Chapter One

The cavalry regiment, groomed to perfection in smart khaki, polished leather and gleaming metal, stepped briskly across the fields on its morning canter. The spirited horses held their heads high as they broke into a gallop, seeming to enjoy the exercise even more than the men who sat astride them.

The Colonel, riding ahead, came to a hurdle and got his horse over it easily, seemingly without effort. Several riders followed with equal aplomb; then one of the horses, evidently nervous, shied at the last moment, made a bad jump, caught a rear leg on the top bar, and came down on his side, flinging his rider a good thirty feet away.

Captain Bradford, somewhat shaken but otherwise unharmed, scrambled to his feet, glowering and muttering imprecations. As the mare got to her feet and trotted toward him he seized her bridle, started jerking her head about, and raised his crop.

go riding with. A good partner at dinner — always ready to listen to Regimental talk. In fact, a splendid background for the personality of Major Daviot. I've been a satisfactory pal but a most unsatisfactory wife!"

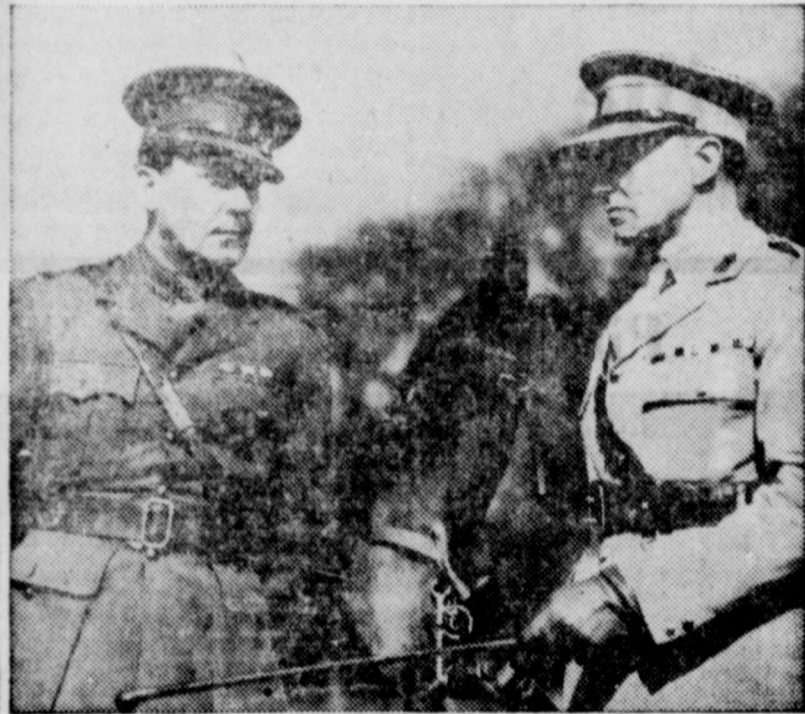

They were interrupted by the arrival of Daviot's old friend, Cinderford, come to join them in the weekend excursion.

"What, all ready, Anne?" he beamed. "Women are becoming impossible these days. One can't even rely upon their being unreliable." "I'm afraid I'm being unreliable," Anne told him. "I'm not going to Plumpton Meade for the weekend."

Without more ado, she said her goodbyes and was gone.

"Let's be getting on," said Daviot heavily. "It's a longish drive..."

The weekend "shoot" was in full swing at Plumpton Meade, estate of the nouveau riche Mr. Roper who sought compensation for his humble origins by surrounding himself at every opportunity with whatever persons of "breeding" deigned

Bradford sneered. "And how about women!"

"I'll teach you to play tricks on me, young lady," he growled.

Before he could strike a blow, his hand seized his arm and held it firmly. Bradford swung around and found himself confronting the steady gaze of his superior officer, Major George Daviot.

"Easy, Bradford," said Daviot quietly. "When you've learned to handle horses, perhaps you'll learn to handle men."

Bradford sneeringly returned his look. "And how about women?" he retorted. Daviot, ignoring the patent significance of the thrust, swung around and strode toward the horse from which he had dismounted.

Major Daviot was accounted a fortunate man by his brother officers. Standing high in his regiment, widely respected as a soldier and a man, he gave the lie to an honored proverb by seeming, in addition, to be lucky both at cards and in love. Such a man should have had everything to live for, every reason to be happy.

But on this particular Friday morning, on the verge of departing for the long drive to join a gay week-end party at the country home of the affluent Mr. Roper, he paced the floor of his living room, thoroughly miserable. Finally Anne, his wife, came down, followed by her maid laden with luggage.

"Anne, dear, won't you change your mind?" "Sorry, George."

"Anne, please — think it over. We've got on wonderfully well together; we've always been such pals."

"Yes, exactly," said Anne. "A good pal, to play tennis and golf, to to avail themselves of his ostentatious hospitality.

In one corner of Roper's spacious fields Captain Bradford was rapidly taking shots at the winging birds overhead while Josie, his exotically dark, lovely wife stood by, trying to reload as fast as he emptied his guns.

"Hurry up, Josie," he muttered peevishly. "Gosh, you're slow." He raised his shotgun, fired both barrels, and reached for the next. "Well, haven't you got that ready yet?"

"I'm tired of your bullying," said Josie. She handed the gun to a servant. "I'm going to load for George Daviot."

She went off to join Daviot on the pretext of loading for him. George dismissed his man Tandy, and engaged in a disjointed conversation with Josie between shots.

"D'you think it was wise of you to join me here, with everyone looking on?" (Bang!)

"Well, don't you want me?"

"Why d'you think I came? (Bang!) Anne's left me, he continued. "Gone to France. Now we can come out in the open and face things. I love you, Josie." (Bang!)

Bradford walked over to them and, just as George raised his gun for another shot, fired at his flying target.

"What the devil?" cried Daviot, wheeling around.

"Sorry to poach," said Bradford smoothly, "but I just couldn't resist it. After all" — he looked at the two malignantly — "it's done, isn't it?"

Colossus at New York Fair

NEW YORK—The largest portrait statue fashioned by mankind in modern times will honor George Washington when the New York World's Fair opens on April 30, 1939. James Earle Fraser, a native of Winona, Minn., is shown working on a model of the 65-foot figure. The sculptor, son of a railroad construction official, spent his boyhood in various towns of Minnesota, South Dakota and Wisconsin before beginning his art studies in Chicago.

THEY'D BETTER FIND OUT WHO'S WHO IN HOBBS IF NOT WHY

HOBBS, N. M.—By order of an irate city council, Hobbs traffic policemen toted the equivalent of 'who's who in Hobbs' today. The council was not joking when it called Police Chief Sam Young on the carpet, and demanded a halt to arrest and insult of influential citizens nabbed speeding thru school safety zones. That sort of thing was all right ordinary law-breakers, the council said, but advised Chief Young to teach his men who's who in Hobbs for future guidance. Aldermen who criticized Police Judge John L. Emerson for his assessment of fines against the who who's. "I believe I was doing right" the chief insisted after the council meeting. "We can not enforce traffic laws if exceptions are made". The council defined Hobbs' privileged class as prominent citizens, oil company executive and city official—plus wives, children and kinfolk. A drive on traffic violators began last week, and several score tickets were issued. The mayor's wife was among those warned.

BLACKSMITH HAS HOBBY; ARCHEOLOGICAL COLLECTOR

By Frank E. Simmons
(News Historic and Feature Writer)

Oglesby has one unique character. He is a hard working blacksmith, and although his smithy is not under a spreading chestnut tree, he shapes, bends and hammers iron to suit his will. Aside from blacksmithing he has a hobby and is often the case that a man's hobby makes him famous. G. R. Greens hobby is collecting anything that is odd, old, curious, or has a historic value. Old cow bells, old guns, articles of clothing, instruments of writing that have a historic value. But his chief forte is Archeological remains that were left by the races of men who occupied the Leon River valley when our ancestors were living in the caves of North Europe.

In his search for the remains of men who dwelt here in the long, long ago Mr Green has located four ancient burial grounds; two of them in caves and two of them in more open ground. Mr. Green, unlike most archeologists, has conscientious scruples about opening dead mens graves. On only one occasion has he removed skeletal remains from their resting place and that was to secure specimens for a scientific institution. The other three burial grounds have not been disturbed.

Flint artifacts found cover a wide variety of forms. The beveled edged arrow. The stemmed and shouldered arrow. The stemmed and barbed arrow. The bifurcated arrow. There are several forms of drill points. The arrow and spear points range from one inch to three and one half inches in length. One side-tang knife is three and one half inches long. The mechanical skill exhibited by the aboriginal workmen in executing these forms is superb.

Another interesting accuirement of Mr. Green's is a string of bone and stone beads that might have been worn by some favored aboriginal damsel. It might have been a gift from her savage lover; or it might have graced the neck of some naked savage warrior. This string of beads is more than two feet long.

Other stone age tools are two fine grooved stone axes numerous

Patriotic Theme Will Be Stressed at New York Fair

NEW YORK—(Special)—The most elaborate artistic project in the history of expositions, a $60,000,000, mile-long Central Mall for the $125,000,000 New York World's Fair 1939 was revealed here by Grover A. Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation.

Mr. Whalen predicted it would set the pace for the world of tomorrow in luxurious and harmonious building construction, in sculpturing, in murals, in landscaping and in novel active water and lighting effects.

Like a jeweled band, the varicolored Mall will be laid across the main exhibit area at its widest point, bordered by about 25 of the most imposing buildings in the exposition, studded with numerous sculptures fashioned by world-famous artists, inlaid with five lagoons, enlivened by five waterfalls, accentuated by huge pylons, sparkling with literally hundreds of fountains and lined with more than a thousand of the finest trees available.

In statues, relief figures and murals the Central Mall will tell the story of 150 years of democratic government in the United States. By coincidence attuned to its patriotic theme, it will be laid out in a line that, if continued in a southerly direction, would bisect the Statue of Liberty, a fact unknown when it was designed.

Dominated by the 18-story Perisphere, the largest ball ever constructed by man, and the 700-foot Trylon, the tallest triangular spire ever devised, plans for which have been previously announced, the Mall will include two more "greatest", the largest portrait statue sculptured since the Egyptians hewed the figure of Rameses II out of rock in the country of the Nile, and the highest sundial ever constructed.

MICKEY MOUSE

MR. Mickey Mouse, he of the movies and scores of strange and mad adventures, has a new pet. A huge green parrot, almost as large as Mickey, has joined our little playfellow.

The editor of Good Housekeeping has given us permission to reproduce a portion of the full color page Mickey Mouse display his magazine has in the June issue.

We should not be greatly surprised to see Mickey, Pluto and Polly have a boisterous time for a spell.

Here they are:

When Mickey brought his new pet home, Poor Pol could only squawk. So Mickey got his schoolbooks out To teach her how to talk.

Then Pluto came to get a drink— He was a bit abashed To find that in his special dish A strange bird bathed and splashed.

But Pol had learned her lesson well, And, when she saw him there, She called politely as could be, "Come in, the water's fair!"

Poor Pluto stayed to hear no more:

He disappeared from sight. A bird that talked! Was he awake? His hair stood up from fright!

But Polly, bonad that they'd be friends, Had Mickey there to back her. And soon she coaxed him out to play With "Pluto want a cracker?"

Here's Juanita Gray, Personality cowgirl with her dancing horse "Texas", Juanita was featured at the Million Dollar Pier at Atlantic City, the entire season of 1936. She was a member of the George White Scandals, Ringling Bros. Circus and for two years, doubled for Hoot Gibson's leading lady in a number of western horse operas. This "gal" will appear at every performance of Gatesville's Rodeo and Frontier Celebration, June 3-4.

O Henry Draws His Salary

During installation of a new bookkeeping system at the general land office, Commr. William H. (Bill) McDonald, shown here, discovered an old payroll sheet bearing the signature of William S. Porter (O Henry) who worked in the land office from 1887 to 1891. Part of the sheet, with Porter's signature, is also shown. One of O Henry's stories, "Bexar Scrip 2692" was based on his experiences in the land office.

The first almanac was published in 1659. The American Red Cross was organized May 21, 1881. The addressograph was invented in 1892. The first air mail was carried on May 15, 1918.

$10,500,000 of Work So Far on New York Fair

NEW YORK (Special)—Such is the speed and enthusiasm with which the New York World's Fair of 1939 is being created that Grover A. Whalen, President of the exposition, has announced that it is now a month ahead of its construction schedule, with $10,500,000 already expended or committed in the great task. The total expenditure on the Fair and related projects will be between $125,000,000 and $150,000,000.

Work is in progress on 46 separate projects. Twenty are already completed and thirty-three are being designed or are ready for the beginning of construction. The total of projects so far set up by the Fair Corporation, the State and the City is 155. At present only 56 have yet to get under way.

erected by the Fair are now under construction, one, the Hall of Communications, rapidly nearing completion. Steel framework is being set up for the Community Interests, Shelter, Mines and Metallurgy, Medicine and Public Health and Business Administration Buildings. Designs for nine additional buildings have been finished and three others are in process of design. It had been planned to put up most of these exhibit buildings next year, but the rapidity with which construction has been accomplished made possible a considerable advance in schedule.

The Fair Corporation has under construction ten miles of sanitary sewers, twenty miles of storm water sewers and fifteen miles of water mains. Work of laying approximately fifteen miles of electrical conduits has been begun.

Seventeen miles of roadways are to be built within the Fair grounds by the Corporation, most of this task being planned for 1938.

An example of unusually rapid construction is furnished by the Fair's Administration Building, now occupied by 600 officials and executives and their staffs. It was completed and ready for its tenants in 575 working hours, held to be something of a record in building a $740,000 structure.

Concrete is now being poured to form the massive foundations of the 200-foot Perisphere and 700-foot Trylon, dominant architectural group of the exposition.

Work is also going on apace by the State and City on the improvements of the site to be permanent when it is cleared of Fair-built buildings and becomes a great public park.

Home study courses were first offered in 1878. Oregon passed the first gas-oline tax in 1919. Boston had the first high school in 1820.

Mail from Treasure Isle

DAYLIGHT THROUGH THE WALL

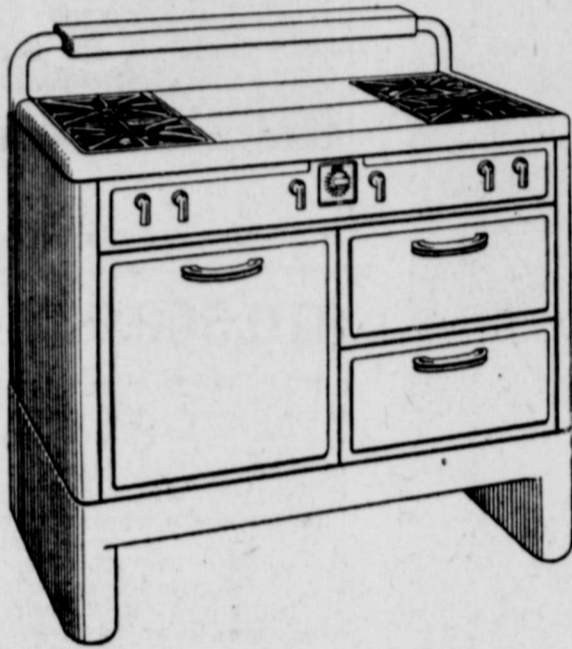

Floods of diffused daylight now are enjoyed in this modernized dining room of a Cleveland, Ohio, home where a wall was "opened up" without sacrifice of privacy. The solid wall was replaced with panels of insulux glass block, translucent but not transparent units, which not only keep outsiders from seeing in but hide a possible objectionable exterior view while bringing in daylight to make a room more cheerful and seemingly more spacious . . . and ultra modern in appearance.

Fresh Vegetables TASTE BETTER
...LOOK BETTER WHEN COOKED WITH GAS

FOR rounding out a healthful, well-balanced meal there is nothing like the first tender vegetables of early summer. How you cook them is all-important if their healthful vitamins and minerals, their natural flavor and color are to be retained. A 1938 gas range excels in boiling vegetables as they should be—with controlled heat, little water and in covered utensil.

Time, gas and food values are saved with the improved gas simmer burners. They provide the most flexible and accurately controlled cooking heat yet devised in a cooking appliance. At the click of a valve they give you the exact shading of heat required for any cooking job. Because of this exact temperature control, kitchen heat and humidity are held to minimum. See these new gas ranges and learn all about their many improvements that make cooking surer, cooler and easier.

Only the improved gas simmer burners on 1938 gas ranges give an accurately controlled boiling heat at the "click" of a valve. They save gas . . . keep kitchen cooler.

FUTURISTIC TAXI (TOP) AND AUTO MODELS FOR NEW YORK EXPOSITION IN 1939.

NEW YORK (special)—The taxi of the future will be a short oval vehicle, running on three wheels so that it may weave in and out of traffic and may be parked with ease.

The automobile of the future will be wide in front and narrow in back with the motor at the rear and much more room will be devoted to the passengers than at present.

This will be true if the New York World's Fair sets a new style for motor transportation of the future as the result of the display of models fashioned by Raymond Loewy, industrial engineer, who is busy making the futuristic vehicles for the focal exhibit on transportation at the exposition.

Designer Loewy's conceptions of transportation methods in the World of Tomorrow are the projection of inventions and improvements which already exist, but which have not yet been put into mass production. They represent the sensible trend toward more efficient taxicabs and motor cars.

The new autos will be a part of one of many huge, free exhibits to be built by Fair designers to show how we will live in the future

NEW YORK (Special).—Grover A. Whalen has been re-elected President of the New York World's Fair of 1939 to serve until the close of the international exposition. He has donated his services as chief executive officer of the Fair for the last two years on a part-time basis. Now, however, at the request of the Executive and Finance Committees and the Board of Directors, he has severed all other administrative and executive business connections and will henceforth devote all his energies to the success of the fair.

"LIFE AFTER 40"?

"WHY do so many women seem to think that forty is synonymous with such dreary words as "shelved" — "divorce" and "gigolo?", Constance Foster asks in her article in the June issue of Good Housekeeping. Miss Foster, who "confesses" she is about to have a 40th birthday, says that all around her she sees women who regard forty as the deadline and are bewildered and at loose ends.

"Must the 40's be dangerous?", she asks. "Need I spend them playing bridge or wandering forlornly from beauty parlor to motion picture theatre?"

The writer points out that at 40 life expectancy of a woman is 32.15 years and that new fields have opened up for the woman of forty. There are millions of her in the nation for whom Miss Foster opens a new vista. "Life," she agrees, "begins at 40."

GIRLS: DON'T ELOPE

"GIRLS, don't elope," is the advice of Caroline Gray, noted woman's writer, in June issue of Good Housekeeping.

"Have some sort of a wedding, no matter how simple," Miss Gray urges young Miss America. "Do be married in church if your inclination and affiliations lean that way," she urges.

Miss Gray gives valuable advice to the newlyweds in her article and simplifies the preparations for the great event. She lists the proper clothing, the social obligations of the bride and groom and explains the things necessary to make the ceremony a success at a modest cost.

Coat lapel buttons carrying the figures "1938" are being worn by thousands of Californians to boost the Golden Gate International Exposition on Treasure on San Francisco Bay.

"Pensions are a legal right and the full $30 per month, provided by the constitution, must be paid. Our aged citizens shall not be made the objects of charity," said Karl A. Crowley, candidate for governor, in his opening campaign at Quitman, where he was introduced by "Cyclone" Davis, venerable Texas statesman and leader in the pension movement. Pictured above is "Cyclone" who is staunchly supporting Crowley sitting by him.

Outlook Justifies
State Participation
In New York Fair

Whalen Voices Opinion in Inviting Governor and
People to the 1939
Exposition

NEW YORK, (Special).—In a letter of invitation to the governors of 47 states, Grover Whalen, President of the New York World's Fair 1939 Corporation, points out that the commercial consequences of the international exposition under construction in New York City are so great and important that they alone would justify the active participation of every state in the nation.

"Fifty million persons from every walk in life, from every state in the United States, from every country in the world, are expected to attend the Fair," writes Mr. Whalen. "The great American market with its tremendous consumer purchasing power will be represented by these visitors. They will comprise a true cross-section of America."

The World's Fair, according to Mr. Whalen, will be a magnificent spectacle, entertaining and instructive. It will attempt to answer the questions: "What kind of a world have we built? What kind of a world are we building? What kind of a world can we build?" With collateral improvements, it will represent a total investment of more than $125,000,000 by the Fair Corporation and the governmental, industrial and other participants. The Fair site park is a tract of 1216 1/2 acres, almost at the geographical and population center of New York City. Construction of buildings and roads, grading, dredging, planting and landscaping are already under way, based upon a schedule which calls for completion of all construction operations before January 1, 1939, to allow four months for final decorations and installation of exhibits preparatory to the opening of the Fair on April 30.

The opening date commemorates the inauguration, on April 30, 1789, of George Washington as the first President of the United States.

In the government area, and near an imposing federal hall to be erected by the United States Government, the Fair will provide a "Hall of States" in which the significant contributions of each state in laying the foundations for the better World of Tomorrow can be proudly displayed, says Mr. Whalen.

His letter supplement: an invitation to participate in the Fair extended to the governors on November 30 by Governor Herbert H. Lehman of the host state of New York. Governor Lehman pointed out that the State of New York has already appropriated, to date, $2,130,000 for commencement of construction of boulevards, service roads, bridges, and certain other basic improvements. The state will make at the exposition site or its approaches. The New York legislature, further, during 1936 passed an act creating the New York World's Fair Commission of 18 members and providing funds in aid of this body's preparation of plans for a state building and exhibit and for active state participation in the Fair.

McCraw for Governor

William McCraw, above, one-time printer's devil who rose to serve two terms as Attorney General, is campaigning for Governor of Texas. McCraw studied law at nights as he worked his way through school. He became a lawyer at 19 and served as district attorney of Dallas County a record number of times.

McCraw is FOR humanized pensions; aid to blind and dependent children; teachers' retirement; economy in government; full school terms; better farm-to-market roads; more opportunities for farmers and ranchers; soil conservation; control of utility rates; and better labor-industry relations.

McCraw is AGAINST new taxes; sales taxes in any form; income taxes; the open saloon; and gambling.

Strap Buckner in Big Sculpture at
New York Fair '39

NEW YORK, (Special).—Folklore of the west and south-west will gain recognition as an important phase of the tradition of the United States in a historical pattern of art planned for the $60,000,000, mile-long Central Mall for the $125,000,000 New York World's Fair 1939.

This became known when Grover A. Whalen, president of the Fair Corporation, revealed that a large sculpture of Strap Buckner, jolly legendary badman, will be placed on the Mall as a part of the most elaborate artistic project in the history of expositions, designed to set the pace for the World of Tomorrow in luxurious and harmonious building construction, in sculpturing, in murals, in landscaping and in novel active water and lighting effects.

The work of Edmond Amateis, the sculpture of Strap Buckner will show him in a characteristic attitude, being spanked by the devil himself after he had challenged Satan to a fight in which he was getting the best of it until his opponent puffed himself three times his usual size and smacked Strap down. The legend relates that Strap was carried off to Hades, returning a much more humble and peaceable man.

Airplane of Tomorrow at New York World's Fair 1939

NEW YORK—Here is the airplane of the future as envisioned by Raymond Loewy, industrial designer, in a model under construction for the focal exhibit on transportation at the New York World's Fair 1939. Carrying eight large motors in its wings and completely streamlined for speed, the future plane will attain the proportions of a sea-going vessel, according to Mr. Loewy. The focal exhibit, with an operating rocketport of the future, will be a free feature of the Fair.

Blacksmith Hobby—

scrapers including the duckbill forms. There are numerous forms that are classed as skivers, an implement of scraper form that was used to remove bark and to pare down, arrow and spear shafts, to the proper size. Some large flint slabs are classed as digging tools, or hoes, or probably used for tomahawks when hafted. Very unusual for this region is the two hammers made of the base of the deer antler. These were found associated with a human skull. The hammers are almost rotten they are so old. A score, or more, of excellent mano stones, several fine mortars, and numerous hammerstones have been found.

Among the numerous artifacts and large relics are numerous pieces of pottery, all broken. These scraps are of the typical pottery produced throught Texas by the aboriginies. They are dull and uninteresting to anyone other than an archeologist, but to the archeologist they are a rich acquisition for they furnish a criterion by which the cultural status of the people who left them in the middens may be fixed, and the broken pieces are sufficiently good for that purpose.

Mr. Green does not limit his collecting to Indian artifacts. He has an interesting collection of fossils gathered from many local places. Many odd, and curious stones are added to the list. He is also interested in anything odd, curious or old, that has a historic value. He has an old cowbell found on the old Seeton ranch, that bears the inscription, Ed Seeton, 1871, and several old instruments in writing that have historic value.

Our collector took up this hobby less than a year ago and now he has an interesting collection that veteran collectors look at with longing eyes.

The smithies bellows roars, as in the day of old, and the children on their way to school look in at the open door. The heavy hammer beats the hot iron into forms to fit industrial appliances. The anvil rings clear as a church bell. While all this is happening our smithy is dreaming of another foray into the cedared hills to examine the caves, or to wander under the deep timbers in search of the half hidden middens left by ancient men.

The following article was taken from an Abilene paper:

H. E. Britian, agent for Phillips Gasoline Company, a new plant in Abilene, and son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Britian of Gatesville has one hobby—horses. He has a string of 23, including some fine polo ponies. His favorite, however is Silver, a big three-year-old white horse he acquired from Everett Hughes, ex-sheriff of Callahan county. At almost any of the rodeos Britian will likely be seen on Silver, who is a regular stunt horse, a show himself. Britian is starting of the rodeo season at Gatesville next month, sending three of his ponies back to his first home to perform.

Mr. Britian was born in Gatesville, but was just a boy when his family moved to Merkle. He was reared and schooled there then came to Abilene and went into the Gasoline business, and after 17 years of experience recently became agent of Phillips Co. He is married and the father of two daughters; he was listed last week among the winners of the National Piano Playing Contest held at Hardin-Simmons University.

A hearty welcome is extended to Mr. Britian and his family to Gatesville's second annual Rodeo and Frontier Celebration, the third and fourth of next month.

LIEUT. GOV. WOODUL ASKS FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL PLACE

Walter Woodul

(Editorial from the Houston Chronicle)

The attorney general of Texas is the lawyer for the state. He construes the law for state officials and in all litigations involving the state, he represents it. He should be able, fearless, conscientious, industrious and fair.

Lieutenant Governor Walter Woodul of Houston, who opened his campaign for attorney general in a speech at Greenville Saturday night, is qualified for the office on all counts.

A native of Laredo, Texas, he helped put himself thru high school by going odd jobs such as delivering newspapers, jerking soda and running a telephone exchange at night. At the age of 15 years, he struck out for himself. He worked in the Oklahoma wheat fields, taught school in that state and, burning with ambition to become a lawyer, prepared for putting himself thru the university by first learning stenography.

Obtaining a job as a stenographer in Austin, Woodul entered the University of Texas, where he spent three years, summer schools included. When the Texas National Guard was mobilized for service on the border, he enlisted and in service was promoted to the rank of sergeant. He saw service during the world war as a captain.

Woodul came to Houston 20 years ago and has practiced law here since that time. He found time outside his personal affairs to devote much time to the service of his state, serving as state senator, a director of the Gulf Coast Good Roads Association and as lieutenant governor.

In local affairs he has proven gation, good roads, and good. He has taken an active part in Community Chest drives and in other civic movements.

During his public life he has worked for every section of the state. He went to the rescue of the smaller counties, in the matter of automobile license fees, supported the Brazos and Colorado flood control and powers projects, the Trinity River navigation himself a good citizen as well, schools everywhere.

As a director in the Gulf Coast Good Roads Association he played an important role in obtaining the fine highways that are to be found in every section His fairness in matters affecting labor is shown by the support he has received from organized labor in every race he has made. He has been staunch in supporting rural aid measures.

In his opening address, Woodul said: "The serving and guarding of the public interest will be my guiding star. In case of doubt, my client, the great state of Texas, will receive the benefit of the doubt." That is the proper attitude for an attorney general.

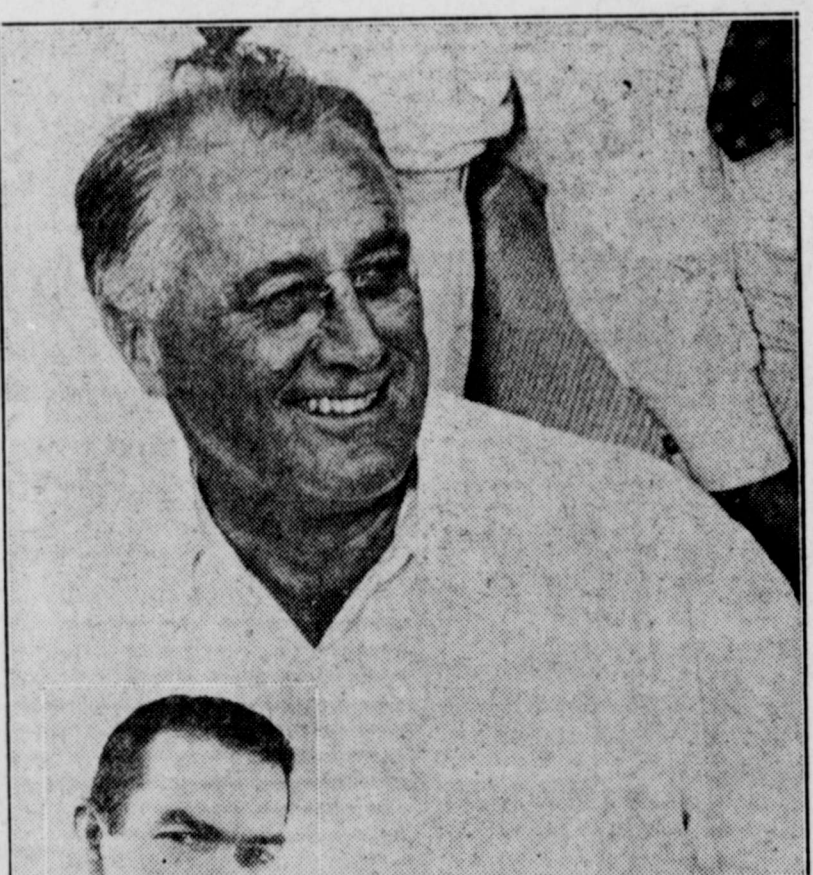

Walter Woodul is neither too old to possess energy, stamina and enthusiasm, nor is he too young to have experience, poise and ability. He is respected as a man and a lawyer by the judges of the courts, his fellow attorneys and the citizens of Harris county.

President Roosevelt appears unruffled by disaffection within the ranks of his party. He is shown here in his most jovial mood during one of the recent get-togethers of Democratic chieftains and legislators, on Jefferson Island. These excursions, says Dr. Stanley Hugu (inset) in this week's Saturday Evening Post, were not "love feasts" designed to restore harmony but were, on the contrary, a last invitation to Democratic opponents of Administration policies to get aboard the Roosevelt band-wagon—or take the consequences.

BASEBALL CHATTER By Post

Only one manager has sent in his team's season record. S. M. Anderson's Pidcoke outfit has 33 wins and no losses for their '38 record and are at least a tie for the top bracket.

Your correspondent witnessed the Halliburton Cementers in action against the Waco Dons at Waco last Sunday. The Dons won the game 5-4, but the Cementers, outside of the pitching had far the better club. Lefty Stone, No. 5 one of the Cementers' five-man pitching staff, showed the Dons a burning fast ball for the first four innings, and held them at bay during that time. But he began to fade in the fifth and the Dons began lining out hits. The payoff came when Phipps homered with a mate on in the eighth. Eddie Lowell, manager and first baseman of the Cementers was the outstanding man of the field, making some brilliant defensive plays to cut off Don tallies.

The CCC team absorbed the worst defeat any league team has suffered this season when Jonesboro overwhelmed them, 27-9. The camp couldn't find a hurler capable of holding the hardhitting Eagles in check.

pentine to get it perfectly clean. Finish with two coats of duco in the color you desire.

Question: I have had trouble with the shutters on my house and maybe you can help me. I have had them painted green several times in the last few years but they always have become mildewed. On the south side of the house, the green has faded badly. My friends tell me that green is just "that way" and I had better paint my shutters white and stop worrying. What would you suggest, R. S. T.

Answer: The condition you speak of is very common, but entirely unnecessary. I would imagine there must be a lot of shrubbery or trees around your house, because dampness generally breeds fungus and mildew. The fading is caused by exposure to the sun. However, there is now a paint on the market especially designed for use on blinds and shutters. This paint, Trim and Reels Finish, resists fading, mildew and fungus growths. Make sure, first of all, to kill the present growth by having your painter scrub the blinds thoroughly with a strong cleaning solution. Then rinse well and allow them to dry completely. If you apply two coats, use the same color for both, don't use gray for a first coat.

If you have any painting problems, send them to "Painter Pete," in care of this news paper.

QUESTION & ANSWER BOX

Question: I run a tea room and every year I have to repaint the tables because hot dishes make nasty looking rings in the surface. Can you suggest a type of enamel, preferable quick drying that would not be harmed by hot dishes and that would not require such frequent repainting? Mrs. B. R.

Answer Duco is the enamel you want to use for your tables. Duco gives you plenty of time for easy brushing and dries quickly without any brush marks. When dry, duco has an unusually hard yet elastic surface that resists scratching and heat. Further, you'll find it very easy to wipe off; because a hard surface it's nearly as easy to clean as your china dishes. Before applying duco be sure to sand down the present finish until you have a perfectly smooth surface then wash the surface with tur-

HISTORY OF "OLD GLORY"

YOUR FLAG

Note—We interrupt the "History of Old Glory" this issue to give you official observances of respect to the flag on Memorial Day.

"On Memorial Day (May 30) the Flag is displayed at half staff from sunrise until 12:00 o'clock noon out of respect for those who have died for it, and at full staff from noon until sunset; for the Nation lives and the Flag is the symbol of the Living Nation."

When it is to be flown at half-staff, the Flag should be hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position, but before lowering it for the day it should be again raised to the peak. By half-staff is meant hauling down the Flag to one-half the distance between the top and the bottom of the staff. If local conditions require, divergence from this position is permissible."

TWO NEW STARS BORN IN NEW THRILLER

In "Under the Western Stars" exciting Republic Picture opening next Saturday at the Regal theatre, two new western stars are born.

This picture is the first of a new series which Republic Studios, making of the Gene Autry, three Mesquiteers and Bob Steell outdoor pictures are beginning.

Roy Rogers and Smiley Burnette are the new two-fisted, hard riding, sweet singing sons of the open range. Rogers is an entirely new name, while Burnette is already famous as the "Frog" of the Gene Autrey stories.

Rogers comes to the screen from the nationwide radio program "Sons of the Pioneers" on which he has starred for the past four years. He twangs a mean guitar and rides a horse as though he had been born on one.

Burnette is continuing his hilarious role of "Frog" in the new pictures and is funnier than ever in his starring role.

Poston had the first high school in 1829.

Mr. E. Routh, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Flentge, Mr and Mrs. R. L. Routh visited their wife and mother who is in a Temple Sanitarium, Sunday.

The American circus was started in 1792.
