WTCC Urges Local Committees

Organization of permanent local expenditure and taxation committees in every city and town in West Texas is urged by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in a report issued by its Public Expenditure and Taxation Committee. J. D. Hamlin of Farwell is chairman of the committee and signed the report.

In the 132 counties of West Texas, this will amount to a saving of more than $2,000,000 annually.

For Coryell County it will amount to approximately $11,494.

The tax remission law, together with the new road bond tax, and which will mean several million dollars more to the counties, offers a real opportunity for reduction in local taxes, Mr. Hamlin declares.

Principal function of local committees will be to work cooperatively with local public officials in an effort to bring about economies in government and in passing on the savings of the taxpayers. The report points out that 87 percent of all public expenditures falling upon property taxes is for local government.

TAYLOR-WILLIAMS-FARMER REUNION

Some 300 descendants, relatives and friends of these three pioneer families met at Lampasas last Sunday for the second annual reunion, which is to meet each year hereafter on the second Sunday of August. The morning was spent pleasantly and profitably as the days of long ago were relived in memory and the tales of past days were retold to children and grandchildren. Then came such a dinner as to tempt even the temperate to near gluttony, for it was impossible to resist the many tasty, dainty dishes of so many excellent cooks.

But "man does not live by bread alone". We all desire companionship and seek the sympathetic interest in our fellowman. And where can we find a better place to satisfy the natural hunger of the soul than in such gatherings where happy youth, sober maturity, and wise age mix and mingle in affectionate relation? Such association is a faint rainbow of promises of the King's Great Supper where all "clothed in righteousness" shall "sup with him eternally."—Mrs. Pearl Weeks, Houston, Texas.

Joe Trussell, one of the better known and liked gospel singers of this part of the state, passed thru here Monday, and while here for a short time, spent most of it shaking hands and talking to his many friends.

Monday visitors in Waco included Mrs. Curtis Sims, Mrs. W. M. Gamblin, Mrs. Curtis Lipsey, Mrs. H. C. Dollins and two daughters and Mrs. C. E. Gandy and daughter.

Young and Henry Smith. The local union is No. 710 of McGregor and Gatesville. Business meetings will be held the first Monday each month.

Practically all other officials of state institutions were renamed, according to reports with the exception of the appointments of Rep. E. R. ## COUNTY LEAGUE PLAYOFF AT PIDCOKE, BLACKFOOT, SAT., SUN.

The final drive for four county league teams is on!

For this week end the four best clubs in the circuit over the season's stretch, the cream of the crop, will begin a series to determine who shall clash for the league championship trophy two weeks hence.

At Blackfoot Saturday afternoon at 2:30 two ancient rivals will meet. Ever since the great national game was introduced in that section of the county, Mound and Blackfoot, possibly because of the close proximity of their communities, have been arch-enemies on the diamond.

For many years now, Mound has held the upper hand in this struggle for diamond supremacy. But this year the worm has turned. Blackfoot fans have gathered together a fine club, one that was capable of finishing first in the league standings. Mound came in fourth, and, on the basis of the season's records, must be rated the underdogs in tomorrow's fray.

The team will go to Mound Sunday for the second game of the series.

Pearl at Pidcoke

The Pearl Tigers and the Pidcoke Cokers will wait until Sunday to begin their series because of the fact that several players on both teams have men who hold responsible positions and could not leave their work on Saturday.

Pidcoke will be the site of the first battle, with the game there beginning at 2:30 also. These two clubs are so evenly matched that it would be folly to even attempt to predict an outcome.

The second game will be played at Pearl next Sunday.

SATURDAY'S SCHEDULE:
Mound at Blackfoot

SUNDAY'S SCHEDULE:
Pearl at Pidcoke
Blackfoot at Mound

Tuesday afternoon a small storm inflicted slight damage at Oglesby. The cloud, which according to an eye witness, was about the size of a dishpan, with a gray mane and tail. It hit the town from the east, and roared through the city accompanied by wind, rain and hail.

This was the case in Civil Court styled Mamie Crawford et al vs. Marvil Chaney et al, verdict for the defendant was rendered by the jury.

All the other activities during the week were carried on behind closed doors by the Grand Jury. They gave no indications as to what was to come, but District Clerk Carl McClendon said he thought the court would again take up the criminal docket Monday.

THE BAPTIST COLUMN

It has been noted in a previous article that for convenience sake our territory in Texas has been divided into 17 Districts. There are 108 Associations composing these districts. We are in District 14, the Leon River Baptists Association. The other Associations in the District are: Corsicana, Falls, Hill, Freestone-Leon, Meridian, Limestone, and Waco. It is the task of the Associational organizers in each Association to keep the work before the Associations at all times and to encourage the churches to embrace the work of the Denomination and the great mission program we foster. Some of our churches are making an enviable record in their promptness and regularity in their mission offerings. Below is the record of the Association as a whole since September of 1938: (number after church indicates number of offerings that church has made in this period and x indicates an offering in July).

LOCAL MINISTERS ENDORSE BIBLE COURSE

A letter from the local ministers is in the hands of the school board expressing the willingness of the ministers for a course in Bible to be placed in the curriculum of the local high school if deemed wise by the Board.

Receiving a petition some time ago in which a number of patrons of the school requested the admission of a course in Bible to the local school curriculum, the School Board deferred action until the attitude of the ministers could be determined.

A paragraph of the letter makes the observation that "the fact the ruling of the Texas State Department of Education provides that the course is to be non-sectarian in its approach; that no public funds are to be used in its teaching; and that the course is to be entirely elective, available to those boys and girls who want it but forced upon none who do not; serve to remove many of the objections that might otherwise be raised. There are other difficulties in connection with such a course which to our minds have not yet been satisfactorily met; these, however, we need not discuss in this letter."

The letter was signed by Edward S. Bayless, S. L. Culwell, and C. M. Spalding.

A ruling of the State Department of Education about two years ago placed Bible among the list of electives which may be taught for credit in accredited state high schools. Seventy-seven schools in the state offered the course last year.

NAVASOT PHILOSOPHER HAS HARD TIME FIGURING TRANSACTION TAX, BUT MANAGES TO SEE THE LIGHT

Editor Fox's note: The Navasot Philosopher on his stump farm over on the Navasota River has gotten wind of the transaction tax, and has written us the following letter about his troubles.

Dear editor:

I have been figurin since last Wednesday, and I don't mind sayin I'm gettin further balled up than ever when I try to understand how that new governor's transaction tax is goin to work out among us citizens over here on the Navasot.

You take me out here on my stump farm. The other day I swapped a bucket of sorghum for twelve settin eggs, and me and my neighbor, Debbs Craig, is about worn out tryn to figure how much transaction tax we would have to pay if the law was in effect.

At first, when he says his settin eggs was worth four dollars, on account of the hi-priced hens he's got, I claims my sorghum was worth four and a quarter a gallon, on account of the prospective scarcity of sorghum cane next year what with the government reduction program and my wife is been ailing and ain't been able to get the land in shape, first and last.

He agreed to put in another egg and call is a even swap, until I picked up a copy of the Bryan Eagle some school kid lost from around his lunch and found out about that transaction tax.

As we figured it, 1.6 per cent of a gallon of sorgum, not countin gthe part the ole' woman spilled measurin it up, would require considerable figurin, but when we got to 1.6 percent of twelve settin eggs, we give up, on account of we knew the only way to split a egg is to fry it first.

We considered takin the stuff to town, sellin it, and then buying it back, making the grocery store do all the figurin, but then we figured there wasn't no use taxin ourselves to death, so we agreed to retain ownership of or sorgum and eggs, each individually, with him goin ahead and eatin my sorgum and me goin ahead and settin his eggs.

What I want to know is would this be legal and if it ain't would it affect my pension or government checks?

Yours faithfully
J.A.

FISH A BRAIN FOOD? JUST A SUPERSTITION FAIR EXHIBIT SHOWS

In this enlightened age people laugh at the superstitions of their grandmothers and grandfathers.

Nowhere is this more evident than in the Maze of Superstition in the Hall of Medicine and Public Health at the New York World Fair 1939.

This exposition of the whimsical medical beliefs that have been exploded by modern scientific research is daily drawing thousands of Fair visitors, and they are all highly amused at the fantastic superstitions which served as curative and preventative medicine in a less enlightened day.

There is, for example, a model of a hand covered with toads to explode the popular belief that toads cause warts. Some of the truths which the show preaches include:

Fish is not brain food.
Scaring is no good for hiccoughs.
Cobwebs are germ traps and will not heal wounds.

An amber necklace will not cure goitre.

Inhaling camphor will not prevent disease.

Eating ground glass will not cure tapeworm, but it will ruin the lining of the digestive tract.

Carrying a rabbit's foot or an old potato will not cure or prevent rheumatism.

Wearing red clothes is no substitute for vaccination for small pox.

The superstition that the color red was a cure for smallpox was one to which Francis I, Emperor of Germany, clung until his death from the dread scourge. That was, of course, before Pasteur's vaccine was discovered.

The death of Francis I is depicted in life size as one of the features of the Maze of Superstition. Clad entirely in red, the emperor is shown lying in a red bed, beneath red coverlets in a room, the walls and every article of furniture of which are red.

England has fewer brewers today than it had a year before the World War, but they have more than tripled their business.

Soil and water conservation practices recommended for use in the southwest dust bowl have been known to farmers since before the time of Christ.

Elephant paths are important arteries of travel in African forests.

DOIN' THE WORLD'S FAIR

By Byron M. Fisher

Seventeen canoe clubs, representing three State divisions of the United States, the Middle, Atlantic and Eastern Divisions, competed for the highest honors for the men of the dipping blades on Fountain Lake recently, at the big meet held by Fair authorities. 18 events were run off, the finals beginning about mid-afternoon after the morning eliminations. A number of the world's most famous canoeists took part in the tournament, including Wm. Gahler and Ernest Riedel, United States tandem double champions of the Pendleton Canoe Club, New York, the Yonkers Canoe Club who held the club championship and had two 1936 Olympians on their crew, and others. Throngs packed around Fountain Lake for the exciting contests.

Ballantyne inn was the scene of one of the most gala events of the current World's Fair social season, when the American Express Guides, those who were left after the recent 'dropping a t-dance purge' threw a dance. One of the unusual features of the event was the date bureau which was set up during the week prior to the big occasion. The Push-Chair boys probably see and talk to as many beautiful damsels in the run of a day as the most debonair rake or freshest freshman on the ground. But like the Guides, the Fair's professional marathons are not permitted to make dates with their customers. Result was that many of the lads found themselves seeking frantically for a temporary one-and-only. The date bureau solved the problem. A staff of guides canvassed the exhibit booths for pulchritudinous frailties. Names and descriptions were taken. The Guides then checked in their requirements, the list of ladies wishing to attend was scanned, and suitable matches were made. Over 1600 attended the dance in the Three-Ring Ballroom.

A lady recently asked us about hotel accommodations and food in New Brunswick. "The food is the best and low in price," we told her. "Aand you'll find the best of cabins, hotels and..." We got no further. "Cabins" she squealed. "Do they still live in log cabins? Tell me, are there any Indian wars going on now?" We calmed her and explained that the cabins were merely for tourists and were modern, comfortably furnished roadside homes in which the weary wanderer might lie down and sleep for a very moderate price. But she was still chattering to her friends about red-skin massacres when she went away. What's the use!

Robert M. Firth, Commissioner-General for New Zealand Participation in the World's Fair, was honored by native New Zealanders now living in New York for his untiring labor which has so largely responsible for the handsome New Zealand exhibit in the Colonial Pavilion. A bronze plaque, approximately 18 inches in diameter and bearing the Fern Leaf of New Zealand was presented Mr. Firth. Funds for the presentation were raised by a subscription among the entire colony of New Zealanders living in New York. In addition to his position as Commissioner-General for the Fair, Mr. Firth is Commissioner for Trade and Tourism in Toronto.

The Amusement World is said to be trembling on the brink of something or other. Two of the most publicized shows are rumored reliably to have folded and to be now operated by the Fair commission in an effort to keep them going. They are the Children's World and the Cuban Village. Two or three others, including the famed Amazon Villiage and the Crystal Lassies, have disappeared from the Midway, at least temporarily. On the other hand, Wild West and Rodeo, the Hot Mikado, Aquacade, Time and Space, NTG Congress of Beauty and some of the others are playing to capacity houses at almost every performance. It isn't a case of nobody to see the shows, it's a case of the visitors to the World of Tomorrow demanding high class entertainment, and getting it!

The 369th United States Infantry, popularly known as the Famous 15th, took over the martial ceremonies in the Court of Peace recently and did a spectacular Guard Mount to the music of their regimental band. The ceremony replaced the regular retreat drill performed usually by the troops stationed in Camp George Washington where the soldiers, sailors and marines used in military reviews on important occasions are quartered.

Heard recently at an entrance gate: "Does it cost anything to go through the tryhard and microscope?" The trylon and perisphere were meant, of course. Another one, Sweet young thing at Information Desk: "Can you tell me what the Grove of Whales is and where I'll see it?" She was informed that Grover Whalen's offices are in the United States Federal Building.

Large Crowds See Waco Rodeo

That Texans like their rodeos rough and wild is evidenced in the fact that the first two nights of the Bear Club Rodeo at Katy Park in Waco, were attended by capacity crowds. To-night and tomorrow night marks the final performances of this year's show and it looks like all of the 7,000 seats will be occupied each night. The praise and enthusiasm of those who attended on the previous nights will draw many spectators to the show tonight and tomorrow night.

From all over Texas came rodeo fans to visit the show at Katy Park for during the previous presentations of the Bear Club rodeo it was learned that it is one of the outstanding events of its kind in the state. Of particular interest and considerable commotion have been the steer riding contests. The supply of steers seems unlimited and the many bramas included have proven the undoing of some of the ace performers in this classification.

The programs have been fast and snappy without delays of any kind and nothing to slow up the well arranged and capably managed program.

Cen. Tex. C. of C. Proposal Fails

Efforts to organize a Central Texas Chamber of Commerce will be discontinued, at least for the present, following a poll of thirty counties in the proposed area, the result of which has been received at Waco from J. N. Edens of Corsicana, chairman of the temporary organization committee.

The canvass showed only five counties, McLennan, Navarro, Comanche, Hamilton and Coryell, as positively approving the proposed budget and acceptance of the quota fixed by the finance and budget committee.

Bob Burns In Casa Manana

Bob Burns, the most popular, modest, and altogether human sort of fellow since the beloved Will Rogers, will be presented at the Fort Worth Casa Manana for one night only, Monday, August 21.

This lovable radio and screen philosopher-humorist will appear in two shows, along with Martha Raye, singing and dancing comedian of stage, screen and radio; Everett West, popular radio tenor, and Ray Noble's orchestra.

Brown Named FSA Committeeman

Appointment of Frank J. Brown as a member of the Advisory committee to select tenants who will receive farm purchase loans has been announced by the Farm Security Administration. Mr. Brown takes the place filled last year by John Voss, whose term has expired.

Other members of the committee, appointed by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, are Frank Blair of Liberty and Geo. Fritz of Copperas Cove.

Livestock shipping losses from death and injury were 13 per cent less in 1938 than in 1937, according to a report of the Nat'l Livestock Loss Prevention Board.

USDA Official To 1,000 Parity Cards Mailed Farmers

Frank Grayson of the U. S. Department of Agriculture will be in Fort Worth, at the Midwest Marketing Association to supervise a demonstration of mohair grading, August 21.

L. F. Aston, of the Midwest Marketing Association was in Gatesville during the Ram and Billy Sale and invites all wool and mohair growers to this demonstration the idea of which, is to get grades for mohair, similar to those in wool, so that in the future, mohair may be sold by grade and not just "by the pound."

Mr. Aston while here, said that wool that brought 42 to 50 cents a pound in the southwest, sold in Boston, the world's largest market at from 95c to $1.07 a pound.

Flat Girl Receives B.S. Degree

And, Annie'll be back here, she said, Friday.

1,000 Parity Cards Mailed Farmers

According to J. B. Roach of the AAA office, 1,000 cards have been mailed farmers telling them to come in and sign papers for parity payments.

Mr. Roach said, "Growers will be notified when their applications for cotton parity payments are ready to be signed, and they can come in at their convenience". There are still some 1600 cards to be mailed out, and those who are to sign will be duly notified when to come in.

"Last year, only a small percent of the papers had to be sent back here for correction, and special effort is being made to hold this down to at last 2 per cent," Mr. Roach said.

ALEXANDER KORDA presents FOUR FEATHERS IN TECHNICOLOR

Chapter One

The Royal North Surrey Regiment stood at attention in the Square outside Wellington Barracks while the Colonel addressed his men.

"Ten years ago General Gordon was murdered in Khartoum, and the British Army was withdrawn from Egypt without punishing that crime. Today the Regiment is under orders to join Sir Herbert Kitchener's Army in the Sudan."

While the men broke into a cheer, Lieutenant Harry Faversham, a serious-eyed youth in his twenties, stood silently at the head of his platoon. Scion of a long line of distinguished British officers, he nevertheless had no taste for fighting, had taken up a military career only at his father's insistence, and had long dreaded this moment.

When the Regiment had been dismissed, Faversham listened to three of his friends—Captain John Durrance, Lieutenant Arthur Willoughby, and Lieutenant Peter Burroughs, animatedly discussing the momentous news.

"Egypt, my lads!" exclaimed Willoughby. "Pyramids and camels! Arabs and cactuses! What about a drink?"

"We're not going right off," Durrance, the eldest among them, reminded them. "Took them ten years to make their minds up."

made the startling announcement, detained him.

"Sorry, John. I was a damn fool to make a joke of it like that. I know how you feel about Ethne. Still, there's plenty of other girls."

"Plenty," said John Durrance. "For other men."

The ballroom of the old Burroughs mansion was brilliant with many lights, gay with dancing couples and the music of the Regimental Band. Out on the terrace, reveling in the soft summer night, looking silently out over the moonlit park below, Lieutenant Faversham stood with Ethne Burroughs. He was pale but erect in his dress uniform; and he smiled frequently as he looked over at the slim, lovely girl at his side, whose betrothal to the young officer had just been announced by her father. "When we are old and creaky with rheumatism," mused Ethne, "we shall look back upon this night. A memory is being born tonight, Harry, that will stay with us through all the years."

"Moments like this are better than all the memories in the world."

She shook her head. "The memories will be the best because they'll be out of reach of care; they will have no uncertain tomorrow in front of them."

John Durrance came out on the terrace, hesitated a moment, then joined them. "Are you going to rob me of my solitary dance."

"A memory is being born tonight, Harry, that will stay with us through all the years."

"We'll be lucky to go in a month." "Splendid!" cried Burroughs. "Then we can all go to my sister's party. Ethne's twenty-one on Thursday and father's bringing her out. And when the champagne's in full swing, father will announce her engagement to Lieutenant Harry Faversham of the Royal North Surrey Regiment!"

There was a moment of silence among the other three. Willoughby stared at Faversham in amazement. Durrance turned heavily and looked out of the window. Then, slowly, they raised their glasses and wished him luck.

"But what about this Egypt business!" said Willoughby maliciously. "You can't take her with you, Harry. When the Dervishes catch a white man they cut his nose off and hang him up by his toes. Can't let your wife see you hanging up by the toes, Harry."

Harry sat silent for a moment, then rose abruptly and went to the door. "See you at dinner."

"Did I frighten the poor lamb?" sneered Willoughby when he had gone. "No pleasing him these days. Moons about and reads books all night. He is odd—definitely odd. Well, time to get dressed. So long."

Durrance was about to follow him, when Burroughs, who had Ethne?" "It's my fault, John," said Harry. "I'm sorry." He turned and went into the ballroom.

"Shall we go and dance, John?" Ethne offered.

A strained, unhappy silence fell upon them. "I—I'm sorry, John. It's terribly hard to—know what to say. I tried to explain in my letter."

"You explained it very clearly, Ethne. Two men—and you had to choose. In your heart you said that Harry Faversham was in greater need than John Durrance."

"You are doing him an injustice, John."

"You are doing both me and yourself an injustice if you pretend that you loved him more than me." In his earnestness he moved closer to her, half reproving, half pleading. "I only ask the small happiness of knowing that I am right. Will you tell me that if I had been the weaker—the most in need of help—I should have been in Harry's place tonight?"

"If it helps you, John."

"It does help me, Ethne."

Silently they went into the ballroom and began to dance. And Ethne, catching Harry's eye, smiled at him across the room.

Those "Ditches" Again

By T. C. RICHARDSON, Associate Editor
Farm and Ranch
Breeder-Feeder Association

Some of our readers already have trench silos, some others are perhaps tired of hearing about those "ditches" to bury feed in; and still other are just waiting until a "more convenient season" for trying out the idea. Those who are already using trench silos, or any other kind, need no convincing, and our apology for continually harping on the subject is that there are still too many "unconverted" who are missing the benefits to be had from feed stored in this manner.

There can't be anything seriously wrong with the trench silo idea when it has been adopted by thousands of farmers and ranchmen throughout the Southwest within a very few years, and we have yet to hear of one who would go back to the old way after using ensilage a season or two. Texas alone had 260 miles of these "ditches" in use the first of this year, and thousands more were dug to store the early feed crops during the past summer.

There's more truth than poetry in the jingle sent out last year by the Dallas office of F.S.A.

"Farmer Jim's nobody's fool,
And though he didn't go to school,
He learned a thing or two.
The neighbors came for miles around

To see Jim's silo in the ground—
And now they've got 'em too!"

There's no mystery and no complex "figgerin'" about a trench silo. Here it is in the a-b-c's, from the FSA circular:

"Fix width and depth according to the number of livestock to be fed—length to suit the feeding period. Each cow needs four square feet of a cross section area from which a six-inch slice is cut daily. For six head make a trench six feet deep averaging four feet wide, with properly sloped walls. Slope is needed to help settling and prevent caving. For 120 days feeding, the length should be sixty feet. Trench four feet by six feet by sixty feet will hold about twenty-five tons".

There is still a great deal of late feeds which will be worth more in the silo than in any other form. Even lightly frost bitten grain sorghum can still be saved by cutting it promptly ensiling it. If the trench is not already dug, cut the feed the day after frost and let it lie on the ground while the trench is being prepared. Then use plenty of water with the ensilage, whether cut or ensiled in whole bundles, pack closely, cover with about a foot of dirt, and forget it until the ensilage is needed.

In the old days the silo was a sky-scraper and filling it was both laborious and expensive. It was so costly that few farmers could afford one. Now many of those expensive, sky-scraper structures stand empty while their owners use the trench silo. It is so cheap that anyone can have it. It is less laborious and expensive to fill, and the ensilage can be fed out with less labor and time.

If an ensilage cutter is available use it, and pack the cut ensilage thoroughly. Cut ensilage costs a little more to store, but is less wasteful and takes less time and trouble to feed out. If no ensilage cutter is available, store whole stalks, lengthwise of the trench, lapping them shingle fashion and reversing the heads and butts with each layer to keep level. If well watered and packed it will be just as good ensilage as if the stalks were cut, but it will have to be cut out from day to day with an ax or a special heavy tool made for the purpose.

Ensilage is the best substitute for green pasture, but of course is not a complete feed.

To get the most from it some dry hay and cottonseed meal should be used.

Don't build a trench silo with perpendicular walls. Sloped walls prevent the ensilage from shrinking away from the side and causing spoilage.

AN ANGEL PAYS A BRIEF VISIT TO EARTH

A great shadow of sorrow was cast over the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Ginnie Knight of Gatesville when the spirit of their little girl, Florene, passed to the great beyond.

Florene came to this earth Sept. 20, 1932 and went to join a company of angels in Heaven, August 9, 1939.

The beautiful little body lay in the white casket, a very jewel of perfection to be hidden away in the earth to await the joyous morn of resurrection when all loved ones will be reunited in Heaven.

A little grave was made in the King Cemetery and friends gathered with loved ones to commit the little body to the long sleep called death.

The service, attended by a large number of relatives and friends, was conducted by Rev. G. H. Fell of Turnersville.—Mrs. M. C. Terry, Cranfills Gap.

"What, No Telephone?"

"Of all things! Here, I thought I had the most thoughtful of all parents and they don't even have a telephone. I haven't been in this world long but it didn't take me that long to learn what a nuisance it was to be bundled up and carried over to the neighbor's or to the corner store so my mother could make a telephone call. I just don't see why mother puts up with it. Just wait until I can "put in my oar," we'll get a telephone then."
