BAPTIST DEDICATE NEW ORGAN WITH SPECIAL MUSIC SUNDAY EVENING

Sunday was a red-letter day in the history of the new First Baptist Church of this city, when the new pipe organ, which has just been installed, a gift from Misses Katie and Mollie Bell, as a memorial to Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Curtis and son, Knox Curtis.

The organ was built and installed by Jasmine Porter who has been installing the console and organ proper for the past several months.

Robert Markham, head of the music department at Baylor University, gave a recital on the organ during the evening.

Behind screened grills the main part of the organ has been installed, which includes the pipes and mechanical parts. These grills are located over the baptistry in a space left in the building for that purpose.

Location of the console is on the left side of the pulpit, and from this, delicate wires operated by keys, stops, pedals and couplets are the means of operating the powerful and also delicate horns.

For the dedicatory service, the following program was carried out:

Organ prelude, Mrs. Ola Mae Parks.

Hymn No. 177.
Invocation, G. W. Byrom.
Presentation of Organ, Miss Katie Bell.

Acceptance, Dan E. Graves, chairman of Deacons
Dedicatory Prayer, C. M. Spalding, pastor.

KIRKPATRICK BREAKS LEG IN HORNET PRACTICE MONDAY EVE

Duncan Kirkpatrick, first-string half back for Gatesville Hi Hornets, broke his right leg in scrimmage yesterday afternoon at 4:00.

Kirk was blocking in the scrimmage and, failing in a block, threw his leg up to block, and it was broken about four inches above the ankle. Both bones were broken.

He was taken immediately to the hospital where he is reported to be resting easy, but at a late hour, the break had not been set.

Kirk will be out for the balance of the season, and this will prove a tough break for the team, not to mention Duncan himself, who was one of Coach Earle Worley's mainstays in the backfield.

LAVERNE BOX IS ACQUITTED OF MURDER BY MIDLAND COUNTY JURY

(From Midland Reporter-Tel.)

A Midland County Dist. Court jury took only 30 minutes late Tuesday afternoon to free S. L. Box, of Gatesville, charged with the slaying of Hershell Gunter, a salesman of this city, on the streets of Midland last May 30th.

Defense council based their plea for freedom upon the self-defense statute, contending that Box fired the shot that killed Gunter only to protect himself. Witnesses testified that Gunter had pulled a knife upon Box, and when Box reached a point where he had layed down a small pistol he seized the gun and fired one time. State's attorneys asked for conviction, alleging that Gunter was running from Box at the time Box shot him. It was understood that Mr. Box will return to his home near Gatesville within a few days. He was defended by Stinnett & Stinnett of Gatesville, and Joseph Seymour of this city.

Eiland Lovejoy, who underwent an operation in a Waco hospital last week, will come home Wednesday, as is now expected. Mr. Lovejoy is improving rapidly.

Miss Catherine Crawford had as her guests Sunday her parents and Miss Janet Patterson of Greenville and her brother James from A&M College.

First, the Sam Houston State Teachers College Bearkats turned to a passing attack Friday night to win an 18 to 0 victory over the Lamar Junior College team of Beaumont.

Sonny Hair, former Gatesville Hornet, figured in the scoring, as per story below:

"The first tally came in the 2nd quarter when Hightower intercepted a short Lamar pass on the Lamar 21-yard stripe. Hair passed to Swede Hill, Houston product, for the touchdown.

Hair accounted for another of the scores in the fourth period, passing around 35 yards to Callahan Hill crashed over for the score from the four yard line. Barfield tossed to Callahan to set up the third score on the Lamar 3. Barfield then plunged over for the victory."

The SNAPSHOT GUILD HALLOWE'EN

"What's inside?" This snapshot could well fit into a Hallowe'en series telling the story of jack-o'-lantern.

MY snapshot calendar shows that Hallowe'en is just around the corner. It's time for owls to hoot, witches to fly, jack-o'-lanterns to grin, and ghosts to walk through moonlit graveyards, no doubt clanking their chains. And for camera fans, the weird-picture season will open.

Weird pictures are interesting to take at any time—but even more fun at Hallowe'en. And with a few easy tricks, you can get effects that smack of genuine witchery.

Odd lighting effects are simple. In a group picture indoors, you can obtain a strange "firelight" effect by placing your photo lights on the floor in front of your subjects. Don't let the lights show in the finder or shine on the lens. To picture a face floating in air, put the photo light at the bottom of a long cardboard tube—and let the subject hold the top of the tube just below his chin. The room lights must be turned off.

Weird shadows are picture-material. Have a subject in witch costume stand in front of a photo bulb, and picture the grotesque shadow cast on the opposite wall. Or, place the light close to the wall, to illuminate it brightly, and let your subject sit between the camera and the light. Interesting silhouettes can be made in this way. A plain light colored wall is best.

Make "ghost" pictures by double exposure. Place the camera on a table, and take a short exposure of a corner of the room, including some furniture. Then, without moving the camera or winding the film, have a subject draped in a white sheet step into the corner, and open the camera for the second, shorter exposure. With correct exposure the "ghost" will be transparent—and the furniture or wallpaper will show through him. To be safe, try several shots with different exposure times.

Weird pictures are not all of Hallowe'en. There are children's costume parties, rich in possibilities for "memory" snapshots. Take them with odd lightings and shadow effects, and they will be all the better. And Hallowe'en preparations provide picture chances. You can make a splendid picture-story out of the jack-o'-lantern . . . a series of pictures showing the purchase of the pumpkin, the carving, and the final result grinning from a front window.

LOOKIN' OVER THIS WORLD

By Anon E. Muss

The year is 1938; the scene, a court room, a man stands facing judge who is speaking—"John Johns this court today finds you guilty for the fifth time of a crime against society which resulted in considerable property loss but did not involve human life; you have served a term in a house of correction and have been paroled only to re-enter criminal activity. This court judges you to be a hopeless, habitual criminal and feels that the state can not afford any further expense on your behalf, I, therefore sentence you to die in the lethal gas chamber one week from today." "Next case."

Again the Judge is speaking—"The court finds after conferring with the Psychiatric Commission that this man is decidedly feeble-minded, he is guilty of no crime, he is, however, nontheless a burden and a menace to civilized society because he is unable to contribute to his own support. On the other hand he is willing and capable of propagating children who, even as their father before them, will be feeble minded and so be a burden and a menace to the best interests of the future of our nation, this being the case I hereby decree that he be mercifully destroyed at 7:00 A. M. on the 28th of this month." "Next case."

The scene remains the same and the Judge continues—"This woman whose case we now review, has been examined by the Medical and Surgical Commission and has been found to be suffering from an incurable disease which has reaced a most painful stage requiring the continued administration of strong drugs which give only partial relief from her agonies. The members of her immediate family have petitioned this court to authorize the termination of her suffering and in view of the report of the Medical examiners I hereby grant that request and authorize her humane execution at any time which the petitioning members of the family may set." "Court recessed until 2:00 P. M. today."

The cases cited above naturally are hypothetical and imaginary. No doubt you readers do not feel that such methods could come under the head of justice and yet there are many arguments in favor of doing things the way the judge indicated. Let's survey the first case. There is a man who has been given a chance to reform but has not taken advantage of it. He has offended society repeatedly and his apprehension, conviction and imprisonment has cost the state dearly each time. Why continue to deal with him in this manner, his influence certainly is worthless and he is a continual drag and expense on everyone of us as taxpayers, why not eliminate him once and for all just as our imaginary judge would have it?

Consider the second case, a feeble minded man unable to support himself, never having harmed anyone but capable under different circumstances of committing any kind of outrage, furthermore he is capable of, and very likely to, breed feebleminded offspring each of whom would be, in the same way, a burden and able to propagate additional burdens to us. Actually the thing to do if we wish to promote our future best interests would be to put this type of person completely out of the picture but it is not a very pretty thing to contemplate.

The third case speaks pretty well for itself; here we have a hopelessly diseased person, suffering agonies and a sympathetic family who wishes to give her the relief which is to come ultimately but only at the expense of her continued suffering. This matter of mercy killings legal and otherwise has had considerable publicity of late and probably has more people favoring it than any of the other condition cited.

The human mind and public opinion adjust themselves rather slowly to changes of a nature as radical as those which we have been discussing and it will doubtless be years before we are ready to believe that such methods are proper and acceptable for us as a civilized nation. At present there are more people who favor the complete abolition of capital punishment than there are who would approve of this wholesale extension of legal destruction of human life.

This whole discussion was bro't to mind by the writings of Dr. Alexis Carrell in his book "Man the Unknown;" Dr. Carrell is a famed researcher in medical science and close student of sociology and human nature. The ideas presented are his and not those of your writer, although i fone disregards sentiment, and faces the cold facts, he must admit that such a method of procedure would be worthy of some consideration.

WACO SOUTH JUNIOR TIES GATESVILLE JUNIOR HI

(Waco News Tribune)

Gatesville battled the South Junior Panthers to a scoreless tie on Mundy stadium field Thursday in a contest which revealed little offense on either side, save an occasional pass, with most of the aerial attempts failing to connect.

South muffed a scoring chance in the first period when Long dropped a short toss from Shelburne across the goal. The Panthers didn't get close enough to threaten for the remainder of the game.

A wild pass over the goal in the first quarter cost Gatesville its only real chance to tally.

Captain Shelburne, Harris, Linder and Sheborn, who unreeled a gallop of more than 30 yards on a punt return, starred in the Cat backfield. Betros was great at center.

Ward, a good passer, McBroom a shifty runner, and Post at end stood out for Gatesville.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Hornets Pass Mart With Passes, 38 To 6

WORLEY MACHINE WORKS WITH PRECISION TO TAKE MART FOR DRUBBING

It was 38-6, what with "Shorty" Jackson heaving numbers of aerials to "Long Boy" McDonald, who advanced the ball at will, many times taking the pass when surrounded by three or more blockers.

That was not all, but a large part of it!

It took a holding line, plunging, backs, and, well, everything happened that helped put over this Hornet massacre. For Mart, Grochoske, Mullins, for—(something) starred, and the team as a whole never stopped fighting, as Mart teams never do.

Lester and Robinson, Schley, Edwards, Post, Morgan—the entire Hornet roster turned in A-1 performances.

McDonald, assisted by Jackson, however, made the last year's passing combination featuring Gilbreath, look like amateurs. Here's one, McDonald, that should be on all All-District squads without looking any of the rest of them over.

REPORT GAS IN HAMILTON COUNTY LUND TEST

Encouraging reports are coming into Hamilton from the Wallace-Vickers Lund No. 1 test, drilling at 1,200 feet in a lime and shale formation. A slight showing of gas would indicate a strike later on similar to the discovery wells near Pottsville.

On Thursday drilling was delayed by necessary machinery repairs, but it is expected that work will be resumed today, and that the hole will go right on down to pay production.—Hamilton Herald-Record.

SOME HAVE MEAT AND CAN EAT

"When I get tired of eating chicken I come in and get some steaks and roasts," T. Hall Brown recently told the writer at the Plains Cooperative, where freezer-lockers kept meat fresh until used up. Mr. Brown and a neighbor divided a 1,000-pound fat beef, the Co-Op cut and packaged it according to instructions for a small charge, and the individual locker which rents for $8 a year, held each man's share of the beef.

Another man living twenty miles away came in, opened his locker, and took out several packages. "We have a 'bottled gas' refrigerator to keep several days' supply," he said, "and our family eats twice as much fresh meat as we did before locker service was available." He is a dairy farmer and his beef was a fat calf of his own raising.

The Plainview Co-Op. has 132 lockers and they are in such demand that more will soon have to be installed. A number of other freezer-locker plants are in operation in the Southwest, with new ones being built rapidly, and they make it possible for farm families to have their own supply of fresh meat at a very low cash outlay; if a locker is anywhere in a two-hour drive they no longer have to eat only cured meat—and chicken.

Fresh meat is essential to a wholesome diet, and farmers and their families can have it with little cash outlay, while town folks often do without because it costs more than they can afford. Enough feed goes to waste—grass and weeds in fence corners and fields, stalks and grain left in the field, or eaten by rats after it is stored—to raise and fatten all the beef, mutton and pork the average farm family could eat.

Of course the system pressure canner has made it possible for farm families to eat a great deal more of their own product than formerly, and now the freezer-locker and the home refrigerator offer another method of preserving fresh meat with all its delectable flavors.

The Plainview plant is also being used to store dressed chickens, turkeys, and vegetables and fruits as well as beef, lamb and pork. Farmers who raise and fatten their own can say with the Scotch bard, Bobbie Burns:

"Some hae meat and canna eat,
And some wad eat that want it;
But we hae meat and can eat,
And sae the Lord be thankit."

The Lord, however, provides only the opportunities, not the meat, and before we can truthfully use the famous "Selkirk grace" just quoted, a great many Southwestern farms will have to use their opportunities to hatch, breed, raise and fatten their fowls and animals to supply their own tables.

Hog killing time with its spare-ribs, back-bones and fresh sausage is entirely too rare a feast nowadays, and the delicious home-cured hams and bacon are unknown to entirely too many farm families. Maybe the crude methods of curing and the superior flavor of packer products had something to do with the abandonment of the farm smokehouse, but the principal excuse offered by many is that "I can buy it cheaper than I can raise it."

If this were ever true, which it wasn't, the fact remains that few farm families who depend on buying all their meat with cot-

STATE ACTION WON'T AFFECT FEDERAL AID

According to Arthur J. Altmeyer, chairman of the Social Security Board at Washington, a change in the Texas old age pension program would have no effect on the amount of money the State would receive annually from the Federal government.

"Federal aid is available only to those who have been investigated and found in need," Mr. Altmeyer said. "If the State makes the pensions available to all pensions eligible by age, then the State must bear the full expense for all those who were not properly investigated and found in need. This program is now in effect in Texas, the Federal contribution to the State being $10,000,000 annually.

If the pensions are increased from the present maximum of $30 a month the State then will be required to bear the full cost of the increase, since the Federal government matches State funds up to $15 a month for old age pensions, Altmeyer said. "If pension figures should be set at $40 and made available to all persons eligible by age it would mean that the State must pay $25 of the $40 ton or wheat money ever have as much meat as their appetite calls for or as often as a good wholesome diet demands. Poor methods of curing, producing a dry, excessively salty product, need no longer be used. For those who do not know the better methods the information is available through their county agent, and the hams and bacon cured by modern processes have a flavor and richness commercial packers cannot match.

Offered by the State, popular Hammonasset Beach on Long Island Sound provides visitors with free tenting areas, bath houses and diving pavilions.

in the cases where need was found and all of the $40 in the remaining cases."

In answering the frequent demand that pensions be administered in county officials, Mr. Altmeyer said that a Federal law requires that the Social Security Board deal only through State organizations. He said, however, that a system might be worked out so that county boards could function in cooperation with the State Board.

CHAPTER III
HE joined a touring vaudeville company at $18 weekly. Under pressure of necessity, he could take part in any act on the bill, and frequently did. As performers dropped out of the troupe, Fields would step into their roles. He juggled, did burlesque, acted in alleged drama and manfully handled any other odd jobs that happened about. Frequently, playing two parts in one play, he would be forced to carry on a conversation, or even wrestle and fight with himself. Sometimes his fighting was so realistic that he wore thumb prints on his neck for weeks—prints of his thumb placed there in a choking scene with too much realism.

The act toured the East for several weeks. Fields didn't collect a single cent of pay but ate regularly which pleased him mightily. Eventually the manager of the troupe absconded with the scant proceeds leaving his "little flock" stranded.

Not a whit daunted, Fields walked back to New York. He couldn't land a job anywhere until he met his late manager, who promptly hired him again at an increased salary. Again the troupe went on tour. This time they got as far as the Mid West before the manager departed hurriedly and with stealth, at midnight.

As usual, Fields had collected no salary and was broke. He managed to persuade a kindhearted ticket agent at a small railroad station to with the manager, and again at a raise.

The troupe went on tour. This time the actors, warned by Fields, kept a close check on their employer. At times they even took turns standing guard over his room. But this was old stuff to the manager. One night he casually slipped out and vanished. Fields hoofed his way back to New York.

These three pay-less trips, however, had done two important things for Fields. They had made him a master juggler and they had given him the basis for the act that was to make him world famous.

Fields had no money to buy costumes, equipment or costly paraphernalia. He juggled with anything he could lay his hands on—billiard balls, tennis balls, pool cues, kitchen utensils—anything that could be thrown into the air and caught again. Lacking night, dreaming that the safe had been blasted open and robbed. The next day he got his gold back and kept it with him.

At the end of the second week, he was handed an additional $35 which he placed in his pocket with the rest. Walking home from the theater, he passed by a dark alley. A heavy blunt instrument was applied to the top of his skull and Fields knew no more for several hours.

When he finally came out of it, his $70 in gold was gone. Years later Fields was to lose a fortune in the stock market crash of 1929. And when a well known New York bank folded, it almost wiped him out. But even that loss didn't disturb him half as much as the loss of $70.

"I was completely heartbroken," he'll tell you today. "I actually felt sick. Not over the tap on the scone but over the loss of that money. From then on I decided I was going to spend my money just about as fast as I got it.

If I was going to work hard to earn it—then I was going to have the fun of spending it, too."

Fields stuck to that philosophy for years. No matter how provide him with passage. The agent also pressed $10 on the amazed Fields, who could not believe his good luck. It was more than two years later that Fields paid him back, with interest, but he had kept his word. He promised he would repay that agent the first time he collected any salary. It took him two years to do it.

Back in New York, Fields haunted the booking offices without success until for the third time he met up with that same disappearing manager of defunct vaudeville troupes.

Fields resented the man's actions, but, he recalled, he at least had eaten regularly whenever he worked, which was more than he was doing now. For the third time he signed spangles and tights, he adopted a battered suit of clothes that eventually developed into a tramp costume. His juggling act, entirely in pantomime, began to gain recognition.

He was moving, finally, in constantly better circles, gaining fame, and it wasn't long before he was headlining important vaudeville circles. One trip took him to San Francisco, where occurred an event which changed the course of his life.

They paid off in gold in San Francisco in those days and at the end of a week Fields was handed $35 in $5 and $10 gold pieces.

He never had seen so much gold at once and was at a loss to know what to do with it. Finally he gave it to the clerk of his hotel for safe keeping and suffered nightmares all much money he had, he always bought the best of what that money could buy—clothes, homes, cars, liquor, food, furnishings—everything. Eventually, when he was the highest paid comedian in the world, and was making money faster than he could possibly spend it, he began investing. And when the stock market collapse and bank failure ruined him, he wasn't much upset. He'd already had his fun.

Fields has been in almost every country on earth. His travels never took him to South America or to India but you can't mention another country that hasn't seen and cheered him. With the exception of a short time in 1914, when he appeared with McIntyre and Heath in "The Ham Tree," he was almost constantly on the go until 1921.

ABSENTEE BALLOTING IS NOW IN PROGRESS

Absentee balloting for the general election in Texas, November 3, began in Texas Tuesday with some evidence of confusion over interpretation of the law affecting such voting enacted in 1935. Reports sent to Austin were that recently the Texarkana court of civil appeals held in a case from Gregg county that the law which had permitted absentee voting by voters who made affidavits they would be out of their home cities or counties on election day had been repealed, by inference at least.

Neither the Attorney General's department nor Secretary of State Edward Clark had formal reports on the ruling or requests for an opinion of the course election officials should follow but Clark had heard of the case. In answer to questions, he said the general rule for county clerks to follow was to see that everyone who asked for an absentee ballot was a qualified voter and that none was refused unless there was doubt as to qualification. He said he thought the law did not forbid absentee voting by qualified voters who made affidavit they would be away from their regular voting places on election day.

"There is some confusion," he said. "The general purpose of the law was to protect the purity of the ballot, and the best way to do this is for county clerks to do their duty and see that only qualified voters cast ballot. If the clerks perform this duty, no harm will be done. Many people in good faith will be away from their home towns on election day and they ought not to be refused absentee ballots if they make affidavit they will be away.

"Doubt should be resolved in favor of the voter."

STORE AT PEARL ROBBED LAST WEDNESDAY

On Wednesday night, last week, Harry King's store at Pearl was entered by someone through the rear door, entrance being gained by prying off the lock of the back door.

After entering the store, which is general merchandise the thieves opened the front doors and rolled the safe out onto a vehicle, tracks showed to have been backed up to the front of the store. Mr. King stated he lost over $3000 of notes and other valuable papers and over sixty to seventy dollars in cash. Officers are still searching for culprits, and one state officer stated there were no finger prints left as gloves were worn throughout the robbery.—Four County Press.
