LIONS INVADE T'VILLE TONIGHT WITH THE BELLS ON

Look out Turnersville! The hungry bunch of neglected husbands and "young sprouts" including Dr. Otis C. Ray are billed to put their knees under someone's table at Turnersville tonight.

These Lions have "tried other's table wares" besides at their own homes, and do justice to any body's meal.

All of which means, the Lions Club are making another goodwill tour out Turnersville way, and will expect to see all the folks of that vicinity tonight.

Supt. Virgil Jones got wise and along with Everett Williams, took a "bunch of the boys" to Neff Park to avoid the rush.

It is secretly whispered there will be a good program furnished by the Lions on their tonight visit.

Rufus Brown and H. K. Jackson did the canvassing and here's the donors: Guaranty Bank & Trust Co., Rutherford Barber Shop, Hensler, Hord & Parks, Davidson Bros. & Co. McClellan Grocery, J. H. Derby Postponed Until Sept. 2; C. T. of A. Backs Derby

A new date for the Derby! Due to the fact that we would have to announce the closing date for the News-Merchant's Bicycle Safety Derby one day between now and Friday of this week and that the medals which will be furnished by the Cycle Trades of America, Inc., probably would not be here, we are postponing the Derby until FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 2.

In a letter from E. H. Broadwell Manager of the Cycle Trades of America, Inc., he advises, a set of L. A. W. clip medals will be sent for the girl's race 6-12; a set of L. A. W. (League of American Wheelman) plaque medals for the girls, 13-17; a set of bar medals for the boys, 6-12; and a set of ribbon medals each for the boys 13-17 and over 40, or a total of 15 prizes in all.

In addition, R. E. Powell, in each of the five divisions, offers a rear view mirror to winners.

Other prizes already announced are, in order of the announcement; Choice of accessories from the Western Auto Associate Store $1.00 watch in the 6-12 boys division; and $1.00 fountain pen for the girls 6-12, by Koen-Foster Drug Store; Gatesville Drygoods Company offers a pair of "Keds" as prizes in these two divisions.

Also the News is offering State Fair of Texas books, with three admission tickets in each book for winners in some of the divisions.

Entries to date are not of such quantity, but the quality is extra high, and surprising, is the fact that one 44 year old man has flung a challenge to others to enter in Division 5.

There are also two entries in Division I, none in the older girl's division, II, seven in Division III; one in Division IV; and one in Division V.

There are lots of openings, and someone is going to win prizes with out racing, if more entries are not received. Clip the coupon and get in on the prizes, fun, and clean safe sport. It'll be after the second primary, and all interest will be centered on the riders.

CUPS TO BE OFFERED WINNERS IN COUNTY BASE BALL LEAGUE

Winners of the 1938 Coryell County Base Ball League will be recognized and a cup will be inscribed with the name of the winning team each year thereafter, if there is a Coryell County Base Ball League.

The cup, which will be in the News window in a day or two will be called the Coryell County News Cup, and will be 10 1/2 inches tall, on a pedestal base, with a plate for inscriptions. The cup will be kept in the News office where it can be seen by anyone in the county.

During the following years, the Champion Base Ball Team of Coryell County of each successive years will be inscribed on the cup.

This year Sport Editor John Frank Post Jr., has been Secretary of the County Base Ball League and the well known local sportsman Bob Arnold has been President.

Editor Post has handled his end of the publicity in a generous manner, has the good will of all playing members as well as fans from reports we have heard.

So, after the winners in the 1938 Championship, the teams can start planning the 1939 Season, with the idea of taking the Coryell County News Championship Cup in 1939.

—Keep your eyes on the road.

CITY SOFT BALLERS TO HAVE "CHAMP" CUP BY NEWS

Heck, we're really in the cup business. Besides, the cup offered in the Coryell County Base Ball League, we're just 'a-goin' to repeat, and give one to the City League Soft Ball Champs.

This cup, with its pedestal is the same height as the "hard ball" cup, but is surmounted by a softball player instead of a base ball player.

This cup will also be called the Coryell County News Cup or the "News Cup" and each year the name of the winning club will be inscribed in the plate on the pedestal.

Sport fans in the county, in every line of endeavor are getting more and more interested in sports, and if there is any way possible the News can assist in promoting these events, we are at your service.

Let's put on our best bib and tucker, pump hands, pat backs, show courtesies, out-of-the-way courtesies. Let's sell Gatesville as the "Midway" or "Center-Stop" of travelers along the proposed new highway, which is gaining impetus toward completion.

What if?

What if we had 15 inches of rain above Jonesboro on the Leon river?

What if all this came within a few days, washed out all our farms, homes, cattle, livestock, poultry, barns, and even drowned some of our relatives. It's never happened of course but remember "Curious Facts", "Believe it or Not" or "It's a Fact".

Strange and true things do happen, as you read from these cartoons.

San Saba and Brady thought the same thing. They probably were not prepared, as, of course, we wouldn't be. They're asking for help, just as we would be. They're not getting the help from HERE that they should. Let's reverse the situation—and, by that process, you'll know, the Red Cross wants YOU to do your part in completing the quota for Coryell County.

Cord-Lock makes them 31% SAFER

● Mansfield Cushion Balloons are built the Mansfield way—three ways differently from other tires. They have Cord-Lock construction that gives a 31% greater safety factor in the sidewalls—anchored-in piano wire beads, seven times stronger than actually needed—wide, flat, tough Duro-mix treads that wear like iron and grip tight on slippery pavements.

MANSFIELD EXTRA MILEAGE Tires

Add to this the fact that Mansfield Cushion Balloons are the "low cost" tires of the day—that they give consistently longer mileage on all makes of late model cars. When you ride on Mansfields, you know you have safety, service and savings of a new order. Every Mansfield Tire gives you more mileage than you pay for.

KEEP COOL! With These Summer Dessert Secrets

WHEN it's ninety in the shade right after breakfast, the very thought of planning dessert for dinner makes you shudder. But you can laugh at soaring temperatures if you plan the week's desserts ahead of time. Make up a chocolate sundae sauce on baking day and store it in your refrigerator until wanted either for ice cream, cottage pudding, or for a simple milk pudding. And with a reserve supply of cookies to round out a fresh fruit dessert, you've no longer any emergency to meet.

Chocolate Sundae Sauce
2 1/2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1/2 cup water
3/4 cup sugar
Dash of salt
Add chocolate to water, bring to a boil and cook 4 minutes, stirring constantly. Add sugar and salt, and boil 4 minutes longer stirring constantly. Serve hot or cold on ice cream puddings, or cake. Make 1 cup sauce.

Chocolate Macaroons
4 egg whites
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon vanilla

1 1/2 squares unsweetened chocolate melted
1 1/2 cups shredded coconut
Beat egg whites until foamy throughout, add sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating after each addition until sugar is blended. Then continue beating until mixture will stand in peaks. Add salt and vanilla. Fold in chocolate, then coconut. Drop from teaspoon on ungreased heavy paper. Bake in slow oven (325° F) 20 minutes, or until done. Cool 5 minutes before removing from paper. Makes 2 dozen 1 1/2 inch macaroons.

Coconut Macaroons
5 tablespoons granulated sugar
5 tablespoons powdered sugar
1 tablespoon flour
2 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon vanilla or almond extract
1 cup shredded coconut
Sift together sugars and flour. Beat egg whites until foamy throughout then add sugar mixture, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Fold in flavoring and coconut. Drop from teaspoon on ungreased heavy paper. Bake in slow oven (325° F) 20 to 25 minutes, or until delicately browned. Makes 15 macaroons.

ALEXANDER KORDA presents
"ELEPHANT BOY"
 Based on "Toomai of the Elephants" by
RUDYARD KIPLING

THE STORY SO FAR
 Toomai, father of Little Toomai and master of the mighty elephant Kala Nag, is killed during an elephant hunt under Petersen Sahib. Kala Nag, angered by Lukman, Little Toomai's enemy, injures Lukman and is condemned to die. Petersen wins him a reprieve, but meanwhile Little Toomai flees into the jungle with his beloved elephant. Petersen and his men follow them.

Chapter Six

The hunters peered long before they discovered traces of Kala Nag's passage on the outskirts of the camping. With much hallooing, the men packed, and mounted their beasts and plunged into the jungle in search of the boy.

All the day Kala Nag and the boy traveled quickly through the jungle. Toomai clung closely to the neck of his elephant, mindful of the perils that might lurk in the low, overlying branches of the trees as they crashed along through forests where none had penetrated before.

They stopped in a clearing while Toomai found himself food among

When he had watched them in fascination for some time, he crept down closer, and saw how they passed off through a clearing. While he watched, he saw the unmistakable form of Kala Nag. He called softly to his elephant, and Kala Nag, hesitating for a moment, turned and came to his master. For a while he watched the strange ceremonies of the jungle from the top of the elephant's head, then went to return to their sleeping place.

In the morning, Toomai awoke to discover Petersen and Machua Appa peering down at him. By forced marches the hunt had caught up with them. Toomai was still in terror for Kala Nag's life. "Give me Kala Nag," he pleaded, "and I will give you the greatest herd of elephants you ever saw."

Petersen looked incredulous, the other scoffed. But Toomai led them to the edge of his camp where they could look down on the great herd washing in the ford below.

"Whew!" Petersen whistled, "that herd must be worth a hundred thousand pounds." Quickly he turned and ordered men to build the strongest stockade they were capable of. Others were to cross the river and be prepared to start the drive.

When half the day was finished the fruits which grew in the trees. They stopped, too, at a waterhole where Kala Nag disported in the water, raising his trunk and spouting water joyously over his shoulders and back.

"There arose great cheering from the men around the campfire."

All the day, Toomai dreamed of the mighty hunter he would some day become, but as darkness fell, he began to think of a place to rest.

There was a mighty river somewhere before them and when they came to a clearing where they could see the ford of the river below, Toomai decided to call a halt. On the morrow they would cross the river there.

At his command, the elephant laid his bulk flat on the ground. And Little Toomai nestled before Kala Nag's shoulders under the cover of his mighty trunk for protection. When he had implored the Gods of the Jungle for safety and success in his flight, he closed his eyes and soon was lost in slumber.

That night Toomai dreamed of the camp. And he remembered how they had gazed at him about the fire. How Machua Appa had told him "you will be a hunter only when you see the elephants dance." In his dream he wished that he might see the elephants dance.

When Toomai awoke, it was with a terrified feeling. The earth underneath him shook as with the trembling of an approaching earthquake. The full moon overhead made portions of the jungle stand out as clearly as in day. With a feeling of terror, he saw that Kala Nag was gone. Soft, then louder, grew the trumpeting of elephants and the rolling, rumbling, drumming sound. Jumping to his feet, Toomai gazed in fascination on the ground that ran down to the river from him.

There, so far as his eyes could reach were elephants. And they were dancing! Bulls, cows, baby elephants—crowded together, pounding their great feet in some ecstatic rhythm. Toomai drew in his breath with surprise and joy, and shouted wildly. He had seen the elephants dance! He was a hunter.

all the preparations were ready. Then Little Toomai witnessed the wonder of his first drive. When Petersen fired his gun for the signal, the men emerged from the forest, shouting and chanting, beating drums and waving torches. And the great herds turned in panic, milled for a moment and headed in the direction of the drive, adding their outcries to the pandemonium.

All along the path, men would dart from the jungle at the first sign of wavering by the herd and force them back into line. Soon the stockades were reached. The first elephant in line hesitated, then charged through the opening. The others followed in great clouds of dust. When the last had passed through the opening, the gate fell with a great clatter, and there were loud cries of joy from the men. Even Kala Nag, with Little Toomai riding on his head, seemed to be fully aware of the import of what was happening.

There was much rejoicing at the fire that night. And all were loud in their praise of Toomai. But suddenly Machua Appa stepped into the mist of the circle and signaled for Little Toomai to advance to him. Lifting his voice, he shouted, "Listen my brothers!"

"Listen my lords, too, in the line," he turned to speak to the elephants in the picket line.

"This little one shall no longer be Toomai, but Toomai of the Elephants, as his grandfather was called before him. He has done what never man has done before. The favour of the elephant-folk and the Gods of the Jungle are with him. Now he belongs to the great family of the Hunters!"

There arose great cheering from the men around the campfire. But as their voices died down, the elephants in the line lifted their trunks. And suddenly on the clear night they trumpeted out their salute. It was in this fashion that the elephant folk greeted this new person, this Little Toomai who was now Toomai of the Elephants!

SPORT SCROLL

nable Manager.

Foot ball will soon be in full swing all over the county. Gatesville's aspirants will get their first taste of rough work Monday, when Worley will issue his call for all candidates. At the present, the Turnersville Buffaloes are encamped at Neff Park, learning the pigskin arts from Virgil Jones. The Buffaloes will have both a six man and an eleven-man team this year, as are several other teams in this county, according to the reports drifting our way.

Mound is now in fine position to win the county league playoff series in two games. They defeated the Eagles Sunday 11-6 without the use of their ace hurler, Joe Evans, using Whalley and Long to turn them back.

They now have Evans ready for service Wednesday, while the Eagles first string hurler, Carl Liljedahl will not be ready to go because he pitched Sunday.

THE GATESVILLE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE NEEDS YOUR SUPPORT

Some 18 months ago a few business men of Gatesville decided we should re-organize our Chamber of Commerce. They met in the City Hall and elected officers. This organization now has about 160 members. Since that date the work has been carried on thru the various committees working with their President and Secretary.

THE OFFICERS RECEIVE NO PAY

When you join this home organization composed of local business men every cent paid in goes to benefit Gatesville and Coryell County. Not one cent is paid to the officers and committees for their services, each of them donate their time doing what they think best for GATESVILLE and CORYELL COUNTY.

YOU NAME THE AMOUNT YOU PAY

When you join, you are not assessed a certain amount each month, it is a free will offering and the money you pay goes into a general fund and before it can be spent it is passed on by the board of directors.

IN UNITY THERE IS STRENGTH

The citizenship of Gatesville must unite as other towns are doing and continue to make Gatesville one of the best small towns in Texas. You do not have to be a merchant to belong to the Chamber of Commerce, if you are a property owner or if you love Gatesville it is high time you were doing something about it.

THERE'S WORK TO BE DONE

There's plenty of work to be done but with our present finances and manpower it is limited. See the membership committee today and let's all get in the harness with one thing in mind and that is to make Gatesville still a better town. A town that we will take pride in showing to our friends from other places and make them want to live in Gatesville with us. THE BEST LITTLE TOWN IN TEXAS.

MOUND WINS FIRST PLAY-OFF GAME; OUT SCORES EAGLES 11-6

The Mound team reasserted their supremacy over county league rivals by walloping an error-making band of Jonesboro Eagles 11-6 to take the first game of the Saughnessy play-off. The Mound club had to come from behind twice to overhaul the Eagles.

The payoff inning was the 8th stanza, when Mound tallied five times as the entire Eagle nine blew sky high. They go only three hits that stanza, but five Jonesboro miscues were responsible for the runs.

Jonesboro took an early lead scoring twice in the very opening frame, and then again in the second. Mound scored one in the second, and then tallied again in the third, leaving the score. 3-2, Jonesboro. The game went along scoreless until the sixth. Then the Mound club hopped all over the offerings of Swede Liljedahl, ace Eagle hurler for three hits and three runs, to go into the lead, five to three. However Jonesboro came back and scored three in their half of the seventh to drive Whaley from the box. Long went in for Mound and kept the Eagles away from the plate the rest of the way. Mound scored another in the seventh to tie up the old ball game, and then had their big eighth inning to put the game on ice.

Soupy Lowrey led the Mound sluggers with three hits in four jaunts to the plate. All his hits were inserted when they were most needed, and his brilliant, hustling play won the ball game for Mound. B. G. Anderson, who also turned in a sterling game afield, slammed out three bingles in five jaunts to the plate, as did Liljedahl, Eagle hurler.

The All-star game which we played on the Mound diamond August 21, promises to attract the largest crowd of the year. The All-stars line-up presents a truly great team, one that is favored to whip the Mound boys.

The second game of the series will be played at Jonesboro. Mound has a fine chance to go right on thru to a win and win the playoff series without a defeat. Lefty Joe Evans will probably go into the box for Mound and every Coryell county diamond fan knows what that means.

It was great pitching turned in by Lowell Holt, Merchant fire ball hurler and former Hornet star tackle when he turned back the light hitting T & R bridge gang with no hits, the first perfect game pitched in the city softball league this season. Only two men reached first, one on a walk, and then another on an error. Holt has seemingly hit his true stride. All year he has been pitching great ball, but was not able to last over three or four innings. His style of pitching is very straining on a slab artist, and after going three of four innings at top speed, Holt would be thru. However, it seems as if now he has learned to spread his pitching strength out over the full seven innings, much to the relief of Seth Anderson, ver-

THE BRITISH DILEMMA

The ousting of Capt. Anthony Eden as British foreign secretary by no means unified the cabinet off Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain. What the removal of Eden accomplished was to give Chamberlain a free hand to bargain with the dictators a policy which he has constantly advocated as a means of relieving the pressure on the democracies.

Chamberlain negotiated the Anglo-Italian treaty with Mussolini shortly after Eden stepped out of the foreign office to be succeeded by Viscount Halifax, a member of the house of lords. The purpose of the treaty was to restore the amicable relations between the Italians and the British before Downing street invoked sanctions against the Fascists during the Italo-Ethiopian war. Britain secured a promise from Mussolini that the Mediterranean route to the British possessions in Asia would be protected.

But if Duce exacted one concession from Chamberlain which has been a thorn in his side ever since, Chamberlain agreed that the treaty would not go into effect until the Italian troops were withdrawn from Spain, and tacitly agreed further than the Fascist militia serving with the armies of General Franco would not return to Italy until the Loyalist government of Spain was destroyed.

The Loyalist are still stubbornly resisting the rebels, although it is only a matter of time before they must succumb to superior equipment and resources on the Franco side. Mussolini's troops have not been withdrawn and they will not be so for many months yet, for foreign observers are not yet convinced that Francisco Franco could maintain his regime with out foreign aid even after hostilities had ceased. Therefore, all indications point to the indefinite maintenance of an Italian army of occupation in Spain, although this army will be incorporated in the regular Spanish army or foreign legion. And so long as Mussolini has troops in Italy, the Anglo-Italian treaty of amity will remain in abeyance.

However this is only one of the acute and troublesome problems with which Chamberlain must contend.

He has been unable to reach any kind of an agreement or "rapprochement" with Nazi Germany. Hitler, as the price of an agreement with Britain, demands concessions Chamberlain can not afford to grant without sacrificing the supremacy of the Conservative party in the British government.

Hitler will sign on the dotted line with Chamberlain if he is granted a free hand either in Central Europe or with Russia, and if the pre-war German colonies in Africa are returned. Britain's alliance with France, strengthened by the recent visit of the King and Queen to France, prevents the consummation of such a deal with Germany, for France has a treaty of mutual assistance with Czechoslovakia and also with Russia.

Germany is determined to conquer all or parts of Czechoslovakia. If the Nazis attack Czechoslovakia. France will march to the aid of the Czechs and Britain to protect her friendly neighbor. will automatically become involved on the side of the democracies. Chamberlain, gully cognizant of this potentiality, is exercising every means to appease the Sudetan Germans in Czechoslovakia, who demand complete autonomy within the Czechoslovak state. Lord Runciman, former president of the British board of trade is now in Czechoslovakia with the approval of the Berlin and Prague governments to act as mediator and conciliator in the squabble between the Czechs and their own German minority, which comprises about 25 per cent of the total population.

Since Chamberlain succeeded rugged old Stanley Baldwin as head of Britain's Conservative cabinet, he has predicated his foreign policy upon appeasing Italy and Germany with as many concessions as his country could possibly make. In pursuance of this policy, Germany was permitted to annex Austria and expropriate valuable British properties. But this is only one instance of the slaps in the face administered to Britain by the dictatorships.

Failure to assume a strong policy toward Hitler and Mussolini, who take the proverbial mile when granted an inch, has aroused the opposition not only of the British masses and more specifically of labor but also of many Conservatives, who left the government with Eden.

The ranks of the dissident Conservatives are increasing to such an extent that Chamberlain may have to alter his foreign policy to prevent the downfall of his government. Eden is the acknowledged leader of the Conservative bloc which demands that Britain fight are Fascist states rather than continue to be humiliated by them. And Eden would be prime minister should Chamberlain be unable to maintain his position with his party.

Labor in England has never approved of Chamberlain's dilly-dally policy toward the Fascists. Labor does not want to fight, but believes that every concession to Hitler and Mussolini makes them stronger to fight both politically and economically. Labor believes that the fascists are afraid to engage the democracies in a prolonged, costly and disastrous war in which no participant would be the victor, and

SHEEP SENSE

Present conditions in the wool market are favorable for starting a farm flock with a comparatively small investment. Many people enter a new enterprise only when it is booming, pay high initial costs, and fight a losing battle against inexperience and high investment. The smart ones buy when others are anxious to sell and ride the cycle upward instead of down, getting the experience at low cost. Sheep husbandry is no exception to the rule calling for both good judgement and experience.

Farms with ample feed and small grains for winter pasture need only fences, water and shelter to handle a farm flock. Some have found aged bred ewes preferable as a beginning, since they offer a quick return in both early jams and a wool clip. Aged ewes will thrive on a farm where feed is ample and better care can be given after they have ceased to be profitable on the open range, hence they are often a better 'buy' for the beginner than the yearlings and twos which the range sheepman prefers, and which he holds at a proportionally higher price.

If open ewes are bought off the range and placed on comparatively luxuriant feed on the farm they will usually breed readily in a few weeks, and the ram should be on hand. The change from short feed to good feed is equivalent to "flushing" to encourage breeding a practice as old as the modern sheep industry. If ewes are already on good pasture it is common to give them a small portion of grain for the same purpose.

Ewes from three years of age upward if not badly "flock-mouthed" or unthrifty for other reasons will raise more and better lambs than the more expensive two year olds which the range sheepman prefers because of their youthful vigor and ability to withstand the vicissitudes of range life. On the farm, in small numbers, the ewes can receive close attention and individual care that is impossible in the range flock.

Milk fed lambs born from December to February are a quick money crop from the farm flock going to market early in summer before hot weather and parasites affect their rapid growth. Where the ewes run on small grain or other green winter pastures it requires only a little hand fed grain, cottonseed cake, or legume hay, to keep the dams in strong condition and raise a lamb to market size at four to six months of age.

Lambs begin eating at two to four weeks and a creep should be provided where ground or cracked grain and clean legume hay can be fed, in addition to the green pasture and their mothers' milk.

It would be a mistake to assume that sheep can be profitably kept on the farm without better care than more rugged livestock receives. Lambing in the winter calls for well conditioned ewes, dry shelter and personal attention at the critical time. The Southwest has a distinct advantage over more Northern states in its open, sunny winters, which permit sheep to remain on pasture most of the time, but they must be protected from the short but sometimes severe cold snaps and especially from wet cold weather.

Experienced farm flock men often realize a hundred per cent on their investment in a year, the fat lambs sold bringing about as much as the dam cost, and the wool clip paying the balance. This however, is too much to count on as a regular thing, and the beginner should not be disappointed if he fails to pay off his investment the first year.

Farm flocks have increased rapidly in the Southwest in recent years, and beginners will find a great deal of helpful information in the bulletins of the various agricultural colleges and the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Ask the county agent.

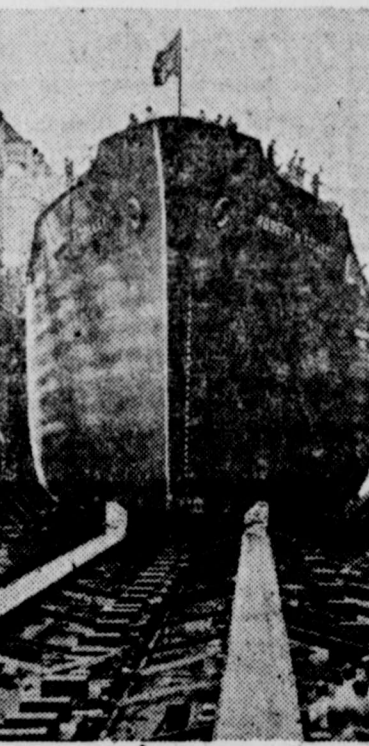

The average school term in the city is 181.7 days a year. In r community 160.8 days.

Sweden has less unemployed than a year ago.

THE FOUR ESSENTIAL STEPS IN BUILDING

HOME MAKERS SHOULD CHECK BEFORE BUILDING

Many difficulties and disappointments can be avoided if the home builder is familiar with certain facts that should be studied before starting to build. The house is a large investment... it's a life time investment—it can be made a truly wise and profitable investment with only a little study and thinking. Four of the most important points to consider in building a new home are:

Where?

Selection of the lot involves a careful study of the neighborhood that you are making your permanent home. Such questions as: Is it a growing and desirable community? Has it adequate transportation, educational and recreational facilities? Is there a possibility of special assessments or taxes?

What?

Plans and specifications for the home are probably the most important steps in building and is probably one of the least considered. Few people are familiar with fundamental building principles and costs—and can easily end up with a home that, though it looks nice, is rotten at the core. This can be avoided by having all plans and specifications checked by the F. H. A. or a reliable architect.

How?

A ten per cent down payment is all that is necessary, though a larger one will make it easier to pay and the monthly payments smaller. In addition the FHA recommends that the payments on the mortgage to be one fifth to one fourth on the income.

Who?

The contractor is the one that will give you either a solid, well constructed home or one that will settle out of place, leak and all the troubles that come from shoddy construction. It is very wise to choose a large reputable firm—though some curb stone operator whispers he can build it for less.

SEEDING BUFFALO GRASS

"The abundant crop of Buffalo grass seed in Coryell county this year is used to the greatest advantage would greatly increase the amount of quality of pasture in this area," E. E. McAllister Technician in Charge of the Soil Conservation Service work here stated last week.

"Some thirty or forty demonstration plots of bare pasture land were seeded to Buffalo grass by the Soil Conservation Service last winter in an effort to determine the effectiveness and economy of propagating Buffalo grass from seed in this area. To date all of these plantings which received reasonable care have shown remarkable promise. Plants from seed planted last winter on the Otto Buth farm near Coryell City have spread to a distance of two to three feet and should completely cover the area seeded by next spring. Other plantings which have developed very favorably may be seen on the Monroe Blankenship farms near Coryell City, and on the L. K. Thomson farm near Turnersville.

"Seed of the Buffalo grass may be collected with little cost. Two men should collect as much as one hundred pounds a day; which will be sufficient to plant ten to twenty acres of ground. To date more than thirteen tons of these seed have been collected by the local CCC Camp at a cost range from three to ten cents per pound. All of these seed were collected by sweeping over closely grazed areas with ordinary brooms.

"Best results from Buffalo seeding have been obtained by planting the seed with an ordinary walking planter in two foot rows on clean land. The planter should be regulated to drop from twelve to twenty seeds per foot. Seed should be covered very lightly and packed down with a packer wheel. The best season for planting is probably mid-winter or late fall. If planted at these seasons the severe winter freeze will tend to crack the tough covering of the seed which otherwise would retard germination.

"Since young Buffalo plants are very small and tender it is recommended that the seeded area not be grazed during the 1st season and that the rows be cultivated at least twice with an ordinary cultivator to control weeds and encourage growth.

"Experiences from past season indicate that Buffalo grass may be propagated much more economically by seeding than by sodding with the percentage of survival, under favorable conditions being about the same.

WORLD COMMENT—

that the Fascists will back down before a united front of Britain and France.

Chamberlain is in a better position to abandon his fruitless foreign policy now than he was a year ago. for British rearmament has progressed amazingly in the last twelve months in spite of serious deficiencies in the air rearmament program. The French army is still unsurpassed in Europe, while the British navy dominates European waters from Norway to Spain.

Perhaps the lion will soon rise from his lethargic state and assume his old role of supremacy in European diplomacy.
