COTTON WEEK MAY HELP SOLVE SOUTH'S WORRY

Organized advertising and promotion of cotton and its uses, along the lines of National Cotton week to be observed May 22 to 27 was urged today as the means of liquidating the 12,000,000-bale supply of the U. S. loan cotton.

Charles K. Everett of the Cotton Textile institute, New York, told members of the Washington Advertising club that the surplus cotton locked up in warehouses constitutes "a formidable, if not forbidding, barrier to better times" but that "such activities and efforts as go into Cotton week point the way to the solution of the cotton problem."

3.62 INCHES RAIN FALLS IN TWO DAYS

A total of 3.62 inches of rain fell in two days, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week in Gatesville. According to other towns' or communities' rainfall, this proves to be very little.

Our neighboring town, Hamilton received a heavy rain and also the Ewing community was the recipient of a heavy rain and hail.

EAGLE-PIDCOKE FRAY HEADS WEEKS BASEBALL ATTRACTION

The county nines will go into the second week of their "preparatory" schedule this Sunday, with three more diamond battles on tap for the fans.

This week's top-notch entertainment will take place at Jonesboro where last year's champions will engage the strong Pidcoke nine, victorious in last Sunday's game with Mound, 6-1. Jonesboro beat Pidcoke twice last year, both times by the narrow margin on one run, 4-3 at Pidcoke and 6-5 at Jonesboro. The Cokers, with a vastly strengthened outfit, will be out to avenge those close defeats Sunday. Eric Wiegand, who hurled his team to the 6-1 victory over Mound last week end and showed no traces of the sore arm that ruined his effectiveness last year, will probably open on the mound for the 'Cokers while Liljedahl, the "Old Mastro" will be Manager Bill Huggins' choice for a starting pitcher. Liljedahl, whose fast ball has gone with his youth, will attempt to fool the 'Cokers with his baffling hooks and slow curves.

Another game will find the perennially strong Mound club squaring off with on improved Blackfoot team at Mound. Wicker will probably handle the mound chores for Mound, while either Ivy or Barton will work for Blackfoot.

Two of the weaker clubs of the league, White Hall and Moshem, will tear into each other on White Hall's home diamond.

The league is just about ready for its grand opening June 4. Gatesville has entered a club under the managership of that redoubtable sportman, Hazen Ament. Ole Haz'n has signed up some good ball players, including an imported pitcher who, Hazen claims, really has the stuff.

The league officials would like to see one more club enter, so as to form an eight-team circuit. It is understood by your correspondent that Evant used to have some fair clubs in the Hamilton county league race, but that they had not enrolled in that league as yet. As Evant is in Coryell County, we would like to see them come into their home league and complete one of the strongest circuits in the county's baseball history. As this year is baseball's centennial, local sportmen should try to make it a banner year for the sport in this county.

Sunday's schedule is:
Pidcoke at Jonesboro
Blackfoot at Mound
Moshem at White Hall

HENDRICKSON FIREPROOF STORAGE COMPANY OPENS HERE

Glenn Hendrickson, today, is opening the Hendrickson Fireproof Storage Company, in the Hendrickson building located next to the Firestone store on East Main Street.

As the business is a new one in Gatesville, and is also badly needed here, according to reports, we are glad to welcome Mr. Hendrickson's new undertaking.

Wholesale companies ship goods to the warehouse for storage, and they are ordered out by jobbers, thus saving freight rates, as they ship in car load lots. Mr. Hendrickson has other plans which he plans to put into operation in connection with his new business.

With perfect lighting, chromium plated fixtures, and the ultra-modern front, Perry Brothers is one of the brightest spots on the business map of Coryell County. The building is well ventilated and cooled by many large fans.

Here this week, assisting in opening the new store are all four District Managers for the company, whose headquarters is Lufkin. M. S. Vanderslice, of Sulphur Springs; V. R. Rucker, Longview; B. A. Kopychinski of Brenham and I. W. Sowell of Stamford.

Also here from the home office at Lufkin is Roy Spears, General Manager.

The local personnel will be the same, with an enlarged staff including K. A. Bennett, Assistant Manager.

Lamb Adds Variety to Family Menus

Breeder-Feeder Association

By RUTH J. COOPER, Consulting Home Economist

In polite society, the etiquette books inform us, the subject of food is never discussed. Good form or not, what subject is more universally interesting and vital to good health and happiness, than food? On the train, in the store, in the park or at the club, one catches snatches of conversation as to food allergies, the children's dislike for certain vegetables, that delightful salad that Mrs. Smith served last time, etc. Yes, each one of us listens—because we are interested. We might learn something new to try out on the family!

Wherever a family is to be fed the problem is the same—"What SHALL we have for supper tonight?" Lamb is available on every farm where a small flock is kept, and is a mighty appetizing addition to the menu. Here is a typical "Sunday" or "company" menu built around lamb.
Roast leg of lamb
Creamed peas and mint
Buttered asparagus
Fresh green salad
Hot muffins
Spiced peaches
Butter
Fresh berry tarts with whipped cream
Beverage

In preparing the leg of lamb, wipe with a damp cloth but do not remove the thin, papery covering that is called "fell". This covering not only helps the meat to keep its shape but retains the juices and shortens the cooking time. It has no objectionable flavor as was formerly thought. Rub the leg of lamb with salt and pepper and place in open roasting pan with fat side up. Roast dry and uncovered in a slow oven (300 degrees) about three hours (or thirty minutes per pound) for "medium done."

This slow cooking of meat in an uncovered pan is revolutionary. It does produce superior results and once you try it, you will cook all roasts by this method. This method saves meat and fuel besides producing a more palatable roast.

The leg of lamb is by no means the only cut to use. The shoulder offers just as many possibilities for a delectable meal. Or try the breast of lamb stuffed with a bread crumb and mint or water-cress stuffing. If you wish something that may be quickly prepared, use the chops, the ground lamb patties, or individual loaves are even more economical.

Broiled lamb patties
1½ pounds ground lamb
2 tablespoons grated onion.
1 tablespoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper.

Use any of the cheaper cuts of lamb for the patties. Season the ground lamb with grated onion, salt and pepper. Mix thoroughly and shape into thick patties. Either pan broil or use the broiling oven and cook until they are brown, and half done. Turn and finish cooking on second side. Serve while hot on hot slices of broiled pineapple about fifteen minutes to broil patties. For variety, instead of the pineapple, try broiled bananas, any kind of fruit that has been glazed and heated, broiled stuffed tomatoes, etc.
Individual Lamb Chops
2 pounds ground lamb
1 cup soft bread crumbs
½ cup chopped onion
2 eggs, beaten
1 can tomato puree
2 tablespoons minced green peppers.
¼ cup chopped pickle or olives
Salt and pepper

Save out one-half of the tomato puree and combine all of the other ingredients together, mixing well. Pack into greased muffin and pour the remaining tomato puree over each loaf. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) about forty-five minutes. Serve hot.

PURMELA H-D CLUB

The Purmela H-D Club has two recent meetings to report. The 1st was with Mrs. R. A. Bertrand. At this meeting the grape cuttings, given to our club early in the year by the Wilson Nursery of Gatesville, were distributed, three to each member, ready to be planted where each wished them to grow permanently.

The second meeting, May 10th, was with Mrs. Herbert McCarver. We told how we planned to re-finish some piece of furniture in our homes. Also an interesting discussion of the beauties of nature around us was had, the importance of teaching our children to observe such.

At both meetings quilting for the hostess was our work, and refreshments were served. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Hagen, May 24th.

Reporter. Mrs. Q. F. Adams.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

A MAN NAMED CAXTON

YOU may not remember ever hearing the name of William Caxton, but it was his life which makes your life today comfortable. He it was who introduced printing into England. This was in 1476. The introduction of printing has made all progress possible.

It wasn't until 1638 that America had a printing press, this at Harvard university, but after that printing grew, and newspapers sprang up, and modern American life began.

The printing press is the forerunner of knowledge wherever it is introduced. The printed word, even to this day, has no rival as a quick means of disseminating vital facts and ideas.

The newspaper of today is one of the modern wonders of the world. It is the broadest, quickest, most flexible and most economical way of getting a message into the minds of the people.

Early in our national history, manufacturers and merchants sensed this power of the press. They began using it to carry their advertising facts and ideas into the homes.

These early advertisers were careful business men. The fact that the newspaper would complete the educational process for their goods wasn't enough. It also had to do the job at less cost than any other medium.

And they found, after many trials in different fields, that it did. It got their message to prospective buyers in a manner which was economical as well as effective.

Today this same condition is unchanged. Advertisers, using newspapers year in and year out, find it the most profitable way in which to tell their story to buyers.

The reason is simple. The newspaper is the great common denominator of modern life. It reaches practically every family. It has the confidence of its readers. It stands for everything which is right and good and modern.

The advertisements in your newspaper are as much a part of its vital importance as the editorial and the news columns.

As a matter of fact, most readers find it hard to tell what interests them most—the commercial news, which is called advertising and which touches their lives every day, or the general news, in news story, editorial and cartoon.

They're both valuable. This man named Caxton was one of the great benefactors of mankind. He lighted the lamp—and it is still burning bright, though centuries have fled since he lived.

After the supper, the group went to the skating rink, where they found further entertainment.

It makes us
MIGHTY HAPPY
to hear from you

THAT'S the reason why we put Service Check Cards in every Humble Service Station. Humble customers are invited to use these cards to tell us what they think of the service rendered, whether it's good, bad, or indifferent, which particular items please or displease. You'd be surprised at how many worthwhile suggestions come to us from customers who use these cards . . . And they make it possible for us to give you, through Humble Service Stations, the kind of service you want . . . In other words, we carry on a continuous study of what motorists need and want to make driving an automobile more pleasant, and then we try to give it to them . . . Do we succeed? . . . The check cards say we do, and their opinion is verified by the increasing number of Texas motorists who make it a regular practice to stop for service where they see the Humble sign . . . Seeing is believing, so we suggest that the next time your car needs a tankful of gasoline, you stop at the nearest Humble Service Station and check the service for yourself. . . Then, if you care to, fill out one of the Service Check Cards you find and send it to us (no postage necessary). It will make us mighty happy to hear from you.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO COTTON
FARMERS:

Due to the regulation, which requires that excess cotton acreage be destroyed before it reaches the boll stage of growth, compliance checking or crop measuring began early this year. A portion of the compliance checkers began work Monday and other men will start in the field as soon as they can be trained by the county office. It is expected that approximately 40 supervisors or reporters will be in the field within the next few days.

To reduce the field expense and to insure an accurate compliance check no chainmen will be furnished this year. Therefore, each producer will be expected to go with and assist the reporter who visits his farm. Unless the farmer or his authorized representative is at home when the reporter calls that particular farm will not be checked until a later date. In as far as possible each producer will be notified when the reporter will visit his farm to measure the 1939 crops.

Cadets Favor Brunette Beauties

Upsetting various theories and the hopes of all blonde entrants in the competition for the six most beautiful girls at Texas State College for Women, the five gentlemen from Aggieland who made the final choices not only picked four brunettes but left out the blondes entirely. Selected from the sixteen nominees from all four classes, the dark-haired beauties are Misses Margie Smith, senior from Llano; Doris Harrison, freshman nominee from Tuckerman, Ark.; Naomi Boutwell, Terrell sophomore; Edith Eppright, senior from Charlotte, selected at large. Miss Elsie Black of Hallsville, junior chosen at large, is auburn-haired; and Miss Corinne Zimmerly, Dallas junior, is a brunette.

Each of the girls will be featured in full-page pictures in the Daedalian yearbook. Their identities were kept secret until they were presented at the Senior Formal Prom by Editor Doris Coats. Cadets W. D. Barton, Longhorn editor; Andy Rollins, scholarship society president; Joe Boyd, outstanding football player; Bob Adams, senior president; and Bill Smith, Battalion manager, were the blonde-banning judges.

Following the U. S. Public Health Service's nationwide campaign against venereal disease, six states have already passed laws requiring blood tests before issuance of marriage licenses, and similar measures are pending in nine other states, a survey showed last week. Blood tests are now required in 16 states; 10 others demand certificates of freedom from venereal disease before marriage; another four impose penalties for marriage between infected persons.

In many cases, failure of an automobile motor to start is due to poor electrical contacts, and to flip the ignition switch on and off a few times often cleans the contacts automatically, restoring the circuit.

EYE OPENERS--by Bob Crosby

A new nine-cylinder radial type airplane motor develops approximately 1100 horse power, or about 120 horse power per cylinder. Compared with an automobile motor of 100 total horse power, each cylinder in the airplane motor develops more power than the entire automobile engine.

The centrifugal force that kept the water in the bucket when, as children, we swung it over our heads, holds the airplane pilot in the seat when he executes a perfect loop. However, pilots still use safety belts!

The United States, where most agricultural crops have been imported from other lands, has suffered particularly from this distortion of natural law. To restore the natural balance between plant pests and parasites, the Department of Agriculture last week started work on a $400,000 building in Hoboken, N. J. From that capital of the nation's important business in nursery stock and plant propagating material—where 80 per cent of all such imports arrive—the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine will war on the pests which annually do $3,000,000,000 damage to American crops.

Parasite control will be a major weapon in the Bureau's battle chiefly because of its permanent effectiveness. Chemical and mechanical control measures, for which American farmers spent $100,000,000 last year, must be repeated frequently. Once a parasite is developed to counteract a plant pest, little more needs to be done.

Hope that such a victory over the dangerous Japanese beetle might soon be won was expressed from another quarter last week. Two scientists employed jointly by the U. S. and N. J. Departments of Agriculture reported important progress in development a nematode parasite, enemy of the beetle grub.

PESTS vs. PARASITES

In moving plants all over the world, man has frequently transported with them the pests which live on the plants, but not the parasites which, in turn, live on the pests. The comparative equilibrium which nature provides between conflicting elements in the plant and animal worlds has thus been upset.

SEQUEL CLIMAX "TOPPER"

Hal Roach's hilarious screen comedy, "Topper Takes A Trip," sequel to "Topper," one of last year's biggest laugh hits, opens on Saturday at the Regal Theatre, with Constance Bennett of the latter production again cast in a light comedy role which permits her to go through a series of "dematerializations."

The new film, based on a screen play by Eddie Moran and Jack Jevne, was directed by Norman Z. McLeod, who also staged "Topper" and other notable film productions. The supporting cast, reading like a bluebook of Hollywood celebrities, includes Roland Young, Billie Burke, Alan Mowbray, Alexander D'Arcy, Verree Teasdale, Franklin Pangborn and Paul Hurts.

The story of "Topper Take A Trip" concerns the mad, merry antics of Constance Bennett, as Marion Kerby, and Roland Young, as Cosmo Topper, on the sunny sands of the French Riviera, whether Miss Bennet has gone to "do a good deed" and where, instead, she almost upsets the Toppers' lives. The production is a United Artists release.

Information on Oats

Farmers desiring to earn their soil-building allowance by turning under oats should bear in mind that in order for oats to qualify as a soil-building practice they must be turned before the grain passes the dough stage of growth.

It will also be well to remember that oats, which are not harvested for any purpose, will be classified as a neutral crop.

On Mt. Locke—Texas Eye Sees More and Farther

Austin, Tex.—Why did astronomers choose 6,791-foot Mount Locke for the site of the University of Texas' McDonald Observatory, 400 miles west of its parent institution at Austin?

For near-perfect starlight reception the requirements were: no vibration, no glare, no dust, no clouds.

So in his search for an observatory location, Astronomer-in-Charge Dr. C. T. Elvey found the Davis Mountains, with peaks of around 7,000 feet, to be most ideal.

Although the 75-ton telescope itself is firmly mounted on gigantic concrete piers, Dr. Elvey had to take into account proximity of railroads and other sources of vibration. The Texas and New Orleans is the nearest railroad—40 miles away.

Unshielded street lights, which would make a disturbing glare, are no closer than Fort Davis, 16 miles from the Observatory. Extra precaution was being made in 1936 that no filing stations would ever be erected anywhere within five or six miles of the plant.

Dr. Elvey preferred Mount Locke to a neighboring peak because Mount Locke was covered with more foliage, which helps keep down the dust on the wind-swept mountain. Too much dust in the air is a serious obstacle to good vision, he pointed out.

With a rainfall of only 15 inches per year, the area is unclouded approximately 300 days of the year.

Then too, more than 50 percent of the stars and nebulae which will be objects of scrutiny are seen better from positions nearer the equator. Thus the southernmost vantage point in the United States was selected.

The 200-acre site, with an adjoining 200-acre tract, was given to the University in 1933 by Mrs. Violet Locke McIver of Concord, N. H., whose grandfather, G. S. numbers, and readings.

Locke, founded the U-Up and Down Ranch there. The land is now valued at $4,000.

CHAPTER EIGHT SYNOPSIS:

Ruin faces Missouri mule-breeder unless Sweeney Bliss, small-town bank director who has gone to London in an endeavor to have the British Army continue its orders for mules, succeeds in doing so. With Sweeney to his wife, Julie, who has social ambitions and her sister, Lola, who has intrigued the eye of Capt. Brooks-Bowen of the Army staff, Julie decides to throw a huge party to crash into London society but her guest of honor, General Barse Stonebreaker, fails to show up. Sweeney, in turn, hires an ex-vaudeville to pose as the honored guest.

CHAPTER IX

THE party was well under way when Hearne announced the arrival of Joel Street. He was in business clothes and looked worried. Sweeney greeted him enthusiastically. Joel did not respond to this enthusiasm. He was obviously unhappy.

"Sweeney, the folks at home have been reading about Julie's social activities in London and they don't think you're on the job," he explained. "They've sent me over to take charge." He saw the stunned expression on Sweeney's face. "Honest, Sweeney—I didn't want the job," he insisted.

"It was just that you couldn't resist the chance to come over and see Lola, wasn't it, Joel?" Sweeney's voice was sympathetic.

"Lola had nothing to do with it," Joel retorted. "It was just that the bank in Junction City advanced the money to ship two thousand mules over here."

"What! They can't do that," Sweeney almost shouted.

"They're on the ocean right now."

"But every one of those mules'll be held in quarantine six months, at the owners' expense. That's the British law."

Joel was stunned. "Sweeney, what will we do?"

Sweeney's determination reasserted itself. "We've got to sell those mules to the British Army right away or half the State of Missouri is going broke. The man who could buy them is here now. He's Colonel Marchbanks."

"Let's find him. We've got to sell him," Joel agreed.

Meanwhile, in a small study off the reception hall, Captain Brooks-Bowen faced Miss Wildhack. Julie's social secretary in his hand he held the guest list compiled by Miss Wildhack.

"You'd be lost without this list, wouldn't you?" he asked.

Miss Wildhack tried the haughty note. "Just what do you mean?"

"Just now the servant announced the Baron Straton." Brooks-Bowen continued. "He's been pretty down-at-the-heel since he had to leave Paris after cheating at cards."

Miss Wildhack was obviously ill at ease.

"They're all like that, aren't they?" the Captain went on. He indicated the list. "Hangers-on with manners and dress suits, willing to go anywhere for free champagne and perhaps a pound note."

"I see nothing wrong about it," Miss Wildhack defended herself.

"Mrs. Bliss is enjoying it. And if she thinks you're impressed—"

"Exactly." Brooks-Bowen smiled.

"After all, Miss Wildhack, your reception may be a great success."

As Joel and Sweeney started in search of Colonel Marchbanks, Lola saw the former and rushed to welcome him and grasped him by the arms. "Oh Joel, I'm so glad to see you. Welcome to London! Now this can be a party."

But Joel refused to respond. "I didn't come here for parties," he said coldly. Over Lola's shoulder he caught sight of Brooks-Bowen. "Hello, Captain," Joel said, turning away from Lola.

As Joel and Sweeney continued on their way in search of Marchbanks, Brooks-Bowen faced Lola. Tears were near the surface. "Don't mind it too much," the Captain comforted.

"He's a crude, cruel boy," Lola said, chin a-tremble.

"You haven't written to him very regularly, have you?"

"That's no excuse," Lola insisted.

"You should have. I saw the expression on your face when you caught sight of him." His voice was "All right, Kitty, you're a good strong girl. I want you to stay here and feed him coffee. When he sobers up, send for me. And if he tries to get out, hit him over the head with this poker!"

Sweeney found Julie nervously attempting to explain the "General's" tropical fever to Colonel Marchbanks. "Don't worry. Honey, I've taken care of everything," Sweeney said reassuringly. "The General has had these attacks before but he ought to be on his feet any minute now—" He glanced up and his face froze in horror. Across the balcony Gus staggered, carrying Kitty who was doing a hand-stand! Just two old-time vaudevillians staging a reunion. A second later, they crossed

"Gus withdrew his sword from its scabbard and let it slide down his gullet with the ease of an experienced sword-swallower. 'We got to get him out of here,' Sweeney whispered.

gentle. "You shouldn't have kept that feeling from him, Lola."

Sweeney and Joel found Colonel Marchbanks and Gus in the center of a huge group of smiling guests. To Sweeney's startled glance it was apparent that Gus had been drinking many toasts to the understanding between countries. As the two men pushed their way through the crowd, Gus was speaking. "Here's one I learned in the Philippines," he announced. He withdrew his sword from its scabbard and let it slide down his gullet with the ease of an experienced sword-swallower.

"We've got to get him out of here," Sweeney whispered to Joel. Each of them took one of Gus' arms. "Come along, General," Sweeney said. Together they propelled the pseudo-General toward and up the staircase.

Sensing the situation, Captain Brooks-Bowen turned to Lola. "Ask Colonel Marchbanks to dance with you," he commanded and dashed away to order a fast fox trot from the orchestra. He returned to find Julie near the point of tears. "Tell 'em the General is suffering from tropical fever," Brooks-Bowen whispered in Julie's ear. Her face brightened.

In Sweeney's room, Joel and Sweeney worked frantically to sober the maudlin "General." As they were applying ice compresses, Kitty, the ex-vaudeville now married to Hearne, entered with black coffee. "Mrs. Bliss is asking for you, sir," she said to Sweeney.

again doing a series of cartwheels.

Frantically, Sweeney and Julie sought to hold Colonel Marchbanks' attention away from Gus and Kitty. But the other guests had had enough. Hastily they started to depart.

As Julie glanced out after the first of the departing guests she saw a line of limousines arriving. From the first emerged Mr. and Mrs. Arthur in old-fashioned evening dress followed by a number of others in formal attire. She turned away, completely sunk. Dimly she heard Hearne announce the Duke and Duchess of Cricklewood, the Marchioness of Helena, Lord and Lady Algernon Lander and other imposing titles.

Convinced that these were as phony as Gus, she whirled on her husband. "Sweeney Bliss, you've finally gone too far," she raged tearfully.

"Look!" Sweeney pointed. Captain Brooks-Bowen was bowing to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur. "Good evening, Your Grace," he said to each in turn.

"You mean these are real?" Julie gasped. "Oh what will I do?"

"Remember what a good hostess you are, Honey," Sweeney whispered, "and start entertainin' them."

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur, otherwise the Duke and Duchess of Cricklewood greeted Julie warmly. "It's nice to see you again, Mrs. Bliss. And now may our guests have a real old-fashioned Missouri hoe-down?"

FIVE BEAUTIES, TWO MERE MALES (MINISTER, MUSICIAN) FEATURED AS FAVORITES IN N.T.S.T.C. ANNUAL

Denton, Tex.—Five co-ed queens of glamour and grace and two mere males will be featured as campus "favorites" in the 1939 "Yucca", school annual of the NTSTC, Raleigh Usry, "Yucca" editor, has announced. The book is scheduled to be released from the college print shop about May 25.

The men favorites this year include a student minister-debater, Carroll Ellis of Dallas, and a talented young musician, Ralph Daniel of Denton. The two good-looking men and a bevy of five beautiful co-eds, all elected by popular vote in campus balloting this spring, will be played up in the Favorite Section of the college yearbook, a double-page spread being devoted to the pictures and personality of each.

The House has spent the entire week on the non-military Army Appropriation Bill. This is the bill that carries the appropriation for those important but little understood functions of the Army that relate to domestic improvements—chiefly the improvement of our rivers, harbors, and our flood control work. Much of this work is done under the control and supervision of the Corps of Engineers of the Army. As this work has no relation to the military activities of the Army, the appropriation for it is carried in a separate bill. None of these works can be carried on until the Army Engineers have made a survey of the proposed project and have approved it. These surveys are not made until they are authorized and directed by Congress. No survey of the Brazos Valley had been authorized until after I came to Congress (1937). That year we authorized such a survey. This survey, which will take several years to complete, is now in progress, but we now have a report, partial or interim report, on that part of the Valley covering the Whitney dam region. This report must be reviewed and acted upon by the Board of Engineers here in Washington. If they approve it, it will go to the National Resources Committee, the Federal Power Commission, and the Rural Electrification Administration for consideration, that they may all make sure that it fits in with their program. If and when approved by all these agencies the report will come to Congress. I shall do everything I can to bring it along as our only opportunity to secure Federal flood control aid (other than PWA, WPA, etc) for the Brazos and Little River valleys lies in getting these projects approved and then getting them included in a bill or Act of Congress authorizing the work. After an authorization bill is passed it is at least another year before an appropriation will be made to provide the money for the construction. In fact, the appropriation bill that we have had under consideration appropriates money for projects, some of which were authorized as long as three years ago. While the Red River is the only Texas flood control project included in this bill, we all recognize that it is necessary to get these older projects going before we can expect to get any appropriation for the projects that we hope to get authorized. I, therefore, supported the $133,000,000 appropriation, which was finally agreed upon. This amount is $62,000,000 less than the Army Engineers requested at $23,000,000 more than the Committee first recommended.

I was very much pleased by the action of the Senate in restoring $225,000,000 to the Agricultural Appropriation Bill for the payment of subsidies or parity payments. Of course, this amount will not pay anything like full parity—it will not provide as much for cotton as was received last year, but it would be a great help if we can keep the amount in the bill. Several powerful groups have, however, already aroused their opposition to this amendment, which must now be accepted by the House before it can become law. Both the extreme conservatives and the extreme liberals in the House have already stated on the Floor that their group would do all in their power to kill this appropriation.—The conservatives because they do not believe that we should spend this money, and the liberals because they generally represent big cities or industrial districts, and we have been unable to make them see that they have any interest in agriculture. But more dangerous than the opposition of both of these groups was the statement of the President that if we increased the appropriations for farm relief by a quarter of a billion dollars we would be forced to levy new taxes at this session. Everyone knows that all of these expenditures must be paid out of tax money, but no demand for new levies at this time were forthcoming in connection with the appropriations of an extra $825,000,000 for WPA, nor with nearly $2,000,000,000 for armaments. I can not see why this demand for new taxes should be made ONLY in connection with our farm relief program. It is bound to make the passage of this amendment in the House much more difficult. In fact, it is going to be a very hard fight to get it thru, but I am sure that the entire Texas delegation will do everything in our power to put it over as we realize just how important even this slight help it to the farmers of our section, and therefore, to the people of the Nation.

The 187 presses in the U. S. government printing office produce approximately 4,000,000,000 impressions annually.

OFFICEFrame Gardens Provide Cleaner Vegetables"My vegetables raised in my frame garden are much cleaner and easier to prepare for cooking," says Mrs. Troy Smith, of Purlmela.Her frame garden is 20'x3', and is made of scrap boards 12" wide.
It is covered with chicken wire, and has a burlap cover that is used to keep off frost, high wind, and too hot a sun. The soil was prepared early this spring by digging it thoroughly to loosen it.
Then a layer of well fertilized leaf mold was put on, worked in well, and watered. The first planting was of lettuce, radishes, spinach.
Later on, when the radishes were pulled up, Mrs. Smith set out pepper plant. Some ten neighbors and Home Demonstration Club members have seen her frame garden.Mrs. Smith, in giving other reasons why she likes a frame garden, says, "You can have vegetables so much earlier where you can keep them covered from the cold and wind. Too, such things as radishes, lettuce, spinach, and pepper require more water than the average rain fall will afford."Later in the summer she intends to clean off the ground, work it up good, and plant a fall garden.

Budding Pecans

Standard varieties of pecans cannot be reproduced satisfactorily by planting the seed. They are reproduced by either budding or grafting upon suitable rootstocks.
When pecan seeds are planted,
they will usually grow into seedling trees that are large enough to be budded or grafted during the second or third growing season.THE PATCH BUD: Patch budding may be practiced at any time when the bark will slip freely.
Best results, however, are obtained by budding either during the early spring—April and first part of May—or during the latter part of August. Budding in the spring must necessarily be done on wood that is one or more years old; in the late summer it is usually done on sprouts that have developed during the current growing season.Briefly, patch budding consists of removing a piece of bark from the stock about 3/8 or 1 inch square, and inserting in its place a piece of bark of the same size and shape on which is borne a bud, of a variety which it is desired to reproduce. A special patch budding knife will be useful. It has blades the proper distance apart to make the two cross cuts on the stock and scion. The ver-tical cuts are made with an ordinary knife. The patch is peeled from the stock and the patch bud is carefully removed from the budstock and inserted in its place.
The inserted bud may be tied in place with cotton string and sealed around the margins with wax or melted paraffin, wrapped with waxed tape, rubber bands, or budding tape in a way that excludes air and moisture, or covered with a wax patch with a hole in the center for the protruding bud, and tied with string. Either method is satisfactory.Patch buds may be inserted successfully on limbs or trunks that are from 1-3 to 1 inch in diameter. In budding large stocks it is usually necessary to pare the rough outer bark down to about the same thickness as the bark of the patch in order to tie the bud properly. Success depends upon (1) the use of good buds, (2) removing the bud from the bud-stock and the bark from the stock without undue injury or mutilation, (3) transferring bud quickly to the stock, (4) the precision with which the bud fits into the place prepared for it, (5) through tying and waxing, and (6) finally proper forcing. Often times buds will unite with the stock, but not begin growth immediately. Growth is encouraged by cutting the stock off or by girdling it 6 or 8 inches above the inserted bud. Forcing of buds inserted in August is often delayed until the following spring. When buds on small stock have made 6 inches growth and those on large stocks 12 or 15 inches, the stocks should be cut off immediately above the point where the bud was set.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

WHAT IS ADVERTISING GENIUS?

IN THE early days of advertising there were men who posed in the role of genius. They shrouded advertising with mystery. To portray their part they let their hair grow, wore flowing bow ties, affected a far-away look and muttered mysterious formulae.

Some persons still believe that the ability to advertise a business successfully is like the ability to write poetry—an inborn gift.

It isn't at all. The closer advertising comes to answering some of the needs in the lives of common, ordinary people the more nearly it comes to success.

The only genius needed in advertising is the everyday genius of telling the truth in a simple and an understandable way.

A few months ago some of the leaders in the advertising profession were boasting about the results of their work. One of the advertising publications published what they said about themselves.

Writers of some of the largest corporations in the country took part in the discussion. But a little druggist in Florida, spending just a few dollars in his local newspaper, was able to top all the results of these high-salaried advertising men.

All he did was to know the desires of his customers, and sit down and tell them what he had in a simple, an understandable, a convincing, conversational way. Here is his advertisement:

SATURDAY SPECIAL

this coupon and 5 cents

Clip this Coupon and bring it with five cents to the

PARK VIEW DRUG STORE

This is a perfect advertisement. It offers a wanted service. It offers value. It inspires confidence. It is something people in his neighborhood wanted to read.

It didn't take a genius to write it, but the whole genius of advertising is behind it.

Every day advertisers are publishing similar announcements in the newspapers. These announcements are as much in what is called the public interest as the results of scientific research or study—because they bring the public something it wants to make life better or more interesting or, in the case of Park View Drug, a little more enjoyable.

GLASS BLOCK BACKGROUNDS ADD SMARTNESS TO MODERN ROOMS

This charming room is lovely to look at and incorporates all the newest features for practical present-day living. The stair bay has been provided with an arresting background in the curved panel of insulux glass block with which the architect, George Fred Keck, "opened up" the wall for plenty of natural, diffused daylight without sacrificing privacy, and to create a modern decorative effect. The stair wall of glass block is two stories high and diffuses light into the library, living room, dining room, upstairs hallway and into the basement recreation room, all of which open to the stairs! The living room floor is done in black rubber tile, covered with a handsome handmade rug of ivory brown and the walls are natural-finish flexwood. The ebony furniture, covered with a striped wool material that harmonizes with the yellow antique satin draperies, completes the decorative scheme.
