Grand Jury will convene the second Monday in July in preparation for the coming session of the District Court. As yet, it looks as if there will be very little business for the Court this year.

TIME LIMITS ON BALL GAMES ANNOUNCED BY SCHLEY

According to an announcement from the office of Butter Schley, business manager of the softball league, all games of the softball league must start on time. League officials have been lenient with the teams this year, and the games have not been finished until nearly eleven o'clock, which Butter says "hurts my crowd."

The first game is supposed to start at eight o'clock, and if a club is not ready to go by 8:10, the game will be forfeited. The game will be called at 9:10, and the second game should start at 9:25.

Butter has asked that the players of the various teams cooperate with him in this attempt to run off the contests as scheduled.

DRIVER'S LICENSES WILL GET EXTENSION STAMPS

Texas drivers' licenses, which the State Legislature failed to provide for, although they expired last April, will be rubber stamped to extend their life until April 1, 1942, state police announced this week.

Chief Ralph L. Buell of the drivers' licenses division said department officers would be equipped with stamps for that purpose next week.

DOOLITTLE BEGINS PREPARATIONS FOR THE GROVE RODEO

With the scent of the sage still in his clothes and the dust of the rangeland in his whiskers, Austin Doolittle returned to The Grove a few days ago to begin preparations for the Tenth Annual Rodeo to be held there July 27-28. Mr. Doolittle has gone to much trouble and time to make this show one of the biggest in Central Texas, especially for the size of the place in which it is held.

No matter where the drifting cowboy is when rodeo time rolls around he always returns to his home town. Mr. Doolittle has been on the Four-Six ranche in King County since the rodeo held last year. Since his return he has been working almost incessantly toward making this tenth show one of the biggest and best of all the past shows.

PEARL BROWN TO RECEIVE M. A. DEGREE FROM COLUMBIA U.

Miss Pearl Brown, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Reb Brown of this city, left Wednesday for New York City, where she will attend the summer session at Columbia University. This is the fifth summer that Miss Brown has attended this institution; she will receive her Master of Arts Degree at the end of the session.

Miss Brown is a former faculty member of Gatesville High School, and was a member of the Abilene school faculty the past year.

BOWLING CONTEST AT QUEEN BEE FRIDAY NIGHT

A bowling contest will be staged tonight when the W.O.W. and the Queen Bee teams of this city meet two strong Waco teams in a matched tournament. A strong spirit of rivalry has always existed between local players and Waco players and this promises to be a very entertaining tournament.

Much interest has been manifested in bowling in this city as it proves to be a very good recreation as well as sport. The public is cordially invited to attend the tournament Friday night as well as to play at anytime they so desire.

BARTON REUNION

Each year on June 25 the friends and relatives of Mrs. John Barton and Mr. Tom Barton meet with them to celebrate their birthdays. This year the group gathered at Pecan Grove about 10:30 and the morning was spent laughing and talking. At noon, a picnic lunch was spread with two pretty cakes, bearing the words "Happy Birthday", in the center of the table.

The afternoon was spent swimming, wading and playing ball. About 40 enjoyed this happy occasion and each left hoping to meet with them next year.—One present.

Fair-ly

Batting It Out

(Note—There are three installments of this series of "Fair-ly Batting It Out", that you will find on page one of section two of this issue of the News. They precede this item and should be read first.—Pub.)

SEATTLE, AND GOING DOWN HILL THRU THE MTS. TO SPOKANE

Getting back to Seattle, after our hurried trip to Vancouver, we arrived about 6 p. m. and decided not to "do the city", since the points we wanted to see were some five or more miles from the city. This sight was the Seattle harbor locks, which are said to be the largest in the world barring the Panama Canal. Seattle, according to the dope we have is a fresh water port, that is, in the harbor, and the level of the water is kept by the locks.

Another thing to be seen in Seattle, which we saw, but not where we were supposed, were the totem poles made by the Indians of the region. They are carved out of long poles, probably 50 to 75 feet high and all the figures and artistry of the Indians is brought out in varicolored paints. Since we didn't go to the park to see these—and Seattle really has a wonderful park, we passed thru part of it—we saw one of these totem poles at one of the west's beautiful service stations. This, alone, is one of the outstanding parts of this trip, the service stations. They are the last word in cleanliness, service and speed. However, gas prices are considerably above what we are used to at home, the prices here range from 23 down to about 21, which is the lowest we've found. Eighteen cents, would be a miracle. This is the price of the standard gasolines, and there is no East Texas, and hardly any independents.

After leaving Seattle, we went into the hills, in the neighborhood of Mt. Ranier, which we could not see for the clouds and fog. Lakes, rivers, tall pines greeted us soon after leaving the city. The back country from Seattle is really beautiful, with the usual mountain roads, including the sharp turns, grades, and railings along the sides of the highway.

Friday night, we stayed at a mountain lodge, in a small town, Fall City, which is a winter and summer resort and not far up the mountain. After leaving Fall City, was the Snoqualie National Forest, and the Seattle Ski Glide, where the Coast folk, come in the winter to enjoy the winter sports. Places cleaned of the timber on the mountains for the ski glide or slide, looked too steep for us. There were many lakes in this region, and the fishermen were out with their equipment trying to snare the wily mountain trout.

Almost every hundred yards is a camp of some sort, many of them are small state provided camp lodges. Also in this region, are the ranger stations and forest preserves. Snoqualie Pass, was the high point of this morning (Saturday's) trip, and we ascended to a height of 3,004 feet. Since that time, we have been going down practically all the time, and this is about 2 hours later, and right now, we are going down a long slope of 12 miles, and right here before us is the Columbia River.

But, before we get to the Columbia River, we have a lot to talk about. We came down from the mountains, with the trees gradually disappearing, and with the Northern Pacific, ourselves, and the Milwaukee railroads on either side of the gorge, and with an irrigation flume following along with us, we came to a beautiful valley, featuring hay and cattle.

Gradually, after we started the 12 mile down stretch, we got out of the farming district, back into the desert or stock raising country. Before getting entirely out of the mountains, we came to Cle Elum, a small coal mining town that used to be, where, they say, the miners now only work two days a week, and from the looks of the closed stores, you could believe this. Many cafes were closed and one of the stores said business was rotten.

Dropping on down, finally we came to the Petrified Forest in Washington, which is nothing more than a lot of scattered petrified stumps out on a hill. In a very few minutes, were at Vantage the bridge which crosses the big blue Columbia. One of the men at the station, said there was a tribe of Indians, one of the only tribes in the U. S. that would not accept a reservation from the government. There are about 25 of them (families) and he said when Indians accepted help or "relief" from the government they all got so lazy and no good, that they finally all died out. That could be the same for the whites.

The canyon, which encloses the Columbia River at this point is a great deal along the order of the Grand Canyon, and looked grand enough to us. The country is still very western, with sage brush, and usual things that look Arizona and New Mexico.

Back to the river, it is, at this point, probably a quarter mile across, and is beautifully crystal clear, with blue color predominating. Since crossing, we have climbed considerable and are now out on a flat plateau, still, the desert sort, with no fences on either side.

Now, we are in the real western country, which looks much like the ranching district of West Texas. As far as you can see, it's grass, not so green, sage brush, scrubs, and tumble weeds. It's the desert back of the Coast Range, and west of the Rockies. The temperature has dropped from "cool in coats" to "hot in shirt sleeves".

Texas is certainly going to be a hot place to us after being on the west coast, and in "cool Colorado" for probably fifteen days. And, another thing, we didn't take quite heavy enough clothes, for the west coast, the Rockies and other more frigid points.

Although we didn't go within 50 mile of the Wenatche Range, we saw them from a distance, and there was snow on top of them, and the sight is beautiful, with the snow patches on the high rugged peaks.

Along about Snoqualie Pass, we were actually "in the clouds" and they came floating by us as we passed along over the grades. The snow, too was only a short distance from us. One of the windows in the car won't close, and we can't keep all the cold weather out, but, right now, we just about need them all down.

Since this is a "nothing to write about" part of the country, we'll get this off at Spokane, and begin the next spasm after passing that city.

Mrs. Gwyn Adams, superintendent of the Kleburg County Hospital at Kingsville, was a guest of relatives here last Thursday and Friday.

FROM THE COUNTY AGR'L AGENT

Dr. Lowrey selected from M. Womack four registered Hampshire ewes and a Hampshire ram as a start for a purebred Hampshire flock which he is starting on his farm south of Gatesville. These sheep were bought from M. Womack of Ennis, who is breeding a few very choice Hampshires there. It will be remembered that only a few years ago a group of men in the vicinity of Ennis bought from the Mount Haggin Land and Livestock Company, Anacanda, Montana, more than 400 registered, bred ewes which were used as the start of the largest Hampshire breeding undertaking in Texas at that time. Much interest is being shown in Hampshires in the farming section of Coryell County at this time.

The Farmer's Short Course, A. and M. College, is expected to be the largest in history in 1939. The present plan is for this year's Short Course to be divided into three divisions, the first being the one for the 4-H Boys and Girls beginning July 5th; the second division will be a conference of extension agents; and the last division will be for the farmers and their wives, July 12, 13, 14. Many men, women, boys and girls will attend this annual event. Those desiring to go from this county can receive further information thru the local County and Home Demonstration Agents.

Wilburn Cox, 4-H Club boy from Turnersville, is very enthusiastic over his 4-H Club work and is using this year as his demonstration 50 White leghorn chickens he secured from a well know Texas breeder. The chickens came from 300 egg stock. In addition to the poultry demonstration, Wilburn is feeding two Angus steer calves, which on finishing, will be shown at the local and the Waco show. He is planning to feed as a major portion of his ration home grown feeds, and thus will be making a market for feed grown on the farm.

Elmo King, Plainview 4-H Club boy continues to improve his already excellent Duroc hogs, by securing three outstanding gilts. One of these gilts was sired by the General, who was Champion of Nebraska. A half brother to this gilt was World's Reserve Champion boar in 1938. Half brothers to this gilt are being used by the following leading breeders. O. K. Flaugh, Illinois, the Lauxmont Farms, Pennsylvania, Sand Spring Home Farms of Oklahoma, and many others. Another gilt was sired by the "Vision", junior herd sire of Juhl Brother, Luverne, Minnesota. These breeders are known as some of the leading Duroc men of the United States. A third gilt is out of a daughter of "Duke Streamline", who was second to the National Champion in 1938. This gilt is of the same breeding thru her sire as Elmo's oldest boar, Classy New Hope.

With these three excellent individuals, which have outstanding breeding, Elmo is making every effort to make a herd second to none.

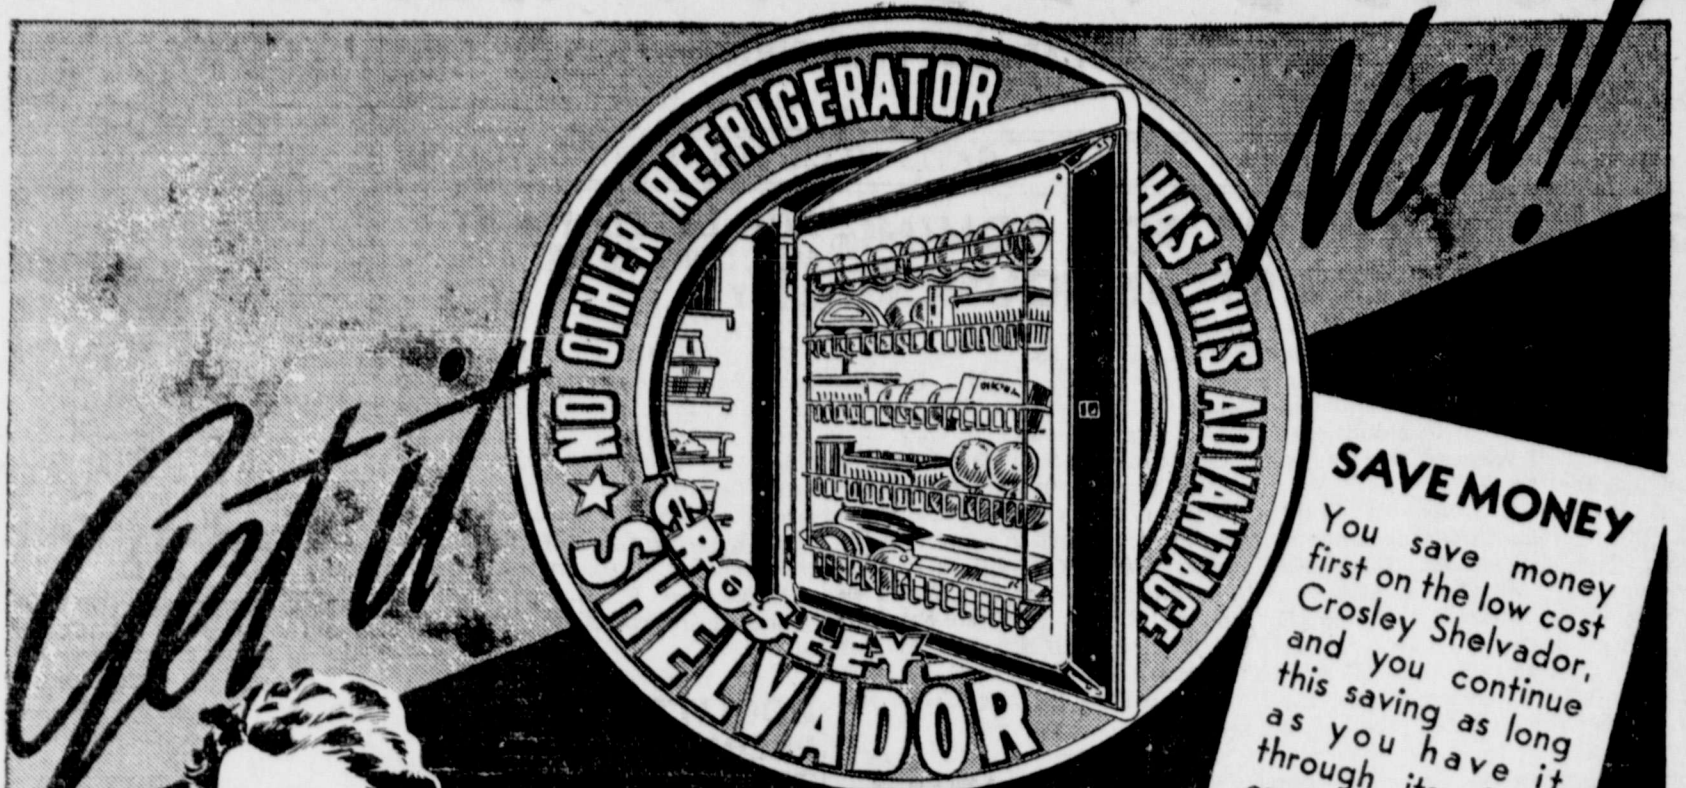

C.C.N. MAPLE CLUB NEWS

The Club met with Mrs. R. T. Brookshire as hostess on Thursday evening June 22. Work for the afternoon was setting a quilt together. A contest in which each member made a pot holder and the one who made the prettiest one received all of the holders, was held; Mrs. Gilbert Colvin was judged winner of the contest and received 13 beautiful pot holders. Pal gifts were exchanged, and names were drawn for new pals. Our next meeting will be Thursday, July 6. We will meet on the river for an all day outing with our families.

Mrs. Arthur Matthews is spending this week in Dallas with her daughter, Mrs. G. B. McCombs.

Mrs. C. L. Farrell and daughters, Nancy and Patsy, are visiting relatives in Galveston.

LIBERTY H-D CLUB

"Photography is fun and still it is useful and inexpensive," said Mrs. Calvin Perryman at the Liberty Home Demonstration Club meeting in the home of Mrs. Jack Billingsley on Tuesday afternoon, June 27.

As a hobby, photography is a popular because it is an easy way to create things. The first books given to little folks consist entirely of pictures. The use of pictures means that little writing is necessary.

Pictures that tell a story can be very useful. They offer a means of telling in a few words, the story of 4-H Club projects and other Club activities.

Photography enables a 4-H club member to keep an excellent record of his or her work. It heightens interest in Club work and promotes friendly rivalry between clubs.

Visitors present were Mesdames Lucian Sanders, T. V. Keller, T. H. Kelm, George Triggs Sr., G. J. Baize, Eustice Harris, George Hartin, Claud Griggs, George Griggs Jr., M. L. Foreman, Ralph Griggs, Misses Madell Seale, Maudine Onstott, Charlene Onstott, Irene Kelm, Larene Kelm, Pauline Glaze, Violet Tyson, Isabell Perryman, Gladys Baize, and Mary Jane Harris.

FIREMEN LEADING LEAGUE RACE WITH THREE WINS

The hustling Firemen club surprised the local softball fans by playing seemingly inspired ball during the first week of the city circuit race and are now leading the league with three and one-half wins with a one-half mark in the loss column.

Doc Ray has been pitching better softball than he hurled last year, and the entire Firemen club has given him fine support. Frank Morgan, flashy shortstop, has been all over the field, making impossible plays to cut off runs and deaden rallies.

Rankin and Ray have been the big guns of the smokeaters' attack, each slamming out long hits every night. The Firemen whipped two of the best teams in the league,

Red and White and Highway. They won on a forfeit from the CCC camp.

The young Arnold's Electric club has yet to lose a game, whipping the Highway and CCC. Red and White, one of the favorites, won from the CCC but lost to the Firemen, while the Coca-Cola defeated the Highway 9-2 last Thursday night, and then turned around and were beaten by the same club, 6-4, the following Monday night.

What Helps Business Helps You!

there were hundreds of revival meetings held in Texas which meetings would never have been held had it not been for such an organization as the one outlined above.

For this year Dr. B. O. Herring of Waco is serving as the District Organizer in Evangelism. Rev. M. O. Cheek, the District Missionary in this District (14) is working with him. The Organizer for the Leon River Association is Rev. LeRoy Smith of Waco, who is Pastor at Pidcoke and Osage. He has already aligned churches and places in this Association where approximately fifty meetings will be held. The aim is that there shall be a meeting in every corner of the Leon River Association. As this article is being written figures are not at hand as to the number of meetings actually held last year but it is thought that a number more will be held this year. Throughout the entire state last year something over seventy thousand people were added to the membership of the churches. This year there should be a much larger number.

We are not after numbers but we are after people for the Lord. The word Evangelism comes from two words in the Greek meaning "good tiding" and "bringer of good tidings". The scripture command is "do the work of an evangelist" or do the work of the bringer of good tidings. The task before us now and always is to take the good tidings of the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ to a lost world beginning at Jerusalem-Judaea (Gatesville and Coryell County) and to the uttermost part of the earth.

The Associational Organizer for the Cooperative program and for our other Denominational efforts in the Association, is C. M. Spalding, pastor of the Church in Gatesville. This work is different from the work of the Evangelistic Organizer outlined above. The Associational Organizer will do what ever the churches in the Association will let him do in the matter of keeping the Denominational program before them, in helping to organize their financial program if they so desire, and in any other matter that they may feel he can serve them in.

At the State Convention last year a goal of One Million Dollars was set for the Cooperative Program for 1939. Will we raise this amount? What are the prospects? (Continued next week)

GATESVILLE, TEXAS, FRIDAY, JUNE 30, 1939

We have just today (Friday the 23rd) received the news that the Texas Legislature adjourned without passing any tax bill to finance the old-age assistance system. I do not mean any criticism of any member of the Legislature. I know how hard it is to get a chance to vote for a fair tax bill here or at Austin. I am afraid that as long as the oil and sulphur interests can keep from paying their share of taxation that we are going to have great difficulty in Texas in getting adequate revenue to finance our pensions. I blame no one, but I recognize that the difficulties in Texas are common to other great raw material States, and I hope that the Federal government can help them solve the problem. I had hoped that the amendments to the Social Security Act would give us some help. As passed by the House, these amendments did not carry any real relief to the people of the poorer States. I, therefore, expect to introduce a bill the first of next week (before you will read this) creating a Federal pension system for all citizens over 65, and for all adult cripples, including the blind. The bill provides a direct Federal pension of $30.00 per month with no property qualifications of any kind, and with no social workers to investigate the applications. The bill expressly repeals the present old-age insurance, and assistance provisions of the Social Security Act along with the taxes levied in Title VIII.

We, in the United States, are now operating a system of old-age insurance and old-age assistance that will require approximately $1,855,000,000.00 per year in payroll and other taxes. To pay $30.00 per month to each person over 65 according to the 1930 census will require $2,388,000,000.00, and if there are 1,000,000 adult cripples and blind in the United States, their pensions will cost an additional $360,000,000.00. The proposed program will cost about $900,000,000.00 more than the present system, but it will reach vast numbers of needy old, blind, and cripples citizens who are not touched by the present program. At the same time it will relieve industry of the burdensome payroll tax now levied for this purpose and will shift the tax burden to those centers of wealth and income that properly pay the bulk of our Federal taxes. Many of our people have overlooked the fact that any pension program financed by any kind of sales or transaction tax would but take money from each community and pay it back into the same community. On the other hand, a pension system financed by a Federal income and excise tax would take money from the centers of wealth and scatter it out throughout the Nation. I full well recognize that this plan will cost money. I have no desire or intention of appealing to anyone with a promise of "something for nothing". Texas pays less than two and one-half per cent of the total Federal tax. Texas has more than five per cent of the citizens eligible under this bill. It, therefore, seems clear to me that this form of pension is most helpful to Texas. I realize that no pension program of this magnitude can be enacted without a long and bitter struggle, but I am convinced we should start the job. I am, therefore, firing the first gun and I hope that the reasonableness of the program both from the standpoint of the amount of pensions and of the method of taxation will command the support of all except the special Eastern interests who would be forced to carry a large share of the burden.

The week just passed has been a very active one for the House. One week ago tonight we stayed in session until 1:30 a. m., passing the W. P. A. or Relief Bill. While I think we placed some undesirable restrictions on P. W. A. and did not give it enough money to even start to carry out the program of construction of projects already approved, we did undoubtedly provide some very wholesome regulations for W.P.A. I regret exceedingly that we were unable to place a requirement in the bill that there should be no greater differential in wages for the same kind of work in different localities than the difference in cost of living justified. I voted for such an amendment but it was defeated.

On Monday we passed a revision of the tax law that should tend to some extent to remove some of the complaints of business. We did not actually reduce the total tax bill, but most everyone thinks that we did equalize our tax burden a little better. Later in the week we made provision for the training of a great many army airplane pilots for the new machines that we provided should be built at once. Still later, we acted on the Conference Committee report on the Agricultural Appropriation Bill. We were able to retain the appropriation for parity payments for next year by only five votes, 180 to 175. We also retained the $113,000,000.00 for the disposition of surplus farm commodities with a limitation on the amount that could be used to pay export subsidies on cotton, but we lost the effort to provide the full $50,000,000.00 for the tenant home purchase program, and we did not get all we wanted for the control of Pink Boll Worms. We did, however, get a very fair sum for each, and all in all, I feel that we were very fortunate.

We are very happy to hear of the fine rains at home and to know that prospects are so encouraging.

(Note: Following is the new pension bill to be introduced by Mr. Poage—Editor.)

Batting It Out

"TREE-mendous TREES and HOT DOGS"

Yes, they're both just that. All afternoon until late at night (it didn't get dark until about 9:00 p. m.) we rode thru the redwoods, on 101, and right down the El River gorge.

We'll tell you, folks, the fair isn't in it for beauty—no fair is. This is being written the morning of the 21st, and right this very minute, we're going thru another redwood grove. The trees, are some 15 to 20 feet thru at the bottom, and range from 200 to 364 feet high, the tallest in the world. These trees are not the largest in the world, but there are more of them, and they are the tallest in the world.

Of course, we don't know anything about the other highways, but, if you ever make a trip to California, if you miss this wonderfully scenic highway, you're just plain nuts. No air, train or other means of travel will compare in the least to an automobile trip up this highway.

Besides grove on grove of the "big boys" there is fern. Under the cool trees, the fern grows wild, and the forest is absolutely solid with it. In Texas we buy it, and put with our sprays and flowers. Here it grows wild, and free.

The Big'uns start between Ukiah and Willets, and well, we are as far up now past Klamath, and we're still in the big ones.

At Eureka, we came back to the Pacific, and what a sight, folks. Trees, and the big ones, grow right down to the waters edge. Great cliffs are on our left going up, and on our right is an other high bluff. We are about 150 feet or more above the water and the hills are an equal height on above us. These figures are vertical and not "on the slant".

Flowers of all kinds are everywhere along the road, and the dampness and the fogs, keep everything green as a gourd. It is not necessary to take a chute-the-chute, as we have hundreds of miles of highway, with sharp turns curves, precipices on either side, steep slopes, steep hills, high points—everything, and besides, chuting down between redwoods 200 to 200 feet high, with a two lane highway where you have to watch your driving and turning. Much of the highways in and near the larger cities are three and four lane, and nothing too good can be said about California highways.

You're probably wondering why the hot dog heading. It's just this way. We got to Arcata, California last night, the 20th, where we stayed for the night, and went over to a little cafe to eat. Three of us ordered Hot Dogs, which were advertised as ONE FOOT LONG, and folks, they certainly were. We've seen the big "Poor Boy Sandwiches" in New Orleans, but these foot-long hot dogs in Arcata, California have got the world beat. Suppose some of the tall trees might have had something to do with the length of the sandwich. They were only 10c with a bun to match, and the bun was longer than the hot dog.

Just about this time, we came to what is said to be the biggest tree in the world, which we doubted, but went and saw it anyhow. It was the General Custer tree, and also another extremely large one, the General Pershing tree.

The first, was estimated to be 4,000 years of age, and was 32 feet in diameter at the bottom, and had been broken off at the 300-foot height. Anyway, they were some trees. Leading to the place we went over a log bridge, which was said to have been 1,000 years old, and it might or might not be, who knows.

Coming into this grove, we pas-

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

TODAY ONLY: $5 BILLS FOR $1.98

MANY times, on a wager, men have tried to sell $5 bills to strangers for as little as $1.98—legitimate $5 bills worth $5 anywhere. They have usually failed.

The reason is simple to see: Lack of confidence.

Their proposition sounded too good to be true, failed to arouse the confidence of the prospects, who were afraid to buy.

No one trusted the seller because no one knew him. He might be a counterfeiter. Who knows? He might have some trick up his sleeve. Who knows? Better have nothing at all to do with him.

Confidence is the mainspring of business. Without it no business can succeed and no product can be sold, because before any one of us is willing to part with a penny, we must have confidence that that which we are going to buy will give us value received.

Confidence is not a matter which can be bought. It must be earned. It is a process of growth. The idea of confidence grows from one customer to the next one. It gives vitality to everything about a business.

When confidence enters into a business transaction, everything about it becomes pleasant. But whenever confidence is absent, no amount of any other qualities can take its place.

You have often bought something from someone you did not know, say a solicitor who succeeded in taking away your money at the door. Will you ever see him again? Will you get the goods you have paid for? Was it a miniature swindle? You wonder and worry.

You spend hours in painful doubt. Perhaps everything turned out all right. Even so, the profit went out of the transaction when you had to worry about getting your money's worth. Buy goods that are advertised from merchants who advertise. There lies confidence.

One of the chief services of newspaper advertising to consumers is that it denotes which merchants or products are worthy of confidence.

Because newspaper publishers are so jealous of their advertising columns and are quick to reject anything which does not live up to their standards, readers know that if a thing is regularly advertised in the newspaper it is worthy of their confidence.

As a matter of fact, the appearance of an advertisement in a newspaper is recommendation of the character and quality of the goods being advertised.

SYNOPSIS
Heathcliff, a gypsy boy, comes to Wuthering Heights, and grows to love its young mistress, Cathy Earnshaw. Reduced to madness by her brother, and to fury by Cathy's welcome for the attentions of rich young Edgar Linton, although Cathy loves him, Heathcliff leaves in a rage. Cathy married Edgar, and years later Heathcliff returns wealthy and the new master of Wuthering Heights.

Chapter Five

At Wuthering Heights, where Heathcliff had taken contemptuous command of the sodden, wretched Hindley, Isabella Linton came one day to pay a visit. She stopped at the manor house with the excuse that her horse was lame, which Heathcliff quickly perceived to be a clumsy pretext to disguise her loneliness. He told her so, frankly, and kissed her.

Three weeks after Isabella had come to Wuthering Heights, Cathy and Edgar Linton gave an elaborate party at Thrushcross Grange. Cathy and Heathcliff had looked upon the same glittering scene years ago, through a window; this time he came as Isabella's guest. She awaited his coming without thought of anything else. But when he came, impeccably dressed and a thoroughly commanding figure, he had eyes for only one in

Then Isabella appeared, whispering to Heathcliff of the night air and the romantic music. An idea formed in his brain.

Later, Cathy stormed into Isabella's room.

"It was bad enough—your asking him here—but to make a spectacle of yourself—to throw yourself at him..."

"Catherine! Be careful of what you say!"

"You fool! You vain little fool!" Cathy exclaimed. "He's been using you... Don't you see what's he's been doing—using you to be near me, to smile at me behind your back—to try to rouse something in my heart that's dead... dead! I'll not have it any longer! And I'll not allow you to help him any longer!"

"It's you who are vain and insufferable," Isabella said softly. "Heathcliff's in love with me."

"It's a lie!" screamed Cathy, wildly.

"It's not a lie. He's told me so. He's kissed me... and told me that he loves me!"

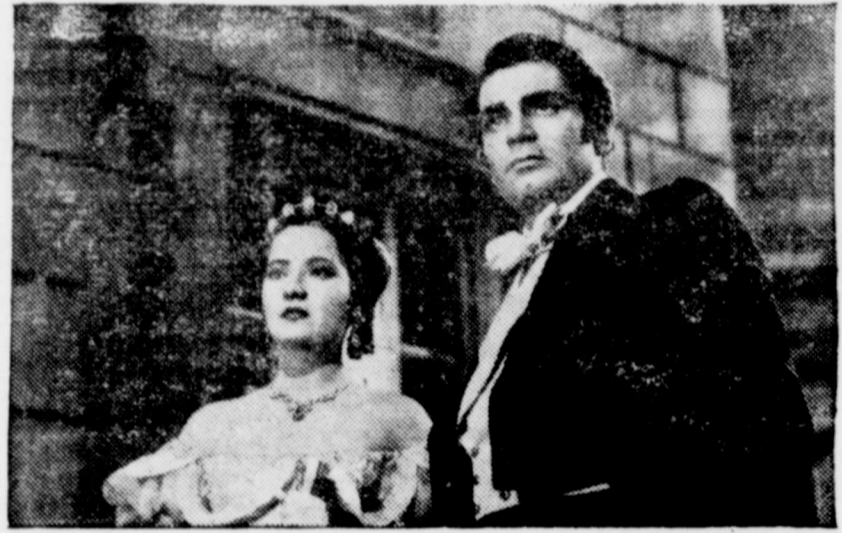

"No! No!"

"He's asked me to marry him! Heathcliff's going to be my husband!"

"Isabella, you can't!" Cathy moaned. "Heathcliff is not a man but something dark and horrible to live with."

"Do you imagine, Catherine, I don't know why you're acting so?" said Isabella slowly and cruelly. "It's because you love him."

Cathy flamed, and flew at Isabella, slapping her full upon the the room, for Cathy, breathlessly beautiful in a lovely all-white gown, her cheeks flushed with the dance, her whole bearing one of gaiety. His eyes burned for her, and at first opportunity he took her arm and led her to the balcony. She smiled at him.

"Are you enjoying yourself, Heathcliff?"

"I've had the pleasure of watching you."

"You're ever so grand, Heathcliff—so strong and handsome. Looking at you tonight I could not help but remember—how things used to be."

"I used to be better," he said moodily.

Cathy was gay. "Don't pretend that life hasn't improved for you!"

"I don't call it living to hover outside the gates of somebody else's heaven," he said slowly.

"Please..." said Cathy. "No melancholy speeches. Let's just stand and watch the moors."

He was tense, aflame with her presence, and saying:

"How can you stand here beside me and not remember? And not know that my heart is breaking for you, Cathy? That your face is the one little light burning in all this darkness... Oh, Cathy!"

"Heathcliff!" she said in a frightened voice. "No! I forbid it!"

"And do you forbid what your heart is saying to me now, Cathy?"

"It's saying nothing." She was white, and trembling.

"It is! It is! I can hear it louder than the music. Oh, Cathy! Cathy!"

His arm was around her, for she weakened and seemed about to faint before the love in his eyes. Her lips parted.

"I'm not the Cathy that was. Can you understand that? I'm somebody else... I'm another man's wife and he loves me—and I love him..."

"Not he, not the world... not even you can stand between us, Cathy."

She turned from him and ran into the room, unable to reply.

Mrs. Willis Jones said she was going to wet her tootsies in the Pacific, so now, we stopped for the ablu-tion. It looks too cold for us and we've been in in warmer climes, and don't believe we'll get wet. In fact, so did Mildred and Mr. Jones.

You've heard about the rock strewn beaches of Maine, well California has them too. In fact, we don't know of anything any other state has that California doesn't.

The beach at "point of foot-washing" and practically all the way up, is black beach, the sand ground up from the granite rocks on the cliffs and that which comes down the rivers. Only short beaches are available, and then rugged rocks. Far out, sometimes for a mile, there are rocks, sometimes showing above the water, and sometimes, they can't be seen, but the water is white, indicating it is washing over them. This is one reason there are hardly ever any ships in sight. They don't dare come in close.

We forgot to mention the Levi Straus Overall exhibit at the fair. These Levis are sold in Gatesville by Alvis-Garner Company, and we are sending Mr. Alvis a card showing a picture of the exhibit.

This is a mechanical Rodeo, with announcer who speaks, Rodeo Managers from different points, a buckin' horse comes out of the chute, and Homer and his Mule, who played the Fort Worth Stock Show, come out and puts on his act. Also, Gene Autrey, sings a western tune.

We thanked the attendant for listing the Gatesville Rodeo and Frontier Celebration on their list of Rodeos and noticed the Brady, Belton, Falfurrias and other Texas Rodeos were listed. This exhibit was one of the cleverest we have seen anywhere.

At Crescent City, we stopped at the office of the Del Norte Tripli-cate, named this way because it is a consolidation of three or more papers. The town is 2500 or was, and it has two newspapers. There also the Triplicate gets out be-sides its regular issue, another labor paper entitled the Free Pree, and a propaganda sheet, called the Western Advocate or something.

The reason for this propaganda sheet is that the coast counties up here, pay all the taxes. The industries are tourists, dairying, a little farming, lumbering and fishing. Most of the counties are forest, and the government owns much of the land. The Advocate advocates the government paying to the counties some of the taxes on the land, which will lift a part of the burden which is shouldered on the small parts of the counties along the highway. Most of each county is forest, and owned by the government which allows outside companies to cut the timber, and no taxes are paid on this govern-ment land.

"OREGON" PRONOUNCED
HERE, AW-RE-GON:
FOREST AND COAST

Oregon, is in three or four words, fishing, tourists, lumbering, and dairying

That's the Pacific side of the state, over the west side of the mountains.

Tourists probably lead. The climate here is the same or practi-cally so, they say, the year 'round, and it's just grand, like a Late Spring morning in Central Texas. Cool, but not hot, not cold, and blankets are necessary at night.

No one goes in shirt sleeves.

Believe we wrote yesterday from northern California, and visited a newspaper office at Crescent City, as we might have explained.

The coast counties, pay the taxes for the country and they're not particularly delighted about it. They want Uncle Sam to pay taxes on the immense forest reserves off which he is selling lumber to out-siders. That, we think, would be about right for the Oregonians.

At 12:00 noon we got to Oregon, Brookins, where we ate dinner, and met another Texan from Weatherford, who had lived in Orange and had oil properties in Rockport and was coming to Texas to dis-pose of them.

The "Ohs" and Ahs" really came out of all of us, as we continued up this Oregon Trail, the same highway U. S. 101. The scenery is superb, the curves worse than a roller coaster, and the souvenirs are legion. In California, northern part, it was Redwood, in lower Oregon it was Cedar and Myrtle-wood. Myrtlewood, seems to be something like walnut, and works up into very pretty novelties when it is polished.

Going up the coast, we saw such places as Pistol River, Gold Beach, Denmark, Port Orford. At Brandon, we saw where the forest had burned in 1936 and completely burned the town with the excep-tion of one house, which was a laundry. Eleven lives were lost during this fire, and it burned thousands of acres of beautiful timber. You can't realize what a forest fire is until you have seen the gaunt bare burned timbers sticking up over the hills and the scrub timber, and fern which has since grown up and covers the hills.

Harbors on the coast up from Frisco are very scarce, only a few being passed on the way up. These are Humbolt in California, just a small steam trawler and lumber schooner harbor, and at Coos Bay, Brandon, Reedsport and Marshfield. In the latter was one ship, which was of the same type as come into Houston and Galves-ton, but the other ports could only handle the steam trawlers or fish-ing boats, and the steam lumber schooners.

Three hundred feet above the ocean, is nothing along this route, and with possibly 300 more feet above to the top of the hills or mountains. Jagged rocks, treach-erous shoals line the coast, which is dotted with lighthouses, such as Hecta Head, Cape Arago, Cape Sebastian and Cape George light house.

On the way up, above Florence, we saw the Sea Lions, and at many points, there were aquar-iums were all sorts of fish and sea animals are kept for "tourist consumption". At one place you CAN pay $1.50 to see the Sea Lions, but only a short distance up, you can see at the State Sea Lion Rock. Park, the Sea Lions for nothing.

De Poe Bay, just around Cape Foulweather, it a little fishing and pleasure resort where they have a 12 foot tide. The small fish-ing craft in the back bay were sit-ting in the mud as the tide was out. It looked like pictures you've seen of points in New England, but there, the tide is sometimes as much as 25 feet or more.

Last night, we stayed at Yachat, a small town, where we, you might say, slept with our backs leaned up against a pine, and our feet in the Pacific. A dandy little place to stop. In fact, along 101, you hardly ever get away from suit-able cabins, which range from the cheapest sort all the way up to the most expensive ones. You can pay what you want to, and usually get what you pay for.

At Otis, we turned regretfully away from the ocean, toward Port-land, inland. Soon, we were in a beautiful farming and logging community and, warmer country. Soon, the sun came out and now it is warm.

At Wilamina, we went to a saw mill. There, we saw the big tim-bers handled all thru the mill. On the first operation, the big buzz saws take off the slabs, square the logs up, and pass them over to another operation which cuts them. There the cutoff saw saws them to certain lengths. The grader grades and marks them, and they are separated and sent to the planers. These, slick them up, and they are stacked.

The most outstanding show of the mill, was the high truck, which drives over a lumber stack, pneu-matically picks it up, drives on, going backward or forward just about at the same rate, drops the load, and goes on it's way. We saw the first one of these in San Jose. The front and back wheels both steer, and the motor is about 10 feet above the wheels, and it is driven by a chain drive.

After leaving the saw mill, we got back into the cherry, apple, and grain country. The grain here has not yet turned ripe, and the corn is only about a foot or more high. Roses in this part of the country are of all shades. Yester-day, we passed thru the Azalea and Rodendron country, growing all over the landscape. This coast country is rich with all kinds of flowers and things grow very rank. Particularly noticeable is the fern which grows everywhere, and rank-est under the trees in the forest.

Another noticeable thing to peo-ple from a "mule county" are the beautiful draft horses. They don't use many tractors here, and no mules or lightweight horses. They are all of the draft variety, and have curly manes and tails, and big feet—real horses.

In the Newberg-Dundee sec-tion, the feature and the best crops are the walnut groves. Most of them are just as clean as the pave-ment, and there are acres and acres of them.

This also must be a part of the country where there is lots of honey, as we just got a bee in the car, which as you might expect caused a little scrambling and stopping.

Soon we'll be at Portland, which is on the big Columbia River, the famous salmon river where the fish go up. We were told in south Oregon that this was the time of the salmon run, and we're hoping so as we certainly are going to see this, if it can be seen.

We'll tell you all about this, when we leave Portland, which won't be long as we are nearing the city now.

PORTLAND, VANCOUVER, B. C.
TO SEATTLE AND RETURN

We left you yesterday, just be-fore we arrived in Portland, since which time, we've taken the time out just to look. Always we are afraid we will miss something, that you might or might not want to hear about.

Highlighting the scenery in and about Portland, is, of course, Mt. Hood, which fortunately, in this land of non-perpetual sunshine, we were able to see, it's top stuck up in the clouds, and it's perma-nently covered snow sides spark-ling in the sun below.

And don't get the idea that we were at all close to the mountain. It was reported at some places to be 80 and some 55 miles away, and that's just as close as we ever got to it. Anyway, our Bird's Eye View was something that isn't seen in Texas often, as the old mountain soars to the sublime height of 11,225 feet high, and that's lots of feet, straight up.

In Portland, we only stopped for dinner, and just drove thru the city, whose population is, well at least well in the hundred thou-sands, and is like all of the Pacific Northwest cities, a lumbering, shipping, dairying and fishing cen-

Treasure Island Throng Enjoys Fair

On foot, in rolling chairs, rickshaws and on Elephant Trains, thousands visit every part of the California World's Fair daily, seeking out each beauty spot, every fascinating exhibit and attending each important event. Here is a part of the crowd along the Avenue of Olives, which separates the exhibit palace area and the Gayway. The Elephant Trains, Treasure Island "taxis," furnish the chief means of mass transportation about the 400-acre island.

Batting It Out—

ter. Also, like all of them, labor troubles have things tied up, and even the President is attempting to unravel this situation, which, according to West Coasters, themselves, is becoming more of big racket, than Union Labor.

Since we only stayed there long enough to get something to eat, our views of the city were limited.

Fortunately up to Portland, the weather had been a little cloudy at times, but shortly after leaving Portland, it began looking bad. Later, after passing Olympia, Washington weather showed itself, and it began misting, and continued until today about noon.

At Olympia, a small (relatively small) town in Washington is the Washington State capitol, which reminds a little of the capitol at Austin. There are very few, about three, other state buildings there. Shortly after passing Olympia, we came to Ft. Lewis, a permanent Army Post, and adjoining was the summer camp of the Washington National Guard, which was "in session" when we passed. They had been down as far as Long Beach, California on maneuvers, according to the papers.

In Portland Harbor, as well as all the other harbors in this part of the country, besides the regular freight and passenger vessels, which are numerous, we see four and five mast schooners, which tell of the days when there were iron men and wooden ships, instead of wooden men and iron ships as the saying goes.

At Portland, we crossed the Willamette River, and not knowing, we thought it was the big Columbia river. However, as most of Portland is on the north side of this river, and then we came to the Columbia. There was no doubting the Columbia river, it is some river. In fact, we believe there are probably as many bridges in Washington as any state in the Union. We pass many rivers, nearly as big as the Brazos, which are not even shown on the map. Lakes are the same way, and there are hundreds of them, each one of them with hundreds of cabins and resorts on them. People here expect the tourist crop to add materially to their bank rolls, and certainly it does. However, many people from these cities have summer homes on the lakes and rivers.

In southern Washington, they told us we might be able to see the salmon run, but after getting north, they told us the salmon running was just about over, and that the canneries would shut down shortly.

Showing that there is much Pacific coast faith in the Townsend Plan, in nearly every city we pass, they have Townsend clubs, and all along the highways, they have various signs enlisting favor for this questionable scheme for a bonanza. It was forced to a vote in Washington recently and it seems this will only be a start. Down in California, we bought an official Townsend Plan newspaper, and also the famous Ham & Eggs paper, which covers the $30 Every Thursday Plan, another overworked scheme for laziness.

Tacoma, another large city, was the next stop, a city of 108,200, and we drove thru on a 4-lane highway, on to Seattle, some 35 miles away. After a night in Seattle, we went to Bellingham, 31,700, and then on to Blaine, a small town, the last one before crossing the Canadian border into Canada. Cloverdale, the first town on the Canadian side, we stopped at the weekly newspaper office, got some samples of Canadian country newspapers.

Then, New Westminster, and on to Vancouver, Canada, the entire trip being about 165 miles.

In Vancouver we walked around a bit, down to the bay, after crossing a very high bridge over the Frazier river, and saw the Empress of Asia, one of the larger passenger vessels, and came back up town, where we went thru a large department store, the Hudson Bay Company, which was established in 1670. It had everything, including escalators, those moving stairways that take you up stairs without walking, which are very scarce in Texas, if there are any at all.

Souveniring and post carding concluded our stay there, as you know, folks it is the 23 and we've got lots of miles between us and Gatesville.

All these towns have the regular stores you see in Texas, The Rexall Stores, (Mr. Foster), Western Auto Associate Stores, (Mr. Hix), Goodyear, (Mr. Chamlee), Fire stone, (Mr. Freeman) and we saw a Canadian Ford Assembly plant, (Mr. Anderson). The most noticeable thing about these towns, is the big milk plants, both the cooperative ones and Carnation, Borden and a dozen other big milk companies about which you have heard. Then, there are very large cooperative chick hatcheries, and some just as beautiful as a castle. The chickens all seem to be white. Cattle are mostly thoroughbreds, they look, and are Holsteins, Guernseys, and a few Jerseys, and another kind we don't know about. Most of the farms from San Francisco raise hay crops, it seems, exclusively for home consumption and feed the hay to the dairy cattle.

One thing about the Washington-Oregon coast route is the lack of trains. There were none along the coast route in Oregon, and in Washington, the Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific and Milwaukee are very much in evidence where there are any railroads. Arriving in Canada, it is the Canadian National Railroad.

In Our Mail Box

June 26, 1939
I shall greatly appreciate your passing on to your readers in Coryell County these brief words of praise of the excellent record made by our Representative, Weldon Burney, in the 46th Legislature. This is not a defense of the manner in which this young statesman conducted himself during the most turbulent session in Texas legislative history because his conduct needs no defense. As a Coryell County citizen who followed the session very carefully here in Austin, however, I know that the record made by our Member of the Texas House is certainly deserving of the highest praise from a grateful constituency.

When the major oil companies and the big land companies attempted to steal the greatest asset of the Permanent School Fund by House Bill Number 9, in its original form, Weldon Burney used his vote and influence to force such changes in the proposed law as would change a vicious bill into constructive legislation and protect the school children of Texas from the greedy hands of selfish vested interests.

He expended untiring efforts to change the "truck load limit law" so that farmers and ranchers in Texas could avoid the unfair and discriminatory rates of other forms of transportation and the losses that are occasioned by the inability of trucks operating under the present law to get perishable farm products and livestock to markets at the proper time.

His crowning achievement, however, was the record he made with respect to taxation measures. Realizing that the people of Texas want a reasonably financed social security program, Weldon Burney cast his vote for every REASONABLE measure designed to raise revenue for the payment of old age pensions, teachers retirement benefits, and the other expenses of our social security program. He authored, voted and fought for the "Omnibus Tax Bill" that would have levied a tax on the sale of such luxuries as diamonds, expensive automobiles, motor boats, amusements and the natural resources. Statesmanship and common sense required him to support this measure which so nearly perfectly conformed with the fundamental principle of laying necessary taxes on those most able to pay them, and which experts testified would raise sufficient money to pay all the State's social security obligations.

Against the greatest "pressure" ever imposed upon any group of Legislators in the history of Texas, Weldon Burney refused to "sell out" the people of his district, and of the entire State, in exchange for just ANY KIND of money raising measure. When major oil company, utilities, chain store, and big insurance company representatives and lobbyists whose fame for opposing taxes on their companies is widespread came to him and begged him to put a tax on them thru a constitutional amendment, he decided it was time for him to make a very careful examination of the pending measure. He found that it provided that the small tax on natural resources levied by it could never be increased so long as eleven Senators should vote against the increase, even if the rest of the 181 members of the Legislature, and nine out of every ten citizens in the State wanted to increase it. He found that the proposed constitutional amendment put a greater tax on the hard working farmer and laborer than it did on the "cracker crunching, miserly millionaire." He found that, instead of being a measure that would allow the people to "settle this old age pension problem", it was, in effect, a command to the people either to accept a tax that would take bread from the working man's table and a binding agreement that the tax on special interests should never be greater for social security than the small tax levied by the proposal, or to get no money at all for old age pensions. He recognized that there was no more democracy about this than there is about the command of Adolph Hitler to the German people that they either vote for him or suffer the consequences of their failure to do so. I have no doubt but that Weldon Burney would have voted to submit any measure to the people that would have allowed them to choose whether our old age pension program should be financed by an income tax, a sale-natural resource tax, a selective sales tax on luxuries, or some other form of tax. I have no doubt but that he would have forever opposed any proposed constitutional amendment that said to the people: "You take this particular form of tax that is to be stuffed down your throats now and forever, or your old people can't get their old age pensions until after 1940, at least."

As a citizen of Coryell County, and of the great democratic State of Texas, I thank God for the courage and statesmanship of Weldon Burney in the 46th Legislature.

Sincerely yours,
W. Gail Walley Jr.
