HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT TO RECEIVE NORTH-SOUTH DELEGATION IN AUSTIN

Monday, in Austin, it is expected, and urged, that 200 Coryell county people meet with delegation from other towns along the North-South highway, with the view of furthering the commission in furthering the interests of this very badly needed highway.

Cars will leave the courthouse Monday morning at 7:00 a. m. and transportation for those who do not have cars will be provided. Those who can go in their own cars are asked to register with the Transportation committee, composed of Pat Holt, Dawson Cooper and W. C. Guggolz.

Anyone wishing transportation may also register with either one of these men.

This meeting at which there will be delegations from Fort Worth, Cleburne, Clifton, Valley Mills, Meridian, Gatesville, Florence, Killen, Copperas Cove and other intermediate points, is for the presentation of the North-South Highway before the commission.

Interest in the highway has already been shown by the commission, and with a large delegation in Austin, there is more probability of a better reception.

FIRE PRACTICALLY RUINS ANOTHER TORBETT DWELLING

Ten o'clock yesterday morning, fire practically destroyed another Torbett owned dwelling in Torbett town, which was occupied by Mrs. Ruby Bond.

According to Mrs. Annez Wilson, there was no insurance on the property. The structure was practically a total loss, and what furniture and clothing that escaped burning, was water damaged.

In going to the fire, one Gatesvilleite was fined, according to reports for speeding and passing the fire truck.

There's a timely warning for you There ought to also be one for phoning "central" and asking "where the fire is?"

Two other families also lived in th house. No one was injured.

RURAL AID BUDGET DUE IN SUPT'S OFFICE SEPT. 25th.

According to County Superintendent J. M. Witcher, Rural Aid Budgets from various schools of the county are due in that office by September 24, a week from this coming Saturday. Only two reports have been received as yet, and these are from Evant and Topsey.

These reports have to be checked in the office before being sent to the State Department at Austin, where the deadline is October 1.

Every school in the county must file these reports and, Gatesville schools have to file for the contract schools that are sending their students to school in Gatesville.

MRS. E. C. SLONE MADE COMMITTEEWOMAN AT STATE PARLEY

Sharing honors with war, was the war at Beaumont Monday, Tuesday and parts of two other days, where the State Democratic Convention was held.

Highlights of th convention were "shelving" of W. Lee O'Daniel by the convention "ramrods"; ovation given Gerald C. Mann; Key-note speech by V. C. Collins; address by Senator Tom Conally; election of E. B. Germany, Dallas for State Democratic Chairman instead of Carr P. Collins, O'Daniel's friend.

$30 pensions paymnt received a distinct set-back; poll taxes will still be paid; racing and betting took it on the nose, and Senator Connally, in a spech on the floor, scored the idea of the United States entering the war either "by soldiers or dollars", and, denounced the government's discrimination against the South; reaffirmed the state's rights, and, in line with the Anti-Lynching Bill, stated no federal judges were wanted to try citizens of Texas on criminal charges, as the much discussed Anti-Lynching Bill; resenting the infringement on states rights.

Governor Elect O'Daniel was somewhat handicapped by a very painful carbuncle on his arm, which was treated by doctors in Beaumont. For this reason, he did not remain on the convention floor very long at a time.

The Hillbilly Band played three tunes (that we heard) on the convention floor, and Pat, Molly and Mike were the center of lauditory remarks thruout the campaign, the two boys being made Assistant Sargents-at-Arms for the convention.

JONESBORO SCHOOL OPENS SEPTEMBER 19

The Jonesboro school will start the 1938-39 term on Monday, Sept. 19. The school officials and community are looking forward to one of the best years in the school's history.

During the past year the Jonesboro school received full affiliation as a four year high school.

The new gymnasium will be completed by the time school starts and will give Jonesboro athletic teams one of the best gymnasiums in the county. For a number of years the Eagles have been contenders in county basketball and with a gym to work in they should be even better in the future.

The faculty for the coming year are all degree teachers and are as follows: Homer Smith, science and mathematics, Miss Frances Lewis, English and Spanish, Mrs. Jewel Woodhouse, History, Mrs. Lou Hatter 5th and 6th grades, Mrs. Lawton Drake, 3rd and 4th grades, Miss Delphia Farquhar, primary, and Supt. P. T. Lemons.

The enrollment for the coming year is expected to be even greater than that of last year and is, at the present, the school's greatest problem. School officials are planning to ask the State Department for an additional teacher to take care of the crowded conditions.

W. C. GUGGOLZ ENDORSES SCS SERVICE LOCALLY

The 318 acre W. C. Guggolz farm 10 miles northwest of Gatesville on the Jonesboro Road is one of the most recent farms accepted for demonstrational purposes by the Soil Conservation Service here. The program on this farm will include complete protection of both pasture and cultivated land with emphasis on proper land use. The plan on the cultivated land will include crop rotation, contour cultivation, strip cropping and more 4 miles of terraces, most of which have already been constructed.

In commenting on the work last week, Mr. Guggolz stated, "I have waited so long to begin the work that it will be a little expensive now to set up a complete system. Excavation of the waterways and construction of the terraces along will cost more than $600. I can readily see, however, that such a program will save me many times more than that in the long run. My only regret is that I couldn't have had it done about 20 years ago before my fields had become washed so badly.

C. H. Wallace, manager of the Community Public Service Co. here is spending the week in Dallas attending a meeting of the light company.

Mrs. Mozelle Neutzler and daughter of Dallas were visitors in the home of her parents over the week end.

Dr. W. W. Ward of Waco was in Gatesville Monday night.

L. B. Brown, Jim Ed Pruner and Howard Key fished last night at Goldthwaite Lake. They promised something besides "bait" to show for their efforts.

Erie Powell has had as visitors in his home this week, Wiley Alston and Joseph Ashley of Fort Worth, and Willie Black of Orange, all four have just returned from an extended vacation in Monterrey, Mexico. All are students at TCU and leave Gatesville immediately to re-enter that university.

RAIN FOR THE WEEK IS 1.28 INCHES; AND PROSPECTS

Rain Sunday morning and Monday afternoon are 1.28 to this good moment (4 p. m. yesterday), and it looks like more figures will be added at any moment, the heat being what it is.

However, since this is "norther" time, it might just be getting hot to make the "cold weather" harder to take.

Tonight's the night! The curtain rises on the 1938 Football Season locally!

One day this week, we saw the "brutes" in action, and let us tell you, we believe Coach Worley "has got something there."

They're a bit green, says he, but they've got lots of possibilities, and they're going to "tear up Killen", if we're not badly fooled.

Here's that next SW conference Schedule: Texas U: Sept. 24, Kans. U., Lawrence. Oct. 1, LSU, Austin. Oct. 8, Okla. U. Dallas. Oct. 15, Ark. Little Rock. Oct. 22, Rice Houston. Oct. 29, SMU, Austin. Nov. 5, Baylor, Austin. Nov. 12, TCU, Ft. Worth. Nov. 25, Aggies, Austin.

See that box on the front of this issue! That's the lineup for today, Names, numbers, positions, weights (if possible). For the next game, we'll try to get you the dope on the competition.

Joe Reese Robinson is being tried out as a fullback; he's been a lineman, heretofore. Looks good at his new home tho.

See you at the game!

CHEER LEADERS FOR 1938-39 FOOTBALL SEASON ELECTED

Last Monday evening at the first meeting of the Pep Squad of the Gatesville Hornets, three cheer leaders were elected.

Miss Flo Gene Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Martin was unanimously elected head pep leader. Her elected assistants were Miss Bettye Burdette, daughter of Mrs. Doc Rutherford, and Miss Martha Ann Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Powell.

This year the pep squad will have new uniforms, but it will be impossible for each girl to have one for the first game which is tonight, so no one will wear her's at this game.

Although the pep squad will not be "dressed up" in uniforms, they will be yelling just as loud and hard as they ever yelled.

WORLD COMMENT

BRACK CURRY

FACTS AND FIGURES

There are less people employed in private industry today than the day Franklin D. Roosevelt took office. Taxes have increased and will increase further. The public debt stands at its all-time pinnacle. There is less business being conducted.

Over $16,000,000,000 (billions) of federal funds have been spent by the new deal for relief and public works within the period of little more than five years.

If to this total is added nearly $4,000,000,000 (billions) appropriated for relief and pump-priming in the coming fiscal year, the total expended will amount, at the end of six years, to over $20,000,000,000 (billions). This is equivalent to an expenditure of $127 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

WPA work relief rolls now number 3,119,513. This figure is nearly a million less than the highest federal work relief rolls, those under WPA's predecessor, CWA, but is an all time high for WPA as a bureau.

WPA is operating at present on a monthly budget of $265,000,000 highest monthly budget that it can assume if it is to stretch its $1,425,000,000 fund from the recovery bill over the seven-month period to Feb. 28, when the new congress is expected to appropriate more money.

The President of the United States made a speech about a year ago in which he pictured Lord McCauley as representative of the contemporary Tories who are blocking all efforts to return prosperity.

Since the new dealers are still blaming the Tories for the current depression, this writer thinks it opportune to print the final paragraph in Lord McCauley's essay, entitled "Southey's Colloquies," written about 108 years ago.

Southey had written a book supporting the principle of an all-powerful or totalitarian state. Mc-

Cauley attacked the idea and concluded in these words:

"It is not by the intermeddling of Mr. Southey's idol, the omniscient and omnipotent state, but by the prudence and energy of the people, that England has hitherto been carried forward in civilization; and it is to the same prudence and energy that we now look with comfort and good hope.

"Our rulers will best promote the improvement of the nation by strictly confining themselves to their own legitimate duties, by leaving capital to find its most lucrative course, commodities their fair price, industry and intelligence their natural reward, idleness and folly their natural punishment, maintaining peace, by defending property, by diminishing the price of law, and by observing strict economy in every department of the state. Let the government do this: the people will assuredly do the rest."

News dispatch: Philadelphia.—Pasquale Testa lost out a chance to become an American citizen today. Appearing before Federal Judge Kalodner in Naturalization Court, he was asked by the bench:

"Who runs the country?"

"The White House," replied Pasquale.

"Papers refused," snorted the judge. "You'd better go home and do some more studying."

Thomas Jefferson is a great and good example and a man to copy, contend the Washington new dealers. At a time, then, when the WPA is expending billions and reiteration is made that more power must be centered in the hands of the central government if America is to ever be governed wisely and well, this comment by Jefferson to Gideon Granger cannot be said to be without its point.

"You have seen the practices by which the public servants have been able to cover their conduct, or where that could not be done, delusions by which they have varnished it for the eye of their constituents. What an augmentation of the field for jobbing, speculating, plundering, office building and office-haunting would be produced by an assumption of all the state powers into the hands of the general government."

And how!

Albany: New York State is "out of the red" for the first time in seven years, with a surplus of $6,469,322.46. Governor Lehman, who inherited a $100,000,000 deficit when he succeeded Franklin D. Roosevelt on January 1, 1933, announced that the state had wiped

THE VIRGINIA JUDGE

NOVELIZATION OF THE PARAMOUNT PICTURE OF THE SAME NAME

SYNOPSIS
Judge Calhoun Davis of the circuit court in the sleepy little town of Tidewater, Virginia, is hated by his stepson Jim. Jim is in love with Mary Lee, who on the other hand prefers Bob Stuart. Jim gets himself into a jam when he borrows a car from a neighbor without permission and wrecks it. To avoid arrest and to pay the garage bill, Jim sells a shotgun which he found on the rear seat of the car. Bob finds out from Mary that the gun didn't belong to Jim and at a carnival that night Bob meets the latter and a fight ensues near the rifle gallery. During the fight, Jim picks up a gun, and shoots Bob.

CHAPTER IX
The meeting with Martha was even more dreadful than the Judge had expected. She was almost frantic at the idea that her son was a criminal.

"Cal, what will they do with Jim?" she asked piteously, her hands nervously clenching and unclenching as she looked up into the Judge's sober face.

"I don't know exactly, honey," he answered soothingly. "But we might as well face the facts. Jim's got a gun and he's threatened anybody that tries to arrest him. That means whoever finds him ain't gonna take any chances."

"They wouldn't shoot him!" "Jim's a scared kid and that makes him desperate. I'd bet he's gettin' out to look. Maybe he'll listen to me. If somebody else finds him first. . . ." He shook his head ominously and started for the hall. Martha followed.

The Judge walked out to the hat stand. As he took down his hat he glanced in the mirror. Reflected there was Martha, standing in the living room door and anxiously looking up the stairway. The Judge's eyes narrowed. Replacing his hat, he started toward the stairs.

"Where're you going?" gasped his wife.

"Up to the attic. There's something I've got to get."

"What is it? Let me get it!" Martha clutched his sleeve.

"Martha, we've always trusted each other, haven't we," said her husband, placing one hand tenderly on her shoulder. "Never kept anything from each other. That's why it hurts, Martha, that you're doin' it now. Why didn't you tell me Jim was here?"

"He isn't. He . . ." Under the Judge's steady gaze her eyes dropped. "I can't lie to you, Cal. Jim's in the attic. I was only doing what any mother would do. . . ."

"I know how you feel, Martha. But you can't help him that way. I'm going upstairs and try to talk him into giving himself up."

As he spoke there was a screeching of auto tires outside. A car stopped and they saw Plato Jones coming up the walk.

"Don't let them take him," cried Martha frantically. "Tell them he isn't here!"

"You want me to lie? You know I never . . ."

"It's for me, Cal," she implored. The Judge went to the door and opened it. "Hello, Plato. Come in," he said.

"Just came from the hospital," said the Chief bluntly. "Bob's gonna live."

"Thank God," said the Judge and Martha together.

"But it don't change things none. Cal, I still got to get him, an' he's been seen in this neighborhood."

"That's funny," the Judge glanced at Martha. "I kinda figured he'd head for the river."

"No, Cal. He's right here, in this house."

"You'd take Cal's word, wouldn't you, Plato?" gasped Martha.

"Sho'ly ma'am. Anybody'd take his word, Judge, is Jim in this house?" "Yes, Plato, he is," answered Davis, turning away to avoid the look of anguish in Martha's eyes.

"He's right upstairs."

"Reckon I'll have to go an' get him."

"Wait a minute, Plato. I don't want you to go after Jim. He's desperate. Might start shootin'. I'll get him for you."

"There isn't another man I'd trust this way," hesitated the Chief. "It's my job, but . . . All right, Cal. Go ahead."

As the Judge started up the stairs Martha followed.

"You've always said you wanted to help Jim," she whispered. "This is your chance. Let him get away. You could say that he escaped or . . . something. Plato would believe you."

"I can't do that, Martha," he told the hysterical woman.

"If Jim were your own son. . . ." "I'd turn him over to the police. Because he's my stepson is why I'm tryin' to figure some way out."

"Then you're going to let him get away after all?"

"No. That wouldn't be right." Then as he saw Martha's shoulders sag he asked tenderly. "Martha, is this thing I've got to do going to . . . to make any difference between us?"

They looked at each other for a moment. Martha began to sob and the Judge took her in his arms. "There . . . there," he soothed. "It's going to be all right, Martha." He patted her bowed head, then started slowly up the stairs.

"Who's there?" came Jim's frightened voice when the Judge rapped on the attic door.

"It's me, Jim."

"Who's with you?"

"Nobody, son. I want to talk to you. I'm coming in."

"Keep out," shouted the boy. "Keep out, I tell you. I'll shoot."

Despite the warning the door swung slowly open.

"Put that gun down, Jim, please," said the Judge quietly as he entered.

"Your mother knows I came up to see you, and if anything happened, I reckon it'd hurt her more than either of us." Still talking quietly he walked straight toward the levelled pistol. "Plato Jones knows you're here and he's come for you. I gave him my word I'd bring you to him."

"Well, you can't do it," gasped the boy. "Save your breath."

At those words the Judge lunged forward and snatched the gun from his stepson's hand. Then he sent his big fist straight for the boy's jaw. Jim's head snapped back and he fell to the floor, his eyes closed.

"I'm sorry, son," whispered the Judge. "Somebody had to save you." Slowly he moved over to a dresser which filled one side of the room and stood behind it as though at his court bench.

"I reckon this is goin' to be the queerest trial that ever took place in this state," he mused. "But I gave my word to Plato that everything would be proper and legal."

"This court is now in session," he then intoned as he tapped the dresser with the butt of the gun. "First case James Preston, Jim, you're charged with the shooting of one Robert Stuart. Guilty or not guilty?"

"Defendant pleads guilty," he said, after a glance at the unconscious boy. "What have you to say for yourself?"

"So you think you could make a man of yourself if you had one more chance?" he resumed after a pause. "This court is inclined to agree with you. Your mother an' stepfather would like one more chance too . . . especially your stepfather. He wanted to be a real father to you but somehow the clumsy old fool couldn't make you understand. Maybe with another chance . . ."

The Judge shook his head sadly, then resumed. "Jim Preston, you have pleaded guilty to this charge and this court sentences you to one year . . ."

ed out its indebtedness at the beginning of the new fiscal year, July first, by an operating surplus of more than $16,000,000.

In the next six months, the United States News points out, the total check receivers from the federal government will approach 13,000,000. The previous high water mark was in 1936, with 11,000,000 people. Five years ago, the total federal check receivers stood at slightly more than 2,000,000.

If to farmers, unemployed industrial workers, destitute aged, high school and college students war veterans, regular government employees, army, navy and marine corps, personnel and nearly 2,000,000 relief recipient taken care of by the government for partial or full support, the total would be more than 15,000,000.

It to this 15,000,000 were added members of their families and other dependents having a direct interest in the check from the government, the complete total would pass 40,000,000 persons. This includes 17,000,000 affected by work relief program and social security program, 18,000,000 involved in the farm program and other millions dependent on government workers and pensioners.

During the coming six months that began July 1, more than two billion dollars should go to these check receivers on an annual basis this amounts to four billions dollars. Much of this amount is raised by borrowing. The government has been unable to raise by taxation enough money to pay these checks, the total of which is steadily increasing.

If the tide of government hand-outs continues at this pace, or increases, and no way is found to (Continued on last page) pay them out of the income, the ultimate result is debt repudiation or currency inflation.

It the American standard of living is to be spread among all our people and raised to new levels, the sum of our wealth must be increased. It can be increased only by increased production. It is a horrible travesty for this nation to restrict its production when one third of our people as we have been told are "ill fed, ill clad and ill housed." Arbitrary curbing of production solves nothing.—Alf M. Landon in New York Times.
