GATESVILLE, TEXAS, TUESDAY JUNE 14, 1938

NUMBER 49

CONGRESSMAN POAGE HAS STATEMENT TO VOTERS HERE

To my friends of the Eleventh Congressional District of Texas: I take this opportunity, in announcing my candidacy for reelection as Congressman from our district, to express to my friends my heartfelt thanks for the confidence you have shown in me, and for the unselfish and loyal support that you have so freely given me. I recognize that I have not been a perfect representative, but I have worked hard and done the best I could under the circumstances, and with the information then at hand, I have often failed to secure all the objectives I desired. Here are 434 other representatives and in order to pass legislation a majority there must agree. On occasions, I am sure I have been mistaken in my stand. No man can have all the information he would want when dealing with the tremendous problems that are confronting our Nation. Particularly is this true of one who is 1,600 miles away from the people he represents, and especially so during his first term in Congress. But I am proud to know that I represent the finest and most considerate constituency in the union. No man could ask for greater loyalty and appreciation than my friends in Central Texas have displayed. I am proud to represent such a district in the people's House of the Congress of the United States. It is my daily prayer that I may be able through the position with which you have honored and trusted me to be of service to the men and women and boys and girls of Central Texas. I shall be home just as soon as the Session of Congress adjourns and shall look forward to meeting my people. In the mean time, I can only say from the bottom of my heart that I thank you, and that I shall strive to the very best of my ability to prove myself worthy of the confidence of the finest people in the world. Gratefully and humbly, I am,
Your Representative
W. R. Poage

FRANKS' MARKET IS RE-BURGLARIZED FRIDAY NIGHT

One good turn calls for another! At least, that's what the obliging burglars who for the second time in the last few months burglarized Frank's market. The haul this time, amounted to approximately $65.00 in checks and some $40 in cash. Entry was made by cutting the screen in the back door, the only difference between this one and the last, since they cut the front screen last. Too the haul was better, and again, the combination of the safe was worked. Mr. Franks says he'll change the combination, and add something besides screen doors.

Incidentally, the big mistake in the night's work was an evident attempt on the Coryell County News, and as a result, there are two holes in our back screen and the "jigger" on the screen door in the rear has been pushed up once or twice.

Attention Mr. Burglar: You are certainly following a bum lead if you try to rob a country newspaper office. They just have not got it. We don't even know the combination of our safe, and what's more, it's wide open, and there isn't anything in it, anyway.

MRS. W. L. BROWN IS BEST "GUESSEY" AT PAINTER'S

Mrs. W. L. Brown of Route 1 was the best guesser in the recent contest held by Painter's at the number of yards of thread in a phoenix hose which was supporting a 375 lb. V-8 Ford motor in this popular store window. Her guess was 4,500 yards. The hose contained exactly 4,626 yards.

Mrs. Edgar Franks of Gatesville was second with a guess of 4,990 yards.

Mrs. Brown won twelve pairs of Phoenix hose for her ability as a "guesser".

Ara Mae Black, Ewing 4-H won first place in judging and canning; Nerine King, Plainview 4-H tied with her in judging.

Mrs. Melton encouraged the girls in their canning. She pointed out the value of selecting only the choice fruit for canning; she also mentioned that in canning each one should keep in mind the points on which the canned foods are judged in order to make a higher score.

THE RETURN TO SPENDING

Note: So numerous have been the requests from friends of this column that we reprint under the writer's own name the May 3 issue of World Comment that we feel impelled to do so in this additional column of the News.

When Mr. Roosevelt was re-elected in 1936 by the greatest majority ever accorded a candidate for President, his victory was hailed as a triumph for liberal government in the United States and for the social objectives which he had expounded during his first term of office.

Scarcely had his second term begun when Mr. Roosevelt's more ardent followers began to speak of the 'mandate' he had won at the polls. As the months progressed it became apparent that the 'mandate' was to include any measure sponsored by the new deal leaders from packing the Supreme Court to reorganizing the entire executive branch of the government. The 'Mandate' which was said to accompany the vote given Mr. Roosevelt was interpreted by his followers as a blank check of approval for whatever Mr. Roosevelt might want to do, regardless of whether some of the things he wanted to do in his second term were mentioned during the campaign or not.

Most of the Conservatives who became alarmed at some of the acts of Mr. Roosevelt during his first term were assured by the radical new dealers and by the President himself that no radical legislation would be sponsored in Congress during Mr. Roosevelt's second term. During 1934 and 1935 and particularly after the Supreme Court invalidated the NRA causing many new dealers to demand an act of Congress to change the membership of the Court, the conservative Democrats, in Congress and out, were further assured that nothing would be done about the Court. James A. Farley gave out strict orders during the 1936 campaign that Democratic orators were not to mention the Court or any other radical legislation for fear of alienating the liberal

PRESBYTERIAN DISTRICT ENCAMPMENT IN SESSION

Rev. Edward Bayles, pastor of the Gatesville Presbyterian Church accompanied these young ladies, Misses Patsy Olsen, Martha Jean Pattillo and Rosylene Anderson to Kerrville Monday for a two weeks encampment of the Presbyterian district.

Each year the pastor and a group of the young people of the Presbyterian Church attend a two weeks recreational encampment, of their district, which is inspiring as well as enjoyable. The local party plan to return the latter part of the week.

The overwhelming victory of Mr. Roosevelt in 1936, made possible by valuable contributions in the South and elsewhere by conservative Democrats and independent Republicans who wished liberal government to rest upon the traditional bases of constitutional of checks and balances and limited powers, gave promise of an era of peace and prosperity to follow the six stormy years which inaugurated the decade.

But the period since 1936 has been charged with as much political dynamite and controversy and with as much suffering and social unrest as any similar period of years in this century.

Mr. Roosevelt's second term was begun with a betrayal of the promises made to his conservative friends. His party was split and millions of conservative and even liberal friends alienated friends alienated by the effort to pack the Supreme Court with political stooges who would rubber stamp every act of the chief executive.

Congress—an overwhelmingly Democratic Congress—arose to combat this insidious effort and to express the determined opposition of the right thinking, sane minded people of America to the proposal. And the court bill was defeated after six long months of debate.

Since that time the administration's record has been characterized by blundering acts of hostility toward business and finance in a period when an attitude of understanding, friendship and co-operation is essential in order to combat what now amounts to a full-fledged depression.

Since the beginning of the current depression, which had its inception in a mid-summer recession last year and whose first real effects were felt in October the administration has contributed not one sane proposal for eliminating once and for all, the causes of the depression, nor has a conscientious attempt been made to definitely ascertain the true and fundamental causes.

At first the administration refused to admit a depression existed. Seasonal let-downs and overstocking had occasioned a slight recession administration spokesmen explained. By December,

Already, this contest has drawn fire from many of the "Phans" hereabouts, and no doubt, with a closing deadline coming right on us, there will be a general rush of pictures in this ever popular contest.

Other Prizes to Be Added

Other prizes yet to be announced will be given out either Friday of this week, or the closing day of the contest, Tuesday 21st.

This contest which has been sponsored jointly by the News and dealers in photographic supplies of Gatesville, has been most popular, even tho during the rodeo and the heavyworking season no the farm hereabouts, there has not been much time to make and get the pictures in. Rain, during the first part of the contest which began in March, slowed up the entries somewhat.

Two competent judges have already been chosen, but naturally will not be named until after the contest closes on the 21, and a third judge will be added before judging time.

Merchants who have been interested in this contest other than the News are Koen-Foster Drug Store, E. T. Mayes Studio and City Drug Store and the Gatesville Drug Store.

Church Rites For Stiles-Williams

At 8:00 o'clock on Friday evening in the Carden Baptist Church Miss Iris Stiles became the bride of Esteen Williams of Carden in a single ring ceremony performed by Rev. Paul Skinner, pastor of the church. Vows were taken before a pretty background of greenery. The wedding music was furnished by Mrs. William Stiles, sister-in-law of the bride, who played at the piano the processional, the recessional and during the ceremony.

Attendants were Miss Hattie Stiles, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, she was attired in a blue sheer frock. Dan Stiles, brother of the bride, acted as best man. The bride's dress was a becoming rose lace and she carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and lillies of the valley.

The happy couple left soon after the ceremony for an extended visit in San Antonio and in numerous places in South Texas.

Mrs. Williams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Stiles of Kempner. She was a former teacher in the Carden school and taught in the Elementary grades of the Gatesville School last year. Mr. Williams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Y. W. Williams, of Carden who are prominent citizens in that community.

World Comment—

When we were in the midst of a full depression (the financial indices reveal that the drop in values has been faster and steeper in the last six months than during the first six months of 1929), the administration had revived its old charges against the economic royalists and Tories who presumably delight in closing factories and firing thousands of workers for sheer pleasure of seeing the workers families go on relief or starve to death.

When the American people refuse to believe the scare stories about the feudal economic barons, the administration returned to its first attitude of discrediting the existence of the depression. And now with 12,000,000 Americans on the breadlines, we are to return to the pump priming policy under which twenty billions of dollars of the public's tax money was spent in six years to rescue this country from the 1929 depression. Twenty Billions! And the President himself admits that a depression exists again.

Vice President Garner is reliably reported to oppose the return to spending and to have told the President in frank words that government spending was not the solution of our problems. One caller reported him saying (and most middle class Americans, I believe, feel as does Mr. Garner):

"We've been trying this new deal spending orgy for six years and where has it got us? More millions out of work, business again depressed, fear returning, economic and financial security wattering, and the national debt increased to a point that imperils the very structure of the government. This sort of thing can't go on. I for one refuse to support more reckless spending. It's got to stop.

"That's socialism, not democracy. Oh yes and we're going more and more into housing encouraging real estate sharpers to operate with public funds, thereby discouraging private capital in such enterprise. Well, not with my consent and approval.

"One thing more. If democracy is to be a political party and not the chattel of the President this planning legislation without consultation with congressional leaders and sending up here bills with 'must' orders has got to stop. This still is a government of laws and not of men. We must keep it so even if we have to against our party leadership."

Such is the opinion of Mr. Garner.

Continued government spending for relief is necessary for the present time, at least until such time as business recovers and the unemployment rolls are substantially reduced. But the relief problem should be handed back to the states and cities and grants made from the Federal Treasury. Only in this way can the rolls be pared of those who do not want private employment, and the political power wielded by the relief administration be taken from the hands of the political party in control at Washington. Just how political machines are built upon relief funds; which should be spent solely to alleviate human suffering and not to maintain some political machine and grafting politician; which was shown in two articles in recent issues of The Saturday Evening Post which dealt with the political autocracy formed by Senator Joseph F. Guffy of Pennsylvania largely upon WPA jobs.

Obviously the solution of the relief problem lies with business which must take up the slack in employment and relieve the government of the ruinous burden of caring for ten or twelve million families or ten per cent of the population.

What is the matter with business and what can be done to rescue it from this depression?

Nine businessmen out of ten will answer, "Fear of Roosevelt and the new deal," to the first part of the question. Fear of what aspects or policies of the new deal, Fear that Mr. Roosevelt will establish a socialist state in which the profit system will be abolished. Fear that inflation will result from the piling up of the national debt. Fear that all industry will be ruined by the punitive tax system backed by the administration. Fear! Fear! Fear! where reassurances and a breathing spell of from three to five years from governmental interference is needed to correct an economic system which is too fundamentally unsound.

The burden for accomplishing the reforms which will eliminate the barriers to recovery lies now with Congress, not with the President, who has yet to realize just what is the trouble or to admit the failure of his past policies.

Congress—a free and independent group of legislators echoing the sentiments of the average middle-class American, who has nothing to gain and everything to lose in continued huge expenditures by the government—must assert itself and restore confidence to business. That Congress is no longer huddled to the administration was shown first in the rejection of the Court enlargement bill, then in numerous lesser acts, and finally in the defeat of the executive reorganization bill.

The rehabilitation of the railroads must be accomplished by a dispassionate study of the basic weakness of the railroad system.

The government's position in regard to the utilities must be clarified at once, so that the flood of expenditures which the utilities are prepared to make once the twin spectres of government ownership and of government competition are removed may be launched.

It is urgent that whatever government spending is done should not be spent in such a way as to supplant rather than to supplement private initiative.

Legislation must be reenacted making labor responsible with business in industrial disputes. The sit-down and slow-down strikes must be eliminated as challenges to business prosperity. American enterprise has not been able to function properly and effectively since the 1929 depression began. It is time business was given a chance to pull this country out of the hole, for the government has failed to do so.

NOTICE TO DELINQUENT TAXPAYERS

The Tax Collectors Department desires to again thank those delinquent taxpayers who by further efforts have arranged their unpaid taxes, yet several who have been rendered a tax statement have failed to give the matter their attention and this will serve as final notice that action will be taken at the coming term of the District Court on all such taxes, thereby adding additional expense and attorney's fees which we very much dislike to do and trust each taxpayer knowing himself to be delinquent for his taxes will promptly arrange same.

BASEBALL CHATTER By Post

Here is some information regarding the rules that were in effect when the Texas League had its birth back in 1887.

These rules provided for ten men on each side. The tenth player was sort of an assistant shortstop, or at least, that is the way we interpreted it. In Rule 3, Section 2 of the 1873 code is this statement: "The captain of the field club by the above rule, may place his men in the field as he chooses. He can take his shortstop out if the infield and place him as an extra catcher, if he chooses. He can also let his first and third base players stand on foul ground and his right and left fielders do the same".

The reason why the catcher needed an assistant was that the catcher had no heavy mit and no chest protectors, and the catcher played way behind the plate rather than close to it.

Some of the strangest rules were those regarding pitching. Overhand hurling was not allowed, the underhand delivery being the only one permitted to be used by hurlers of that day. This underhand throw resembled the softball delivery of today, and is just like the throw used in bowling. The pitcher worked out of a box six feet square and he could take a hop, skip and jump before delivering the ball to the batter, who could ask for a high or low ball; and had to be given what he wanted.

A foul ball could be caught on first bounce, and the first baseman played right on the bag.

The umpire of 1887 sat on a chair often protected by an umbrella, with his station being between the plate and first base. From here he had to decide on balls, strikes and play at all bases.

Baseball in the '80s was played with ten men and they meant ten men. After the second inning, no changes were permitted in the personnel. An outfielder could change places with the pitcher. But except for illness and authentic injury, no newcomer could be inserted into the line-up. The rules also stipulated that no base runner could have a substitute except on account of illness or injury.

As so the old rules run along furnishing a laugh here and a chuckle there, and couched in nothing like the very legal and almost too-involved language of the code as it stands today. The men who wrote the rules during that time certainly laid no claim to literary skill. They knew what they wanted to say, and they put their ideas across even though it ran into a rather grammar school tenor.

Waco's Don and Temple's Surgeons, two Central Texas semi-pro nines, are busily engaged preparing for the biggest baseball affair in Texas, the third annual State Semi-pro Tournament that will be held in Katy Park at Waco July 20th to 31st inclusive. Temple has the better season record of the two teams but Waco has not yet hit its expected stride. These two teams will engage in series to decide the championship of Central Texas. Waco has four capable hurlers Bass, Connally, Gillum and Evans while Temple has only one the aged Ben Zock, who was the kingpin of Texas semi-pro pitchers back in 1936. The Surgeons have defeated the Dons 10-3 earlier in the season. But the Dons started Country Williams inexperienced Baylor hurler and the Surgeons hepped on him for six runs in the very first inning. Tommy Fine pitched his one and only game for the Surgeons that night. Fine is invincible under the lights, and he fanned 19 Don hitters that night.

However, Fine is signed up with Mount Pleasant, as is Lon Goldstein slugging first base guardian, who was counted on as one of the mainstays of the Surgeon nine. However, the Surgeons are not drawing well at home, and as a result, are not able to pay their players as much as other teams who are great drawing card. When Waco and Temple face off again the Surgeons will feel greatly the loss of these two fine youngsters.

Miss Annie Robinson is now vacationing in Abilene as guest of her brothers in that city.

Miss Verna Walters spent the weekend at her former home in McGregor.

VALUE OF EROSION CONTROL

Visible proof of the effectiveness of a complete erosion control program in conserving both soil and moisture may be found in the roadside ditches of this county according to Wiley Seward, a county road maintenance operator.

In a statement made to local SCS technicians last week, Mr. Seward reported that for some time a marked difference had been apparent in the condition of those ditches adjoining farms on which erosion control program had been installed and on those farms which were unprotected. In many cases, following a heavy rain, runoff water badly eroded farm land rushes into the roads and ditches in such quantities as with such great force that the entire road is badly damaged. In other instances, even though the road-bed is not damaged, runoff water has filled the ditches with silt which results in roadways becoming flooded and impassable because of poor drainage. In either event much expense is incurred in repairing the damage.

A specific case was pointed out of a farm near Pidcocke belonging to Mr. Howard Compton. In the past runoff water from this farm frequently did considerable to an adjoining county road. Since a complete erosion control program has been established on this farm, however Mr. Seward reports that, not only has there been no further damage to the road, but apparently no runoff water whatever comes into the ditch from the adjoining field.

These observations by Mr. Seward furnish further proof of the enormous cost of uncontrolled erosion not only to the farmer on whose land it begins but to the millions of people who are required to pay for its eventual results.

STIRRING FINISH BEHIND
EVANS GIVES MOUND NO. 6

Playing inspired ball back of the courageous seven-hit hurling of Lefty Joe Evans and the dynamic slugging of Byrre Gilbreath, the league leading Mound defeated a fighting Pidcoke nine in a contest that was in doubt until the last pitch. With two down in the ninth, a clean single from the big bat of Gilbreath, sent his happy teammate, B. G. Anderson, scampering across the plate with the run which won for Mound 4 to 3, and made that team the outstanding favorite to capture the Coryell County Sunday baseball league championship hunting. Going into the seventh two runs behind, Mound scored one run in each of the three closing innings to keep their spotless record unmarred chances flawlessly, including three long hits, ranged far and wide afield, handling fourteen chances flawlessly, including three difficult foul flies.

Eric Wiegand led the losing battle waged by Pidcoke. This lanky lad jolted Evans for three hits, one a mighty home run over the left field fence, the only circuit smash of the day. His second inning single brought Bowman home with the first Pidcoke tally.

Mound scored in the opening stanza when Anderson, leadoff man, was hit by a pitched ball. Anderson stole second, went to third on Bud Evans' long fly to center and came home when Gilbreath rapped a single over short.

Pidcoke matched this in the 2nd when Bowman single, and went all the way to third when White allowed the ball to get away from him. Wiegand shoved him across with a stinging single thru second. They added two more in the 5th and 6th round. Curry 1st man up in the sixth went to first when Hodge, pudgy Mound shortstop erred on his sharp grounder and went to second when Lowrey found one of Evans slants too hot to handle and got to third when Anderson talled to pick up Barton's grounder. Barton purposely played off first base and when Evans shot the ball to Gilbreath in an effort to retire him, Barton dug in his toes and headed for second. While Anderson and Gilbreath were busy trapping Barton, Curry slipped home to give Pidcoke the lead. In the sixth Wiegand drilled out his homer.

Bomar scored Mound's 2nd run in the seventh. He shot a grounder down the third base line, and Bowman coming in fast, made a nice pick-up but threw the ball ten feet over Barton's head, and by the time the ball was returned to the field of play Bomar was perched on second Lowrey brought him home with a single. In the eighth Gilbreath slammed out a line double to left center and Bomar brought him home with a dinky Texas Leaguer over the second-base man's head. Then came Gilbreath's pay off blow in the ninth. Lockhart, speedy little left fielder, kept Pidcoke in the game during the early innings with three sensational running catches.

Cord-Lock makes them 31% SAFER

Mansfield Cushion Balloons are built the Mansfield way—three ways differently from other tires. They have Cord-Lock construction that gives a 31% greater safety factor in the sidewalls—anchored-in piano wire beads, seven times stronger than actually needed—wide, flat, tough Duro-mix treads that wear like iron and grip tight on slippery pavements.
