The title of the Mural, which relates to the economic life of Texas, is "Off To The Northern Markets". The mural shows the front part of the herd, several cowboys, and the cook and the chuck wagon.

HEAVY RAIN BREAKS EARLY HEAT WAVE IN GATESVILLE

Heavy clouds pushed by a stiff wind brought a nice rain to Gatesville Sunday morning and again Monday morning. This rain broke a heat spell which "jumped the gun" one week before summer officially started.

Rain was pretty general over Central and South Texas with Corpus Christi reporting a severe thunderstorm and electrical display, one of the worst in years.

Other towns in Central Texas reported good rains, ranging from light showers up to one and one-half inches.

Batting It Out

NUMBER FIVE
"L. A." NORTH, ETC.

That "etc" part just about covers the whole deal. There is simply too much to write about, and an adequate detailed description of the sublime beauty of the entire country is impossible. There is everything, mountains, sea, hills, canyons, beans, (limas) almonds, walnuts, oranges, lemons, Calvos, avocados, cherries, limes, grain etc., etc., etc.

But back to Riverside, the town we were coming to when we stopped last. There, we stopped for about 30 minutes, with Mrs. Tress Allen and saw her son, both of them have visited in Gatesville. She was formerly a Fellrath, a sister to John Fellrath of Belton. Mr. Allen is postmaster at Riverside.

From Riverside, we went to Montabello, where Frank Fellrath lives. They were not at home, however. Mr. Fellrath has been with the Union Pacific for a long time, having left Gatesville about 30 years ago.

Montabello, Riversides, Hollywood, Beverly Hills, Los Angeles, just like Gatesville and Torbett Town are, only more so. You never get out of one until you are in another.

We drove thru the edge of Los Angeles proper, to Hollywood, where we saw Mrs. G. I. Mason, the former Potty Wells of Gatesville, and also her sister, Ruth.

Then to Santa Monica, on the beach. Of course, enroute, we saw all the studios, and we suppose Clark Gable and Myrna Loy saw us although we didn't see them. Anyway, we drove about 150 miles thru the streets of these various towns, and gave them all a break, if they wanted.

There—oh, what's the use. Practically all the studios were seen, the Anglus Temple, where Amie Semple McPhearson, or however, you spell it, let's 'em have it, or does she? She's wigged a million dollar building out of California folks, and is a little "tin God" to many of them.

A novelty, typical of California is the world's largest drive-in-and-see-a-movie-in-your-car. theatre. That's just one of the things you don't see in Texas.

It's impossible to "tell it all". Anyway, we spent about 2 days in Los Angeles, and took 101, the coast route via Santa Monica to the north.

This is the California Mission Trails, and takes you up with the Pacific on your left, and 1000 foot

"JUNETEENTH" BIG DAY FOR COLORED PEOPLE HERE

"Juneteenth", the day on which the negroes celebrate their emancipation was observed yesterday by the colored population of Gatesville. To start a well-rounded program a parade was held down the Main street at noon which was very colorful.

Inclement weather did not dampen their spirits in the least. A big picnic and barbecue was held yesterday afternoon which was followed by a dance last night.

This is the only holiday of the year solely for the negroes and a fine, progressive spirit was shown by all who participated in the programs.

hills, the "ranches" on your right via, Malibu Beach, Hueneme, Ventura, Santa Barbara, Carpinteria, (where we spent Tuesday, 13th night), Goleta, Montecito, Gaviota, Las Cruces, thru a high pass, back off of the ocean front into the dairy country, where Messrs. Gamblin, Meeks and Sasse, we saw one of the most modern modernistic dairies we ever hope to see. One of those cement buildings, or plaster, with modernistic theme, with glass windows. A better home for cows than we ourselves live in. Since there are so many missions in San Antonio and we've seen a few of them, we didn't bother to see them all, because in almost every county, the California Padres had built one.

Back to Los Angeles, to pick up something we forgot. The Ostrich Farm, where we saw the big birds and were fed on a line of bologna as only a Californian can dish it out. Anyway, the birds themselves were interesting and something we hadn't seen.

Drives along the road include canyon trails, stretches of the highway, with 50 or more feet high palm trees, other places where the Eucalyptus (?) trees probably 75- or 100 feet high meet over the center of the road. The highways are indescribable.

Just about opposite where we are right now, Buellton, is Point Conception, where 7 U. S. Destroyers were sunk some years back in a fog.

We're only a short distance from Santa Maria, where, according to our statistician, 60 per cent of the flower seed in the United States are grown. Right now, however, just to show the suddenness of the never changing tourain of the country, we are passing thru what looks like ranching country, filled with hills and canyons, with trails for the cattle or sheep, which we haven't seen any of. Since climbing up away from the Pacific, the country is drier and hotter, the grass is dead, but the slopes are covered with nice big oak trees, and Spanish moss, typical of South Texas Coastal country is showing up.

In the fruit district, tractors are used mostly, and the beauty, cleanliness of fence rows, ditches in and around this valuable land, is certainly a tribute to the folks out here and their industry.

In the ranching and hay country, used principally are big percheron horses, and there is a total absence of mules, which, Coryell county, Missouri and other places are noted for.

The cost of production of all fruits, etc., certainly must be great. There is tile to be laid, ditches to be dug, plants to be cared for, and work, work, work, of all kinds everywhere. Homes, barns, outhouses and every structure are beautiful. There is a total absence of "joints" as we know them in Texas. If they are joints, they certainly are expensive ones, as of course, they are built for the tourists' benefit, they must be nice, although the prices are not prohibitive. Competition keeps the prices that way. Any sort of a camp, hotel, lodge, eating place you may choose is along the highway.

territory, is the locale of the world's largest lemon growing center. Souvenir folders are passed out by the Chamber of Commerce and they also claim the world's safest bathing beach.

Then the ocean front road curves inland to Santa Maria, thru cattle, almond, apricot and other fruit lands to San Luis Obispo, where we went thru Cuesta Pass, 1570 feet. Then, with Morro Bay in the distance, we can see the famous Morro Rock, a kind of Bibralta, done California style. The bay is fringed with pungent pine.

Cuesta Grade, both on the highway and the Southern Pacific is an engineering marvel, and it was here that we saw a long freight going "over the hump" with three engines on the front, and one in the middle and never did see the caboose, and don't know how many were on the back of the train.

Atascadero, with a beautiful lake, is the center of a profitable, scientific poultry raising section, or was. Then, Santa Margarita, the "valley of the Oaks" where tremendously large oaks are scattered over the land.

Paso Robles, where we ate dinner, is where Digger Indians discovered the now famous curative hot sulphur springs. From here, we headed east again, going thru California's big ranch land, with great ranches stretching out further than you could look. Our road, with millions of turns, over hills, down valley, carried us thru country where the day before the temperature was 108, but "unusual" weather, the outstanding feature of California gave us a break, as there was a big cloud coming over Tulare Lake, the weather was cool, and with a high wind blowing.

Passing down thru the ranches, we passed what is known as Devil's Den, and men in this vicinity said the weather for some time had been hanging around the 108 mark for many days, but such was not our good fortune. Finally, after going thru the "roller coaster" of California, we came out at Kettleman Hills, made famous by Mr. Doheney and other big oil men, who tried to "get to Uncle Sam."

Immediately after this place, we came to California's "bread basket," literally mile after mile of wheat, wheat, wheat. One particular patch, ran at least ten miles right past us. It was combining time, and in several fields we saw them working. They use the big plains combines, with about a 25 foot sickle. These machines, keep the straw for a while, and then dump it in piles. Afterward, this is hauled in and stacked. The grain is sacked on the machines, and dumped, five sacks at a time and left in the field. Later, trucks come in and pick up the sacks.

Particularly noticeable in all parts of California, is the size of the trucks, for commercial and farming purposes. The freight lines operate trucks that must haul at least ten tons, and pull trailers behind them hauling an equal amount. The trailers have four tires on the rear and four on the front. The trucks, many of them have "double trucks" eight tires on their back, and two on the front wheels. The loads are bound to be tremendous. Cargoes carried are fruit, cattle, and other farm produce, in addition to all freight items needed anywhere.

Both on the coast side of the range, and in the mountains around Yosemite, we have dragged out our coats. In Los Angeles, the night we were there, we shivered after getting out of a show about eleven thirty. We tried to go to Grauman's Chinese Theatre, but they had a special showing of some kind and it was not open to the public.

Well we got over to the grain district and side tracked you. Just about time we got to Hanford, the rain started. It WAS unusual weather until we got to Fresno, where there was a cloud burst, they said, and the streets were full of water. Wind blew down trees, but did little other damage. A newspaper estimate of the damage to the grain was $100,000 damage, an dit was more rain than they had in all the month of June before. Between 5 and 6 p. m., just about the time we were getting into Fresno, it rained 1.37 inches during that hour. We just about went running board deep in water on the highway, in the streets and underpasses. The Hotel Fresno used sandbags to keep the water out of the lobby.

We left Fresno, a much bigger city than Waco, about 7 p. m. and drove on to Madera, where we put up for the night. It had not rained much at this place. Next morning, Thursday, 15, we left Madera for Yosemite National Park, which is an awful drive for the meazles falls you'll see there, which looks just like Falls creek on the Colorado River in Texas would under a magnifying glass. However, the drives thru the park are wonderful, and the Tulomne and Merced Grover of big Sequoias are really something to write home about. The gorge itself down from the falls, is probably the best part of the entire trip, and just before we got to it, we went thru a lighted tunnel in the mountains which was one-fourth to one-half mile long. Water was dripping from a number of points from the tunnel ceiling to the cement floor beneath.

About them trees, We also drove thru one of them, and interesting too, they are only up 6810 feet high, and higher, and then their height added to this makes their tip up to about 7,025 feet. The one we drove thru had a 26 foot entrance and exit. They are about 100 feet thick at the bottom. This give you a rough idea of just about how big they are. Famous trees in the grove are Wawona Tree, which we drove thru; and the fallen Massachusetts tree, and many others which had names we didn't pay any attention to. This is truly where the giants got their toothpicks.

Yosemite Valley, where the river starts down to level or semi-level ground is 4,000 feet high, and up to this point, Uncle Jim's Gold Mine, we have surely dropped some 2 or more thousand feet, in one of the prettiest gorges you will ever see.

This route, out to Merced, is what is known out here as a "controlled" road. In otherwords, the traffic halts going one direction for about an hour, and then you start thru, with the traffic on the other end at a standstill.

Coming down thru the gorge, we passed a stand and asked a boy how the fishing was, and he said it wasn't much, that it was fished out. Also, there were about a half dozen or more other small falls falling into the gorge, and others probably, that we didn't see. The other sights to the "controlled" area are gold mines and a barium mine. The barium mine is on one side of the gorge, rather the mill, and the mines are on the other side and buckets traveling over a cable are used to bring the ore to the mill.

At the gold mine, as little as we know about one, the mine was near to the mill works, and we noticed a slush pit where the waste material was probably seperated from the ore.

We've had to wait an hour and 25 minutes at Uncle Jim's, due to the fact, we just missed the party ahead of us, but, we just take it as it comes, and let it go at that.

Three years ago Mr. Wilson went to Savage, south of Ralls then moved to the Cypert farm, 2 miles east of Lorenzo, on which he was living when he met his tragic death June 1, 1939 when a tractor turned backwards upon him.

The deceased had not lived near Lorenzo long but proved a friend to all who knew him. He was a kind and affectionate husband and father. He was a Christian and always looked on the bright side of life.

Funeral services were conducted at the Lorenzo Baptist Church with a close friend and pastor of Turnersville Baptist Church, Rev. G. L. Derrick, in charge. Mrs. Jim Duncan was in charge of music. Songs requested by the family were rendered by Mrs. Duncan, John Hargrove, Dona Baker and Mrs. Leon Pierot.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

AN EXPERIMENT IN HORSE-FEEDING

HERE'S an old story I have always liked. It is about the parsimonious Frenchman who rued the money he spent in feeding his horse.

After scheming and planning he hit upon an idea which would enable him to stop all that.

It was beautifully simple: Each day he would gradually cut down the amount of feed he gave the horse. He would cut it down so gradually, in fact, that the animal wouldn't ever realize he was being cheated.

Charles Roth

The horse would thus become used to getting along on less. Eventually he would need no feed at all. Think of the money that would save!

The French genius scientifically set about carrying on the experiment. Several months later he was telling about it with pride in his voice. Did it work? asked a friend.

"Work? Oh, yes, indeed, it did!" he exclaimed. "It worked perfectly. Beautifully. The only trouble was that just about the time my horse got used to going without feed, he died."

We laugh at the benighted condition of a man with an idea as foolish as this, but many business men try to stop feeding their business "horse" by eliminating or cutting down on their advertising.

The fact is that advertising is the feed which keeps their business in robust health and full of energy and strength.

Many examples can be cited of the inevitable result of stopping advertising. Two will do. Forty years ago there was a remedy on the market which was America's biggest seller. It was widely, intelligently, consistently advertised. Its name was a household word. Then the founder of the business died. His heirs decided to cut out advertising because "our product is so well known people will have to buy it." The product passed out of the picture entirely.

Another was a fine, honest, well-made, well-advertised toilet soap, with all the good will any product could possibly need. The management of the business changed. The advertising stopped. Soon the product was no longer on the market.

The reason why advertising must be a continuous process is that we human beings need constant reminding. We're not fickle. But we are so filled with our own ideas and plans and businesses that if a man who wants our trade doesn't ask for it regularly and often, we drift elsewhere to the man who does.

The advertiser is faced by the problem of asking his customers to buy from him, but he also has to consider the most economical way of extending his invitation.

He finds the answer to both parts of this problem in the newspaper. No other form of advertising has ever been discovered which will carry his message so effectively for so little cost.

The Strangest Love Story Ever Told

MERLE OBERON • LAURENCE OLIVIER • DAVID NIVEN

SYNOPSIS
The strange story of Wuthering Heights is told to Lockwood, a new tenant, by housekeeper Ellen Dean, who has known the residents of the eerie old house for forty years. The story began when Mr. Earnshaw, then master of the estate, brought home from Liverpool a wild gypsy boy, whom he named Heathcliff. The boy is resented by Mr. Earnshaw's son, Hindley, but is the inseparable playmate of Earnshaw's tomboyish daughter, Cathy.

Chapter Two

Some years later Mr. Earnshaw died, leaving Wuthering Heights in the hands of Hindley. From the moment of his master's death, Heathcliff felt the lash of the new master, who in his own turn took heavily to drinking, and to a total disregard for his father's estate. Wuthering Heights was no longer a happy place. Heathcliff lived on hate, and would have been consumed by it were it not for Cathy.

After Hindley had left one day, Heathcliff ran desperately across the moor to Pennistone Crag, where Cathy awaited him.

"Did Joseph see which way you came? It would be dreadful if Hindley ever found out," she said tensely.

"Found out what?" his pained voice demanded. "Found that you talk to me once in a while—as if I were a little better than a dog?"

she at his unwashed face and hands and torn, unruly clothes. Brutally, she told him to look after Edgar's horses; but when Edgar referred to him as a "beast of a gypsy," she turned on with an even deadly voice.

"What do you know about Heathcliff?" she demanded.

"All I need or want to know!" Cathy flared, saying: "He was my friend, long before you."

"That blackguard—" Edgar began.

"Blackguard or not, he belongs under this roof and you'll speak well of him—or get out..."

"What!" said the surprised Edgar. "Are you out of your senses?"

"Get out, I said... or stop calling those I love names."

"Those you love! That stable boy...! Do you realize what you're saying?"

"I'm saying that I hate you—I hate the look of your milk-white face. I hate the touch of your soft, foolish hands."

"Some of that gypsy's evil soul has gotten into you—I think."

"Yes! Yes! Now get out!"

Edgar turned abruptly and left. And when Ellen returned, Cathy was alone, and in tears. Then Cathy left the room, and Ellen watched her walk, slowly, to Pennistone Crag.

There was no greeting, and some time before she spoke.

"You're strong, Heathcliff, you're so strong. Make the world stop right here—make everything stop—and stand still—and never move again—the moors never change—nor do you and I."

"Cathy, the moors and I will never change—don't you."

"I can't. I can't. No matter what I say or do, Heathcliff this is me—forever... When you went away, Heathcliff, where did you go? What did you do?"

"I went to Liverpool. One night I shipped for America—on a brigantine going to New Orleans. We were held up by the tide and I lay all night long on the deck, thinking of you and the years and years without you. I can't—I couldn't live without you—couldn't breathe! Can you understand it? Can you forgive me?"

All the passion she felt toward him, but could not understand, surged up within her.

"Smell the heather, Heathcliff, fill my arms with heather—all they can hold."

"Cathy," he said, thrusting a bunch of heather quickly into her arms, "Cathy—you're not thinking of that other world now?"

She was breathless.

"Don't talk, Heathcliff—all this might disappear."

Cathy was hurt, and Heathcliff would not leave her.

dog?"

"I shouldn't talk to you at all!" Cathy replied hotly. "Look at you! You get worse every day. Dirty and unkempt and in rags. Why aren't you a man? Why don't you run away?"

"Run away? From you?" He was stunned.

"You could come back to me rich and take me away," she continued, unhearing. "Why aren't you my price like we said long ago... why can't you rescue me? Heathcliff!"

"Cathy! Come with me now!" "And live in haystacks? And go barefoot in the snow? And steal our food from the marketplaces?"

"No, Heathcliff, that's not what I want... Listen... Do you hear?"

"What?"

"Must... the Lintons are giving a party. She held out her arms to the lights and the music. "That's what I want. Dancing and singing in a pretty world! And I'm going to have it! Come on! When you see it, you'll want it."

She pulled Heathcliff by the hand, and together they ran down from the craggy place to the lovely Linton home, adjacent to Wuthering Heights. Dogs barked sharply as the two climbed over the garden wall and ran quickly to a window, through which they saw a luxurious room, full of beaux and ladies in the rich canopy of formal dress. Cathy's eyes shone with excitement.

"Look!" she exclaimed breathlessly. "They're dancing. Isn't it wonderful! All those lights. And the gold on the ceiling. Oh, Heathcliff, if we could dance... in there!"

Suddenly a dog appeared, his teeth bared. He flung himself at the two, who raced to the nearby wall, with Cathy screaming: "Run, Heathcliff! Run!" At the wall, as Heathcliff reached down to pull up Cathy, the beast sank his teeth deep into her ankle, and she screamed with pain.

WORDS WITHOUT MUSIC
By LOUIS REID

A MEMORIAL to John Philip Sousa, comprising the march king's more famous compositions, is scheduled for Carnegie Hall in the early Spring by the Fordham University Band, with B. A. Rolfe, Arthur Pryor and John Philip Sousa 3rd as guest conductors.

Louis Reid
Indeed, why not a John Philip Sousa Day at the Fair?

Newest "moon" tune is called "The Moon Is a Silver Dollar" . . . The moon heretofore in Tin Pan Alley has always been golden . . . Can it be that T. P. A. has depreciated its currency, too? . . . W. C. Handy has published a bibliography of the Negro authors and composers of the United States . . . Ferde Grofe has been added to the teaching staff at the Juilliard School of Music . . . Movie stars Mickey Rooney and Alice Faye have bobbed up as song-writers, their tune titles being, respectively, "Have a Heart" and "I Promise You" . . . Recording men are stalking hillbillies in the Southwest . . . I thought all the hillbillies had been rounded up long ago . . . No great popular ditty to the modern streamline luxury airliner has yet appeared . . . The airplane's only melodic glorification dates back many years to the early days of the Wright Brothers' experiments. You remember: "Come, Josephine, in My Flying Machine."

Conquest Note: The British Broadcasting Corp. now devotes a weekly program exclusively to swing music.

Concert Singers' Composer

One of America's continuously best-selling melody-makers is a comparatively young woman by the name of Clara Edwards. Not much appears in print about Miss Edwards, but the files of ASCAP list her regularly as a songwriter whose pieces are among the most popular in the repertoires of concert singers. She writes both words and music of her songs, using customarily the pseudonym of Bernard Haig as the author of the lyrics.

Her most popular number is "By the Bend of the River" which is a favored song of both Lily Pons and Grace Moore. Lawrence Tibbett frequently uses her song, "Gypsy Life," in his recitals. John Charles Thomas often sings her "With the Wind and Rain in Your Hair." Her "Sometimes at the Close of Day" has a conspicuous place in John McCormack's repertory.

Clara Edwards can be called "the concert singers' composer." She knows the particular knack of writing vivid songs for them. You see, she was once a concert singer herself.

Wonder why the legend of Rip Van Winkle has never been tapped for an opera?

Only one American composer was represented in the concert of the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra at the opening of New York's World's Fair. It is the little known Charles T. Griffes who died in 1920 at the age of 35. His work, "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla Khan," shared the program with Josef Hoffman's playing of Chopin's piano concerto in E minor, Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and Berlioz' "Roman Carnival."

The barber shop quartet, once an American institution, seems to have passed out of the American picture as definitely as the cakewalk, the minstrel show and the two-step.

Some new song titles indicative of current American razzle-dazzle: "Cuba-Duba-Doo," "Gotta Get Some Shut-Eye," "Good for Nothing But Love," "You're a Sweet Little Head-ache," "A Windy March and a Rainy April," "Chew, Chew Your Bubble Gum," "Sailing Little Boats in the Bathtub," "Turtle Twist," "I Love You So Much It Hurts" and "I'm in Love with the Honorable Mr. and Mrs. So and So."

Jonesboro can now be discounted as a contender for the county league baseball championship. This was proven conclusively when Mound slaughtered the hapless Eagles 22-2. The defending champions may come up and win the Saughnessy play-off but as to finishing in first place in the league standings, there is only a remote possibility. But the fans must remember one thing, that the Eagles are unpredictable.

Last year after losing to Mound in regular championship contests, they came back to win the play-off and become champions. This year they start off by beating the strong Pidcoke club, and fans around the county begin to believe that the Eagles will repeat. But what do the Eagles do but lose three straight games, 2 to Mound 10-6 and 22-2, and one to the local Gatesville team, 8-0. The Eagles, however, may execute another right-about face maneuver and embark on a winning streak that will carry them back up among the leaders.

Hazen Ward, one of the Eagles' best men, has moved to Gatesville and has, signed with the Gatesville club, adding strength

GATESVILLE WINS 3RD STRAIGHT OVER BLACKFOOT TEAM

A hot and ready Blackfoot Indian nine did not have enough punch to bother a listless Gatesville team and the locals took their third straight game, 3-1, to remain at the head of the list in the county baseball league standings. Bugg Jones allowed only 5 hits going the route to win his fourth straight victory.

The locals were outthusted, and only far superiority in all-round play enabled them to win. The Blackfoot boys were ready, and played a fine, heads-up game all the way.

The Hornets pushed across a run in the opening stanza when jittery Indian infield booted a couple of plays, and Pat Olsen did some nice base-running to come home. The score stayed that way until the last of the sixth until Lum Edwards, husky centerfielder for the Hornets, slammed one of Jader Barton's fast ones over the Indian centerfielder for a triple with two men scoring ahead of him.

The only Blackfoot tally came in the seventh, when Willard Long third on an infield out and came home when cagy Jack Barton caught Pat Olsen and Jones asleep with a nice bunt down the third base line.

Jader Barton went the route for the Indians, and turned the Hornets back with nine hits. Gatesville left five men on the base-paths, every hitter failing to come thru when a hit meant a run.

White Hall gave Pidcoke an unexpectedly tight battle, going down to a close 4-1 defeat. All the runs were scored the first inning, White Hall scoring their tally thru an error. McBroom, who pitched a beautiful game for the losers, was rather shaky at the start, and after a couple of errors behind him, was touched for three hits, thus enabling Pidcoke to tally 4 times. He settled down, however, and did not allow another tally, being particularly effective in the pinches.

Wiegand and Lockhart divided the mound work for the 'Cokers. Wiegand toiled five innings, using his puzzling slow ball most of the time, and allowed only two hits. Lockhart then stepped in and held the losers hitless the rest of the way.

Mound kept their undefeated slate clean by coming thru with a win over the fighting Turnersville Buffs, 10-6. Foy Wicker pitched fine ball during the early innings, but weakened and was jolted from the mound in the sixth inning. Sealy Holcomb, who pitched Mound to the 22-2 victory over Jonesboro last week, took over and did not allow a run, striking out seven Buffs during his tenure on the slab.

Moshiem forfeited their game to Jonesboro, and a report on the Topsey-Pearl game had not been received when the News went to press.

to a team that is already strong enough to be rated as one of the favorites. However, according to the eligibility rule, Ward will not be able to see action for two weeks. Hazen is a great hitter, and will add lots of punch to the Gatesville offense.

Gatesville club officials and fans were greatly pleased by the work of Tooter Hall Sunday against Moshiem. Hall pitched five innings and did not allow a run. Hall has always been a pretty fair country pitcher, but it is doubtful as to whether he can hold the big boys like Mound and Pidcoke in check.

Blackfoot is the dark horse of the race, fans from that section of the county claiming that the Indians have a fine club, one that might be capable of annexing the championship. It is this correspondent's opinion that the Indian club is not too well balanced. They have some fine playeds, but in certain spots the club is woefully weak. They have a fine manager in Jack Barton, a veteran hurler, and the club has fine spirit. They should be well up in the race all the way.
