Mrs. Ola Mae Parks vs. Clara E. Parks, suit for partition; judgement for plaintiff.

BEN WEST DIED SUDDENLY AT HIS HOME AT 11 A.M. THURS.

Ben West, for some 52 years, a resident and well known real estate, insurance and farm operator died suddenly at his home on East Leon street yesterday morning about 11 a. m.

Mr. West had been recuperating from a recent extended illness and in talking to John P. Reesing, one of his closest friends, about 10:30, said he was feeling fine.

He transacted a little business in the car, and with Mrs. West, they drove to the bank and then back home. Shortly afterward, while he was in the bathroom, he became suddenly sick, and passed away before a doctor could arrive.

Mr. West had been prominent in civic and political affairs of the city and county for many years, and usually acted as a delegate to political conventions, as well as election judge for one of the Gatesville wards. He had, for many years, been a member of the Gatesville school board, and was a member at the time of his death.

He was associated with C. H. McGilvray in the insurance and real estate business.

Funeral arrangements, as yet, are incomplete as many relatives live out of the state and word has not been received as to whether they will be able to attend or when they will arrive.

REV. R. C. BRINKLEY HOLDS REVIVAL AT ANTELOPE

REV. R. C. BRINKLEY

BOWLING BECOMING A POPULAR SPORT

The Queen Bee bowling team met Aeri's club from Waco Monday night in a three-game tournament of bowling. Showing very good playing form the local club downed the Waco boys all three games for an easy victory.

Much interest is being manifested in bowling now and more are becoming interested in the game every day. Tuesday night Aeri's club will return for a return bout with the Queen Bee club and it looks like a revenge game.

Friday night of next week two local teams, the Queen Bee and the Double Cola clubs, will journey over to Waco to compete with two clubs there for a round of competitive games.

Several clubs have been formed here and many more tournament games are being planned for the near future.

Starting today a free period of bowling from 10 to 11 a. m. will be given for the ladies. The Special rate for ladies will be retained lasting until 6 p. m. each afternoon. New light balls have been bought for the special use of ladies and every effort will be extended to make the game a pleasure to them. The instructor will be glad to give free instructions to any lady wishing to learn the game.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jameson of Meridian spent Sunday with Mrs. Jameson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hinson, and other relatives in Gatesville.

WORK ON "WHITE WAY" PROGRESSES RAPIDLY

Work is progressing rapidly on Gatesville's "White Way" and according to Eiland Lovejoy, city secretary, they expect to be ready to "throw the switch" sometime next week.

Cables are being laid and light standards are being installed this week by city labor. If everything continues to operate as efficiently as now, thirty-six lights will be thrown on together extending from around the courthouse down Main street east to the First Baptist Church.

These lights will brighten up the main district of town considerably and this is something that has been needed to help in the progress of the city.

FARMERS MUST GET "O.K." TO PLANT WHEAT IN 1940

Any farmer who desires to grow wheat in 1940 and for any purpose, which includes wheat for chicken feed and other feeding purposes, regardless of how small the acreage planted, must make application for a wheat allotment to the county AAA office prior to September 1, 1939.

Those who have not made application should do so at once.

After a wheat allotment has been established for the farm, then if you as a farmer desire to be designated as a non-allotment wheat farm for 1940 you may plant your allotted acreage or 10 acres, which ever is the greater.

Those who grow wheat and fail to secure an allotment will be subject to the usual wheat deductions on their 1940 Agricultural Conservation Payments, which is 50c per bushel times the allotted yield per acre times the number of acres planted to wheat. Therefore, it is of the utmost importance that every farmer who wants to plant any wheat for harvest in 1940 make application for a wheat allotment at once.

AUSTIN DOOLITTLE'S RODEO TO BE NIGHT "SHOKUSES" ONLY

For the 10th time, Austin Doolittle returns to the Big Corral to assemble the top hands of the Southwest for his 10th annual "Sho-kus".

It'll be nights only, Austin Doolittle, well known rodeo promoter of The Grove, stated yesterday, when his 10th Annual Rodeo opens there on July 27 and 28, next Thursday and Friday.

Well, there's no need to whoop up Austin's shows, as everybody in "readin" distance and further, knows just what kind of a bang up job Austin Doolittle can do with a rodeo.

Mark your calendar with those dates, polished up, and make a night performance. There will be no afternoon performances this year.

THE BAPTIST COLUMN

Part 4

Are we willing to do as much for the cause of the Lord (as a minimum) as a little European nation did recently for the cause of armaments and freedom recently? An article appeared in our daily newspapers recently to the effect that the people of Poland, on a certain legal holiday, refused to take the holiday but kept on working and set aside the days wage that day for the cause of armaments as a means of saving their little nation from the Nazi aggressors. The taxicab driver hung signs on their cars saying "All I earn today will be given to the cause of armaments"

At a recent meeting of the District Missionaries and a number of other workers in Dallas, those present volunteered to give at least one days pay, over and above what other gifts they are making, to the cause of missions this fall. Following this more than six hundred preachers at the Evangelistic conference in Fort Worth, on hearing about the plan volunteered to do the same thing and try to lead their churches in doing so.

Not only so but there are 53 Sundays in this year. They also agreed to try to lead their churches to give the 53rd Sunday offering to missions, over and above their regular gifts. A number of the County Workers Meetings and churches have already taken the matter up and have agreed on this plan.

Our Associational Workers Conference did likewise at its meeting last week at Arnett. Those present representing their churches and those pastors present agreed heartily to have their part in this plan and as a Conference body went on record endorsing the plan and recommending it to the churches of the Leon River Association. It is hoped that every church will accept and act on the plan accordingly.

Perhaps there are those who would raise the question: "What does it mean to be a missionary?" Or they would ask does a church necessarily have to give to missions? The answer to the latter question is that no church can be a real Baptist Church if it does not foster the world mission cause of the Savior. And certainly it cannot possibly be a New Testament church if it does not practice missions. There is no question about such a matter. The Bible settles that very plainly.

As to the first question, we recognize at once that the word 'missions' comes from the Latin word 'mitto' meaning to send. The missionary becomes "one sent", Christian Missions then becomes the matter of sending in the name of Christ and Christianity. The Bible is definitely a missionary book. Both the Old and New Testaments are missionary in message and meaning from the beginning to the end. The fact of the Bible's presence in the world is proof of God's plan of Missions. It would not have been "sent" of God had he not desired that all men everywhere come to know Him and His Son whom he 'sent' into the world to save the world. The Great Commission of Jesus was given to the first Testament Church, the church after Christ, that he Himself built and of which he said: "The gates of hell shall not prevail against it". The Great Commission was and is "to preach the gospel to every creature" (see Matt. 28:18-20, Lk. 24:47, Acts 1:8, Mk. 16:15.)

There were a large number of churches in Texas last year (Baptists) and a great number so far this year, which churches have given nothing whatever to the cause of missions. This is a sad fact but a fact nevertheless. Surely such churches cannot presume to call themselves missionary if this fact remains, if the figures are not changed. The test given in the scriptures in proof of ones nature is: "by their fruits ye shall know them". This is true in the case of the individual or of the group of individuals composing a church. That body of people who do not carry out the commission of the Lord cannot possibly be missionary no matter if that group does minister to some small isolated group or section. A New Testament Church, for one thing must be a missionary church. Missions is its very charter. Napoleon said: "Conquest has made me and conquest must maintain me." This is certainly true of the New Testament church and missions: 'Missions has made the church and missions must maintain the church.' Missions is the charter of the New Testament church. If the church is violated then it is as well as forfeited. The church that is not missionary becomes nothing more than a mere society of human beings aimless and visionless as far as the Kingdom of God is concerned. In the book of Revelation, the Lord says something of a church that "—hast a name that thou livest, and are dead." It would be well for the church that is not zealous for missions to study that passage.

Griggs-Ferguson Nuptials
Performed in Fort Worth

Miss Frances Griggs became the bride of Richard Ferguson at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Griggs, in Fort Worth at 10:30 a. m. Monday with the Rev. Marcus M. Chunn, pastor of the Central Methodist Church, officiating.

The mantle of the living room, decorated in a shower effect with pink gladioli with palms and greenery on either side, was the background for the ceremony.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Will J. Baker played "I Love You Truly" and "At Dawning". She played "Lieberstraum" softly during the ceremony.

The bride chose a hyacinth blue chiffon frock over taffeta with lace bands on the bodice; she wore white accessories and a corsage of gardenias and stephanotis. For "something old", she wore an old-fashioned silver handkerchief ring and chain, which was carried by her grandmother, the late Mrs. Rab Dickie, in her wedding. The ring bore the date 1869.

Miss Frances Griggs, her sister's only attendant, wore tearose chiffon over taffeta with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses and blue delphinium. Russell Bommer attended the bridegroom as best man.

A reception was held after the ceremony, and Mrs. O. B. Rominger, Miss Nancy Roberts and Ernestine Davis presided in the dining room. The table was laid with a Normandy lace cloth, and white blossoms were grouped around the punch bowl, which centered the table.

After a trip to South Texas the couple will be at home at 1216 Pennsylvania avenue, Fort Worth. For traveling the bride chose a navy blue sheer frock with navy accessories.

Mrs. Ferguson is a graduate of Texas Christian University and attended the University of Iowa. Mr. Ferguson, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Ferguson of Crowell, was graduated from the University of Texas.

The out-of-town wedding guests included Mr. Rab Dickie, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Dickie, and Miss Mary Oldham, Gatesville; Mrs. W. A. McClinton, Houston; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Spindle, Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Ferguson, Crowell; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kilgore, Gainsville; and Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Pickens, Cleburne.

Mrs. Potts Hostess

Mrs. John O. Potts was hostess to members of her club, the 1920 Club, when she entertained at her home on east Main street Wednesday afternoon. Two tables were arranged for the playing of 84.

Refreshments consisted of ice cream and cake, and were served to 16 club members who attended.

BOY SCOUT WORKERS
ATTEND SCOUT CAMP
AT GORMAN FALLS

Leaving Gatesville early Tuesday morning, Ray M. Ealey, Rev. Ed Bayless, Robert Franks, John Frank Byrom and Ralph V. Langston went to Gorman Falls. They arrived in camp about 10:00 a. m. and found most of the boys down under the Falls taking a shower. The Falls fall about a hundred feet over the side of a cliff into the river. Some very beautiful formations are to be found around the vicinity of the Falls.

Soon after the noon meal was finished a trip into Grapenuts Cavern was made. To reach this Cavern one has to go over the side of a cliff hand over hand on a rope. The cavern has to be entered on the hands and knees but one is able to stand up through most of the cavern. Progressing some five hundred feet back one sees one of the most beautiful sights ever witnessed by human eyes. One complete room is covered with a mineral formation which gives the cavern its name. This formation has the same coloring and every other resemblance of the cereal, Grapenuts. Mr. Langston returned with some very beautiful specimens of rock and other formations from this cavern and they are on display in our window if anyone cares to see them.

Following the trip into the cavern a Treasure Hunt was directed by Mr. Ealey in which two groups of boys raced to find money which was hidden in vantage points. The boys had to use the compass to find their directions.

In the council meeting Tuesday night Group singing was led by Rev. Bayless and talks on Scouts and Scouting were made by Mr. Ealey and Mr. Langston. Rev. Bayless then told a very good story and closed the council meeting in the singing of "Taps".

The council fire was built by John Frank Byrom using flint and steel to start the blaze.

Several of the Scouts took advantage of these fellows being in camp for the day by reviewing and studying Merit Badge work and some few were passed on Merit Badges.

SPORT SCROLL

After much arguing pro and con it has been decided to let the softball playing schedule remain as it is. Games will continue to be played every Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights.

We are glad to report that Alvin (Lum) Edwards who plays for the Highway Department club was not seriously injured Monday nite in the game with Red & White. At first it was thought his leg was broken but only developed that the bone in the ankle was cracked and he is up and about again although he will be on crutches for sometime.

Results of Tuesday night's games were: Red and White 8, Arnold's Electricians 7. This is the first game lost by the Electricians, however, they are still on the top for the season so far. This just goes to show that even the best can lose and these youngsters are going to have to get up and hustle to hold their lead.

In the second game of the night the Firemen beat the CCC club to the tune of 8-7. Both games were very closely played and for a while it looked like a toss-up as to who would come out "on top."

Wednesday night the Waco Dons met the Dry Docks of Galveston ending up with a very one-sided score of 12-4.

The opening game of the Texas Semi-Pro Baseball tournament will be played Sunday afternoon in Katy Park when the Waco Dons meet the Lubbock "darkhorse" team. Lubbock has one of the strong teams entered in the State tournament and this game promises to be one of the best games of the tournament.

All in all, the Semi-Pro Baseball tournament this year promises to be one of the best in several years many teams having already entered and things will "get under way" Sunday afternoon. Watch this column for results as the tournament progresses or better still, see the game when possible.

PIDCOKE 'COKERS TRIM TOPSEY 11 TO 8 IN ERATIC GAME

Sunday, Pidcoke's Cokers continued their way toward taking off the championship Coryell County News Trophy by trimming the Topsey aggregation 11-8 in an admittedly erratic debacle.

Batteries for Pidcoke were Wiegand, Lockhart and Smith; with the "mainstems" of the Topsey nine being Roy, Newton and Mil-sap.

Long Vance Roy pitched effectively until he tired in the "stand-up" stanza, holding the Cokers to six hits, whiffing nine. His support, lacking, however, was to no avail.

Pidcoke was sparkplugged by Curry, outfielder. At the plate five times, he garnered one triple and three doubles, driving in seven runs and one himself. Pidcoke collected two runs in the first, two in the third, four in the fourth and three in the eighth. Topsey scattered their runs equally well.

The hatless fad, which was at its height in '32 and '33, was neither new nor collegiate. It dated back before the American Revolution, to the time when English dandies carried their hats in their hands to avoid mussing their curled and powdered wigs.

Customs receipts for the port of Halifax, N. S. in June were $382,439, an increase of $65,073 over the total in June, 1938.

With The Scouts

At Gorman Falls

By JOHN. F. POST Jr.

The Scouts have now settled down to the steady pace of camp routine, Scoutmaster Witcher's well-planned program running off without friction.

The boys spent Sunday resting, fixing up their various camps, and studying Scout work.

Monday the Scouts were allowed to do anything they cared to. Most of them hiked and swam all day. At the regular council Monday night many tests were passed by Scouts of various ranks.

Tuesday Mr. Witcher took the boys on a "lecture hike" of this part of the country, explaining the different kinds of rock formations and trees to them.

The boys may leave Wednesday and go to Buchanan Dam and Marble Falls before arriving home. No definite decision has been made but it seems likely that they will break camp Wednesday. All the boys are in excellent health.

SYNOPSIS OF CHAPTER III
Dot Bronson, ex-beauty shop operator who wants the luxuries which money can buy so much that she's willing to steal for them, has married Freddie Martin, a crook whom she met when he held up her boyfriend. Dot and Freddie visit her foster-parents and he about Freddie's work, telling them that Freddie is an auto salesman. But during their first meal at the Bronson's farm, the radio broadcasts an announcement identifying the pair as the bandits who have been pilaging through three states. The older Bronsons, honest people, are horrified, and Dot and Freddie rush off to find a hideout.

CHAPTER IV

PETE GRISWOLD thumbed his nose at the legend lettered on the office door, which read: "Department of Justice, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Field Division." He grinned at his chief. "What I mean is that when it comes to taking out the big boys, you need finesse. And that's what I've got."

Kingsley smiled. "Sure, but what shook his head again, "this is going to be the most embarrassing moment of Dan's life."

Pete was careful to wait outside the living room until he heard the minister say, "I now pronounce you man and wife." Then he burst into the room. He joined the crowd congratulating Dan Waldron and Ruth.

When the space in front of Dan was clear, Pete stepped forward. "Could I speak to you for a minute?" he asked, archly.

Helen Griswold stepped close and glared at him. "I don't like the look on your face, mouse. What is it? And don't bother with a build-up. Let's have it straight."

Pete shied away. "Well, er . . . you see . . ."

Helen broke in. "And the end is —no Honolulu, no honeymoon." She turned to Dan. "An important assignment has come up and Mr.

and threw open the door. "Can we see you a minute, Matt?"

Matt Flagler nodded pleasantly to the couple sitting at the table. "Make yourselves comfortable, folks; I'll be back in a minute." He stepped out of the room, carefully closing the door behind him. As soon as he was safely on the landing, the first tough spoke excitedly. "The Feds, Matt. We just got a tip!"

Flagler nodded. "That means get out. Get the cars ready. Around the back."

"Mme. Thompson" appeared on the stairs. "What about those two in there?" she asked.

Flagler smiled. "Martin and the Bronson dame? Just a couple of small-time chiselers who wanted me to put them to work. What about them? If the Feds don't grab the dame, tell her to stay here and wait for me."

"Mme. Thompson" nodded. "Okay, Matt," she replied.

Dot and Freddie Martin, handcuffed together, sat in the rear seat of the open touring car, facing Deputy Alec Inglis, who eyed them suspiciously from the folding seat on which he sat. Freddie scowled viciously. "Just our luck," he grumbled, "to be in that flophouse when the Feds showed up!" The deputy who was driving stepped hard on the gas pedal.

Dot shrugged her shoulders. "Our luck'll change." She turned to Alec. "They might've taken us back on a train, instead of making us travel three hundred miles in this wreck." "Taxes're sky-high this year," Alec drawled, "and the city isn't spending good money hauling folks like you around in a Pullman."

Dot nodded. "Okay, have it your way. I'm going to take a nap." She yawned, and twisted her body up onto the seat in a cramped jack-knife position. For a moment there was silence, then the pressure of her foot against Freddie's thigh made him react to her signal. He glanced furtively down and noticed her toe pointing toward Alec, who was carefully tamping tobacco into his pipe.

Suddenly Dot seemed to make up her mind. She shot her legs out straight before her, catching Alec squarely in the stomach. Simultaneously she yelled, "Grab his gun, Freddie!"

Freddie grabbed the gun from Alec's holster, slugged him viciously with it, and shoved the point of it in the back of the driver. "Stop the car," he ordered gruffly.

The driver cast a startled glance back at the crumpled body of Alec, then instantly swung the car off the road and came to a stop. Obedient to the pressure of the gun, he stepped out ahead of Dot and Freddie, who prodded Alec to his feet and ordered him to step out onto the ground. Freddie waved his gun arm suggestively. "Unlock these cuffs," he ordered.

Alec complied. Freddie turned to Dot. "Get into the car," he said.

She shook her head. "Wait a minute." She nodded to Alec and the driver. "Get over to that fence," she ordered. She followed the pair and carefully snapped the handcuffs around their wrists, locking them to the fence. As she turned to join Freddie at the waiting car, she smiled and blew a kiss to the pair. "So long," she said. "I hope the mosquitoes don't bother you!"

Matt Flagler wasn't impressed by Dot's story. Freddie looked on jealously.

I want to know is, when you come back from that fishing trip, do I get any trout?"

"My friend," Pete replied solemnly, "you are talking to a natural-born trout catcher. For generations we Griswolds have been catching trout."

"That's fine, Pete. But you understand that I like trout. Do I get any?"

"Boss, you're going to have such a mess of trout to eat that I . . ."

The office door opened, to admit an excited figure, who tossed a couple of cards on Kingsley's desk. "They're Matt Flagler's fingerprints, all right."

Kingsley nodded. "I knew it. I've got a hunch he's right here in town. Together with that $75,000 they got out of the bank."

Pete edged toward the door. "I wouldn't be surprised." He grabbed the doorknob. "Well, I'll be seeing you in two weeks."

Kingsley's voice was sharp. "Get Dan Waldron and give the known hideouts a looking over."

"Wait a minute, chief." Pete shook his head. "I guess you forget the team of Griswold and Waldron started on its vacation today."

Kingsley shrugged his shoulders. "I'm sorry, Pete, but we're short-handed."

Pete grinned wryly. "All right, I can catch trout any day, but" he Kingsley deeply regrets the cancellation of your vacation."

"Thanks for breaking the ice, my love," Pete nodded. "A certain Mr. Flagler's in town."

Helen put her arm around Ruth's shoulder. "Remind me sometime to tell you about the places I've had my heart set on seeing." She sighed. "Our wedding was postponed three times. So why not your honeymoon?"

Dan kissed Ruth. He turned to Pete. "Come on, fellow, let's go, before this Mr. Flagler skips town."

The girl known as "Mme. Thompson" stepped out of the front room where she kept the stock of hats which acted as front for the crooks' boarding house she ran upstairs. She hurried to the rear room, where a telephone shrilled impatiently, and quickly grabbed the receiver from the hook.

"Hello . . . How long ago? . . . All right." She hung up and turned to the two toughs sitting idly by. "That was Mike. He says the Feds are out tonight giving every joint in town a look over. They just been to Smokey's."

The toughs jumped to their feet. "They'll be coming here next," the bigger of the two said. "Let's get Matt."

VOLUME VII

GATESVILLE, TEXAS, FRIDAY, JULY 21, 1939

The House continues to wonder how soon we will reach the adjournment stretch. No one knows whether it will be two weeks or two months. Most everyone is anxious to adjourn, but feels that there is legislation that should be passed before we quit. The difficulty is that one member looks on one subject as of primary importance and another member considers some other matter of first importance. As long as these members think there is any chance of getting their own pet measure up for consideration they want to stay in session, but as soon as it becomes evident that the measure will not be considered the member immediately becomes willing to adjourn and let all other measures go. Thus, sentiment for adjournment can rapidly snowball as soon as it begins to become apparent that certain measures will not get to a vote. Of course, the spending program will take some time, but unless the Senate reverses its present position and takes up neutrality legislation I do not think that there will be any other important legislation considered—although, like most members, I feel that there is much that should receive further attention before we adjourn. I realize that there is no probability that this session will take any further action on pensions, farm legislation, or neutrality, and under these circumstances it might be best to let the members go home and have an opportunity to visit with the people. One of the defects of our system of legislation is that members of Congress don't have sufficient opportunity to go home and know conditions at first hand.

On the question of neutrality legislation there seems to be a growing feeling that if we were to adjourn now the European countries would be at a loss to know just what to expect and would at least be more hesitant to begin any major conflict than they would be if they were sure that their enemies could not buy American arms. For this reason it might be much better to leave matters just as they are rather than to force the issue with the probability that a group in the Senate would filibuster the bill to death.

The House has been in session rather continuously, but has passed nothing of major importance this week. This afternoon (Friday, July 14th) we passed a Senate bill rewriting the Civil Service Retirement bill, and two conference committee reports. One of these conference reports involved the appropriation for the District of Columbia and carried a contribution of $6,000,000.00 from the Federal Treasury for the support of the local government here. In the first place, the Federal Government has actually created practically all of the business and values here—it is true that the District does provide local fire and police protection for the government buildings, but so does every other city in the United States that has a post office, and while the total expense to the District is considerable, the benefits received by the District are proportionately great. In the next place, the total tax rate here is only one dollar and seventy cents per hundred. This is much lower than the city tax rate in any of our larger cities, and at the same time there are no State and County taxes here. Until the taxes in the District of Columbia are at least as high as those are elsewhere I can see no reason for asking the country at large to contribute to the cost of local government here in Washington.

The other conference report was on a bill allowing the Tennessee Valley Authority to issue bonds with which to buy the properties of the Commonwealth and Southern Electrical Power Co. I voted for the report. I think it is a very fine thing that the T.V.A. and the private power companies could come to an agreement whereby the T.V.A. purchased all of the plants and equipment of the utility companies. This will wipe out all of the unnecessary duplication that has been so severely criticized in this region. An interesting side-light on this vote was the fact that practically all of those who have criticized the T.V.A. most violently for engaging in competition with private business voted against this bill to allow them to buy out the private plants.

Yesterday the House spent the entire day debating a bill for the establishment of the Franklin D. Roosevelt library at Hyde Park, New York. President Roosevelt has generously offered to give his entire private library, including all of his great collection of letters to the Government. He has also offered to give a part of the Roosevelt estate as the site for a library building. The cost of the building has been made up by private gifts. The bill which we passed yesterday provided for the acceptance of these gifts and obligated the government to maintain the library. The republicans fought the bill almost solidly. As I see it, their opposition was based on their dislike for the President. Of course almost all of the Democrats voted for the bill and it passed, but I feel that it was unfortunate that such a measure should have been subjected to a party fight.

With The Scouts

At Gorman Falls

By JOHN. F. POST Jr.

As a welcome sight to a party of 25 weary Boy Scouts, Gorman Falls was reached about 5:30 p. m. Friday after a rough, jolting trip on Gatesville School Bus No. 7. with Mr. Cricket Painter in the driver's seat.

Beddings, food, and camp equipment were immediately unloaded and camp established. After this was accomplished, 23 dust-laden lads hit the muddy Colorado for a cooling swim. After about three-quarters of an hour in the water, the boys came up to find supper waiting. Dan McCowan, official Scout cook, having wasted no time in preparing food for the boys whose appetites were greatly sharpened by the "great outdoors".

Following supper, the boys retired to their cots for a thirty minute rest before council meeting. During council, a twenty minute session, problems of the day, and the menu and program for Saturday was discussed. Taps were sounded promptly at 10 p. m.

At exactly 6 a. m. Saturday, reveille sent the Scouts tumbling sleepily from their cots. Most of the boys climbed down under the falls for a cold bath before the morning meal. After breakfast, inspection was held with only one boy not being in perfect condition, Clyde Thompson, forgetting to brush his teeth. Grapenut Cavern was explored during the morning and then the morning swim was taken.

After the afternoon rest period from one to two o'clock, the boys rolled several logs into the water and floated down to Gorman Cave, and spent two hours winding in and out of the treacherous passes of this cavern.

After hiking up the river bank to camp, half of the boys helped the cook build a furnace, while the rest gathered wood and brought up water from the spring.

After supper, the regular council was held and several Scout games were played.

Sunday morning the boys drilled for thirty minutes before breakfast. After breakfast, Sunday School services were held with Scoutmaster Witcher heading the services.

Sunday afternoon was spent in resting and studying Scout work. An epidemic of blistered backs and sore feet was found among the boys.

SINGING AT NEFF PARK

On Sunday afternoon, July 30, from 1:30 to 5:30 there will be a singing at Neff Park, under the direction of Paul Pullias of Dallas. Everybody is invited to come help in this singing.

Texas livestock breeders have sold more than 6,000 herd sires in the State of Louisiana within the past three years. The Texas Breeder-Feeder movement has thoroughly demonstrated the ability of east Texas and the Southeastern States to breed, feed and furnish livestock for the market. Louisiana has taken the lead in replacing cotton acres with livestock and feedstuff.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

WHAT ABOUT PRICE?

"A WOMAN," once remarked the famed Hoosier humorist Abe Martin, "will buy anything she thinks the store is losing money on."

That was merely a funnyman's way of saying that in all our buying price is a most important consideration—the one thing with which we are concerned every time we spend a cent.

Now what really constitutes price and how are prices established? Without getting too deep into economic principles, we know that prices are established by what is called the law of supply and demand.

This law teaches us that when the demand for anything exceeds the supply, prices go up. Conversely, when supply is plentiful but demand is light, prices go down. But how can we as customers know that this law won't be tampered with and men, shrewd, scheming and selfish, step in and raise prices and gouge us by making us pay them? They could, you know, and we would not be any the wiser.

Our safeguard against this is the advertising we see in the newspapers. That protects us. Under our competitive system of buying and selling, one merchant vies with another merchant for our trade. Each comes out publicly in the newspapers with his price. We compare these prices before we buy.

Seen in this light, advertising becomes the informant that prevents dishonest sellers from taking advantage of us and our ignorance of prices we might have to pay.

A recent mystery drama has the villain contriving to plunge the city into complete darkness for one night, so that he and his henchmen can dash in and make away with their loot. "We who have something dastardly to put over," he observed, "must needs fear the light."

High prices, skimpy quality, gyp products also must needs fear the light. That is why they are cloaked in such phrases as: "We don't advertise. We pass the savings along to you." "Why pay the high cost of advertising? We put it into our goods," etc., etc.

But the merchant who advertises uses the light of advertising, and asks you to compare his goods and his prices and to find out before you buy. You can always pay his price, because it is the right price. That you know because the protective power of advertising has told you that it is.

And this protective power of advertising is working for you every time you unfold your newspaper and read an advertisement. That black print on white represents a buying guide which is worth several hundred dollars a year to you and your family.

Charles Roth

Texas has 254 counties, 609 incorporated cities and towns, and a grand total of more than 9,000 civil subdivisions, each of which has the power to issue bonds.

Everybody Likes Chicken

By RUTH J. COOPER, Home Economics Consultant
Breeder-Feeder Association

Poultry knows no season. Regardless of time or weather some class of poultry is available. The broilers weighing from 1 to 2 1-2 pounds are on the market by March or April and then follow the fryers weighing from 2 1-2 to 3 1-2 pounds. After these come the fowls to be baked or stewed which are available all year round.

So far as weights are concerned there is an overlapping of the fryers and the older birds but age is easily determined by feeling the breast bone. If it is pliable, the bird is young.

Young birds may be broiled or fried but older birds need slow, and more than often than not, moist heat. All poultry is more tender if killed the day before cooking.

Barbecued Chicken: Use broilers and split in half. Place on heated racks about 3 or more inches from the flame. Sear until white, baste with sauce and turn; continue basting until done and delicately browned.

Fricassee Chicken: Fricasseeing is the use of moist heat for the less tender fowls as brising is the method used for beef and the less tender cuts of meat. The methods are the same. The chicken is cut into the desired pieces for serving, salted and rolled in flour. It is then browned in a small quantity of fat, in other words fried. About 1-2 cup of liquid—tomato juice, milk or water is poured over the chicken and pan tightly covered. Chicken is allowed to cook slowly until tender liquid replaced as needed. This is cooked either on top of stove or in over (350 degrees F.) When done, gravy is made from drippings in pan and served with the chicken. Generally rice and at least one vegetable are served with this dish.

CHICKEN POT PIE

- 4-pound fowl
- Water
- 1-2 cup celery leaves
- 1 onion
- 4 whole cloves
- Bay leaf
- 4 hard-cooked eggs
- Pastry
- Milk

Cover fowl with water, add seasonings and simmer until meat falls from bones. Allow fowl to cool in the stock. Remove, cut into small pieces. Line a casserole with pastry and cut remaining dough into strips. Place a layer of chicken on bottom of pastry lined casserole, then a few slices of egg, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dot with butter; cover with three strips of pastry and then repeat—chicken, egg, seasonings. Strip top of pie with pastry. Add the strained chicken broth to cover the last layer of chicken and bake in a hot oven until done. Remove from the oven and add rich milk or cream to cover and return to oven about 5 minutes, until top is a delicate brown.

CHICKEN CROQUETTES

- 2 cups cooked chicken
- 3-4 cup thick white sauce
- 1-2 teaspoon salt
- Seasons
- 2 hard cooked eggs
- Egg and crumbs

Dice the chicken, add white sauce, salt and other seasonings to taste, diced hard cooked eggs and mix well. Shape into croquettes, roll in crumbs, dip in beaten egg diluted with a little water and roll in crumbs again. Fry in deep hot fat (385 degrees F.) about 2 minutes or until a golden brown in color. Serve hot.
