their respective states.

"When, however, it is noted that in the presidential election of the year mentioned only a little over twenty-six and one-half million men and women voted for any candidate for the highest office in the land, we come upon one of the most discreditable, aspects of our political life. Many of the non-voters had failed to register; many who had registered neglected to go to the polls; many who went to the polls voted only for certain offices and not for all. In 1924—notwithstanding unusual effort to 'get out the vote'—the proportion was almost exactly the same as four years previously.

"On the other hand, the exceptionally spirited Hoover-Smith campaign of 1928 yielded a popular vote for president of over thirty-six and one-half millions, out of a total electoral registration of slightly more than forty-three millions; and the almost equally lively Hoover-Roosevelt campaign of 1932 brought out a vote of thirty-nine and three-fourths millions, out of a registration of some forty-seven and one-half millions. Nevertheless, to the nearly eight million voters who did not go to the polls in the last-mentioned year must be added considerably more than twenty million men and women of voting age who were not even registered.

"The reasons for this quantitative inefficiency—not pholly connected with qualitative shortcomings as well—are many. A quarter of a million men and women are non-voters because of having no legal residence outside of the District of Columbia. Large numbers at every election, especially in the cities, are debarred because of not having resided long enough in the State or election district. Ten or more Southern states, to all intents and purposes have but one party (Texas, for example.—JB) and because of the lack of genuine contests, together with the disyield an exceedingly small vote. Many voters in all parts of the country are prevented from casting their ballots by bad weather illness, or other legitimate reasons; although it should be noted that the enactment of absent voting laws in nearly all of the states has largely removed one great obstacle of earlier days, i. e., absence from the voting precinct.

"To some extent voters are discouraged or thwarted by legal too great crowding at the polls, too short hours for voting and of course non-registration. To some extent, they are deferred by belief that their vote would not effect the result, by fear that employers or others will find out how they voted, by dislike of woman suffrage (shared by both men and women), disgust with politics and parties, or even by scorn and political action generally.

"After all allowances are made however one is tempted to surmise that the most common cause is no one of these things, but simple indifference and inertia, and an extensive first-hand study of non-voting in the city of Chicago bears out this opinion. So common is there is indifference toward a particular election only. This more often it extends to election generally and the Chicago investigation shows it especially among younger, in poorer neighborhoods, and among housewives, but only slightly more so among people of foreign than among those of native birth.

"Whatever the reasons the stay-at-home vote has attained such proportions as to have attracted a great deal of attention; every important election bring a fresh round of remorseful and oratory discussion on the subject. Two main considerations, however are always to be borne in mind. The first is that, contrary to very general assumption, there is no particular virtue in mere number of votes. Most get-out-the-vote efforts begin and end in the attempt to induce men and women to go to the polls, regardless of whether they know anything about the issues or the candidates. The thing to be aimed at is not simply voting but intelligent and interested voting; and energy spent upon getting ballots into the hands of persons who are sufficiently informed to make intelligent decisions is misdirected. The second consideration is that the solution for the problem lies, not in dragging unwilling electors to the polls, but in gradually improving the electoral system and raising the tone of political life.

FRANK'S MARKET IS BURGLARIZED MON. NIGHT

Burglar or burglars entered Frank's Market Monday night of this week, gaining entrance by cutting the screen on one of the front doors.

The cash drawer was pilfered, and about fifteen dollars were taken. The combination on the safe was worked and the safe opened, but considerable money was overlooked in the safe, and a "lost purse" and small change was left in the cash register. No clues so far have been found it is said.

Not much work was done the first week, with practically no heavy scrimmages taking place.

ENLARGEMENTS

camera, and showed up too large in the finished picture. The negative was "masked" in making the enlargement so that only the head showed. Result: a much better picture.

When you get a good picture, enlarge it! Any good snap is better when it's big. Enlarging "opens up" the details—lets you see interesting things you didn't see before. And a large picture just naturally has more appeal to the eye. Give a person two pictures, equally good, and he will automatically look at the larger one first. Moreover, he will look at it longer.

Don't let small size or surplus material handicap your pictures. Any snapshot can be enlarged somewhat, and some, especially those made on fine-grained film, can be increased many times in size. Very likely you have pictures in your album right now, that, if enlarged, would be worth framing and hanging in the home. Try it. You may discover you're a better snaphooter than you thought!

John van Guilder

DO SOME of your pictures include too much—a lot of surplus background and material at top, bottom and sides that has little or nothing to do with the subject, and injures the picture effect?

Don't despair. Such pictures can be retrieved. Here's how: pick out the part you want, and have just that enlarged—to the size of the original print, or even larger.

For example, look at the picture of the little girl above. The head was the interesting part. Besides, her hands were too close to the Daughter's new Easter Rabbit—an intimate, revealing close-up. A portrait attachment lets you get close-ups like this. Note the sketch below.

IT WON'T be long now before the Easter Rabbit is prowling around the corners of the backyard, tucking brightly colored eggs and baskets of candy into snug, concealed spots. Shortly we will be seeing the annual Spring fashion parade to church, and yellow jonquils will be nodding in every breeze.

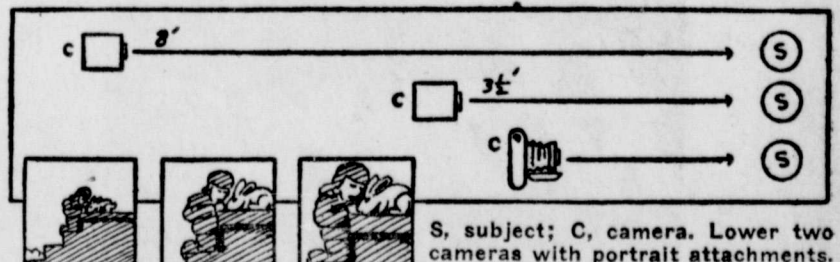

April 17 is Easter, and the question now is—have you your camera polished up and loaded, ready to memorialize that eventful day in pictures that you will treasure in later years?

There are dozens of pictures that can be made on occasions like this, and each one has memory value. You probably need new snapshots of members of the family—and will they pose enthusiastically when they have new Spring outfits to display! The children's Easter fun should be fittingly recorded—in intimate close-ups (a portrait attachment helps there) showing them with Easter baskets and the brown or fluffy white Easter bunnies they receive.

Make sure that you get an "off to church" picture, a snap of Mother picking or arranging the first bouquet of Easter flowers. Let your camera write the day's history. Don't include too much in each picture—keep your camera close, and get the little, interesting details that make a picture live! And when you put the pictures in your album, date each one. A memo of day and year gives added value to the family's picture-history book.

John van Guilder

With many cameras, you must be six to eight feet from your subject to get a picture. But slip a portrait attachment on the lens—and you get pictures at three feet six inches, or even nearer with some cameras. Result: big images of little subjects, and better pictures.

OPEN THE DOOR FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Open the door and make way for a little fellow who can spend his play hours on crutches and still smile.

This lad is one of thousands in the country who haven't received quite an even break physically, is coming in from a rather restrained romp to spend a little time with his books at a school for crippled children. It's time for geography and arithmetic.

You don't get that confident smile he is displaying from spending months in bed and looking forward to many more months on crutches. You don't get it from knowing the other kids are out playing baseball.

You get it from such simple things as the sun above and the flowers blooming outside the door and from the knowledge that someone cares and is doing something to help you along.

Thousands of youngsters, starting out with crippled bodies can tell you of the multitude of things which are being done to give them a better life. Thousands more are yet to be reached.

First there must be adequate facilities for treating the children and adults to give them the maximum use of their crippled muscles. There must be education—impossible thru normal channels. Adults require the aid of professional workers who can help in rehabilitation and vocational programs. Children need special education and helping hands to adjust them socially.

This is the season to help—the season when the brightly colored Seals of the International Society for Crippled Children and its State and local affiliates go on sale.

The Seals carry the message to all parts of the country. They provide money for carrying on this vital work, for interesting others in its accomplishments. The 1938 Seals bearing the slogan, "A Better Life for Crippled Children," go on sale here soon.

SYNOPSIS

In 1817, a British patrol ship, the Lion's Whelp, captures a slave ship commanded by Captain Nuggin Taylor and his mate, Powdah. The two refuse to tell what happened to their black cargo. They are strung up on the yardarm by their thumbs. Lieutenant Tarryton of Her Majesty's Navy is especially tough with the prisoners. But Taylor knows that Tarryton is in league with the slave syndicate and tells him so.

CHAPTER II

Taylor with Powdah at his heels, picked his way amongst the bales and barrels of Liverpool Dock. A conference between Martisel and Woodley of the Naval Commissioner's office had freed them from the brig of the Lion's Whelp. The shadow of the law was lifted from them.

"Powdah, my friend, let us go drink to our eternal parting."

"Nuggin," Powdah pleaded, "you ain't gonna leave me here?"

"You're no credit to an honest man, Powdah."

"Credit? I got cash. Didn't I steal the sailingmaster's money?"

"Fig. You told me he gave it to you," Taylor said angrily.

"That's because you got a conscience. Look, you gotta have a man without a conscience to keep you from starving, Nuggin."

Taylor stepped to one side to let a carriage pass. It's wheel splashed mud on him, and Taylor stared for a second into a girl's eyes.

"Oh, I'm sorry," she cried.

The carriage rolled on. Powdah with an oath picked up a stone.

"Fluffy duffy."

"Barbarian, you would throw rocks at your grandmother," Taylor laughed, and knocked the stone out of Powdah's hand.

"Nuggin, you are coming unglued again. Look, she's stopped. That's Tarryton getting in with her. It's the same pretty face over again. It's his sister, Nuggin."

"Birds of a feather, Powdah. I've got more than sisters on my mind. Here's the pub I'm looking for. The Red Dragon."

"I'll buy you a beer," Powdah promised him.

"Good. Spend your money on me. You haven't enough, anyway, to buy a passage on the emigrant ship William Brown yonder."

"Have you?"

"Nuggin, I have. Martisel took my Captain's papers, but he softened the blow with a little cash. I rather think brother Tarryton may have put a flea in his ear."

The Red Dragon was an uproar of costers' songs and drunken oaths. Knots of emigrants told glowing tales of free America. In one corner a pale violinist flourished his bow across the strings. Powdah slumped disconsolately in a booth, drew pictures sentimentally with his finger in slopped beer-foam.

"So it's like that, is it, Nuggin? Hello and good-bye. It ain't with me. I ain't never had a friend before. Not like you, I ain't. You ain't listenin' to me."

"I'm looking for a man," Taylor said, staring around.

"You're my friend, ain't you?"

"Well, I'm yours for life. Nobody that took a fancy to me before ever done anything about it but kick me in the teeth. You're different. Nuggin, you see this ring in my ear? It's my mother's wedding ring." Powdah gulped. "You're the first person I ever told about my mother. Yeh, and you know why? Maybe you think it's jest talk. It ain't. It's because . . . well, because I love you."

"Maybe it's the beer," Taylor said. "I feel the same way about you, Powdah, and I can't account for it."

"Member when you sat up and looked at me and said 'I don't know who you are, Matey, but you got the crookedest look I ever saw in any man's eye?' I knowed right then me and you was going to get along good."

"I'll write you love letters from Boston," Taylor promised.

"Well, if we gotta part, we gotta," Powdah sighed.

Taylor stared into the booth

"Marvellous pop-overs here," Woodley said, biting into one. "Have one."

"Marvellous," Taylor agreed. He sat down, forgetting Powdah. "But Captain Woodley, I asked you to meet me here for more than pop-overs."

"So I assumed."

"You have not seen the letter of Paul M. Granley's which refers to Tarryton's services to the slavers?"

"If it exists, Martisel must have suppressed it," Woodley said.

"You know why he has suppressed it. He is marrying a Tarryton."

"Quite."

"Let him. And here's my proposition. Granley is dead, but that need not be reported to Updike and Morgan, his buyers in Savannah. Suppose, instead, I go to them as Granley's messenger."

"If you are right and Tarryton is a traitor to his country, I shall not give 'im the schedule," Captain Woodley said.

"You?"

"Why not? Tarryton will come to you to ask for the new slave-patrol schedule."

"That's in the course of his duty," Woodley agreed. "But if you are right, and Tarryton is a traitor to his country, I shall not give him the schedule."

"On the contrary—give it to him."

"Give it to him?"

"Why not?" Taylor whispered. "Suppose you were to fall in with this arrangement between Tarryton and myself? Nefarious, I agree. But it has its points. You give Tarryton the schedule, he countersigns it and delivers it to me to give to Updike and Morgan in Savannah. And with this schedule goes another, supposedly from Granley, showing the best routes for slave-ships to take, to avoid these patrol-routes—"

"Suppose in short," the enlightened Woodley whispered, "my schedule were false, and expressly designed to tangle up the slave ships with the patrol—"

"When the lion puts its head to the ground and roars, I have heard that its victims come running into its mouth," Taylor grinned, leaning back. "That ought to go for the British lion . . . After all, these pop-overs are not bad. Would you mind ordering some more?"

IN MEMORY OF CHARLIE RAY A FORMER CITIZEN OF GATESVILLE

Charlie Ray was born November 16, 1890 at Frost, Navarro, County and died March 30th at 11:30 p. m. at Ralls Texas. He was forty seven years, 4 mo. 14 days old.

His father died April 3, 1903 having been dead thirty five years, leaving him an orphan at the age of 11. He was the oldest child and took the responsibility of the family and helped his mother raise the other children. They looked to him as a father; he was always ready to help them and was devoted to his mother and helped her as long as he lived. He came to Coryell with his mother, sisters and brothers in 1910. November 22, 1914 he was married to Miss Sallie Hayes. To this union nine children were born; one daughter, Valley, preceded him in death in the summer of 1927. He became a member of the Church of Christ at Plainview in 1929. A brother and sister died in infancy and one sister, Mrs. Myrtle Williams died in 1933. In 1935 he moved his family to Ralls and was living there at the time of his death. He took pneumonia and only lived seven days. He knew his mother, sisters and brothers and father-in-law when they arrived there, but only lived a short time. He has many friends at Ralls and Gatesville they were so nice to him and his family. The ladies prepared such a nice dinner for the family.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and eight children, Forrest, Lorraine, Barney, Charlie Jr, Woodley, R. B. Jenean and Freddy Bryan; His mother, Mrs. Lizzie Ray, two sisters, Mrs. Ida McDonald, Brownwood; Mrs. Willard Maples of Gatesville, Fred Ray of Gatesville, W. T. Ray and wife of Denver Colo. All were with him when the end came. All that loving hands and doctor and nurses could do was done to save him. Services were held at the Church of Christ in Ralls at 2:30 o'clock.

So, weep not dear loved ones Charlie isn't dead but only asleep in the arms of Jesus. He cannot come back to you, but you can go to him.

A precious one from us has gone. His voice we loved is still a place made vacant in our hearts, that never can be filled. Life is short and time is fleeting and our lives will soon be over. Then we can go to join our loved ones waiting on the other shore. Thou art gone, our precious Charlie. Never more can thou return, but to sleep a peaceful slumber til the Resurrection morning.
