ENTRIES IN DISTRICT GOLDEN GLOVES TOURNAMENT HERE MOUNTING: TICKETS TO GO AT 10c AND 20c A NITE

A whole circus for a dime, or two!

Depending on whether you're a grown up or just a mere child. Anyway, tickets, your tickets, are ready, and "Ladies and Gentlemen, the price of admission is, Students 10c; Adults 20c. Don't rush, folks! The ticket box is on my right." That's how a barker might say it!

Up Fort Worth way, they pay $5.25 and $7.70 for their 7 nights, 3 for their District tournament, and 4 State Final night. However, this is Coryell county.

Under $35.00, still Amateur

The rules say, that is, the A. A. U. rules, in one of the questions on the application for membership, "Have you ever knowingly entered a competition for money or for prizes of more than $35.00 in value?" Evidently by this, there isn't a professional boxer in "these parts".

Another item of interest is the fact, that if the boxer is mismatched, a technical knock-out will be counted by the seconds provided for the tournament, and the fight will be stopped.

These two items, are interesting to many boys who might like to enter. They are protection for the entrants.

Sixteen Gloves, Trophies

Knowing the boys who enter, are entering and giving their "all" and the News Amateur Athletic Association is presenting to the winners in each weight a gold boxing glove (miniature for watch chain) and for the runners up, silver boxing gloves. These have been ordered about a week and should be here in the next few days and will be displayed in the window at the Coryell County News.

In Gatesville, both at the CCC camp and the NYA House, the boys have been working out, we are told, but as yet have not entered the contest.

Entries have already been received from Hico, Gatesville and Lampasas, and we are advised in a letter this morning from Waco that the boys there are making up a team, and that there is considerable interest in the tournament at Baylor University. Besides this, The Waco Working Boys Club is planning to send some fisticufflers here for the meet. Temple, so far, has not been heard from as yet, and boys from this neighboring city should make a good showing.

Organizations for the event have just about been completed, and expectations are for a full house during each of the two or three nights of the District Tournament, which will be here February 3 and 4, and possibly the 2nd, depending on the entries and interest.

Entries may be given to any newspaper in the county, or sent to W. Mat Jones, c/o Coryell County News, at Gatesville.

GRAND JURY TURNS IN 12 INDICTMENTS: TO CONTINUE WORK 30th

The Grand Jury, with M. W. Murray, Foreman, "came in" or "out" yesterday, returning twelve indictments, only two of them being made public. Indications were, however, that they are not thru, and they will hibernate again on January 30, for more work.

Cases brought in and made public, The State of Texas vs. Clyde Hamilton, charged with burglary, and The State of Texas vs. J. C. Boling, charged with theft of over $50.00.

JOE HANNA AND TWO EMPLOYEES TO SHOE SHOW

Joe Hanna, accompanied by W. J. Thompson and John Casey attended the Tri-State Shoe Convention in San Antonio last weekend.

Mr. Hanna stated that the styles for the coming spring and summer were extremely beautiful and that he made large purchases during his stay at the fair, for his store, "The Friendly Store".

All of which reminds, after a few tough days in February and March, spring will be creeping up on us again.

R. V. YOUNG SECURES EXCEPTIONAL JERSEY MALE

"Premier Raliegth Sultan", No. 389247, is the new herd sire of R. V. Young, Jonesboro, Texas. This young male was bred by J. W. Price of Waco, and is a grandson, thru his sire, of the $30,000.00 "Imported Combination's Premier" previously owned by Kings Ranch, Kingsville, Texas. The grandsire on the Dam's side is the $1,000.00 grand champion "Raliegth's Sultan of Lehigh," which was used in the Texas A. and M. College dairy and sired some of the better animals they now have on hand. With the type of breeding in this pedigree it is expected that many high producing animals will be raised by Mr.

PAINTER'S PEOPLE ARE VISITORS TO SHOE CONVENTION

At the Tri-State Shoe Convention in San Antonio last week end, George B. Painter, owner of Painter's and R. P. Walker of the Shoe Department were visitors.

Mr. Walker said they "looked them all over, and selected very snappy numbers, along with the standard merchandise for the Gatesville market." Styles for the coming warmer days are newer than new, and beauty and style seems to have been the paramount aim of shoe designers for the new season.

BANKER CALLS OUR HAND! HOLIDAYS ARE LEGAL, NOT NATIONAL

Tuesday, we said: "This is not a legal holiday, in fact, there are none."

We made a bust! Here's the correct solution; and, what we were driving at: "There is NOT a NATIONAL legal holiday... in fact, there are NO NATIONAL LEGAL holidays! This is true because of the fact that Congress has no jurisdiction to proclaim one. In the United States, legal holidays are determined by the statutes of several states.

Dan E. Graves of the National Bank of Gatesville called our hand!

Thanks, Mr. Graves!

KNOW YOURSELF AND DRESS THE PART

THIS young lass is the jitterbug type. She dresses in swing tempo, with long hair, a merry frock tight as a Scotchman above the waist; full, free below.

HAVE you ever tried to classify your type? It's fun to pigeonhole yourself and the fashion staff of Pictorial Review presents a set of clever mannequins in the magazine's February issue to guide you in dressing to suit your type. And it's not only fun, they say, it's the first rule of chic: know yourself and dress the part.

THE alert miss above, chooses her dress in two contrasting colors because Paris says that's the latest trick. The blouse is extra full because she likes to be a touch extreme.

HERE is the tailored type who feels cosier in woollens than in silks. She wears a very trim, featherweight wool dress with a dolman-sleeved bolero. Her sash is dashing plaid.

THE waltz girl, lovely and fragile and unpredictable—dresses in pale, girdled satin and dances dreamily, but she's a mad-cap in disguise, and the sweet frock adds piquancy to her sudden irreverencies.

PEDRO THE VODER

When Dom Pedro II, Emperor of Brazil visited Philadelphia's Centennial Exposition in 1876, he listened in amazement to a telephone while someone spoke at the other end of the line. "My God!" he cried, "it talks!"

Could the pious monarch have visited New York last week, he would have been still more amazed. In the Bell Telephone Laboratories, engineers had developed a new instrument called a Voder. Whimsically, they had named it "Pedro", after the Emperor. At a demonstration in Philadelphia, an operator had made it utter human sounds. Latest of experiments dating back to ancient times, it was the first machine to talk like a man.

Most of the Voder is made with ordinary telephone apparatus. Its sounds are produced by a diaphragm made to vibrate by electrical current. Two types of current duplicate the two fundamental tones of speech—whispering, as in pronouncing s, the and f, and musical, as in pronouncing a, e, and o. Switches regulate the kinds of sound to be used, and the keys of the Voder modulate fundamental tones into desired vowels and consonants.

Because the instrument omits some of the minor vibrations which occur in human speech with "a slight electrical accent". A by-product of research into the voice the machine will be used for "an interesting educational exhibit." Vodors will be a part of Bell Telephone displays at the San Francisco Exposition and the New York Worlds Fair this year.

Learning to play the Voder took chosen few Bell Telephone girls 18 months. They are now proficient enough to make the Voder converse on ordinary subjects. By turning a knob, moreover, they can make it man or woman. They can also reproduce animal sounds like the voices of sheep, cattle and pigs.

Apparently encouraged by the U. S. Supreme Court's recent ruling that the University of Missouri must admit Negro students to its law school or provide equal facilities in a separate state institution, a Negro woman applied for admission to the graduate school of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. This step was interpreted as an attempt to test the school's ban against Negro students.

On his poetry page in the February Pictorial Review, Ted Malone reminds us that the path of true love is not always hearts and flowers in Curry Fowell's poem:

That I regret:

Having the sort of soul
He could misplace;
It is no comfort . . .

Tuesday evening members of the Business and Professional Women's Club held their regular monthly banquet at the Edgar Franks home on College street. Miss Ernestine Durham, chairman of the International Relations Committee, had charge of the program.

Child-Models A Difficult Problem. Says Famous Photographer

THE child on the magazine cover is more than a snap-shot of a youngster at play, caught in an instant of artless simplicity.

Each month when you see a new Pictorial Review, for example, you look at a charming reflection of an illusive moment of childhood, full of sweet and wistful wonder at an unfolding world. But if you think that picture was treated with the simplicity which it reflects, you're all wrong. "What we go through, my friends... what we go through!" moans Gene Davis, Pictorial's art editor.

If you have ever wondered what the story is behind the magazine cover child, you will find in the February Pictorial Review a complete account of the painstaking research and infinite patience and long, tedious hours spent before glaring cameras which is part of the creation of an attractive cover-child.

First, of course, comes the idea. After considerable brooding and brown study, Mr. Davis plucks from his lively imagination a significant moment of childhood and then starts on a feverish hunt for his model. Sometimes it is simply a matter of flipping through files; but Mr. Davis, with a passion for perfection, is always on the lookout for new and expressive faces. It keeps him peering into the eyes of subway urchins and infants gamboling happily in Central Park. He has been known to chase an automobile for blocks and come panting up to the window to inquire of a flabbergasted mamma if she will let her child be photographed for a magazine cover.

Photographing takes place in the studios of Anton Bruehl. The rich outer offices are handsomely decorated with modern furniture; but when you open the door to the large warehouse-like reaches of the shop, you converge rapidly on a madhouse. It is in the midst of this chaos that Bruehl, modest genius of the camera, wheelies and promises, waiting for that swift moment of relaxation which produces a natural pictorial. It goes on for hours.

"About half the pictures are made in natural settings," Mr. Davis says. "Sometimes the layout calls for a puppy or a kitten which has to be cajoled along with the child. Then you've got something."

But it seems that no matter what the layout calls for, when Mr. Davis and Mr. Bruehl get through with it, the editors of Pictorial Review have really got something.

CHOOSE BABY'S TOYS FOR AMUSEMENT

THE baby's toys should be chosen wisely and should never be bestowed abundantly.

The chief purpose of toys, according to Drs. Morris and William Fishbein, famous authorities on child-care, is to keep babies amused, but too many toys and the wrong kind of toys can breed carelessness and extravagance and destructiveness.

"Parents have a tendency to over-stimulate the child," they say in the February Pictorial Review. "They give him more toys than he needs and urge him on to activities beyond his capabilities. The truth is they are entertaining themselves rather than considering the pleasures and desires of the baby."

The article also points out that toys should keep pace with the child's mental age. During the first year few toys are necessary—dolls made of washable material or rubber, wooden beads, or rubber animals are sufficient. In the second year a greater assortment is advisable.

"With increasing age come better coordination and a wider variety of interests," the doctors write. "This calls for more hand-work materials. As the baby develops new abilities and skills, he quickly abandons those he has out-grown, and his interests will guide the alert parent to the type of toy which will meet this new activity. A child never attempts to do more than he can carry out effectively. It is not only safe but also very wise to allow him to play in accordance with his own desires."

Farmer Jones Had a MULE

Over the hill trailed Farmer Jones behind a mule drawing a plow. Said Jones to the mule:

"Bill, you are a mule, the son of a jackass, and I am a man made in the image of God. Yet, here we work, hitched up together year in and year out. I often wonder if you work for me or if I work for you. Verily, I think it is a partnership between a mule and a fool, for surely I work as hard as you, if now harder. Plowing or cultivating we cover the same distance, but you do it on four legs and I on two. I, therefore, do twice as much work per leg as you do.

"Soon we'll be preparing for a corn crop. When the crop is harvested, I give one-third to the landlord for being so kind as to let me use this small speck of God's universe. One-third goes to you and the balance is mine. You consume all of your portion with the exception of the cobs; while I divide mine among seven children, six hens, two ducks and a banker. If we both need shoes, you get them. Bill, you are getting the best of me, and I ask you, is it fair for a mule, the son of a jackass, to swindle a man, the Lord of Creation, out of his substance?

"Why, you only help to plow and cultivate the ground, and I alone must cut, shock, and husk the corn, while you look over the pasture fence and hee-haw at me.

"All fall and most of the winter the whole family, from granny to the baby, picks cotton to help raise money to pay taxes and buy a new harness and pay the interest on the mortgage on you. And what do you care about the mortgage? You ornery cuss. I even have to do the worrying about the mortgage on your tough, ungrateful hide.

"And that ain't all, Bill, when you're dead that's supposed to be the end of you. But me? The parson tells me that when I die I gotta go to Hades forever. That is, Bill, if I don't do just as he says."

To avoid all this trouble, Farmer Jones bought an International Farmall Tractor with a comfortable seat to do all his farm work, with an umbrella to protect him from the parching sun. He is now a happy man.

For prices on International Farmalls, see Burney and McCorkle at Gatesville, Texas.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

There is much doing in Methodist circles today we have to be up and doing and wide awake to keep up with the procession. The unification of Methodism in the United States is a big undertaking and calls for study and much prayer. It is called upon our membership to read and keep informed or else we may find ourselves out of line with the great movements of the church. However the greatest need and challenge of this hour for all christianity is a deeper consecration to Christ and His Kingdom. Numbers are important but certainly we must not depend on numbers alone for success. There must be spiritual life and heart growth if we are to go forward to meet the needs of this hour. Here is the real point of emphasis. The church worship service, the Church School and the other organizations of the church have for their chief end the development of heart and life and deeper consecration.

Our church program is planned at all times with this need in mind. We believe we have something you need and something that will make life richer and finer for you. One cannot neglect the worship of the church with out it being reflected in their life. Find your place in the church and church life and see if you do not receive from it a joy and strength that brings a new degree of satisfaction to your heart.

Church School Sunday morning 9:45. Meet your class and your teacher with a smile. The pastor will preach at 10:50 and 7 o'clock. Young people service at 8 o'clock.

Monday and Friday nites there will be general studies. On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, studies will be made of China, Japan and Korea, respectively.

The special session will close with regular worship Sunday nite, January 29, at which time there will be a missionary sermon by the pastor.

AIR CHAPEL, AIR PRIEST

In most parts of the world last week, men talked about mass production of airplanes for use in war. But at the Parks Air College near East St. Louis, Ill, a second-hand Fokker amphibian was being done over to help encourage the worship of God.

The Fokker was to become a "chapel of the air"—believed to be the first of its kind in the world. Inside, workmen were installing an altar, such as is used in Roman Catholic churches for celebration of the Mass. The remodeling was being done for the Rev. Paul Schulte, O. M. I., the 41-year-old "flying priest of the Artic".

Father Schulte, a member of the Oblate order, has long been famous for the missionary flights he makes each year over an area of 1,500,000 square miles in the far north. The flights began in 1936 at the special request of Pope Pius, who had been impressed by Father Schulte's work in South Africa. Born in Germany and still a German citizen, Father Schulte undertook his South African mission 12 years ago. Since 1936 however, all his efforts have been confined to the Artic.

Father Schulte is the founder and president of the Missionary Vehicular Association, an international organization of Oblate priests who use airplanes, motorboats, autos and wireless stations to carry aid and religious instruction to people living in bleak and distant sections of the world. The air chapel will supplement the other plane the M. V. A. now in the Artic. Headquarters are at Churchill, Hudson Bay. In addition, Father Schulte maintains an office in Washington, D. C., where he was stationed last week to supervise the handling of donations for medical aid to the Eskimos.

Work on the "chapel of the air" probably will be completed in the spring. Because it will be the only M. V. A. plane with a built-in altar, Father Schulte and his fellow missionaries will use it frequently to fly between Artic posts and say Mass for the inhabitants. Thus occupied, Father Schulte will be able to draw a sharp contrast between his present use of the airplane and that of 20 years ago—at that time he was a war pilot in the German air force.

"We're Starting the New Year Right... with a Telephone"

"This year we're having a telephone. No longer will we have to borrow our neighbor's, which so often is embarrassing and no end of trouble and bother to everyone. We'll not be cut off from friends and relatives—we'll be in on a lot of those impromptu affairs, that are so much fun. When the weather's bad the telephone will run our errands and when we need the doctor even in the middle of the night, we can get him quickly. So you see, we are starting the New Year right... with a Telephone."

You too can start the New Year right. The cost of a telephone is small and you get so much. Ask our business office.

YOUR HOME PAPER

If you are the type of person who is inclined to reflect an in-home paper—this newspaper—because it is only a weekly instead of a daily, a little personal and community reflection might do you and your community good. If it does print only once a week, your home newspaper is the only one which has done you and yours the honor of placing you and your activities in first-page headlines! it is the only paper, so far as visible evidence is concerned, that has found out about your existence.

Your home paper laughs with you when you are happy, sympathizes with you when sorrow overtakes you; it is the only newspaper whose editor sacrifices the time to contact you personally for publicity of mutual interest; the great dailies are indispensable, but cold and impersonal without any motive for publicizing your community, your business, yourself or your family.

In pursuance of any and all community undertakings of community interest, you may find your editor or a staff member present, and giving his time and paying his money for the privilege of writing and boosting your community.

How many editors or staff members of the big dailies have paid to attend your meetings, or have labored to publicize your community and its activities?

Many columns and headlines are published every week in your home paper—in pursuance of the effort at building and advancing our community. How many lines do you see in the dailies?

If your local weekly newspaper is insignificant in comparison, it is far more loyal to you and your community than the big daily; the editor keeps his pulse on your community.

For every dime that you spend with your home weekly newspaper it renders untold free publicity and service to your community.

Again, if this paper is insignificant compared to the big dailies, how does your business compare to Sears, Robuck & Co., or how does your town compare to Birmingham or Atlanta in size and population?

These are plain facts—something for the average citizen to think about.—Piedmont (Ala.) Journal.

McGREGOR BULLDOGS

In a basketball thriller in the Hornets gym Tuesday afternoon, the Hornets upset the hustling 5 that represented the institution of age old rivalry, the McGregor High Bulldogs. Captain Weaver of the Hornet Cagers was back to his standard of excellence, leading the Hornets' scoring with a total of twelve points. It was Weaver's best game of the season and Turner and McDonald did their part to bring forth this victory.

As Worley always said, "Beat McGregor, if you are only playing marbles". That's just what the Hornets did. The Hornets popped right in and started scoring right at the first and continued thruout the game. At the half the Hornets led the Bulldogs 13-2. Scrub Ward dropped in at the half to play a portion of the third quarter.

Kitterrel, whom you remember as the outstanding man on the Bulldog '38 football squad, covered the position of forward and scored a couple of points for his team. Equally as able were Bulldogs Hit, Bouldwin, and Wheat, each scoring two points.

HORNETS TO VISIT PEARL
TONIGHT: "GO WEST"
TOMORROW NIGHT

The boy's and girl's basketball squad will pay a friendly visit to Pearl tonight. At Pearl the Hornets will put forth every effort to down the powerful Pearl Dragons. The Hornets will be among the leading teams in the race for county championship. The Dragons and Dragonettes will probably be defeated tonight.

To "Go West" can be just over the hill, but to drop in on the West High School (West, Texas) and defeat the West Trojan 5, will be a difficult matter for the Hornets. The Trojans are rated as a major team in McLennan county's basketball standing. This game will not be a set up for the Hornets but with some good breaks and a little effort the locals CAN come out on top.

SCRUBS FOLLOW SUIT AND DEFEAT BULLPUPS
28-15

Following the tradition of "Beat McGregor" the Hornet scrubs, manned by Red White, skillfully mastered the game of basketball to root out the McGregor "B" squad 28-15 earlier Tuesday afternoon. Although this was not the major attraction of the afternoon, it did prove to be entertaining to the fullest degree. The McGregor lads tossed one of those "Hope and Pray" shots at the goal.

Koch who dropped back to engage in the scrub game. He led the locals scoring eight points. Ward and Jones followed with six points each.

For the visiting scrubs, Collins, forward, excelled with a total of eight points; and to make a short story shorted, the Hornets were superior in every manner.

The latest figures available, 1935, show that U. S.'s cattle population is around 68,000 head.

IN MEMORY OF REV.
W. C. BANKS

Rev. William Clarence Banks died at his home at Greenville, Texas, Saturday, January 7, at 12:30. On December 31 he was confined to his bed with Lobar pneumonia and lived only a week. His death was a shock to every one who knew him. He has spent the last thirty-six years of his life preaching the gospel everywhere he went.

Yeilding of Gatesville, Mrs. Ira Blanchett of Bellville, and Mrs. Roy Milburn of Fort Smith, Ark. and several grand children.

MOUNTAIN H-D CLUB

January 3, 1939 found the Mountain Home Demonstration Club in the home of Mrs. T. M. Coon, who is a new neighbor and member of our club.

Sacks were cut and fixed for a table cloth for Mrs. Coon. When the house was called to order. The new constitution was read to all the members. Roll call was answered by New Year's resolutions. The chairman reminded all to bring the 5c educational fund next meeting.

Miss Gibson was present and gave an outline on the new year's work. In order to watch your diet, charts were given to all to fill out for one week and help keep track of your diet for one week. Plans for the '39 gardens were studied and plans to get hot beds in order were given also. Miss Gibson gave some very good information on all these subjects.

Miss Gibson and Mrs. Chambers made pictures of Mrs. Chamber's bedroom, as she will be demonstrator for this year.

Refreshments of vanilla and chocolate cookies and coffee were served to ten members and one visitor, Miss Sidney Gibson.

"REVERSE" PROFITS

Two months ago the Rev. Grant Robinson, pastor of the First Methodist Church at Walton, N. Y., startled his parishioners by passing around a collection plate laden with dollar bills and urging each member of the congregation to take one. Then, he explained his "plate-passing in reverse": each was to invest the dollar, and return the profits to the church.

Last week, the returns were added up and it was learned that a profit of $477 had been made. Parishioners, who had taken $127, put the money in various activities. Some made foodstuffs and sold them. Others used the money in their businesses or farms. A coal dealer turned in $25. The pastor, who had also taken a dollar, returned $18 realized from a lecture tour.

Said pleased Mr. Robinson, who expected to pay the church's winter coal bill with the windfall: "My faith in human nature has been completely justified. Every dollar was accounted for and so successful was the plan that many of the members have urged me to repeat this later this year."

Safe Light for 9 hours of home study costs no more than one five-cent lead pencil

Many a child is called lazy for shirking his home studies when lack of proper light is the real cause. Poor light tires the eyes, increases nervous tension and makes concentration difficult. There's no need for any child to work under this handicap when good light is so cheap. Under this company's low average residential rate . . .

A modern study lamp equipped with a 100-watt bulb will provide 9 hours of glareless light for the price of a 5-cent lead pencil

If you are in doubt about the light under which your children read and study, let us measure it with a light meter and find out whether it conforms to safe seeing standards. At the same time let us measure the lighting elsewhere in your home. There is no obligation for this service.

By R. G. Davidson

NOTE:—Since we haven't been receiving letters as regularly as formerly, from R. G. Davidson in South America, we present here—with, excerpts from letters he has written to his mother, Mrs. T. M. Davidson.—The Publishers.

Letter of November 27, 1938. "Just found out that our mail has been delayed because of the heavy rains. My last two letters will probably reach you after this letter. I came up here to the camp to get a cup of tea (which is my usual habit around 9 o'clock) and was told that our mail has been somewhat marooned along the way to Cucuta.

This mail is being sent down the river to a city named Encontrado which is in Venezuela; from there, it will go on to Marachiabo and then to the states . . . Don't know when I will go on my permiso (5 day vacation) really don't care to go during the rainy weather. Mr. Smith, my boss out here is over in Cucuta now. The railroad is blocked because of high water at the Lulia river and can't get back, guess tho, I'll go as soon as he returns. He will probably come into Pto Leon by boat today or tomorrow.

There is always the faithful old mules to ride when the weather is rainy, so if I do go, it may be part of the way by mule. In a way, I would enjoy this trip, as at least it would be quite interesting and over a different section of this area that I haven't seen.

One of the men here is leaving soon to return to the states on completion of his contract. He has a radio, small one but it will get the states, so out of a friendship we have engaged here, he gave me the radio. It is not working so good right now, but I will take it to Cucuta and have it adjusted and new tubes put in it."

Dec. 14, '38. The flood conditions mentioned are really flood conditions that are something worth seeing. Between here and Cucuta there are two railroad bridges washed out and no traffic except by foot and by boat—however there it a train on either side of the washouts and rains—there has been more rainfall than in some 25 years and I suppose longer, but they don't have records past then. The papers carried a lot about the big rains. Anyway some of the real old natives say it is more than they have seen during their lives.

The extent of it all was exaggerated in the papers, saying that Cucuta there are two railroad bridges washed out and no traffic except by foot and by boat—however there it a train on either side of the washouts and rains—there has been more rainfall than in some 25 years and I suppose longer, but they don't have records past then. The papers carried a lot about the big rains. Anyway some of the real old natives say it is more than they have seen during their lives.

My trip was by plane, the usual trip is about 8 hours by road and somewhat longer now since the delays of bridges etc. To picture the progress that aviation has made, just think of a days travel, and a very uncomfortable days travel, compare my trip in by plane.

We left here a little after two o'clock in the afternoon and landed in Cucuta in 18 minutes. The distance is 65 kilometers or about 35 miles. By road and rail the trip is 101 kilometers and 8 hours.

On arrival in Cucuta after a visit to the office we went on the Palace Hotel. The staff house was full and so the company paid our expense at the new hotel. The hotel is the best in town of course and to compare it with one in the states would be too difficult, however the beauty in these are that of the beautiful tile they are made of. My room opened onto a beautiful balcony. Just off below the balcony is a beautiful tile swimming pool—at night the pool is lighted with all colored flood lights built in the sides of the pool—a really beautiful pool.

Servants here are really servants. It is their life work, and they work at their jobs. In the mornings the moment you wake they are right there with orange juice, coffee and hot milk (cafe con leche). They are right there the minute you wake up—I wondered how can that maid know just when I wake up—one day it was early and most of the time it was at least hours difference in the day before. Anyway, they are there with your breakfast as soon as you finish the coffee." More next issue.

"SPREADER PRACTICE"

"Spreader practice in soil conservation and better living conditions go hand in hand," states Mr. J. S. Pool, a cooperater with the Gatesville Conservation Service Camp.

Early in 1938 Mr. Pool bought a farm in the Mosheim community that was in rather a run-down condition, from erosion, poor fences, cedar and weed infection on pasture land, and thin spots laying idle in the cultivated fields.

He immediately contacted the Soil Conservation Service Officials at Gatesville and made the necessary arrangements for placing this farm under cooperative agreements with the Soil Conservation Service.

The plan called for fencing idle land and waterways to pasture and the control of weeds on pasture land, terracing, stripcropping, contour tillage on cultivated land, sloping along roadside, and re-locating fence along the cultivated land next to the county road.

Three of the leading speakers scheduled to address the Universal Mills second annual dealers convention and seventeenth birthday party which will end in Fort Worth Tuesday, Jan. 17. They are left to right: D. H. Reid, head of Texas A. and M. poultry department; Ross M. Sherwood, chief division of poultry husbandry of Texas A. and M., and A. H. Demke, Stephenville, executive secretary of the Texas Baby Chick Association. They are Nationally known experts in their line.

All work planned both for the SCS and for the cooperater, was completed early last fall, and in addition to this, Mr. Pool rebuilt all outside field and pasture fences, making them sheep proof. Then he included a small bunch of sheep along with his cattle in order to improve his pasture by the control of weeds and brush. He also started clearing cedar and undesirable brush from the pasture.

Mr. Pool states that some eight or nine different farmers within that vicinity have started installing some or all of these practices on their farm since he has completed his, and he feels sure that most of this improvement on the adjoining farms can be attributed to "spreader practice" due to the demonstration set up on his farm.

By pushing a button at one of the many amazing exhibits in the Hall of Science at the 1939 California World's Fair, a spectator will be able to see the "birth" of a plant and the secrets of plant propagation.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Kelley and children have moved to Dallas.

THE DUKE OF WEST POINT with LOUIS HAYWARD TOM BROWN RICHARD CARLSON JOAN FONTAINE ALAN CURTIS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
Because his father is military attache of the United States Embassy at London, Steve Early, though American born, has had most of his schooling in England. Upon being graduated from Cambridge, where he distinguished himself in many sports, Steve returns to America to enter the U. S. Military Academy, following a family tradition which extends back to the Civil War. Arriving at West Point he finds himself just another one of the nondescript mass of despised "Plebes", looked down upon and rigidly disciplined by the Yearlings in the Academy custom. When a raw little Plebe, Robert Drew, is badgered by Yearling Corporal Strong, Steve comes to his defense and incurs Strong's hostility.

Chapter Two

When the Plebes finally were permitted to break ranks, they were sent to the "Beast Barracks", told off in threes, and each team of three, chosen haphazardly as they came in the line, was to room often. Strong curtly ordered the Plebe to pick up his mattress, and Steve complied with exaggerated servility. But he had the last word in the encounter.

"A most charming lady, sir," he observed, preparing to depart. "It must be your chevrons."

"What?"

"Because if it isn't the chevrons, sir, then we have no explanation, have we, sir?"

When he had gone, the young lady casually asked her escort the name of the insolent youngster.

"Plebes," replied the Yearling Corporal shortly, "Don't have names!"

The Army Cadet Corps, unlike the students at more easy-going schools, starts its year at the beginning of July. After enrollment at West Point, the Corps goes into the country for summer encampment and field training. The next two months were happily busy ones for the triumvirate of new friends — drilling and marching, blazing away at targets with revolvers and rifles, shooting off big guns, drilling and marching again. At last, with September in sight, the Corps was on the verge of breaking together for the year. Early found himself quartered with Jack West, a big-boned, smiling boy from Michigan, and another Plebe. But Drew, the youngster, whom Steve had befriended, found in his dismay that he was separated from his benefactor and detailed to live with two hulking youths with whom he had absolutely no interests in common. Sensing the boy's need of his friendship and protection, Steve thought over the problem for a moment, then firmly took the arm of the callow country boy who had been told off to room with Jack West and himself. He led the boy to the adjacent room where Drew and his companions were unpacking, presented his young yokel, and made a speech:

"I think informal introductions are so much nicer, don't you?"

"Gentlemen, I have here a particularly fine specimen of young manhood — sound in mind and limb and guaranteed to be gentle to his mother. I am going to trade him to you gentlemen free and unencumbered, in return for—this."

Saying which, he pushed his erstwhile roommate into the room, and propelled the grateful Drew out of it. And soon Drew, highly elated, was making his home with Steve Early and Jack West.

A few hours later the Plebes were busily engaged in getting their household equipment from the Cadet Store. A succession of youths, at the double quick, were hustling out of the store lugging in front of them the rolled up mattresses which had been issued to them. Down the steps of the store jogged Steve Early, the mattress in front of him blocking his view. He trotted across the street, tripped on the curb, and sprawled on top of his mattress at the feet of a strolling young couple—Yearling Strong and an exceptionally fresh-faced, lovely young girl.

Steve, stretched full length on his mattress, looked up into the girl's amused features and grinned back at her.

"Silly, isn't it?" he remarked. She burst into a trilling laugh.

"I think informal introductions are so much nicer, don't you?" pursued Steve, resting an elbow comfortably on his mattress. "If I knew when you pass here I might drop in like this quite camp—celebrating their last night with a "carnival" and an Upper Classmen's dance.

In the tent of Early, West and Drew, a meditative silence reigned. Drew lay on his cot, just thinking. West wrestled with a book, boning up on his geometry against the opening of the academic year. And Early thoughtfully brushed off his uniform.

"I think," he reflected, watching Yearling Corporal Strong stroll by the tent with his girl on his arm "I think I'll go over and get better acquainted with Mister Strong's drag."

"I'm warning you," muttered West "that's an Upper Class hop."

But warnings meant nothing to the lighthearted Early. A few minutes later he was standing outside the Dance Pavilion, looking critically inward at the whirling couples — and particularly at Mister Strong and his "drag". There was no hope of admission to the merrymaking for this despised Plebe — and Steve felt it all the more keenly when Ann, dancing near the doorway, met his eyes over Strong's shoulder, and answered his grin with a smile of recognition.

Sudden inspiration visited Plebe Early. On a post almost at his elbow was mounted a fuse box which controlled the lights in the pavilion. He looked at it speculatively for a moment, then pulled the switch. The interior of the pavilion blacked out, the music stopped suddenly with a raucous screech, and the nervous shrieks and giggles of the "drags" filled the air.

Steve dashed into the pavilion, made his way to Ann's side by the dim light furnished by the moon, and murmured in her ear:

"Right this way, please. Women and children first. Nothing to be afraid of."

And before she knew it his firm hand was on her elbow and he had propelled her out of the place.

He rushed her to a quiet spot overlooking the moonlit Hudson River, then leaned against a tree and mopped his brow in mock agitation.

"Whew, that was close! If I hadn't been there to save you, anything might have happened!"

ment Credit Plan, makes funds available to prospective home-builders for early construction. Home owners who wish to remodel or repair their premises also come under the provisions of the plan. Here are the essential questions (and answers) pertaining to the application of the Plan:

(Q) Who can borrow modernization funds?

(A) Any responsible individual, corporation, business, commercial establishment, farmer, tenant, or home owner.

(Q) Who lends the money?

(A) All borrowed money is furnished by private lending institutions—banks, loan associations. Over 7,000 such agencies all over the United States have been approved by the Federal Housing Administration. Practically every locality has at least one such approved agent.

(Q) What can a borrower do with these funds?

(A) In general, the borrower may use the money to improve his property. Specifically, he may make additions or alterations to his business and home establishments; install heating, plumbing, wiring, paint or varnish; put in new wallpaper; refloor where necessary; reroof; or make any structural repair as he sees fit.

(Q) How much can each borrower obtain from the lending agency?

(A) Each borrower may borrow up to 90 per cent of the sum required to build a small home, provided that the total cost does not exceed $16,000. In other words this makes a ten per cent down payment the minimum permissible requirement for building.

(Q) What charge is made for financing?

(A) Insurance premiums on an 80 per cent loan are one-half of 1 per cent; on a 90 per cent loan, one-fourth of 1 per cent. Maximum interest on every loan is 5 per cent. The interest plus the premium charge constitutes the only charges made on a loan. Total charges on small homes costing $6,000 or less will consequently be 5 1/4 per cent.

(Q) How does the borrower repay the loan?

(A) The borrower repays the loan in equal monthly installments with 10 years allowed for the retirement of the loan.

(Q) Is any provision made for farm house loans?

(A) The benefits of mortgage insurance are extended to the erection of homes on farm property but regulations are not yet issued because of the necessity of avoiding conflict with farm lend agencies.

(Q) Where can additional information be obtained?

(A) Ask your local bank, loan company, or building and loan association for additional data on the Plan.

TREES IMPORTANT POINT IN BEAUTIFYING YOUR HOME

Trees exert a powerful influence on the beauty—or lack of beauty—of a home. They can either "make or break" the appearance of the average dwelling. Consequently the selection and location of trees for your home are matters that call for your most serious consideration.

The first point to consider is the design of your residence. Is it built massively, on a grand scale? Is it a cozy bungalow—English, French, provincial, or Spanish type? Or does it fall between these extremes? These factors must be considered before you select your tree; if your home is a small one, exercise care so that the tree you choose will not dwarf it in comparison. At the same time, try to choose a tree that conforms with the general design of your home: a catalpa, for instance, would present an incongruous appearance if it were located on the grounds of a stately dignified residence. An elm or oak would be much more appropriate with the general appearance.

The physical requirements of the various species must be kept in mind at all time, too. Different kinds of trees require different kinds of soil for best results; some species need much more sunlight than others; some need more moisture, which makes the annual rate of precipitation an important factor in their growth; and some are less hardy than others, succumbing to the freezing weather of this locality.

The kind, size, and location of shade trees are also affected by the surrounding landscape; the location of small ornamental trees hedges, flower beds, gardens, garages, shrubs, driveways, walks, clotheslines, pools, lawns, and portions of the house—such as entrances, windows, gutters, basement walls, and exterior tiling. The type, size, and proximity of street trees must be taken into consideration, especially when such trees are under the jurisdiction of the municipality and the home owner cannot change them.

In connection with the factors over which you have no control but which should be considered are the homes and landscapes adjacent to your site. By all means try to choose trees that merge with the general tone of your community.

If at all possible, consult a landscape architect before undertaking the job. His experience will prove invaluable to you in reaching the objective you set, and he may save you money in the long run by obviating the trial and error method usually used by amateurs.

Should you do your own planting, it is wise to have your nursery man either to inspect your grounds and make recommendations or to show him photographs of your premises, accompanied by a scaled chart of your yard, indicating details of present landscaping.
