BIDS ASKED ON HWY. 36, TRAINING SCHOOL TO JONESBORO: ASPHALT

Bids today are being asked on 13.181 miles of Highway 36 from the State Juvenile Training School to Jonesboro, and include a bridge to be built in Jonesboro. Preliminary estimates by the engineers show the construction to be around $60,000.

The job includes, grading, culverts, reshaping, select material flexible base and single asphalt surface treatment.

This job will complete Highway 36 from Hamilton to Gatesville, leaving the stretch from Gatesville to near Temple, the only unworked on stretch of this highway in this part of the state.

Below Temple, the highway is practically completed, and above Hamilton, considerable work has been done in the direction of Abilene, the terminus of the highway west.

With work on U. S. 84 (Old Highway 7) nearing completion west of Gatesville, Coryell County will soon have an east-west highway.

Another "dream" of Coryell County folks, now, no doubt would be the proposed North-South highway, from Fort Worth to Austin, via Turnersville, Gatesville, and Copperas Cove way, which would practically complete the highway needs for the county in the way of trunk highways.

Yours very truly,
ALBERT K. MOORE.

Folks, if you're formerly from "Old Kaintucky" and are related to any "Moore's" back there, Mr. Moore would be glad to hear from you, we're quite certain.

SPRING GRID WORKOUTS TO BE CONCLUDED THIS WEEK

The pre-vacation whetting of the '39 edition of the Hornets will come to a close today, yesterday's workout being the climax of the season when a motley group of seniors came down and scrimmaged with next year's team.

It was a tough fight all the way, with both teams scoring one touchdown. When they were fresh, the seniors pushed the '39 outfit all over the field, but in the last session of the work out the juniors retaliated by soundly whipping the seniors' ears down.

Both teams showed on defense, while neither club could generate much of an offense. The seniors surprised the local railbirds by completely bottling up the supposedly great passing attack of the thirty-niners. In fact, the juniors had more passes intercepted than completed.

Duncan Kirkpatrick shone for the juniors, his powerful blocking was a thing of beauty. Jackson and Whigham, however, failed to come up to expectations, but both of these boys were badly rushed every time they got their hands on the pigskin. Jones turned in some nice runs and held up his end on defense. Whigham also played a bang-up defensive game from his halfback post.

The spring session has been a success. Worley has been working hard, for his line from tip to tip is green and inexperienced. Nothing can be told of the strength of the Hornets until they have been in actual combat, for a green line is always a big question mark until it has been under fire.

The Hornets still boast a fine backfield, and if the line can ever shake one of the loose-hipped backs into the open, it will be too bad for the opposition.

Let thy speech be better than silence, or be silent.—Dionysius.

SUPT. L. A. HOLMES MAY LEAVE CORYELL TO TEACH IN LIMESTONE

Under the Superintendency of L. A. Holmes, the White Hall school has progressed during the past four years from a typical rural school of the old days to a modern, well equipped school of the new order. During that period much equipment has been installed, a teacherage constructed, school building remodeled, a system of permanent records established, and every teacher with degrees, teaching in their major or minor field of training. Including the transportation system this school has been operating on a cash basis. Mr. Holmes states that it was thru the cooperation of the trustees and community that made possible the unique advancement of the school.

Mr. Holmes has been active in the religious and social welfare of the community and county as well as teaching. He is a graduate of Howard Payne College with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in administration; a holder of a Professional Administrative certificate, and making progress toward a Master of Arts Degree in the University of Texas.

In conversation with a News reporter. Mr. Holmes stated that he has just been elected Superintendent of a fourteen-teacher rural consolidated high school at Fair Oak in Limestone County. Coryell County can ill afford to give up such teachers as Superintendent Holmes.

Fewer than 1 per cent of the children in London's elementary schools are poorly fed.

COUNTY BASEBALL LEAGUE "TO GO": FIVE TEAMS IN NOW

They'd still like to have an additional team or may be three more, but Coryell County Baseball League opened Saturday at the News office, with five teams waiting for a schedule to be announced.

The teams ready to go are White Hall, Mound, Pidcoke, Blackfoot, and Moshem.

Jonesboro, which previously wanted in the League has already joined the Hamilton County League replacing Evant, which dropped out. There is some possibility of a local team for Gatesville being organized, and another possibility that Evant might enter the Coryell League.

Since most of the players and managers think the rules used last year are suitable for this year, these rules are presented in this issue of the News.

Friday's News, if possible, will carry a schedule of games to be played, and a suggestion has been passed, that the first part of the season be scheduled short, so that during the second half, it may be possible to have other teams enter. In other words, the first half would run approximately a month, and the second half would be longer, and for the County League Baseball Cup, which was presented last year by the Coryell County News, and which was won by Jonesboro.

Ireland will erect a radio station in Athlone to broadcast programs to America, Australia, South Africa and other countries.

We cannot boast ourselves of tomorrow; sufficient unto each day is the duty thereof.—Mary Baker Eddy.

THE PECAN NUT CASE BEARER

The pecan is the only plant food on which this insect feeds. The moth is small with a gray color, flies only in late evening or at night. The case bearer passes the winter in a hibernaculum (overwintering worm stage) and in the early spring the larvae (worm) bores into the new shoots of the current season's growth where it remains for 12 to 18 days, then emerges as a small gray moth. This is usually about April 15 to May 10. Eggs are laid by the moths on the tiny nut clusters early in May. The tiny worms hatch in 4 to 5 days and at first feed for a few days on the buds just below the nut clusters. The worm stage lasts for about twenty-five days during which time the entire cluster of nuts may be destroyed by the worm drilling in them. A second generation may occur in late June, which feeds on the nut in a way similar to the worms of the first generation. If a third generation does occur in August, the worms do not enter the nuts as the shell by this time has become hardened, but the worms feed on buds or in the green husks.

The Control

The most effective method of control is to spray with three lbs. of lead arsenate to 50 gals of water when the pecan nutlets have set. In Central Texas this is usually between May 1 and May 15. A coarse spray and not a fine mist should be used. A coarse driving spray which will push the leaves aside and be deposited on the nut stems and branch immediately below the nut cluster. It is useless to spray pecans unless enough pressure is maintained to accomplish that result. A second application should be given in 7 to 10 days after the first application. In the event of a heavy rain immediately following spraying, it should be repeated.

The Equipment

For best results, power spraying equipment that will develop 250 to 300 pounds of pressure is essential. A spray gun nozzle that can be adjusted to throw a coarse spray a distance of 30 to 40 feet is the best. For small scale operations, a barrell sprayer may be used provided the spray nozzle has a disc with a large opening to throw a coarse spray onto the nut clusters. It is more necessary to keep the pressure up with a barrell pump than with a power sprayer.

Juan T. Trippe Guards American Air Supremacy

THE recent launching and trial flights of the Yankee Clipper, world's largest airplane, and the projected air passenger service to Europe by the Pan-American Airways, has focused public attention upon the youthful, little-known head of this concern, Juan T. Trippe. In the June issue of Cosmopolitan, Rex Beach describes this modest dynamo as a master strategist, shrewd negotiator and guardian of America's place in the airways of the world.

The Yankee Clipper — World's Largest Airplane

"Juan T. Trippe is a solidly constructed, swarthy, affable young man with an engaging smile and superabundant energy," Rex Beach says. "He is thirty-nine years old and there appears to be nothing remarkable about his early life except his willingness and ability to do the work of several men. During his first year at Yale, when he enlisted in the wartime naval service, he learned to fly. When he returned to his engineering courses, he organized the first student flying club in America. He was also on the Varsity football squad, a member of the editorial staff of the Yale Record, and he graduated with honors. After a brief, bond-selling apprenticeship in Wall Street, he and a few young friends, all pilots, started a modest air service on Long Island—one of the first attempts in this country to establish a fixed, regular service. This was his formal entry into aviation and it occurred long before the first commercial airlines were started in America, but considerable after the international transport companies were operating in Europe."

Juan Trippe sees nothing mysterious about the phenomenal success of a company which in twelve short years has grown from an idea to an institution which in 1938 carried 225,000 passengers more than 90,000,000 miles; carried 4,000,000 pounds of mail and express more than 45,000,000 ton miles; made 381 trips across the Pacific with passengers and mail and has, during its entire period of operation, successfully completed 99 per cent of all scheduled mileage—a record of operating precision unsurpassed by any other form of transportation. The new Boeing six-thousand-horsepower Atlantic Clippers are two years ahead of the world, Trippe says. The Yankee Clipper weighs over 41 tons, is 109 feet long and has a wing span of 152 feet. It carries seventy-four passengers, a crew of fifteen and a cargo capacity of 5,000 pounds. It has four motors; a dining salon where meals, cooked in its own galley, are served; dressing rooms for men and women; sleeping berths for forty persons and private and soundproof compartments. Six of these Clippers have been ordered and when the service is in complete operation, they will make four flights weekly to Southampton, England.

84 Party Compliments Friends at White Hall

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Chesnut were host and hostess to a number of their friends Saturday evening at their country home in the White Hall community. Roses and honeysuckle were used for decorations.

Delicious refreshments were served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. V. O. Wright and Roland, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schloeman and Elizabeth, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Holmes and Joyce, Robbie and Traleda Chambers, and Dorothy and Nell Pane.

Bell Bennett Circle To Meet Today

Members of the Bell Bennett Circle of the Methodist WMS will meet Tuesday afternoon, today, at the home of Mrs. John Thomas Brown on east Bridge street at 3 o'clock.

The 4th and 5th chapters of the study of India will be given by Mrs. Sanders Dowty and the hostess, Mrs. Brown; the subject will be "Striking Deep Routes."

All members are urged to be present.

MARRIAGES THAT LAST INDUSTRIAL DESIGNING PROVIDES NEW CAREER

MARRIAGES that last are those which are founded on an unalterable desire on the part of two people to live together until death parts them and to make a home for their children, Mary Margaret McBride says in an article especially appropriate for June brides and bridegrooms in the June issue of Cosmopolitan. Miss McBride who, in her capacity as a journalist, has covered and described every type of wedding from hasty Greenwich-village nuptials at the City Hall to Park-Avenue weddings which cost thousands of dollars, jail-cell marriages, Chinese weddings, gypsy marriages, marriages in every tradition and language, still believes that successful marriages are based on this premise expressed by her grandfather on the occasion of the first marriage she ever witnessed in a country parlor at Crooked Creek, Missouri. The success of marriage depends upon the emotion and the effort of each individual and not on outside fortune or misfortune, Miss McBride contends.

Nothing tells so quickly what we are ourselves as what we say to others.—John Wanamaker.

THE influence of industrial designing, one of the newest and most promising of professions, is felt in every home and office in the country. Everything from a skillet to a skyscraper—from an egg beater to a World's Fair, falls within the province of the new, functional artist known as the industrial designer. He has streamlined our age and added comfort, convenience and attractiveness to daily living. The story of a typical industrial designer, as told to Parker Morell, appears in the June issue of Cosmopolitan as the tenth of a businessman series: "Autobiography of America."

Industrial designing is a splendid business for any young man or woman who possesses any one of three qualifications: a practical artistic sense; a well-developed knowledge of applied science or a flair for original ideas. The latter qualification is the most important, for industrial designing is a business of ideas, of new slants of trail-blazing, of foreseeing the constant shifts in popular taste. There is room in any designer's office for the newcomer with initiative which will help find new facets on familiar commercial surfaces.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD
 Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for functional kidney disorder and for relief of the pain and worry it causes. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be warning of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS

ARE YOU ONLY A 3/4 WIFE?

MEN because they are men can never understand a three-quarter wife—a wife who is all love and kindness for three weeks of the month—but a hell-cat the fourth. And make up your mind men never will understand. There are certain things a woman has to put up with and be a good sport. No matter how your back aches—no matter how loudly your nerves scream—don't take it out on your husband. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood into womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age." Don't be a three-quarter wife. Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and go "smiling through." Over a million women have written in reporting benefit. Why not give this world-famous medicine a chance to help YOU?

Henry Ford Expresses Confidence In Youth

"GREATER progress lies ahead in the next fifty years than we've had in the last thousand," according to Henry Ford in the June Cosmopolitan. "Young people say there are no opportunities today. Why the world's opportunities are just beginning to break. The young folks of today are going to reduce prices, raise wages and increase production. That's the task youth has ahead and youth will do it. It

Henry Ford (left) and H. G. Wells — Prophets of Progress

Henry Ford and His First Car

Henry Ford advises young Fair visitors to look for anything which will set their minds to working constructively. Imagination is the principle requirement for new invention, for when the imagination is excited people soon sense what is necessary for a better world and find ways to provide it. He also indicates that developments in mechanical farming offer great possibilities to today's youth. All kinds of inventions are needed on the farm and he predicts that in the coming year greater things will be done in the field of mechanical farming than have ever been done before. "Farming should hold a double interest for today's young people," Ford continues, "that involved with providing better food and more food at lower prices, and at the same time, products for industrial use. The farm and the shop each need what the other produces. Real prosperity will come with farm prosperity because the farmer is the greatest buyer of manufactured goods. Industry suffers when the farmer is short on cash." Ford practices what he preaches. Each year greater and greater tonnages of raw materials, grown on American farms, are used in his plants. We are seeing the death of an epoch, Ford declares, but it is also the birth of a new epoch which will be far greater. He calls it the Agrindustrial Age and predicts that it will alter our civilization, revolutionize industry and agriculture, bring the city worker and the farmer into closer contact and better understanding.

always has." Ford backs this confidence with a $35,000,000 expansion program, planned and announced when the recession was at its height. He believes that the World's Fairs of 1939 in San Francisco and New York will do much to stimulate ideas among young people. At these fairs the younger generation can see how each manufacturer does his job and the education provided should inspire youth to revolutionize American life, just as Ford himself was inspired when he visited the Chicago World's Fair in 1893 and saw a gasoline engine, mounted on a two-wheel cart and used for pumping water. This was the first gasoline engine he had ever seen which was used for power and he returned to Detroit, fired with the dream of a gasoline-driven horseless carriage. He built an engine which ultimately revolutionized modern transportation.

Fiery Itching Skin Gets Quick Relief

Home Treatment Eases Unbearable Soreness—Distress

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to ease the itching and torture of Eczema, Itching Toes or Feet Rashes and many other externally caused skin eruptions and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning and people who suffer from such embarrassing or unsightly skin troubles would be wise to try it.

Just ask any first-class druggist for an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil and refuse to accept anything else. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that a small bottle lasts a long time and furthermore if this clean, powerful, penetrating oil that helps promote healing fails to give you full and complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

The group moved on, but Susuki remained to look.

After a few minutes the foreigner laughed loudly. He then pointed out to the guide that most of the Japanese books were placed in the shelves upside down and also that various numbered volumes were out of place.

But thanks to the visitor, everything's straight now.

GENE AUTRY WINNER AND STILL CHAMP

Gene Autry, star of the Republic Picture "Mexicali Rose," which opens Thursday at the Ritz Theatre, has again won the Motion Picture Exhibitor's poll to determine the Number One Cowboy of The Screen.

This is the second consecutive year Autry has won the coveted award. Each year theatre owners all over the country vote on which western star is the most popular in their city. In every section of the United States Gene was far ahead of his nearest competitor, and apparently his popularity is increasing with every picture.

In "Mexicali Rose" Autry again comes thru with an excellent performance that will please his millions of fans, both children and adults.

The story deals with Gene's adventures while attempting to expose a phony oil company, that is operating at the expense of his Mexican friends. He is ably supported by his side-kick Smiley Burnette, and an excellent cast including Noah Berry, Luana Walters, Leroy Mason, Roy Barcroft, William Royle, Dick Botelier, Vic Demoruelle, and many others.

"Mexicali Rose" was directed by George Sherman from a screen play by Gerald Geraghty.

The Bugs Will Get You If You Don't Watch Out

By T. C. RICHARDSON, Secretary
Breeder-Feeder Association

All insects are not bugs, strictly speaking, but we can't be too technical in a few words. When we use the short and ugly term "bug" every farmer knows we are talking about one of his most persistent enemies, though it may appear in many forms and under a variety of names.

Just at this season the cotton flea hopper is a timely subject. It is one of the most destructive and most widely distributed cotton pests in the Southwest, and yet is one of the least understood, most difficult to find, and therefore often robs the grower of the early part of his crop before the presence of the pest is recognized. Farmers cannot have a trained entomologist at beck and call, but they can learn for themselves to recognize the presence of the pest and when to apply control measures.

No way has been found by which to forecast with certainty whether flea hoppers will cause damage or when. When they do occur in damaging numbers they may be numerous in one part of the field and absent or scarce a few yards away. They winter in the egg stage and hatch out on weeds. As soon as wings develop they can migrate to cotton, which seems to be their favorite summer host plant. Both the winged, or adult, and the nymph, or young, insects suck at the embryo buds and cause them to drop off, thus destroying the early "set" before it reaches the "square" or boll stage.

The nymphs are tiny active light green or yellowish insects; the adults look like pale, greenish white flies about one-eighth inch long. Dr. F. L. Thomas of the Texas Experiment Station tells us that both nymphs and adults are usually to be found on horsemint in bloom or the little low-growing yellow primrose in spring. Shake the weed on some clean surface and the flea hoppers, if present, can be readily distinguished from other small insects. After learning what to look for, anyone can identify the flea hoppers on the cotton plant.

Look for the adults on the upper surface of the foliage. Look for the nymphs in the terminal buds, by carefully opening the bud cluster with thumb and finger. The nymph, if present, will show activity when disturbed. If twenty or thirty hoppers are found to the hundred plants it is time to get busy with dusting sulphur. Examinations should be made in different parts of the field, and, at least every week until the crop is safe.

When cotton has six to eight true leaves (not counting the two which first "come up") it normally begins to form fruiting buds, and should set a new bud for every branch. If buds are not "setting" where they should be, or are falling off before developing into "squares" it is a pretty safe guess that flea hoppers are responsible, whether the grower can find the insects or not.

This is the stage (when the cotton has about six true leaves) when the grower must begin to watch his crop for insects, and the date may vary considerably in the same community or even on the same farm if there are different plantings.

By this time also the boll weevils which have survived the winter may be coming out of hibernation into the cotton fields. If weevils are present the same time flea hoppers are getting in their deadly work, a combination dust (one-third calcium arsenate and two-thirds dusting sulphur) should be used, killing both insects with one operation. Use a machine which will shoot the dust with considerable force right down thru the terminal buds of the cotton plants.

Astronomers At Texas Plant Internationally Known

AUSTIN, Texas, May 9.—To probe the mysteries of outer space, McDonald Observatory will boast a staff composed of some of this nation's most competent astronomers, University of Texas officials disclosed here today.

Half of the Yerkes-McDonald axis, first cooperative astronomical venture, the Texas plant is to be staffed by Yerkes observers working on a rotating basis between the two observatories.

The Yerkes-McDonald staff and research associates will be Dr. Otto Struve, director; Dr. C. T. Elvey, assistant director at McDonald; Drs. George Van Biesbroeck, Gerald P. Kuiper, W. W. Morgan, S. Chandrasekhar, Louis G. Henney, Philip C. Keenan, J. L. Greenstein, Thornton L. Page, Carl K. Seyfert, Daniel Popper and Walter Linke.

Dr. Struve, former member of the Russian Imperial Army and director of both McDonald and Yerkes plants, is already noted for his work on the spectra and his discovery of several new stars. One asteroid he named McDonald—after the donor of the huge scope.

Dr. Elvey has been recently successful in photoelectric observations of the brightness of the night sky and of a number of eclipsing variable stars.

Dr. Kuiper, now at McDonald, is already recognized for his recent discovery of the mysterious "white dwarfs"—stars in our universe of a size comparable to that of the earth, but condensed to the point that cubic inch may weigh several tons.

Also at McDonald is Dr. George Van Biesbroeck, well known for his investigation of comets and asteroids. Dr. Van Biesbroeck made some of the first photographs thru the new McDonald telescope.

Professor Morgan, now working at Yerkes is best known for his work on the spectra and the brightness of the stars, while Professor Chandrasekhar, also at Yerkes, is the leading authority on the constitution of the stars.

CHAPTER FIVE SYNOPSIS:

Ruin faces Missouri mule-breeder unless Sweeney Bliss, small-town bank director convinces the British Army to continue its orders. Captain Brooks-Bowen, British Army purchasing agent suggests that Sweeney make a trip to London to see his superior. Julie Sweeney's wife and her sister Lola who is by now romantically attached to the handsome Captain also makes the trip. Julie is perturbed upon her arrival in Southampton to discover that Sweeney has brought along his pet mule Samson. Samson is quarantined for six months but Sweeney has hopes of releasing him earlier.

CHAPTER VI

JULIE'S assault on the citadel of London society was typically guileless and direct. She rented the largest available house, hired a staff of servants and a social secretary and planned a huge reception. Even Brooks-Bowen was amused. He voiced his feeling to Lola as he pulled his roadster into the curb in front of the house in Mayfair which Julie had leased.

"It's not quite as large as Westminster Abbey, is it?"

"Julie likes it better than a hotel," Lola defended her sister as she got out of the car. "Won't you come in?"

"Sorry—I have an appointment with Colonel Marchbanks," Brooks-Bowen said. "Is Sweeney getting in today?"

"So his wife said. See you tonight."

Lola found Julie in conference with her social secretary, Miss Wildhack, an elderly woman who claimed to have excellent society contacts. "Howdy, sis, now's the old Missouri kid?" Lola happily hailed her elder sister.

"Hello, dear," Julie said in dulcet tones. "Will you excuse us, Miss Wildhack?"

As soon as the two were alone Julie turned angrily on Lola. "Really, Lola, I should thank you could stop saying howdy, especially in front of Miss Wildhack. What will she think?"

"I don't know but every time I see Miss Wildhack I feel an uncontrollable urge to become a wild and woolly American," Lola explained. "Sweeney here yet?"

"Not yet. I'll feel so guilty when I face him I've only been to see him once since we left Southampton," Julie resolutely turned her thoughts away from Sweeney. "Did the Captain pop the question today?" she asked.

"No. He didn't pop anything but golf balls. And I'm not sure I want him to."

"Oh. Thinking of Joel?"

Lola flared up. "Joel is all right." She was silent for a moment. "Of course, Brooks-Bowen is all right, too, only—"

"Of course he is!" Julie was enthusiastic. "He's just waiting to reassure himself that we're his kind of people. And he will, too, after Miss Wildhack stages our reception."

"I don't know about this reception," Lola said doubtfully. "The idea didn't seem to bow! the Captain over."

"But it will," Julie insisted. "You don't know the latest, darling. Now the reception is going to be for someone. I've landed a guest of honor—General Barse Stonebreaker, U. S. A.!"

Further conversation was halted by the entrance of a dignified servant. "Excuse me, madam," he said. "Mr. Bliss' trunk just arrived from Southampton. Among the valises and mule blankets, I found this strange garment." He held aloft an old-fashioned night shirt.

Julie was confused. "Why, I think Mr. Bliss wore that to a masquerade," she managed to say as Lola stifled a giggle.

"For Pete's sake, who is that?" Lola demanded as the servant made a dignified exit.

"That's Hearne, Sweeney's new man," Lola's face showed her surprise. Julie hurriedly explained. "Oh, Lola—I had to make up for neglecting him, so I got him a valet for his very own."

"That's fine, honey," Lola agreed. "but I bet Sweeney would still prefer you—in the long run."

They were almost baronial in their splendor. Sweeney pulled off his coat and shouted: "Hey, Julie! I'm home."

In a moment Julie was in his arms. "I thought they'd never let that mule out of quarantine," she said as she snuggled close to him. "Oh, honey, I'm glad to see you."

"Me, too," Sweeney's voice was tender. "The minute I got here I rushed over to see you—as soon I'd found Samson a decent stable."

Julie slid out of his arms. Samson again! She changed the subject. "Have you heard anything from home?"

"I had a letter from Walt. He says times are mighty bad back there. If I don't put over this mule deal, like I promised, everybody in the county will be busted."

At this point, Hearne entered the kitchen. Misunderstanding the situation, he flew into a rage.

When Sweeney himself arrived, Hearne answered the door. Taking one look at Sweeney's unkempt appearance, the valet immediately ordered him to apply at the rear entrance. Sweeney shrugged and trudged around to the back of the house. Hearne's wife, the cook, answered the rear door. Mistaking Sweeney for a hungry beggar, she invited him into the kitchen and put before him a choice dish of beef. She explained that this was especially cooked for her husband, the valet.

Sweeney was vastly amused and questioned Kitty, the cook. He discovered that she had been an acrobat on the stage before Hearne married her. By way of proving her point, she attempted to demonstrate her former prowess. Unfortunately, her feet landed on a rolling pin and she would have fallen if Sweeney had not caught her.

At this moment, Hearne entered the kitchen. Misunderstanding the situation, he flew into a rage.

"Well, I like this!" he thundered. "That may be—but don't ask us to do it again." Sweeney drew as Kitty disentangled herself. "My name's Bliss," he added.

"I don't care what your silly name is," Hearne shouted. "This is my wife—" He came to a sudden stop. "Did you say 'Bliss,' sir?"

Completely subdued, Hearne led the way to Sweeney's quarters.

"You'll put it over," Julie said confidently.

"But I haven't put it over yet. And the last word I had from Brooks-Bowen wasn't very encouraging. He hasn't been able to convince his boss, Lieutenant Colonel Marchbanks that mules are better than tractors. I'm going over to see the Colonel as soon as I've had a bath."

"I'll call Hearne to give you your bath," Julie told an amazed Sweeney.

Sweeney was relieved when Hearne arrived. For a moment he had expected the cook.

As the valet drew a tub of water and tilted into it powdered soap flakes and bath salts, Sweeney watched in amused surprise. Julie was busily chatting of her social plans. She was a trifle upset to hear that Allison Rowe had been down to Southampton to see Samson but Sweeney kissed her and pushed her out of the room before joining Hearne in the bathroom.

As Hearne tested the water with a thermometer and whipped up a huge tub full of soap suds, he suddenly noticed that Sweeney had disappeared. For a moment the valet feared Sweeney had disappeared in the bubbly tub. Then a voice from the shower reassured him. "I forgot to tell you, Hearne," Sweeney called. "I never use a tub. I always take a shower."

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

MEMORY COURSE IN 1,000 LESSONS

THE German psychologist, Ebbinghaus, a careful, scholarly observer of the workings of the human mind, has said that we forget 90 per cent of what we learn within 24 hours. From your own experience you know that what he says is true.

The business man, noting this, understands why he must advertise, not occasionally nor sporadically, but all the time. It's the only way he can be of the greatest service to his customers.

His advertising reminds us of him and of the things he sells, and though we may forget things between times, every advertisement he publishes renews the impression and creates recognition of his business.

His problem is to find the most economical way of reminding us that it is to our advantage to trade with him.

He discovers soon that nothing is so economical a medium for this purpose as the newspaper. There he advertises. We read. Both he and ourselves benefit by his repeated advertising.

He benefits in the obvious way, by winning us as steady customers. We benefit in an equally obvious way, by finding a man whom we can trust and from whom we can buy all the many things we need to make our lives more interesting and complete.

Advertising is the news of business. Often that news is of far more importance to us than any other news in the paper.

For example, if a woman needs a new coat and scans the advertisements to see what is being offered, the business news she reads is of far greater moment in her life right then than the story on page one of a war in Asia Minor or of an oil field fire in Texas.

Stripped of all glamor and mystery advertising amounts to nothing more exciting than this: telling people of a place where they can get what they need to make life possible or endurable or lively or enjoyable at the most satisfactory and economical basis.

The advertiser who keeps telling the story of his advantages naturally gets the bulk of the trade, because, as you have just learned, we all forget rapidly and must be reminded continually if we are to act.

When advertising is carried on for a long enough time, the name of the man and his product become a part of the daily life of millions of households, respected, revered things and names, almost as close to us as friends or members of our own family.

© Charles B. Roth.

If every carload of sugar sold in America last year had been packed in cotton bags, the cotton consumed would have given a day's work to nearly ten million people, or one-third of a year's work to 100,000 people. National Cotton Week is a major event looking toward increased cotton consumption.

DEMONSTRATION AGENTS OFFICE

TRYS NEW BERRY VARIETY
Mrs. J. O. Winslar, Fruit Plot Demonstrator for the Purnela H. D. Club is trying a new variety of berries. She has fifty of the Young dewberry. This berry has attracted wide interest during the recent years, largely because of its size and excellent flavor. In addition, yields have been well above the average. There are several thornless sports of this variety that are said to be as productive as the original, which is unusual for thornless berries. This year the fifty plants Mrs. Winslar has set out are growing canes which will have fruit on them next year. She plans to exhibit the few berries that will be produced this year. Since berry plants are set during the winter season, this exhibit will be timely for those who are planning to select new berry plants.

TIME TO SET HEELED-IN CUTTINGS
Miss Lottie Beth Wilson dug up the bundle of Carman grape cuttings which she had heeled-in for the Jonesboro 4-H Club on May 2. The cuttings were found to be alive as indicated by the new roots and sprouts. She showed the girls how to set out their cuttings. She dug a hole about 10 inches deep, set the cutting right side up, filled in with loose loam soil around it, watered it to pack the dirt against the cutting.

PLANS FURNITURE RE-FINISHING
Mrs. I. I. Chambers, Interior Home Improvement Demonstrator for the Mountain Home Demonstration Club, plans to re-finish a dresser. This piece of furniture is an old oak chest of drawers with a marble top and with a detached mirror. She plans to use sandpaper for removing all the old varnish on the flat portions of its surface. In the crevices, she will apply a lye paste a little at a time followed by a vinegar rinse. This is to soften the old finish in the cracks. It will then be removed by some blunt instrument such as a chisel. When this removing is complete and the surface clean, dry and smooth, she plans to apply a coat of wood filler, followed by oil or varnish and wax and rubbing.

Approximately 25,000,000 persons work directly or indirectly in the Kingdom of Cotton.

FROM THE COUNTY AGR'L AGENT

To date six litters of pigs have been weighed in the 1939 Spring Pig Production Contest and certified weights filed in the contest office, as follows:

Seven pigs owned by Jno. T. Bell weighing 290 pounds, 8 pigs owned by Henry Wiegand weighing 230 pounds, 8 pigs owned by C. W. McConnaughey weighing 370 pounds, 8 pigs owned by Alton Quicksall weighing 356 pounds 10 pigs owned by Claydean Patterson weighing 300 pounds, and 6 pigs owned by Elmo King weighing 266 pounds.

The weights of litters at 56 days of age are being filed daily and those desiring to keep up with the contest may do so as the weights are posted on the bulletin board in the County Agent's Office as soon as received.

Following the very excellent discussion on hog pastures in last week's meeting by J. C. Porter of the Soil Conservation Service it was most interesting to inspect the very excellent hog pasture on P. H. Martin's Pecan Grove farm. The pasture is composed of barley and hubam clover, the clover being a very excellent stand as well as the barley, both having reached a height of 12 to 15 inches, which is really too high for best grazing. The excellent stand and the very excellent condition of the hogs on it are certainly fine. Better hog pastures is our objective.

Saturday, May 6th, 11:00 a. m., a report of Coryell County Pig Club work will be heard over radio station KTEM, Temple. Sam Powell, Jr. will handle a major portion of the discussion.

It is better to receive a wrong than to do one.—Cicero.
