GRAND JURY MAKES REPORT TO JUDGE R. B. CROSS

To The Hon. R. B. Cross, District Judge:

We the Grand Jury for the January, 1939 term of the District Court for Coryell County, having completed our labors make the following report to your Honor:

We have been in session 13 days and have found 27 true Bills of Indictment, of which 26 were felonies and 1 misdemeanor. We have examined 234 witnesses.

We have inquired into all offenses which have come to our attention, as we believe that diligent investigation of all offenses, whether the same results in indictment or not, helps maintain a healthy respect for law and order in the community and slows the hand of the criminal if he knows that thoro investigation is certain to follow a criminal act.

We find that conditions in general are better, but that offenses by youthful first offenders are far too numerous. We earnestly recommend that moral guidance and development of the young receive all attention possible in the home, churches and schools and from every other agency capable of bestowing it in order that our young people shall have every possible opportunity toward good citizenship. In this connection we report that being in possession of the facts in advance we recommend to the District Attorney that sentences be suspended in certain cases. The sentences were suspended in these cases after the facts were heard by petit juries. We wish to warn those who think that they will receive a suspended sentence, if caught, that such offenders are not proper cases for suspended sentences.

The theft of livestock and agricultural products continues to be costly to the farmers and ranchers of the county. We urge the immediate report of every theft to the officers as well as every piece of evidence which might assist them in these cases. We further recommend firebranding as a valuable aid in identifying stolen stock as well as protection for them.

We thank our new Sheriff for his earnest efforts and hard work and we further wish to thank the bailiffs for loyal and efficient service, as well as most of the witnesses for their promptness and cooperation. We express our appreciation to your Honor for the learned charge with which this Grand Jury was impaneled, and we believe that if the principles in your charge were carried out by all, this country, which is now a good place to live in, would be a better one.

We also wish to thank the District Attorney and County Attorney for their faithful service and assistance, and to express our sincerest sympathy and sorrow at the loss by our District Attorney of his beloved brother.

Having completed our work, we ask that we be discharged.

37 MILES PAVING ARE BILLED FOR CORYELL THIS YEAR

County Judge Floyd Zeigler, Horace K. Jackson and Lewis Holmes, report after their meeting with State Highway Engineer Julian Montgomery, that Coryell county is due for approximately 37 miles of paving, contracts for which will probably be let in April or May, according to information released yesterday morning by Judge Zeigler.

Included in this work, will be the completion of U. S. 84 (Hwy. 7) from Gatesville to Evant, and Hwy. 36 from the State Juvenile Training School to Jonesboro.

Mr. Montgomery assured the men, who are members of the Chamber of Commerce Highway Committee that this paving would definitely be completed during this year.

Assurance was also given that this work would be let in time to complete the jobs before winter weather set in.

Pavement on these stretches will be the same as that part that is already paved.

With these assurances, only one gap is lacking on 36 and it is predicted this will be taken care of in due time. Preliminary work has already been started, that is, the organization, for the new North-South highway, which has been proposed between Ft. Worth and Austin via Gatesville. In presentation of arguments for this highway, it has been shown that both 66 and 2 are already so crowded with trucks and automobiles that no more trucking permits will be issued for the use of these highways, it is said.

GOLDEN GLOVES TOURNAMENT CLIMAXED WITH EXCITING NIGHT: 8 WINNERS WIN ALL-EXPENSE TRIP TO COWTOWN

Now's the time for the boys to really WORK!

And WORK with all capital letters!

Why? Because they are privileged to represent Central Texas in the State Finals of the Golden Gloves Tournament in Fort Worth, February 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20.

That's five hard days, and should the boys come out on top at the closing final night in Fort Worth, The Fort Worth Star-Telegram will grant them a free trip to Chicago for the Tournament of Champions with all expenses taken care of.

That's what this eight boys won in the District Golden Gloves Tournament at Gatesville which was held February 1, 2, and 3. Here they are:

- Heavyweight, R. Wiederspahn of Bartlett.
- Light Heavyweight, Clinton Breeding of Baylor University.
- Middleweight, O. O. Russell of Hico.
- Welterweight, Franklin Mills of Baylor University.
- Lightweight, Cleburne Chandler of Oglesby.
- Featherweight, Ting Wilkerson of Whitney.
- Bantamweight, Overton Blanchard of Gatesville.
- Flyweight, Tommy Caffrey of Temple.

Final Night

Friday night's battles brought a bevy of surprises, chief of which was the unexpected victory of O. O. Russell of Hico over Dick Chandler, CCC Camp ace of very much promise, who it was clearly seen was not in shape for the contest. Russell won by the TKO route in the fading seconds of the third round.

Closely contested was the bout between Cleburne Chandler and Sam Clemons, both favorites, and training partners, with the edge going to Cleburne by the decision route.

Franklin Mills Baylor star also won a TKO over Curtis C. Carpenter, also of Waco, and also his training partner, Mills looking like one of the best bets for Ft. Worth.

Clinton Breeding, Baylor, won over his harder hitting Baylor competitor, David Hamilton, by the TKO route, when Hamilton threw a ligament in his shoulder.

Ting Wilkerson, Whitney, won a TKO over C. W. Carpenter of Waco, when Carpenter re-sprained an old wrist injury.

Overton A. Blanchard, NYA House, won a close decision over his smaller opponent, and battler, Jimmy Sharp of Gatesville in the curtain raiser.

Nearly 1000 fans were present for the final evening of the tournament and seemingly, were well pleased with the show.

Thursday Night's Bouts

In the principle bout of the second night, Thursday, Sam Clemons, Gatesville won over Bill Pontremoli of Hico, near the end of the third round, when referee Jack Devaney ruled a third foul on Pontremoli. This bout was very even and one of the best of the meet, both boys being good punchers. Pontremoli accidentally fouled all 3 times, but his stance made it easier.

Cleburne Chandler, took Jerry Armstrong in the middle of the first round by the TKO route, when Armstrong, who lacked the proper training couldn't go.

After a match, since there were three Lightweight bouts, Chandler drew Pal Homer of Hico, and disposed of him easily.

The other bout of the evening was Franklin Mills of Baylor vs. Leonard Cottle of Clifton, and Mills got a TKO over Cottle in the second round without too much trouble.

Twenty-nine finally weighed-in and some six or eight who entered did not show us to be weighed-in for the bouts. In a financial way, the meet, considering everything, was a success, although "deducts" just about ate up the profits.

Town talk has it there will be a considerable number of Coryell county and other folks will follow the boys to Fort Worth.

GLAMOROUS OPERA PRIMA DONNA RETURNS TO LONE STAR STATE TO SING IN PREMIERE.

LEONORA CORONA

Glamorous Leonora Corona, whose face and figure are one pleasant bit of testimony that an opera star may photograph well and still reach the top in the musical world, will come to Texas this week for final rehearsals of Julia Smith's opera, "Cynthia Parker," in which she sings the title role for its premiere performance on February 16-17 at the North Texas State Teachers College in Denton.

Flying down from New York City, Miss Corona plans to land in her native city, Dallas, at 2:22 a. m. on the morning of February 10. Her arrival in Denton will be the signal for intensive rehearsal of the combined cast of the opera which is based on the life story of a Texas white woman who, as a little girl, was carried away by Comanches. The student speaking and ballet cast, the men's and women's choruses, and the Teachers College Symphony have been in rehearsal since the beginning of the year.

Known as one of the most strikingly beautiful singers of her day, Corona has had a varied and successful career. At 14 she was a concert pianist in Dallas, but soon turned to sing. While in her teens she is said to have been offered $1,000 a week by the old Keith-Orpheum circuit to tour in vaudeville, but she chose to follow an operatic career.

Following her debut in "Mefistofele" at Castellanaire, Italy, Corona sang in many famous European opera houses. While in La Scala, Milan, she sang frequently under Toscanini, and created the role of Beauty in "Beauty and the Beast." Since her debut at the Metropolitan in 1927 as Leonora in "Il Trovatore," Corona has sung numerous leading roles in that famous opera house. She has been on concert tour in the East this winter and has been invited to return to Italy in the spring. Her acceptance will depend on plans for New York production of "Cynthia Parker," the first opera to have its premiere in a Texas college.

Championship Game In Local Gym Wed. Nite Evant vs. Gatesville

Tomorrow night in Gatesville gym, at 7:30 the Hornets will battle the Evant Elks to retain a place in the Coryell County boys basket ball standing. It is the second of a two out of three match of games played by the two teams for the Class "A" Championship of Coryell County. HORNETS FLASH COLORS AND DEFEAT TURNERSVILLE CAGERS 32-13

The powerful cagers bearing the black and gold trade mark turned on their steam to lay the Turnersville boys in the shade last Friday afternoon. In a previous game the Hornets edged over the opponents to win by only a few points. Friday, it was a different story and the Worley men made a sensational showing and defeated the visitors by a score of 32-13. Southerland, star forward of the Turnersville squad, was with a victory tomorrow night there will be a third game to decide the Class "A" Championship Wednesday night will also be the first annual basket ball homecoming for GHS and the High School band and pep squad will be there. The Hornets will be battling to remain in the race and Evant dribblers will attempt to take the title without a third game. Without a doubt, it will be a thrilling performance to be enjoyed by all.

The admission price is 10 cents to all.

among the best men found on the visiting side.

On the other hand, the Hornet Quint came forth with more cooperation and team work than any other game played this season by this set of cagers. A complete set of scrubs filled the Hornet shoes in the third quarter, and few men on any squad can toss a ball like "Red" White. Co-operation and team work was the Hornet theme thruout the entire game.

Moore scored 11 points for the Hornets and Weaver and McDonald followed with 6 points each.

BRILLIANT SEXTETTE OF G.H.S. DOWN PAIR

The female basketeers tripped off to Taylor Thursday nite to engage in a cage battle with the Green Devils are a team composed chiefly of ladies who were outstanding cagers in their respective colleges and hi schools. That club represented a Taylor hotel and theatre. The girls, some of whom are mothers turned on a powerful defence which was of no avail.

Weaver and Shoaf's long shots, along with expert team work of the Hornettes account for the locals' victory of 27-13. Weaver took credit for 10 counters and Rutherford and Shoaf's tallies totaled 6 points each.

For the independent team Berry scored 8 points.

The Turnersville club of girls were the next victims of the ball tossing cagers of Gatesville. This game was staged in the local gym Friday with the Hornettes victorious 44-15. The girls from Turnersville were defeated in their gym a couple of weeks ago, yet they returned to battle again with central Texas' paramount cagers of the weaker sex. It was unnecessary for the Hornette regulars to participate thruout the entire game for the visitors were out classed thru the contest.

For the Hornettes, Rutherford's tallies totaled 15 points while Curry, a substitute whom basket ball fans can look forward to seeing much of next year, followed with 8 points.

Outstanding performances of the Turnersville Club were made by Weaver, Cathey, and Humes.

Baby's Health Depends on Mother, Says Maxine Davis

FOUR babies are being born every minute somewhere in this land. Every minute of the day, every day of the year, four mothers bring new life to this nation.

These mothers are heirs of the greatest medical skill in the history of science because today's 'baby doctor' is more than the 'family physician'—he is a trained specialist, prepared to chart the journey of a baby into the world and deliver a hearty child to a healthy mother.

In the October issue of Pictorial Review, Maxine Davis, nationally known authority, tells the modern mother what she ought to do to insure her baby's chances and to safeguard her own future health. "Choose a doctor known to be well-trained and experienced," she advises. "You may not find a specialist in gynecology but do not fail to ascertain the education, qualifications and experience of the physician you select. That is important because not every graduate of a grade-A medical college has had sufficient specialized schooling and experience in this field."

The Council of Medical Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association at its 1937 convention reported that "the teaching of this field of medical care is at a lower level than that of the other major clinical departments," and that "very few schools offer to their students sufficient practical experience under competent supervision." Consequently, when an inadequately trained young doctor, who has just hung out his shingle, begins to practice, at a moment when speed and judgment are vital he may have only a foggy memory of a lecture and a textbook.

"Not only must you exercise caution in your selection of a doctor," Miss Davis warns, "but you must also be careful about the hospital. Make sure it is listed among those approved by the American College of Surgeons or by the American Medical Association for not all hospitals are satisfactory."

Those mothers who cannot afford a doctor, and who are far from a good maternity center have to wait until the rest of us come to help them. Fortunately the government at last has recognized their plight and appropriated $3,800,000 through the Social Security Act of 1935 for maternal and infant care to be administered by the Children's Bureau and this sum is to be matched by the states. This is only a drop in the bucket, however, and is wholly inadequate to solve the vital problem of unskilled assistance. The Children's Bureau is acutely aware of this and has this year approved plans to provide, to a very limited extent, complete medical and nursing services, but it is necessary for Congress to do more about babies than kissing them at election time.

In her Pictorial Review article, the author gives the prospective mother a list of wise "Don'ts" to consider in anticipating the birth of her baby:

1. Don't neglect prenatal care. Place yourself under competent, watchful care during the entire prenatal period.
 2. Don't choose "just any doctor." If there is no specialist in your town, be very sure that the doctor you select knows his business. A very simple way to get a good physician is to find out who serves the doctors' wives in your community.
 3. Don't go to the extreme of either modern or old-fashioned techniques. There is a happy medium and you should let your doctor decide what is best for you.
 4. Don't pay any attention to old wives' tales. They have come down to us from the time when women were still in sackcloth and ashes for the sin of Eve.
 5. Don't listen to what your mother or the neighbors say. Put your faith in your doctor and do exactly what he tells you to.
 6. Don't be afraid. The average baby is born under natural, normal conditions and yours probably will be, too. You are going to have your baby safely and with all the advantages of modern science.
- Don't impose too much on science, but take every advantage of it.

Healthy babies are happy babies . . . and healthy mothers can have healthy babies, says Maxine Davis in the October Pictorial Review.

Youth Possess Right to Lead Own Lives, Asserts Writer

ONE of our most famous psychologists has said that "the detachment of the growing individual from the authority of his parents is one of the most necessary and most painful achievements in evolution." But painful or not, each parent owes it to his child to let him grow up as an individual in his own right, to see that he stands on his own feet, and that eventually he be allowed to lead his own life.

And what if the parent is the selfish, clinging or short-sighted type who refuses to let the child grow up normally and find a self-dependent life of his own? Raymona G. Fuller answers this question in the March Cosmopolitan in his article, "Should You Be Weaned from Your Family, and Why?" He says (to the growing child):

"In claiming a life of your own, you are only claiming what rightfully belongs to you. So refuse to be bullied into feelings of guilt when you don't always mind the parental back-seat drivers."

Each child, Mr. Fuller claims, has his own personal Bill of Rights in regards to his parents. These are the Rights:

- 1—To refuse to be coddled and petted.
- 2—To have friends of your own age and choice.
- 3—To have friends of the opposite sex and to "go out" with them.
- 4—To choose your life work—and a hobby or two.
- 5—To choose your mate and marry.

Another way of winning his freedom, Mr. Fuller advises the adolescent further, is to wean his parents away from him. This method, which requires great tact, simply means thinking out ways of lessening bit by bit parents' dependence upon the child, such as diverting their attention into other channels.

The saints were sinners who kept on trying.—Sir John Evelyn Wrench.

"Lone Ranger" Brings Serials Back To Movies

THE Lone Ranger has torn off his mask. He has left his faithful horse Silver and his mysterious mask at the top of a page in the November issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine and walked right down into print so that his thousands of devoted fans can see what he looks like.

He is Lee Powell and he was chosen as the "Lone Ranger" for the movies after studio scouts had surveyed the radio program's audience and blueprinted the exact appearance and character of the famous and romantic protector of the law: "The Lone Ranger must be 5 feet, 11 inches tall, weigh approximately 170 pounds, have no mustache or beard, never wear chaps, always wear a white hat, and constantly carry two guns."

"He smokes only if the story absolutely demands it," the blueprint specified, "and he does not drink or swear. He fires his pistol only in self-defense, and is allowed no romantic entanglements. Sad but true, he may not even kiss the girl in his adventures because youngsters would think the Ranger a sissy if he became serious about a girl."

And the Lone Ranger's faithful steed Silver wasn't so easy to find, either. Just as they tested and worried to find the right hero, so were they careful about the hero's horse. Thirty-five of the most beautiful white stallions in Hollywood were brought to the studio. They were all given a screen test, put through their paces, and found wanting in appeal. Then somebody heard of an unusual white horse—but it was in El Paso, Texas. They flew the horse by airplane from El Paso to Hollywood. Silver arrived safely and he got the job.

"I have often wondered why the Lone Ranger made such a great hit," says Lee Powell. "The mysterious hero with his mask was a major reason. The cry 'Hi-Yo, Silver' was another. But whatever the reason for the Lone Ranger's popularity, the fact remains that today you'll hear small fry hall other small fry with a lusty 'Hi-Yo, Silver!' and in New York's swanky East Side theatres the serial was as popular as in Clinton Corners."

Right now Powell is working on the first full-length Lone Ranger picture. "What happens after that I don't know," he writes in the November Good Housekeeping. "How long the Ranger's popularity is going to last I can't guess. Soon enough another hero will capture the affection of the movie fans. Soon enough 'Hi-Yo, Silver!' may be as out-dated as '23 skidoo.' But while it lasts, it's fun."

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Gallico Writes of European Crisis As He Saw It — in Living Fiction

ONE man, a newspaperman, roamed the streets of London, alone and unaided, while the rest of the city and all the other cities of Europe trembled with a great fear. War seemed inevitable, and the pity of it was that the catastrophe of 1914 was still so fresh in their minds. There was nothing for them to do but pray in their churches and dig little trenches in their green parks. Maybe, if they prayed night and day, the four men sitting around a table in Munich, juggling the fates of nations, would find a solution—but their fear was far greater than their hope.

Paul Gallico

This was the reality that the newspaperman lived and breathed. All his life he had dreamed — he was a desk man on a New York paper and this was his first trip abroad — of adventure and reckless living, of testing his courage against insurmountable odds. To be a foreign correspondent had always been his dream, but somehow destiny had pigeon-holed him on the copy desk.

This is the man Paul Gallico, noted writer and journalist, takes hold of and breathes life into his serial "Tales of Six Cities," the first installment of which appears in the March Cosmopolitan under the title, "Crisis in London." Fiction, you may call it, but living fiction, written on the spot by Gallico, who was in Europe at the time of the crisis. Better call it fiction-spiced-with-truth, because, if his copy deskman is imaginative, the background of his experiences in Europe is factual.

Mr. Gallico takes his character, gives him the deceptively mild name of Hiram Holliday, throws him headlong into world events, and has him nip neatly a German plot to kidnap a small child who turns out to be a member of the Austrian Royal Family. For a reward, the child's aunt, a Princess, kisses Hiram on the lips and says:

"Good-by, Hiram Holliday. Thank you. I do not think our ways will ever cross again, but at least I have known a great and gallant man. There are not many left."

Hiram's eyeglasses blurred. This slim, beautiful woman had called him great and gallant. She had kissed him. Perhaps, who knew, they might meet again?

When he got back to London, the news of the Munich pact was out. Hiram shook himself and returned to reality. Now what? he asks himself. And then Hiram's answer and second reward: his paper in New York orders him to Paris—as a correspondent! At last a correspondent. But what Hiram doesn't know is that Rome, Berlin and the other great capitals of the world still await him, in turn.

PAUL WHITEMAN TO BE AT FAT STOCK SHOW

Paul Whiteman, dean of modern music will play a conspicuous role in the world championship rodeo and horse show at Fort Worth, March 10-19.

One of his feats may be that of directing his All-American Band from the saddle of his favorite mount in the coliseum arena. That will come after Whiteman's introduction with a fanfare of drums.

Whiteman probably will not ride any wild Brahma bulls but he will have a bigger task in furnishing music for both the rodeo and The Roundup, new amusement spot on the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show grounds.

BOB BEVERLY WANTS TO KNOW "WHERE IS HEADQUARTERS"

Packing his grip for a trip to the Fat Stock Show, March 10-19, in Fort Worth, Bob Beverly of Lovington, New Mexico, has written to ask about "headquarters" for the old cowmen.

"How am I going to locate you in all that crowd?" Beverly inquired of John Hendrix, director of special event. He wrote a 300 word letter, first relating the story of a cowman who had difficulty in locating his lost steer in a herd of several thousand animals.

Beverly is one of the veteran cattlemen who will be honored guests of the Exposition on Tuesday, March 14.

Diet Promotes Success

PROPER FOODS MORE IMPORTANT AFTER 40

By BETTY BARCLAY

So much is being written these days about the opportunities for men and women who have reached the 40-year milestone, and how outstanding some persons beyond that age have been in business and professions, that my curiosity was aroused when at a tea party yesterday I was introduced to a well known publisher who has become identified with that subject.

"It is really astonishing what a large percentage of the important accomplishments in business and the arts are being done these days by men and women over 40," he said in answer to my question. "At one time, the age of 40 was considered to mark the beginning of declining years. Now the contrary is true. Carefully planned meals have played a large part in the improvement," he added with a smile.

"Do American housewives show much interest in the subject?" I asked, and upon being told that it was now one of the most popular topics, I said I'd appreciate some anecdotes for my readers. Whereupon this famous publisher talked with great enthusiasm on his favorite theme.

"Take the story of Mrs. Harriet Packard of the town of Kent, Ohio. She took a course in writing at 50. She felt she could write. She had a wealth of material in the experiences women of her age have had. She learned to type her articles. She has since written newspaper and magazine articles, a book of verse, a book of reminiscences, and lately a novel.

"The famous Alice Foote MacDougall of New York City became a remarkable success twice after 40. She built up a chain of coffee shops into a $2,000,000 business in six large restaurants. At 63 she retired. About two years later the restaurants failed. She lost everything, started again at 65, worked hard for six years, and now she is back on top again.

"Want a man's experience? My friend, Arthur Cremin, Director of the New York Schools of Music, has told me that many musicians reach the height of their creative ability after 40. About one-fifth of the students in the New York Schools of Music are over 40. Walter Damrosch was 41 when he organized the New York Symphony into a permanent orchestra. At more than 60 he found a new career in radio, and at 74 he wrote his opera, 'The Man Without a Country'."

He told me about several others, remarkable success stories that began after 40. Knowing my interest in food, he assured me that most of these active people were careful about their diets, getting plenty of vitamins and reinforcing the supply with some vitamin-rich food like fresh yeast. I asked him how important he considered the diet, and he replied that judging from his records, these people realized that well balanced meals and very little dissipation were the foundation for their successful physical and mental activities.

ON FILE FOR CAREERS

Here's Where 5000 Phone Calls a Day Give 500,000 People a Chance at Stardom

A LITTLE blonde girl named Lorraine Krueger plays her first starring part in "New Faces of 1937" and a lot of people will ask where her career began. Mark Sandrich, director of the picture, says it began one day when he passed a stage where she was practising some intricate steps with a group of chorus girls, in rehearsal for "Shall We Dance." He liked her personality and skillful feet and gave her a bit in the picture. But Lorraine herself insists her success really began with a phone call from Central Casting.

On the books of the Central Casting Bureau in Hollywood are listed approximately half a million persons representing every nation in the world, all living in Los Angeles. The names of these new faces are tabulated on Lindex rotary files that are placed on the switchboard in front of seven operators. 5000 calls are a daily average and at five o'clock in the afternoon, when requests for tomorrow's extras come in, these seven files are the busiest battery of indexes in the world.

No matter what sort of odd SOS is issued from the studios, these extraordinary files are ready to meet it. Perhaps a director must be supplied with as many as 104 extras who can play speaking parts—the difficult demand made in the casting of RKO's "Toast of New York"; or the call may be for an ever dozen of typical "beef-trust" chorus girls, such as were hired to dance in front of Jim Fisk, fabulous speculator and financier, played by Edward Arnold in the same film. A brilliant spectacle of the 70's.

Another flip of the files makes available names of 100 actors needed in an oriental bazaar scene, each man speaking a different language. It is even possible to meet a call for seventy stunt men who can recreate the wild scenes of the "Black Friday" panic of 1869 and who will not revolt if the end of the day's work finds them with black eyes and bloody noses.

Behind it all, behind these visible files and the supply and demand that deals in blondes, brunettes, young ones and old ones, is that intangible lure—the chance for success!

The County Home Demonstration Council met at the Court House in Gatesville at 2 o'clock p. m. Saturday, January 28, for their first meeting of this year with Mrs. T. C. Music and Mrs. T. J. Smith as new council officers in charge of the meeting.

The reporters want their reports to come up to the "measuring rod", which will be useful to some one who was not there. Miss Eva Louise Mack reported the 4-H Girls are off to a good start in 1939. All the clubs were represented except two. All clubs said that they plan to go by the year books and will try to progress more this year. Those present at the meeting were: Mrs. T. C. Music, Chairman of the Council from the Mountain H. D. Club; Mrs. T. J. Smith, Secretary-Treasurer of the Council from the Purnela H. D. Club; Mrs. J. O. Winslar, Education Committee from the Purnela H. D. Club; Miss Eva Louise Mack, Sponsors Committee Chairman and Sponsor of Coryell City 4-H Club; Mrs. J. W. Krempin, Chairman of the Reporters from Topsey H. D. Club; Mrs. Vic McBride; President of Topsey H. D. Club; Mrs. J. B. Kemp, Delegate from Pidcoke and Union H. D. Clubs; Mrs. C. V. Schrader, Delegate from Copperas Cove H. D. Club; Mrs. M. Strickland, Delegate from 4-Corners H. D. Club; and Mrs. Paul Skinner, who represented the Coryell County H. D. Council Recreation School in December 6th, 7th, and 8th, Mrs. J. W. Krempin, Council Reporter.

ARTIST CATCHES SPIRIT OF FAT STOCK SHOW

B. J. Lore, the artist, captured the spirit of the forty-third annual Stock Show in Fort Worth when he designed the front cover for the souvenir program. Portrayed on the cover will be thundering herds of the old trail days, Paul Whiteman and his Band, old-time cowmen, rodeo action and ranch girls. The souvenir programs will be a splash of color to greet the Stock Show visitor's eyes.

DO'S AND DON'TS IN WINTER FASHIONS

YOU must use wit and discretion in dealing with the details of the new fashions, says Helen Koues, fashion director of Good Housekeeping Magazine. What you can wear in the twenties you can't always wear in the forties when the scales are unkindly generous but tempered discreetly, this season's allure has poise, stateliness, and yet is provocatively feminine.

"The Do's in the new fashions are sometimes hard to find—especially those to suit you." Koues writes in the November issue of Good Housekeeping. "And important preliminary Do's are: (1) Study your type (2) Study the new fashions and then (3) Apply the fashions to yourself and reap the result in self-possession and new charm to others."

"Do rearrange your hair in some higher fashion to suit your type and age," she advises. "Do wear the forward-tilted hat; do have at least one day dress and one evening skirt which swirl about you and reduces your waist to a wisp; do have a bit of frivolous jewelry—a bracelet with dangles and seals, or a necklace with dangles worn close to the throat."

Accompanying Miss Koues' interpretation of fashion Do's, Margaretta Byers of the Good Housekeeping fashion staff, presents an amusing analysis of the "Don'ts at Any Age."

DRESS TO SUIT YOUR PHYSIQUE, NOT FEELINGS

"WE all know women who have what psychologists call split personalities," says Margaretta Byers, of the Good Housekeeping fashion staff. "I mean the women whose minds don't match their bodies, who insist on dressing to suit their feelings rather than their physiques."

With an alarming assortment of illustrations, Miss Byers presents the "Don'ts at Any Age" in dress in the November issue of the magazine.

"Everybody knows the dowager figure who persists in dressing to match her baby talk," says Miss Byers. "She's got it all wrong — she's as old-hat as the opera divas of yester-year, beneath whose weight balconies trembled — and tenors, too, when they had to carry off the maiden in their aching arms."

Again we have the very patriotic matron who tries to dress to express her gamine yearnings in skirt and overalls and is therefore likely to give her gardener quite a turn. She should get rid of her hoydenish impulses in the hunting field where she can wear clothes designed to suit, for if she doesn't, she is riding for a severe fall.

"As to this business of psychologists' dressing women according to their minds rather than their bodies," Miss Byers writes, "we do think in such cases a psychiatrist is badly needed, not to dress the patient but to teach her to keep soul and body together. If she can change her body—fine. But if she can't, she will have to change her mind—at least about the clothes she will wear."

FIRST LAW OF FASHION STUDY YOURSELF

GOING much farther than the customary formula for fashions conceived to fit your type and figure, fashion authority Helen Koues interprets the season's styles in terms of the Do's in dress in the twenties, the thirties, and the forties in the November Good Housekeeping Magazine.

In the twenties take advantage of your youth, she advises. Do capitalize it. Do wear some such lovely dress as Vionnet's plum wool, with its tiny bolero studded in heavy brass nail heads; short skirt for formal day, long for informal evening. The sleeves are short enough to show gold bracelets with all the dangles, or a bracelet to which gold mesh purse, compact, and lipstick are attached. Wear a high plum turban, plum shoes, and gloves with the new slightly darker shade of stockings. Be sure that your plums are deep and match, or switch to black shoes and white gloves to match the bolero.

In the thirties the world is yours, says Miss Koues. Early youth is expectant: charming thirties know. It's the women of thirty who set the styles. To do this, you must wear a style while it is new. If you buy a style, not a fad, you have bought clothes which outlast the season. The town suit, backbone of the wardrobe, is the short fitted model buttoning to the throat and reaching only to the hipbone; skirt straight or flared; neckline collarless or furled; jacket to contrast or match. Do be sophisticated for now is your time.

In the forties, and this means the fifties, also, you must watch your step. How old you look depends largely on your figure, hair, and complexion. Don't make the mistake of trying to be young—try instead to be smart. Study yourself as you never have before. Take more care in selecting your clothes than you ever have done. Be more honest with yourself. Be wise and wear new fashions. That in itself will make you younger.

THE ROUNDUP CLUB RIDES AGAIN

The Roundup Club will ride again this year over the highways and rail lines of Texas, carrying invitations to the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show, March 10-19.

Fort Worth business men were working this week on plans for a limited number of goodwill trips in which the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce will sponsor the Roundup activities. In the past the club has been adjunct of the Stock Show.

Five years ago the club was formed to stimulate interest in the exposition. In 1938 five good will trips were conducted to visit 100 Texas cities and broadcast invitations. Three two-day trips carried the envoys into the far corners of Texas.

Active roles in the trips will be taken by William Holden general manager of the Chamber of Commerce, and Charles G. Cotten manager of the trade extension department.

Tuesday night, January 31, several boys of the Gatesville chapter of Future Farmers attended Waco of Area VIII. For the second time this year every chapter was present. There are eighteen chapters in Area VIII, the largest in Texas.

Mr. Boswell, the Area Supervisor, made these statements: The meeting helps to create more interest in their own chapter and each has the benefit of knowing what each other are doing and going to do. A good chapter is one that is improving and higher ranks are reached. Last year there were no candidates for an American Farmer, which there are this year, and only five candidates for Lone Star Farmer.

Vice President was not present so William being the only Vice-President there took his place and later the chair.

Gatesville chapter is going to sponsor a District Contest of Livestock, Poultry, Soil Conservation and Field Crops on March 7th. There was a committee appointed to select the awards, which is Mr. Rhoads, Mr. Russels, and Mr. Lasseter. Gatesville has held this twice before and hope they will have a great success.

Moody's advisor gave a report in the Area meet which is to be held on the 3rd and 4th of March there. There are going to be ten cows or steers to judge instead of four. The team consists of only one boy in this contest and only five intrants in all contests.

Each chapter made a final report for the past term of school telling what each had been doing and what was to be done. Then Clifton string band played a few numbers on the program.

The Waco District Leadership Contest is to be held at Clifton on the 29 of April beginning at 9:30 o'clock in the morning. The awards are to be chosen out of $30,000 by some Vocational Agricultural teachers of different schools. During this discussion William McDonald got to take the chair of the President. The area

Now, to the Golden Gloves Tournament.

Here's some things that were not asked for, but were given.

Referee Jack Devaney said: "That's the cleanest and best bunch of boys I ever worked with in a Tournament"

Also: Referee Devaney said: "I have never worked with better judges than Paul Wiley and Richard Dickie."

Asked about the conduct of the tournament, he said simply: "It's tops".

CHAPTER I

AS SHE waited for the bus, Jane Hartman glanced back for perhaps the tenth time at the cloud of heavy white smoke billowing above the one-car garage behind the small furnished house which she and her younger brother, Charlie, occupied.

She was worried. Not about the smoke—Charlie had told her at breakfast that he and his friends were going to test their "vaporizer" that morning. The four of them had been at work on it in the garage—which they always kept locked—for several weeks. Despite their precautions she had caught fleeting glimpses of a battery of brass nozzles, a generator and blower, and heavy metal tubes such as are used to hold compressed air or gases, all mounted on a half-ton truck. It would revolutionize the business of spraying fruit trees, Charlie had told her, and make their fortunes.

No, it wasn't the vaporizer that caused her to worry, Jane decided as she boarded the bus for the long ride down to the Bank of the Pacific where she worked. It was the men with whom Charlie was working—or at least one of them, the man who called himself Sidney Blue. There was something definitely sinister—almost reptilian—about him that Jane disliked and feared instinctively.

The other two seemed harmless enough—Randall, the one-eyed ex-transport pilot who obviously liked his liquor too well, and mild little Mr. Gibbs, the financial backer of the vaporizer, with his loosely furled umbrella which he always carried, rain or shine. No, it was Sidney she feared. Jane had never met a gunman but Sidney Blue was her personification of a ruthless underworld character.

Charlie had been very vague about how and where he had met this strangely assorted trio. She had found the four of them in the garage when she returned from work one day some weeks before. Their scheme sounded feasible enough. Charlie was just a weak boy of twenty, but surely he wouldn't get mixed up in anything that was not all right.

Her work as secretary to Arnold Wales, president of the bank, kept Jane too busy to give the matter another thought throughout the morning. From her inclosed office it was impossible for her to see Charlie as he drove the light truck up into the alley alongside the bank at precisely two minutes before the big clock over the bank door registered noon. Nor could she see Sidney and Randall, as they strolled in separately and took up their positions at desks for depositors at opposite sides of the bank nor, as the clock's minute hand came to the hour, nor did she see Mr. Gibbs enter and take up an unobtrusive stand just inside the main doors of the bank.

Suddenly there were shouts, a woman screamed hysterically. An automatic barked twice and was answered by a fusillade of shots. As Jane wrenched open the door leading into the open portion of the bank she was met by a wall of thick, choking white gas that drove her back, gasping and blinded by tears.

Through the billowing clouds of heavy white vapor depositors, bank officials and guards surged against the doors which Mr. Gibbs had closed and locked just as the barrage of gas billowed into the bank. Wearing tight-fitting goggles and special nose-plugs, he waited quietly, umbrella in hand, beside the doors. Only when a burly bank guard started to push his way through the hysterical crowd toward the locked doors did Mr.

The guard was just leaving as Jane came in with a report of the amount of money stolen.

Gibbs go into action. The umbrella swung viciously and the guard dropped unconscious.

Out of the clouds of gas, Randall lumbered, carrying a large suitcase. He, too, wore goggles and nose plugs. Behind him came Sidney, similarly equipped. In one hand he also carried a suitcase, in the other a squat automatic. From a teller's cage came the flash of a revolver. Sidney whirled and fired. The teller pitched forward across the counter.

As he swung again toward the doors, Sidney collided with an old lady. Spinning the gun, he clubbed it and struck her over the head. She dropped without a sound.

Someone had succeeded in unlocking the front doors, this time without interference from the watchful Mr. Gibbs. As the crowd surged out on to the sidewalk, Mr. Gibbs, Sidney and Randall removed their goggles and nose plugs and allowed themselves to be pushed out into the street. While the gas victims fought for air, their eyes still blinded by the tear-gas, the three separated and disappeared in as many different directions.

From the bank came the shrill clamor of the alarm, to be answered in a moment by the wail of approaching police cars.

In the office of President Wales, Captain of Detectives Gonzales of the Robbery Squad questioned the bank employees, one by one. All of them told the same story, obviously true: The gas had blinded them; none of them had seen the robbers. Even the guard who had been slugged by Mr. Gibbs could not describe his assailant. The guard was just leaving as Jane came in with a report of the amount of money stolen.

"They took ninety-eight thousand, six hundred dollars, Mr. Wales," she said, "and all of it from the vault. They didn't touch anything in the tellers' cages."

A plainclothes detective entered

Arnold's office. "Well, Cap," he reported to Gonzales, "we've been over the whole bank. That smoke was fed in here through a window!"

Jane's head felt curiously light. As from a distance she heard the detective's voice:

"They pulled their truck up to that window out there and pumped the gas into the bank."

Jane's eyes followed the direction of the detective's pointing finger. A police tow-car was lifting one end of a small truck preparatory to hauling it away. Jane saw the familiar brass nozzles, the blower and the tanks for compressed gas. The room whirled around her. She fainted.

When Jane regained consciousness, the bank president and Gonzales were bending over her.

"The excitement was too much for me, I guess," she said weakly. "I—I—do you suppose I could go home now, Captain?"

"I'll vouch for her," Wales said. "She's been my secretary for three years."

"Okay," Gonzales agreed. "We can reach her at home if we need her."

As Wales and the captain turned away, Jane quietly opened the middle drawer of her desk. Her hand fumbled silently for a moment. When she withdrew it, she clutched a small pearl-handled automatic revolver! (To be continued)

JONESBORO WINS TWO OVER PEARL

Jonesboro Eagles took both ends of a double-header from Pearl on Tuesday night in the Jonesboro gym. The girls won by a narrow margin of 23-20 after a hard fought game. McAnelly, of Jonesboro, starred on the offense with 16 points to her credit. Margaret Jones forced back to her old guard position by an emergency, proved that she still can guard with the best of them.

In the boys game, the Dragons took the lead in the second quarter and led at the half 9-5. A fighting band of Eagles came back in the second half to out play and out score the Pearl team. Little John Watson led the attack on the Tharp forces by ringing up 11 points. This tiny spark plug is getting better each game and when all County teams are picked his name is likely to be found at a forward position. Captain Huggins played his usual steady game and scored the first 4 points made for the Eagles. The other points went to Harviston, Box and Wallace.

As in every game Jonesboro has played this year, the defensive play of Wallace was featured. He sometimes took the ball from a swarm of the fast breaking Dragons.

For Pearl, it would be difficult to pick a star. That team is made up of stars. They all looked good and handled the ball well. Smith and Dumas led the scoring while Petty and Ballard showed beautiful in bringing the ball down the field. This year Pearl really has a ball team and this community is ready to believe that the team that beats Pearl in the County Tournament will be crowned County Champions.

The same teams play again Saturday night at Pearl. This should be another thrilling contest.

LABOR: DOUBLE TROUBLE

On two labor fronts last week, serious trouble was brewing. In Detroit, the United Auto Workers of America had split wide open. In New York City, officers of the American Federation of Radio Artists were preparing to call a strike of radio stars.

Auto Workers: The split in the CIO affiliated UAW came as a result of the long and bitter fight for its control between two groups of union leaders. One group was composed of President Homer Martin and four members of the union's international executive board. The other was made up of the remaining 20 members of the board, all Martin opponents.

The differences reached a climax last fortnight when Martin, angered by the board's acts stripping him of some of his powers, suspended 15 of them; locked them out of union headquarters and called a special convention in Detroit for March 4, thereby ignoring a previous board decision calling a special convention in Cleveland for March 20. At the same time, while five other board members joined the anti-Martin clique, Martin declared that he and his four board supporters were rulers of the union.

Still in a majority, the anti-Martin faction's answer was: (1) to suspend and impeach Martin; (2) to suspend the board members loyal to him; (3) to choose R. J. Thomas, a UAW vice president, as acting president until the March 20 convention.

With both factions claiming authority, with both apparently determined to conduct separate conventions in March, the union was in turmoil. Fighting broke out among Martinite and anti-Martinites within the rank and file. Banks holding union funds refused to honor either faction. But last week in Washington, the CIO leadership dramatically intervened. It accused Martin of "direct and flagrant" violations of the UAW constitution and gave its "complete support and recognition" to the anti-Martin faction as rulers of the union. Denouncing this move, Martin announced he would resign from the CIO and hinted that he might form a new union independent of both the CIO and the AF of L.

Radio Artist: While the UAW was thus tearing itself in two, the American Federation of Radio Artists, affiliated with the AF of L, made ready to carry out the first nation-wide radio strike in history. Whether they walked out depended upon the outcome of last-minute negotiations for a minimum wage agreement with the American Association of Advertising Agencies, which hires radio talent for big sponsors. Affected by the strike call would not only 6,000 members of the Federation but 14,000 other entertainers affiliated with unions voting to back the Federation in its fight. Should the walkout materialize, among those to leave the air would be Eddie Cantor, president of the A F R A, Jack Benny, Bing Crosby, Rudy Vallee and Edgar Bergen (with Charlie McCarthy).

An old printer once said: "Our duty is to make the printed word speak great truths more clearly!" This is our ideal. We have built our business on honest, efficient craftsmanship which makes no compromise with half truths.

WITNESSES DEFEATED

Because they consider flag-saluting to be an idolatrous act forbidden by the Bible, the sect known as Jehovah's Witnesses has fought a stubborn battle in the schools. The fight has generally been a losing one. In 10 states, young Witnesses have been expelled for refusing to salute; everywhere except in Pennsylvania courts have upheld the expulsions; and the U. S. Supreme Court has repeatedly declined to review all such decisions.

Last week, the Witnesses were compelled to chalk up another defeat. The New York Court of Appeals, highest judicial authority in the state, ruled that a state law requiring school pupils to salute the American flag was valid because such a gesture was "in no sense an act of worship or species of idolatry."

Center of this weighty decision was 13-year-old Grace Sandstrom, whose parents had received a suspended sentence of $10 in fines and 10 days in jail in 1937 for "keeping the girl from school". Unanimously, the court reversed this conviction because it held that only Grace herself, and not her parents, was to blame.

Then, however, all the judges but one went on to defend the flag-salute law. In the words of Chief Judge Frederick E. Crane, saluting the flag had nothing to do with religion, and the state of New York had a right to compel such salutes as part of its job of building up patriotism among the young. Judge Crane suggested, however, that patient teaching rather than discipline was needed to convince Grace "that justice, that mercy and that humility, which is the burden of Holy Writ, is also the aim and object of the things the American flag stands for."

From this view only Associate Judge Irving Lehman—brother of Governor Herbert H. Lehman—dissented. In his separate opinion Judge Lehman argued that forced patriotism in violation of personal convictions would only soil and dishonor the flag.

Apparently unmoved by what the court called "ponderous truths" Grace herself clung fast to her belief that saluting the flag would mean her doom:

"When the battle of Armageddon comes, I would be slain, because the flag is an image, and it says in the Bible not to bow down to images."

WONDEROUS STOREHOUSE

Four centuries before the birth of Christ, a certain King Mausolus of a city-state in Asia Minor died and was buried in a white marble temple surrounded by 36 great columns and topped by a 10-foot statue of Mausolus himself. One of the wonders of the ancient world, Mausolus's tomb fell to pieces in an earthquake in 1375. Because of it, however, any monumental tomb is still known as a "mausolus."

On Constitution Ave. in Washington is one of the most wonderful of modern mausolums, the National Archives Building of the United States. Designed by the late John Russell Pope, the building is a concrete vault surrounded by marble pillars 57 feet high and as thick as giant sequoias. An ordinary tourist with astigmatism could spot it at 500 paces as a government building, so impressive is its appearance.

Fireproof, waterproof, dustproof, bugproof and burglar-proof, the Archives Building is the finest storage plant in the world. Every weekday morning at nine its doors swing open. At six tons each, they are not so heavy as the Library of Congress doors but the are the world's biggest—38 feet high, nine feet wide, and a foot thick. A key inserted in a Yale lock starts the motor that moves them.

Keeper of this magnificent marble tomb for dead documents is 60-year-old history professor from the University of North Carolina, Robert Digges Wimberly Conner. Named to his job when the Archives Building was opened in 1935, Dr. Conner decided that his first problem was to find out how many government archives there were, and where. He found them lying around all over the District of Columbia, in damp corners and moldy storerooms.

Last month, in a 70-page illustrated report, Dr. Conner published the findings of his survey: in and near the District of Columbia there are about 2,600,000 cubic feet of public records more or less valuable to posterity.

With 2,500,000 cubic feet of space, the new Archives Building is already six per cent full. The Federal government keeps on making about 115 cubic feet of records a day and at what Dr. Conner calls "an ever-accelerating rate". The problem of keeping the records within bounds, therefore, has become "vitaly urgent." Pondering these facts, a New York Times editorial writer recently prophesied that some day Washington would be 'as completely buried in archives as Pompeii was in ashes."

After checking up at the National Archives Building this week, we want to report brightly that, if Washington ever should be buried in archives, at least they will be the cleanest, finest, most antiseptic archives in the world. Thanks will be due to the chief of the Archives' Division of Repair and Preservation, chemist Arthur E. Kimberly, whose experiments in preserving paper have made American Archives a model for the study of all governments.

As soon as a document enters Kimberly's care, it is put in a great steel vault to be de-loused. One of Kimberly's assistant chemists, a bright young man named W. Edward Keegan, explained to us about the vault, how an almost perfect vacume is created in it, and how it is then pumped full of fumigating gas. Supposing we were accidentally locked up in the vault, we suggested; what would happen? "You would blow up like a balloon, and in a matter of minutes you would burst," said Mr. Keegan, ruthlessly. That, he added, was what happened to any vermin eggs in the archives.

Step two in the repair process is an air bath from a hose. If the document is badly creased it is put in a moist-air vault until damp enough to be ironed flat on an electric mangle. During the past year, 891,967 paper sheets were so ironed. This week the Repair Division was pressing out old bonus petitions. We asked why these were worth saving. Mr. Keegan said it was not his to reason why. "We are interested in a record simply as a piece of paper to be preserved indefinitely," he told us. "To us, every record is priceless."

If a document is very valuable, or very decrepit, or so much in demand that it must be handled a lot, it is laminated. This process the invention of Division Chief Kimberly, involves putting the record between two sheets of cellulose acetate (something that looks like cellophane but is really a thermoplastic, meaning that under heat and pressure it behaves like a liquid). A hydraulic press then squeezes the cellulose acetate into the paper. When the Repair Division is thru with it, the record is waterproof, verminproof, and so tough you could use it for shelf paper.

Run as an independent office responsible to the President, the Archives is more than the "magnificent mausoleum" it has been called: it is an important reference library for the records of executive departments. Each department submits a list of records which it thinks are not worth keeping. Archivist Conner then combs thru these lists like a girl looking over her old dance programs, saves out a few that he can't bear to throw away, and recommends to Congress the destruction of the rest. Only Congress has the right to destroy a public record.

Of interest chiefly to scholars and researchers, the Archives Building panders to the public in its lobby, where there is a glass-encased exhibit of some rare old treaties, and a letter from Napoleon to his dear friend the United States, announcing that "the unanimous will of a great nation" has brought him back from Elba to rule France.

Boston's first town records, 12,366 sheets of early Spanish land grants that survived the San Francisco earthquake, three and a half miles of movie film, and the map used in negotiating the American Revolution peace were some of the items filed away last year. They are protected for posterity by an elaborate microphone system tuned to pick up a burglar's faintest footfall.

"TUMBLE-PROOF" STAIRCASE

Unequaled as a space saver, the winding staircase has, until recently, been a source of danger because of the difficulty in providing sufficient light to guard against nasty falls. In this home in Dallas, Texas, Architect Reynolds Fisher solved the problem of illuminating a winding stairway with staggered panels of insulux glass block. This arrangement makes for a pleasing exterior appearance and at the same time it spreads the light directly over the stair treads where it is needed most.
