HOLD-UP MEN TAKE $70 IN COPPERAS COVE

Officers this week are still looking for two neatly dressed men who, after ordering ten gallons of gasoline, slugged Ernest Kunkel filling station attendant and robbed him of $70 about 9 o'clock last Saturday night (April 30.)

The men were in a new car and Kunkel said did not act suspicious. After filling their tank, he said the driver stepped out and asked him if he had change for five dollars. Kunkel started inside to get the change and was slugged as he reached the door.

He regained consciousness as the car was driving away, and watched it proceed straight toward George Fritz's place. The sheriff at Lampasas and Gatesville and Jim Edwards were notified immediately.

Kunkel said he had $63.00 at noon, and had sold $10 or $12 worth of gas since then. He estimated his loss at $70.00. He was on duty alone at the time.—Copperas Cove Crony.

REQUIREMENTS FOR STD. SCHOOL TEACHERS GIVEN

In a letter from Second Assistant State Superintendent Edgar Ellen Wilson, to County Superintendent J. M. Witcher, an outline of standards for teachers in schools is given. The letter reads in part as follows:

"The requirements for teachers in a standardized school or for a school applying for standardization are: A teacher who has a permanent certificate issued prior to September 1, 1925 is eligible to teach school that is making application for standardization. A teacher with two years of College training is eligible to teach in said school. A teacher who has two years of college work and who has taught in a standardized school during one or both the school years 1936-37 is eligible to teach in a standardized school or one applying for standardization in 1938-39, provided that she shows progress by doing as much as six hours of college every two years." It is not advised that any school board or trustee dismiss a good teacher or fail to elect said teacher for another school term just because she cannot meet the requirements for standardization, but that the school board continue to make progress for standardization and give the teacher time to meet the requirements, and in the end all will come out right with a good school and standardization.

This BRAND-NEW
McCORMICK-DEERING 6-Ft. Combine

Cuts and Threshes All Small Grains and Seed Crops

● Here is a real harvester-thresher that lives up to every expectation when it goes into your fields. The McCormick-Deering No. 60 is the one best answer to the demand for a small combine that does a hundred per cent job of threshing.

In designing the No. 60, Harvester engineers have followed the basic principles that have proved so efficient and practical in the larger McCormick-Deering Harvester-Threshers. Straight-line threshing is an accomplished fact in the No. 60. This feature, long a principle of successful stationary-thresher design, means that the grain travels in a straight line through the threshing unit; there are no right-angle turns inside the machine, no dead spaces to cut capacity.

With this compact, one-man machine, cutting and threshing is finished in one field operation, making this important work a family affair. No twine to buy, no shocking, no stacking, no waiting for the threshing crew, no custom thresherman to pay, and no big crews to feed.

Ask us about this fast, easy, economical method of harvesting and threshing. See the McCormick-Deering No. 60 in our store. Plan now to own one. You can buy it on the International Harvester Income-Purchase Plan.

BASEBALL CHATTER By Post

Not as secure at the top of the league standings as they were a week ago Gatesville's Hornets will play host to the cellar-bound Turnersville Buffaloes in one of the week's opening games.

State and Gatesville remained in a tie for the league lead by virtue of their wins over Jonesboro and Turnersville Friday. Schoolboy Rutherford held the Buffs to three runs while his mates garnered nineteen tallies or Gatesville's fourth win of the season. The State nine turned in a classy 8-1 win over the Jonesboro outfit, who defeated Gatesville here Tuesday 13-11. Rutherford, however was not in the box for the locals, and loose pitching combined with careless baserunning cost the Hornets the game.

The State has been improving rapidly their last three outings and will be way up there when the final league standings are compiled.

Flat did an about face from their Tuesday's performance and knocked the Ireland Cardinals out of a tie for top honors into a tie for the No. 4 position by giving them a 11-3 pasting Lefty Lemmer, who shut out the Yellowjackets 12-0 Tuesday did not start on the mound for the Cardinals, but when he did toe the slab in the late innings he proved as ineffective as the other Red Bird hurlers.

Jonesboro's swing thru Gatesville and State last week left them in fourth position, the same place they occupied before they met those two teams.

Friday's results:
Gatesville 19, Turnersville 3
State 8, Jonesboro 1
Flat 11, Ireland 3
Where they play today:
Ireland at State
Flat at Jonesboro and Turnersville at Gatesville.

VOLUME VI

GATESVILLE, TEXAS, TUESDAY MAY 10, 1938

NUMBER 39

WITH THE SHIP OF STATE

Washington, D. C.—Two acts are sharing the center ring of the capitol circus in these days when Congress is beginning to mop its brow with a bandana and remember how cool and nice the summers are back home. 'Pump-Priming' beats the biggest drum but 'Neutrality' is not going to be ousted from the spotlight.

Opposition to the Roosevelt program of government spending promises to make just as much profit for the telegraph companies as did the messages sent last month urging the rejection of the administration reform bill. The individual congressman will hesitate to reject the proposed relief and public works program no matter how many letters and telegrams he gets. This is election year and its just barely possible that some of the people haven't the price of a telegram—haven't even a three cent stamp—and possibly can't write very well—but come November they will know just where to make an x on the ballot—and the chances are that they are Reliefers, WPA'ers and those families living just a week's slim pay envelope ahead of bankruptcy won't appreciate the killing of the relief measure.

There are some however, experienced observers who do not hesitate to say that the relief bill will be defeated—at least in its present form—and that the countrywide wave of approval which will follow will waft many a Republican into a seat now held by a nominal Democrat.

There have been some pungent criticism of late directed at the President by left-wingers of his own party who maintain that the real reason he accepts his reverses with such good grace is that he has no real feeling about the matter one way or the other. They point to his recent approval of the Anglo-Italian pact hard on the heels of Secretary Hull's attack on the Fascist Nations and Mr. Roosevelt's own Chicago speech last year calling for a "quarantine" of such nations.

And this is where 'neutrality' steps into the calcum for opponents of the present neutrality bill insists stridently that it is the greatest aid to Fascists Land grabbing which could have been devised short of sending men and ships to help Hitler and Mussolini and the Mikado in their conquests. They point out that in every case—China, Ethiopia, Spain—the party attacked was made to suffer.

The Anglo-Italian Pact, hailed with such delight as a guarantee of world peace, is, of course, the funnest thing the diplomats have ever heard of. Britain gains precisely nothing? Mussolini agrees to withdraw a little later on when there is no chance of a slip up. And the British Navy—the one fear Italy has—agrees, in effect, to withdraw from the Mediterranean.

GATESVILLE FUTURE FARMERS COP PLACES IN EVERY EVENT

The Gatesville Future Farmers came out of the Waco District Leadership Contest in Marlin Saturday, with places in every one of the four events in which they entered contestants.

The local one act play group won first in that event, and will go to Austin to compete in the State meet at a later date. The cast of the play includes: J. C. Bunnell, B. A. Basham, Vernis Wolf, Walker King, Don Rhoades, Ralph Hill, Webster Bundrant and Byron Gilbreath.

The business-like way in which meeting, also won top spot for them in the chapter-conducting event, while Raby Alford, FFA president took second in the Public Speaking contest. R. M. Cumming and Randolph Morse took second and fourth respectively in the extemporaneous speaking contest.

JACK REESING ELECTED TO BAYLOR ENGLISH FRATERNITY

Jack Reesing, Baylor University student from Gatesville, has been elected to membership in the Sigma Tau Delta, active English fraternity. Reesing was one of the nine elected at a recent meeting of that organization.

France, understanding that Britain had decided on a Peace at any price policy, and that any Anglo-French agreement had become 'scraps of paper' determined not to be caught in the middle of a cabinet change as she was when Hitler put over his Austrian deal and pulled a Dictatorship out of his hat.

This Quasi-Dictatorship is to last until August—until past the usual time for European wars to start—which sums up exactly how good the chances are of war sometime this summer.

WORDS WITHOUT MUSIC

By LOUIS REID

WILLIAM C. HANDY may well claim title to the term "Father Of The Blues." As composer of "St. Louis Blues," "Memphis Blues," "Beale Street Blues" and other folk-ish American music, he created a pattern from which jazz and swing music derive.

Now, nearly a quarter of a century after "St. Louis Blues" was composed, a symphonic arrangement has been completed after five years of work, and the plaintive negro melody may soon take its place on American concert programs—companion piece, perhaps, to Dvorak's "New World Symphony."

Handy continues to win honors for the work. The other night, the St. Louis Music Association and the National Association of Negro Musicians presented him with a plaque for his composition. Handy is a high ranking member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP), the organization which protects the performing rights of America's creators of music.

The high honors bestowed upon the "St. Louis Blues" were not predictable when it was composed in 1913. Handy, a native of Florence, Alabama, conceived the idea for his indigo tribute to St. Louis ten years before it was written. Strolling along the river front of the city looking for a job, he heard the melancholy chants of negro levee workers. He needed money to complete his education for the ministry. He got a job on the levee and quickly changed his mind about his future. He had become fascinated by the songs,—had decided to transpose their plaintive, simple beauty into orchestral music.

Cigar Box Blues

"St. Louis Blues" was first scribbled on a cigar box. Handy had planned to publish the work on his own account and wanted 10,000 copies, which would cost $100. But he had only $20 in cash. After some search he found a printer in Cincinnati to turn out the copies on the strength of a $20 deposit. He sold the original shipment of 2,000 copies at five cents each within a few days after their arrival, which gave him enough cash to pay for the rest of the order.

Enlarging his publishing activities, he formed a partnership with one Pace, an official in a Memphis bank. Confident he had something out of the ordinary in music, Handy sought to interest the phonograph companies. But the recording rajahs of that period could see nothing in "St. Louis Blues." They told him blues was a fad that would soon die.

It was a long uphill battle for Handy. Eventually, several blues singers used it in their acts and little by little it began to gain recognition. It was not long before it was sweeping the country. Up to this year more than a million copies of the piece have been sold. It holds the record for recordings, its total sales in this field exceeding 2,000,000. It is now definitely an American classic—the only blues that is.

SO YOU WANT TO WRITE A SONG? Well then: Have Your Title in the First Bar of the Chorus.

OGLESBY JTAC STUDENT GOES ON CLASS TOUR

Edward Jones, Oglesby student at John Tarleton College, was a member of the 422 Education class in psychology as a student who, accompanied by Irving Caesar's new versions of nursery rhymes which adroitly stress the safety campaign now current throughout the country are winning extensive comment in the press.

Hoagy Carmichael is the latest of Broadway's composers to win a lucrative contract from Hollywood.

The bazooka, most closely associated with the Arkansas comedian Bob Burns, will probably be the next most widely exploited instrumental novelty. Bazookas were the principal souvenirs given away at the recent music trades convention at the Hotel New Yorker.

Tunesmiths would like to glorify a new feminine surname in their song titles, but the old names won't make way. Dinah, Adeline, Annie, Genevieve, Mary are still riding high and triumphantly.

Edna Thomas, a singer, is said to have something new in the way of a book—one half devoted to Southern songs, the other half to Southern cooking. But what's new in that? The country's full of people who say Southern cooking calls for singing.

A song that remains popular more than six weeks in this era of radio is a phenomenon. "Continental" and "Stars Fell on Alabama" belonged in this class. "Where and When" currently is a phenomenon. It is the most seductive sweetmeat from the Rodgers and Hart confectionery since "A Song in My Heart."

Never hear any more of those men who taught the Duke of Windsor to play the banjo, the saxophone, the snare drums, the ukulele.

The playing of the old "Blue Danube" becomes a distinguished event when the Philharmonic adjusts its fiddles. Nothing like the "Blue Danube" for painting a musical picture of gaiety and romance. Yet, beneath its imperishably lilting strains there is the insistent note of pathos, reminding one that life and love are fleeting.

There is a persistent legend in musical circles that the best saxophonists come from Boston. A fact, the Cabots, surely, are not bragging about to the Lowells.

One reason for the current importance of piano teams is their ability to fit in with almost any kind of program. They are heard regularly with tenors, baritones and sopranos, group singers and masters of ceremonies, with male and female commentators on a variety of subjects, with dance and concert orchestras and lastly, by themselves. Their musical fare ranges from jazz, treated symphonically to symphonic themes in Tin Pan Alley phrases, from Mother Goose ditties arranged beyond recognition to works of such moderns as Gershwin, Grofe, Carpenter, Alter. Fine.

Painter Pete's

QUESTION & ANSWER BOX

Question: About two years ago we painted our kitchen wood-work with a quick drying enamel. My son did the work and before he started he cleaned the old surface clean with a damp cloth. When the new enamel was dry we found that the slightest blow would cause it to chip off in flakes. It has kept chipping off since and now we must repaint it soon. What kind of paint shall I try this time?

Mrs. Jenny L.

Answer: Doubtless most of the trouble you have experienced has come from a lack of proper preparation before starting to paint and I doubt if the paint you used was at fault. The proper procedure would have been to clean the walls thoroughly with a strong paint solution to remove all traces of grease. This would also have cut the gloss of the previous coats of paint and given better adhesion. Any paint will chip off if applied over a surface that is too smooth.

If you have any questions on painting, write to 'Painter Pete', in care of this paper.

Right Beauty; Wrong College

Chosen as "the only beautiful girl" at the University of Chicago, Miss Joy Hawley, graduate and former beauty of Texas State College for Women, turned out to be enrolled in Northwestern University, where she has already been named a 1938 beauty.

The mix-up began when a Chicago U. magazine stated, "There hasn't been a really beautiful woman around here since Little Egypt reared her skirts on the World's Fair midway in 1893." To debunk the article, Chicago U. boys went down to the photographers and with the help of three prominent judges selected what they thought was the picture of a Chicago co-ed.

Great was the chagrin of the C. U. student body when their triumphant choice turned out to be a Northwestern girl. Miss Hawley is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Hawley of Denton, Texas.

Chapter One

"Look, Bill Reardon, you're the best darned detective in this town and you know it!" Sally Reardon, pert, blonde and trig, shook a finger menacingly close to her husband's nose.

Bill smiled mockingly at his earnest wife. "Sure," he said. "I know it and you know it. The trouble is, nobody else knows it." "They'll find out someday," Sally said confidently. "All you need is some publicity. Keep your chin up, Sherlock."

"That's all I've been doing lately," Bill said glumly. "Six months ago I was sitting pretty in the District Attorney's office. Thirty-five hundred a year and no headaches." "Yes," Sally replied scornfully. "You did all the work and the D. A. got all the glory. You listen to me, Bill Reardon—"

"Nope." Bill shook his head and got up. He took his hat from the rack and started for the office door. "I did that once and now look at me. My own boss—no work, no glory, no nothing a year. I'm a success!"

"Bill!" Sally called. "Where are you going?" "Down to the D. A.'s office. I'm going to get my old job back again." He slammed the office door before Sally could object.

After he had gone Sally sat dejectedly behind his desk. She fished in her purse and found a cigarette which she lighted. Before she had finished it the office door opened and a handsomely dressed woman came in hesitantly. "Is — is Mr. Reardon in?" she inquired.

Sally jumped up and came around the desk. "He's out at the moment," she offered solicitously, "but if there's anything I can do—"

The woman raised her hand. "No," she said. "No thank you. I "Will you take me to the Skyline Club?" she asked. Bill laughed indulgently. "You're a little gold-digger," he told her, "but I'll take you. Remember, though, you take the regular dinner. No a la carte stuff."

They stopped at the bar for a drink before dinner when they arrived at the club that night. Sally inspected the crowd and saw that the Fraser party had not yet arrived. The one drink led to another and still another before Sally saw the Fraser party enter and would agree to go to a table. She maneuvered the head waiter until he assigned them to a table next to the Frasers.

She had said nothing to Bill, of course, about the Fraser commission nor had she informed him that there were three crisp hundred dollar bills folded in her purse. Consequently, he was a bit perturbed when, ignoring his admonition, Sally went to town with an elaborate a la carte order. She tried to top it off by ordering wine but Bill succeeded in stopping that.

Nick Shane, owner of the club and a big gambling operator, stopped by their table and greeted Bill. "You're just the man I want to see," Bill said. "Will you cash a check for me?"

"Sure, how much?" Shane asked. "Twenty-five bucks. My wife has developed expensive tastes tonight." "Better make it fifty, dear," Sally interrupted brightly. "In case we want some wine."

Shane gave Bill the fifty dollars and took his check. He ordered a drink for Sally and Bill. While the two men were talking Sally inspected the Fraser party at the adjoining table. Mr. and Mrs. Fraser and Miss Calhoun she recognized readily but it puzzled her to identify the other man in the party who had been drinking more than a little. She finally recognized him as Jerry Marlowe, a wealthy wanted to see him. I'd prefer not to give my name." "Just as you wish, Mrs. Fraser," Sally replied.

The woman stifled a gasp of surprise. "How did you know me?" she asked.

Sally nodded sagely. "Your picture was in all the papers when you were married," she said. "It's a detective's business never to forget a face. What is it you wanted, Mrs. Fraser? I'm Mr. Reardon's chief operator. I handle all of his women clients."

"Well," Mrs. Fraser said, "there's someone I'd like to have followed." She took a photograph from an envelope and handed it to Sally. "Her name is Anne Calhoun," she added. "She was engaged to my husband before—"

Sally nodded wisely. "I'm beginning to understand," she said.

"Recently," Mrs. Fraser said, "my husband has been getting letters and telephone calls from her. There's something going on between them and I want to know what it is." Mrs. Fraser was near tears.

"I'll find out," Sally promised. "If I don't give you a full report by the first of the month I'll retire from business."

Mrs. Fraser sighed her relief. "Fine," she said. "Tomorrow I'm going away for a two weeks' trip. Tonight my husband and I are going to the Skyline Club with Miss Calhoun. If you want to get a good look at her—"

"I'll be there," Sally promised.

Mrs. Fraser took some money from her purse and handed it to Sally. "I don't know what your rates are," she said, "but this should be enough until I get back." It took all of Sally's will power to refrain from looking at the money until her new client had left. When, at last, she did, she found three one hundred dollar bills.

At the Skyline Club

When Bill phoned to announce that he was back on the district attorney's payroll, Sally said nothing to him about her client. She did, though, eagerly accept his suggestion to celebrate his new job that night by stepping out.

young playboy who was one of the shining lights of cafe society. Marlowe, she recalled, was engaged to Anne Calhoun. She listened to Marlowe and Lola Fraser as they talked while Anne danced with Mr. Fraser. "I wonder if those two are putting anything over on us?" Jerry grumbled.

A Mysterious Envelope

Sally transferred her attention to Anne Calhoun and Walter Fraser who were dancing. As she watched them she saw Fraser slip an envelope from his pocket and pass it to Anne. She slipped it into the front of her dress.

Sally jumped up. "I want to dance," she announced. Reluctantly, Bill joined her on the dance floor and Sally immediately took the lead away from him, guiding their steps until they were dancing next to Fraser and Anne Calhoun.

The music stopped and Sally saw Anne excuse herself from Fraser and head for the ladies' room. Without a word Sally left Bill and followed her. When Miss Calhoun came out again Sally was right behind her. Nick Shane came up and greeted Anne Calhoun. "Good evening, Mr. Shane," Anne said, and she extended her hand to him. As they shook hands Sally saw that the envelope Anne had received from Fraser had been slipped to Shane. Sally walked on and returned to Bill who was thoroughly disgusted by this time.

Anne rejoined her party a few moments later. "Did you think I was lost?" she inquired.

Marlowe, still angry and suspicious, glared at her. "It wouldn't be the first time Fraser lost you," he said.

Angrily, Fraser leaped to his feet. "What do you mean by that?" he demanded. Marlowe rose, too.

"I'll tell you what I mean," he said. "Anne's engaged to me, now, and I'll kill the first guy that horns in!"

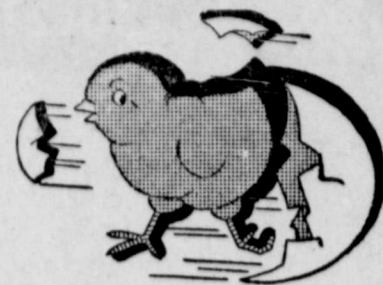

Sally, who had tilted her chair back to hear the conversation, fell right over backwards when she heard Marlowe's threat. Everyone in the Fraser party stared at her.
