F. B. I. AGENTS NAB THREE FOR PASSING COUNTERFEIT HALVES

FBI Agents swooped down on Coryell County late last week, and arrested three Coryell county men charged with, according to reports, possessing counterfeit money.

There was a rush on the banks with people bringing back new half dollars, the coins that were counterfeited, but very few of those brought in were "bogus". Local banks, some time recently had put out several hundred dollars worth of new 1934 half dollars, which ARE good.

The "bogus" money is half dollars, 1934, but have a different color and weight, and are easily distinguishable.

The men arrested were taken to Waco and Marlin for questioning and confinement, pending their making bond. Those so charged were Dick Thompson, Irving Scott and a man by the name of Jones from Leon Junction.

FSA COLLECTIONS ARE CONSIDERED GOOD BY LOCAL AGENT

Collections per bale of cotton from Farm Security Administration borrowers in Coryell County are running around $21.32 per bale, which is approximately as high as was expected when the loans were made last spring, although the price per pound is lower than was anticipated, Sloan Baker, FSA rural supervisor, has announced. Rent had to be paid by many borrowers before they could make repayments on their loans, the supervisor pointed out.

"Every farmer in the program has more than one source of cash income, and the cotton crop does not tell the whole story of FSA repayments," Mr. Baker added. "Collections from the sale of livestock and livestock products has amounted to $5,858.59 to date this year."

"These collections do not leave the family stranded and in immediate need of another loan," the supervisor continued. "The amount of food canned by FSA borrowers in this county already this year is estimated at 17,467 quarts, while practically every home has its own supply of meat, milk, and eggs."

Many borrowers have been able to save seed for their crops next year, also, he said.

AVIATION CADETS ARE CALLED "DODOS" WHICH MEANS AN "EXTINCT FLIGHTLESS BIRD"

GAS COMES TO YOU WRAPPED IN CELLOPHANE! (GAS PIPE LINE IS COATED AND WRAPPED 7 TIMES. TWO OF THE WRAPPINGS ARE CELLOPHANE)

A clumsy bird was the Dodo—with small wings incapable of flight. Hence the name given by upper classmen to incoming aviation cadets of the U. S. Government flying schools. Ask any army trained aviator.

Millions of U. S. families accept gas as the modern fuel for cooking, water heating, and refrigeration, yet few realize the activity "behind the scenes." The gas industry spends thousands of dollars annually for the improvement of pipe lines and equipment, as well as domestic appliances. For example, transmission pipe line is carefully coated and wrapped with cellophane, which guards against corrosion and helps the pipe line give years of trouble-free service

Clifton, Rev. D. Barnes of Turnersville and Rev. Andrew Byers of Taylor.

Born May 19, 1866, in Meridian, Mississippi, Alf Cooksey came to Texas as a small boy with his parents and settled near Temple. Forty-five years ago he moved to Coryell County, and has resided in and near Turnersville ever since, until four years ago when he moved to his farm near Clifton, where he died.

On December 27, 1891, Mr. Cooksey married Miss Mary Catherine Worden in Temple. Thirteen children were born, eleven of whom survive their father.

Mr. Cooksey was a Christian, having united with the church nearly 35 years ago. He was an Elder in the Unity Presbyterian Church of Turnersville, and was for several years superintendent of the Sunday School. A Mason in good standing, Mr. Cooksey lived and died loyal to the order and the last rites were read over his body at the grave by the Turnersville Lodge.

Mr. Cooksey's exemplary Christian character gained for him a host of friends throughout the county. His sweet disposition, his determined stand for the right, his splendid community spirit, the genuine interest he took in everyone about him in a kindly neighborly sort of way, and the faithful service that he rendered to his Church are things that will long be remembered. His influence will last long in the lives of those who knew him.

Probably the largest tribute ever paid to anyone in Turnersville was paid to him by his hundreds of friends who came to pay their last respect to the one they so dearly loved. Many, many friends had been his friends for forty years or longer.

Mr. Cooksey is survived by seven daughters, Mrs. Kittie Lee of Breckenridge, Mrs. Winnie Lane of Clifton, Mrs. Vera Pollock of Arlington, Virginia, Mrs. Ruth Kirschner of Washington, D. C., Miss Ina Lloyd and Miss Marariete Cooksey of Dallas, and Mrs. Mary Lee Vandiver of Turnersville; and four sons, Allen and Worden of Clifton, Luther of Ranger, Charles of Sheldon.

Out of town friends who attended were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cook, Mrs. W. W. McCallie, Mrs. W. A. Shannon, Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Morgan, Breckenridge; Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Walker and Bettie Jo, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Wright, Mrs. M. G. Brock and Miss Jewel Sealy, Ranger; and Harold Smith of Dallas.

Wesley Ford of Teague, a long-time friend of Mr. Cooksey, had charge of the Masonic services at the cemetery.

Then with Mrs. Melvin Watson leading, we had a voluntary discussion of "What U. M. S. Has Meant to Me," which was followed by a moment of silent prayer and then voluntary prayers with Mrs. Paris Drake concluding them. Collection for October State Missions was taken, the amount being $11.

There were 37 present, including several visitors. Delicious pineapple cake and lemonade were served.

Our next meeting will be with Mrs. Earl Collins.

Hornet Humble Clifton In Conference Opener 25-0

HORNET MACHINE TOYS WITH CUBS; McDONALD STARTS AT END

Worley uncovered new talent in the second conference opener with Clifton under the lights Friday night, and the count at the final whistle was Hornets 25, Cubs 0.

McDonald, formerly unknown as a tackle on the local squad was flung out on the end position and turned in a stellar game, with his big ham-like hands taking in all passes in miles of him. Post on the other wing played jam-up, receiving equally as well. Line stars, lead by Morgan, Schley, Edwards, Perryman and Weaver, looked good to these old eyes.

Jackson in the back field was outstanding—that boy aided plenty by good blocking holes and interferences placed the ball in scoring position the majority of the times. His broken field, shifty running, was a sensation.

Grimm and Whitley, Cub stars, playing with a green team, did extra well for the Cliftonites. Smith at center gave the Hornets most trouble, playing a bang-up game.

Since line-ups didn't mean anything, due to the numerous substitutes, here's the game, play-by-play:

Grimm holds, Lambeth kicks for Cubs, ball going to Jackson on 30, returned to 35. Jack to Kirk, reverse makes 1 yd. Jack over RT makes 4. Jack, shifting around LT makes 1st down. Jack passes over Post, incomplete. Jack picks up 5. Hornets, holding penalized 15. yds. to Post over center, makes 25 and 1st down. Jackson submarines to Foster who makes 1st down. Jackson passes over McDonald, incomplete. Jackson handing to Kirkpatrick loses 1 yd. Jackson passes over center to No. one. Lester kicks from over goal. Cubs' ball.

Grimm hits center for 0. Both off side. Lambeth over LS makes one. Grimm behind plenty of interference is jammed, making 1. Gatesville off side, 5 yd. penalty. Lambeth stopped at center for 0. Grimm makes 4 and 1st down. McDonald grabs for one yard loss. Grimm fails over right guard. Hand back, Grimm to Stryker fails at center. Grimm kicks 22 to Jackson on 40 who returns 5 yds. Lester makes 2 thru center. Jackson weaves thru RT for 1st down. Robinson for Foster.

Lester over RT makes 5. Clifton off side Robinson hits center for 1st down. Jackson passes, Grimm intercepts, McDonald downs on 6 yard line.

Grimm momentarily fumbles, losing 1 yd. Grimm punts form 5 back of goal to Jackson who returns 10 to 40. Robinson to Post to Jackson makes 5. Robinson stopped at center. Jackson makes one around LE. Jackson over RT makes 1st down. Kirk around left end makes 4 yards. Lester to Kirk makes 1st down, as quarter ends.

Second Quarter

Dansby for Holton. Perryman for Weaver. Ludwig goes in. Lester hits RT for two yards. Lester to Kirk makes 1st down. Lester is stopped at 1-foot line. Kirk hits LT for touchdown. Robinson fails for extra. Gatesville 6, Clifton 0.

Morgan kicks, Jackson holds, Grimm receives on 20, returns to 37 where he stumbles and falls. Grimm hits center on spin for 7 gain. Whitley hits hole over RT for 1st down. Whitley fumbles and Robinson recovers.

Jackson worms way over right, back to center for 7 gain. Triple reverse, Lester Robinson, Post but fails. Jack carries to Clifton 41 line for 3 gain. Sub. Lambeth for Striker. Robinson makes 1st down. Robinson to Kirk on reverse makes 9 around LE. Lester hits center for 1st down. Jackson over LE makes 3 yds. Jackson loses 3 when Eskew gets thru on end run. Jackson with better blocking thru center makes 7 yards. Jackson around LE fails, ball goes to Clifton.

Grimm makes 1 over LS. Whitley makes 1 over RT. Grimm kicks from 15 to 45 to Jackson, who returns 5 yards.

Sub. Weaver for Blankenship, Holden for Orbeck. Jackson passes but knocked down by Smith. Kirk hits center for 2 gain. Jack passes incomplete to Post or Kirk. Lester

IMPERATIVE IMPULSES

At a lonely switch station in the California desert last week a fast streamline luxury liner came roaring in; on the siding stood a slower train waiting for it to pass. A few feet away from the switch control stood a brakeman of the railroad with long experience behind him. This man was thoroughly familiar with the railroad ruling that forced him to remain several feet away from the switch when a train was approaching, he knew that the switch was set right for the train to pass safely on. Suddenly something happened in the brain of the man—he jumped to the switch and threw it over; if you read the papers, listen to the radio you know the rest; there was a terrific train crash that took a large number of lives. Asked later to explain his actions this man was unable to do so.

This man was the victim of an "imperative impulse," which might be defined as a condition in which a person reaches a sudden, ill advised decision without going thru any process of reasoning in reaching that decision; the individual is momentarily powerless to abstain from carrying out this decision no matter how dire may be the consequences of the ensuing act. In the instance cited that man suddenly, for no known reason, committed an act which he knew was the wrong thing to do and yet his overpowering desire to throw that switch could not be denied, he did it and came to his senses too late to correct his error.

This, my friends, is a very interesting phenomenon and one that has a great bearing on some of the tragedies that we read about in the papers. By some peculiar mental twist one becomes momentarily the victim of "brain failure" and perhaps perpetrates a horrible error. It just depends on what a man is doing at the time it happens as to how serious the results will be. If someone is stooping over in front of him he may very foolishly plant a boot on their posterior. If he is looking over the fall at Niagara, he may jump,

(there are a number of these instances recorded). If he happens to be just gazing out the hotel window he may go spinning to his death, possibly realizing his error before the blackening impact. Suppose this happens to the man at the controls of a transport plane carrying a dozen or more persons; suppose it happens to the bank teller with a big sum of money at his finger tips, what of the surgeon and the patient under his knife in such an event? A man with a gun in his hand may kill his best friend under the influence of such an impulse and be forever haunted by that terrible memory or else be snared in the nets of the law enforcement agencies, not a criminal but the victim of a moment of "brain failure."

The man that threw that fatal switch held malice toward no one, he was a trusted and experienced man at his job, he knew every detail of his work and was familiar with every rule of the organization, his mistake cannot be explained any more completely than by saying he was compelled by an "imperative impulse" to make this tragic mistake. This man does not deserve punishment, nor blame for this wreck because he could no more prevent it than the engineer of the train could; he was for the instant the helpless slave of this strange "brain failure."

Fortunately for all of us, this phenomenon is of rare occurrence. Not infrequently we feel the sudden urge to pull one of these "boners," but usually we are able to control them. No doubt you have personally experienced the foolish desire to commit a ridiculous act but have succeeded in passing it off. This explains a lot of otherwise inexplicable suicides and it explains crashes and automobile wrecks occasionally and corresponds rather closely to the failure of the so-called "human element" which investigators of "boners," but usually we are able to control them. No doubt you have personally experienced the foolish desire to commit a ridiculous act but have succeeded in passing it off. This explains a lot of otherwise inexplicable suicides and it explains crashes and automobile wrecks occasionally and corresponds rather closely to the failure of the so-called "human element" which investigators of Unfortunately these failures do seem to come under conditions of greatest strain and in positions of greatest responsibility and mental stress. We do not know enough about the functioning of the brain to tell exactly what happens but it seems that under the stress of unusual and precarious circumstances the reason become momentarily overcome by its burden and snaps leaving the affected person for the time being at a loss to give the right answers to the problems that are at that instant facing him.

That leaves us in pretty deep water but there isn't much that we can do about it. People who hold positions which make them responsible for human lives are being more and more carefully chosen on the basis of their mental stability and maybe along this line the brain testers will find a way of solving the problem of "imperative impulses" and of failures in the "human element."

WAYLAND HOLT, JTAC IS PRESIDENT OF BSU, TO MEMPHIS

In a release from JTAC at Stephenville, Wayland Holt goes with a large representation of the Baptist Student Union of Texas to the fourth quadrennial all-Southern Baptist Conference at Memphis, Tennessee, Oct. 27-30.

There will be approximately 17 southern states represented by some 3,000 students. The program will feature international Baptist leaders and some 500 students in music, drama and public speech.

Noted speakers will be Dr. T. G. Dunning of London, England, Dr. George W. Truett, Dr. L. R. Scarbrough, Mrs. J. M. Dawson, Dr. T. B. Maston, Dr. J. M. Price, and others.

A replica of Texas' famed Alamo will be used as the basis of a Texas display at the conference, it was announced by Texas Baptist Student headquarters, Dallas.

Steps leading up to the Alamo will be made to appear as large stone blocks, and each block will represent one of the 27 Baptist student organizations on Texas college campuses. Name of college and information about the religious work will be printed on each stone and the school colors will be shaded in effectively. Lighting arrangement will be used to add interest to the Alamo and to the blue sky background which will stand on a different plane.

STUDY COURSE OPENS AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OCT. 23

A special study of the Bible is offered in one of the three courses offered in the co-operative Leadership Training School beginning on the 23rd of this month and sponsored by the Methodist and Presbyterian churches of Gatesville. Rev. Edward S. Bayless, local Presbyterian minister, will be the instructor in this course.

"Any study of the Bible, with an aim at a clearer understanding and deeper appreciation of the Book, should be of interest to Christian people everywhere," says Mr. Bayless. "We can never know too much about it, nor can we fail to find each new study of the great truths in it stand out as new and refreshing."

"The title of the course: 'The Old Testament: Its Content and Values' is indicative of what we shall study. Our purpose will be to become better acquainted with the Book; to familiarize ourselves with the location of familiar passages and stories, with a view to finding them easily; and to find in the Bible a book of everyday interest and enjoyment. This is not primarily a course for teachers, but for everyone who is interested in God's Book and in knowing more about it."

The contents of the course may be briefly summarized: The outline of Hebrew history as it is recorded in the Old Testament, the kinds of literature which belong to each period, and the teachings which are found in the literature. An understanding of how, thru varying experiences, God revealed Himself to the Hebrew people is an underlying purpose of the course. A study is made of the values of the Old Testament for developing Christian people today.

The school opens on Sunday afternoon, October 23. There will be classes that afternoon, and then each night during the week, closing Friday. As many as can are urged to take a course for credit, but those who cannot do this are cordially invited to be present at all of the class sessions or as many as they can attend. Members of all churches are welcome.

Three classes will be offered: the class in Bible, already described; one in general teaching methods, to be taught by Miss Nell Block of Taylor, director of Religious Education in Central Texas Presbytery; and one for young people entitled "The World Mission of the Christian Religion" to be taught by Rev. Leslie W. Seymour, pastor of the First Methodist church.

G'VILLE BUSINESS & PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S CLUB GUESTS

Thursday evening, October 13, Dr. N. B. Buie of Marlin was host to the Business and Professional Women members of District 3, which includes Marlin, Temple, Cameron, Waco, and Gatesville clubs of that organization. Dr. Buie has been a consistent friend to the organization and was one of the first men to give special recognition to its worth and possibilities.

On this occasion Dr. Buie dispensed hospitality in the form of a fish fry at the Marlin Country Club at which the bath house attendants served in the capacity of waiters excellently.

Mrs. John T. Portele, Marlin B. & P. W. club president, presided over the banquet program and presented Dr. L. C. Carter who discussed his paper on "The Normal Diet." Summarizing his material briefly, he stated the normal diet is made up of the following foods daily: quart of milk, 2 eggs, 2 leafy vegetables, 2 salads, 2 servings of meat, and bread, roughage, and sweets in quantities to make the diet satisfying in bulk and meet energy requirements.

Following Dr. Carter's talk, Dr. Buie gave an entertaining and instructive lecture on vitamin research which he illustrated with lantern slides of pictures, facts, and figures. Beginning with an account of Atwater who, in 1900, experimented with swine and discovered food inadequacy, Dr. Buie gave an historical survey of research revealing the following information about vitamins (substances "vital" for life processes):

Vitamin A—Lack of it causes eye defects; found in leafy green vegetables, cheese, egg, butter, whole milk, tomatoes, citrus fruits.

Vitamin B1—Lack of it causes neuritis; found in milk, egg, beans, nuts, potatoes.

Vitamin B2—Lack of it causes pellagra; found in milk, egg, beans, nuts, potatoes, yeast.

Vitamin C—Lack of it causes scurvy; found in citrus fruits, tomatoes, leafy green yellow vegetables, potatoes.

Vitamin D—Lack of it causes rickets; found in milk, butter, cod liver oil, eggs, halibut.

Vitamin E—Lack of it causes organic disorders; found in nuts, whole grain cereals, eggs.

Vitamin K—Lack of it causes inability of blood to clot; found in pig liver, peanut oil, green alfalfa.

After Dr. Buie's talk was concluded Miss Delphya Scott, Cameron

"PETE" "GOES TO TOWN"

Awhile back Walter Peterson of Justin, Texas, was asked by the local vocational teacher to tell the local FFA class something about his experience. "Pete" has regularly topped the Christmas beef market in Fort Worth for a good many years, which is "going to town," in a big way. He and his brother raise Shorthorns and feed them out on their own oats, corn, sorghums, etc., and cottonseed meal for which they "swap" their own cottonseed.

These figures are quoted from memory and may not be exact but are accurate enough for practical purposes. "Pete" read from his records without any oratorical frills, about as follows. For ten years he has fattened an average of seven-and-a-half calves per year, they weighed an average of 900 pounds, and sold for an average of ten cents, or $90 a head. Prices in that ten years ranged from as low as six to as high as fourteen cents.

Several valuable points are implied if not expressed. First Walter and his brother kept good cattle, raised good calves, and fattened some every year regardless of price. Second, fat cattle could always be sold for some price, carrying a great deal of grass and feed that either could not have sold cheaply at harvest time. Third, the price variation was as wide as even cotton or wheat, but they did not go in and out on its ups and downs. Result, an average for the ten years shows a good market for the feed they ate. Fourth, they are not "big" farmers or "big" feeders. A good many people think less than a carload of beef is too little to monkey with. The Peterson boys don't; a truck-load a year has brought them an average of about $675 more net than ten bales of cotton would have averaged for the same period.

Assuming that they had the average number and the average weight in the six-cent year, "Pete" had only $405 to show, or $54 a head. Doubtless he "lost money," according to a strict bookkeeping account; but he sold some feed and some time that would have otherwise brought nothing, and $405 is more than ten bales of cotton is bringing now. In the good year, however, his returns for the same weight in beef would have been $945, the equivalent of cotton at 15 cents.

Many a Southwestern farm this year has enough feed to fatten from one to ten calves or yearlings, and it is more profitable to feed two or three right than to merely warm up a carload. Few will make the profits or get the prices the Petersons do, for they are old hands at the game and don't have to buy the calves to feed, but if Southwestern farmers whose cotton or wheat acreage has been reduced go into the raising and feeding of livestock and poultry with as much interest and stick to it with as much persistence as they have shown in planting cash crops regardless of price variations, they will find that feed crops properly used in a long-time rotation system pay as much per acre and per hour of time as cotton does.

No expert in Washington or at the State College of Agriculture, much less the author of these periodical comments as competent to set up a detailed program for any particular farm or farmer. But the principles of good farm management are universal and in their final analysis may be reduced to "intelligent and complete utilization of labor and land." Bulletins on farm organization and planning may be had on request from State colleges of agriculture and the U. S. D. A., and will be helpful, but at last the farmer himself, perhaps with the assistance of his county agent, vocational teacher, or the farm management specialist from his State Extension Service, must work out the reorganization of his farm right on the ground. It is not too late to begin.

CHAPTER I

Way back yonder, in the dim, dead days—days before the gay Nineties, although there is no telling how much before—an epochal event occurred in the city of Philadelphia.

The particular household where this event took place paid but ordinary heed to it. The neighbors gossiped no more than usual. There were no blaring headlines in the papers, no marching bands. Yet it was epochal—to the modern generation.

For back there in Philadelphia, a number of years ago, W. C. Fields was born. He wasn't christened

Consequently, one chill October evening Bill cast the die and found that fate had ordered him to leave home. He did, first popping his illustrious forebear over the scone with a bit of scantling, as a sort of farewell gesture and evening-up process for his most recent beating.

Technically Fields didn't run away from home, he merely failed to go home; and this, in the eyes of the neighborhood oovs, made him a superior being. He stood Above and Beyond the Law. He was a thing apart, and as such, was to be worshiped and adored from afar.

Somehow—at 11—he managed to exist. He sold papers, shoveled snow and did odd jobs for money. For have known Fields. The comedian did in a big city, the things that Iwain dreamed for Tom Sawyer, and Huck Finn. How he got away with it, he doesn't know today, but he did. There were no truant officers in those days. School was not compulsory. He merely did what he pleased when he pleased and there was none to say him nay.

Possibly Bill had some twinges of conscience. Probably he thought he should go home—at least for his mother's sake. But the certain knowledge that he would have to pay and pay for that farewell gesture—that landed with such a delightful crunch on the bald pate of his father deterred him. He decided to work out his own salvation.

A chance visit to a vaudeville performance gave America its greatest comedian. Up to the time he managed to get this particular ticket to a variety show Fields had no future in mind. His sole idea was to avoid work—a feat that he had managed with incredible dexterity.

But at this performance he saw the Burns Brothers. God rest them wherever they may be. Without them there would be no W. C. Fields. The Burns Brothers were jugglers of average skill and nimbleness. High in the gallery, thrilled by the seldom-seen sight, young Fields was overwhelmed with their ability. After watching with pop-eyed amazement he determined upon his future. He would, he decided, become a juggler.

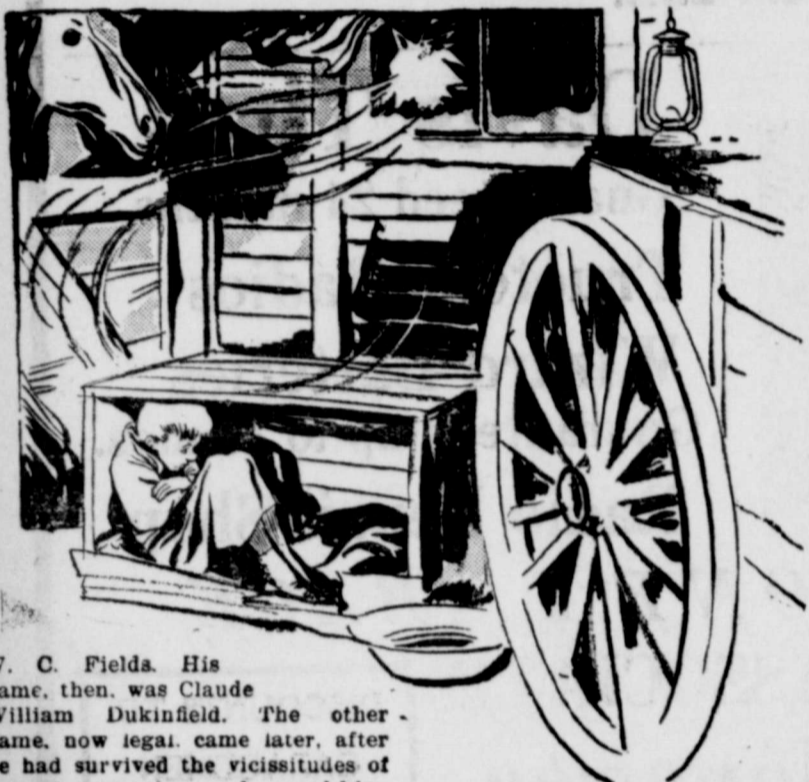

Fortunately for America, and for the world, Fields is blessed with a remarkable singleness of purpose. Once he gets an idea in his head it is almost impossible to talk him out of it. He is perfectly willing to take a chance on the consequences, providing it is his own idea. In later years he abandoned this hard-headedness and it almost cost him his career.

But Fields, even at 12, was determined. He was going to be a juggler if it killed him. And it almost did.

He practiced for hours daily. For implements he used tennis balls snatched as they were still bouncing; billiard balls fished from a pool hall; utensils picked out of scrap heaps, and anything else he could lay his hands on. Mozart, Kreisler, Paderewski, Liszt and a dozen famous artists worked no harder than did Fields.

He imitated every trick the Burns Brothers had done—as far as his limited paraphernalia would permit—and invented new ones. No matter how proficient he became, he wasn't satisfied. It was this same perseverance, in later years, that enabled him to perfect the three cigar-boxes trick that no juggler has yet been able to imitate.

W. C. Fields. His name, then, was Claude William Dukinfield. The other name, now legal, came later, after he had survived the vicissitudes of several generations and proved himself the master juggler and master humorist of all time.

Life, at first, wasn't particularly kind to young Claude. In fact, up until 1934 life tossed W. C. Fields around much in the fashion that he was destined to toss any number of unrelated objects. It wasn't until two years ago that Life and W. C. Fields shook hands and made a deal. W. C. Fields promised to quit juggling and Life agreed to quit juggling W. C. Fields.

Bill had a fine mother. His father, he says, didn't amount to much. It was his sire, in fact, who started Bill on the road to fame by incessantly blaming him for a number of things that were not his fault. No doubt young Fields had his share of lickings coming to him. Possibly more. But he didn't believe he deserved the inordinate amount that came his way.

food, he fished what he could, or stole openly in saloons. A nickel would buy him a glass of ginger ale, and whatever free lunch he could consume in a saloon. While most patrons were content to stop with a bite or two, Fields stocked his paunch and his pockets with provender for a week.

He slept wherever he could—in livery stables, barns, ditches, caves or cellars. He scorned such assistance as was offered him by admiring youngsters. It was his constant privation, he says, that gave him the love he has today for beds. In his home he has a huge four-poster, brilliant with the latest in sheets, blankets and quilts. No matter what the Fields' finances may be today, a suitable, comfortable and elegant bed is the first requisite.
