The untiring efforts of Malcom Slay and his Vocational boys, along with the help of the Chamber of Commerce, through the Chairman of the Live Stock Committee, Olin Sydow, in cooperation with owners of the horses and mules made the show go off in grand style. Elmo King Gets Chicago Trip

Coming as an award for excellent 4-H club work Elmo King has been selected by a committee at College Station to receive a trip to Chicago to visit the International Livestock Show December 1 to 9th. The Santa Fe railroad each year offers nineteen 4-H Club boys this trip. To win this trip a boy must be fifteen years of age, must have done at least three years 4-H Club work and must be selected as winner of his own county. Elmo has been a runner-up in the contest each of the previous two years which he has been a member of the 4-H club but not having been a club member for three years and not being fifteen years of age has eliminated him in the previous years.

This year Elmo has attracted national attention because of his most excellent work with pigs. On the recent trip to Iowa, each opportunity was used to study pigs: The breeding, management, and exhibition. At the Dallas Fair breeders of national repute commented on the excellent hogs that Elmo had bred and which he exhibited in competition with national breeders winning high money in every class shown and in every case the respect and admiration of the exhibitors and the observers.

Elmo is recognized for his thoroughness and untiring efforts. His knowledge of hogs is respected by his fellow 4-H club members. He is fast developing into a leader and his courteousness on all occasions is placing him on a high plane. He is attending High School in Gatesville this year and in addition to 4-H club work is now studying Vocational Agriculture.

It will be remembered that previous winners of this trip were Fred Koch Jr., Clovis King, and Travis Harper.

Humble "Airs" Major Games

Admittedly a major game Saturday, will be the one between SMU and Texas A. and M. which will be played at "College", and of course, Humble Oil and Refining Company will bring it to you play by play if you can't make it.

Also, in the SW conference, there is the Baylor-Texas Game, which will come forth from Waco.

Bill Stern, of NBC, New York, has "flew" south to give the nation the low down on the SMU game, since it is of top importance.

TCU's battle with Tulsa will also get the air, via Humble and the Rice-Arkansas battle at Houston as well.

Lions Attend Meet At Temple

At a banquet or luncheon at Temple for Honorable Brady Gentry, under the auspices of the Temple Lions club, Gatesville Lions who attended were J. Hurl McClellan, H. K. Jackson, Louis Thomson, and County Judge Floyd Zeigler.

Highway Commissioner Gentry spoke favorably on the prospects of the completion of Highway 36 between Temple and Gatesville, and also Highway 190 from Temple, Belton and Killeen to Copperas Cove.

Mr. Gentry stated he had made trips over most of the highway system of Texas, and had taken notes on the condition of the state's highways, and was well qualified to consider the problems along this line for the state now.

ANNUAL GATESVILLE-HAMILTON TILT COMES TONITE: DOPE A ?

AROUND AND AROUND THEY GO. HOW THEY'LL LIGHT, NOBODY KNOWS

That's the dope, just about as near as you can get it for the Hamilton Bulldog-Gatesville Hornet Clash which will be held at the City Stadium tonight.

Hamilton Bulldogs, in their conference have been doing fairly well, and were just nosed out by Gorman for the title. Still that doesn't mean anything, since some say the Hamilton conference is not as still competition as that the Hornets are playing in.

Reports from the Gatesville Squad are that the entire squad is in first rate condition and they will all be ready to go at the opening whistle. From a list of weight, there doesn't seem to be much difference in the avoirdupois.

Since our first memory, this has been a hectic battle, and all Gatesville fans look eagerly to this game, which to us is just about as equal importance as any in this section, with the possible exception of the McGregor-Gatesville game.

Here's the probable starting line up:

Hornets	Pos.	Bulldogs
Whigham	LE	Davis
Wittie	LG	Schneider
Ward	LG	Schneider
Sexton	C	Beall
White, Capt	RG	Young
Gribble	RT	Adams
Hodges	RE	Cleveland

A story about the trip made the past summer to the "corn belt" by a group of Coryell County 4-H club boys is carried in the November issue of "West Texas Today," official publication of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

"Maple Leaf," A Prize Winner, Owned By H. A. and V. B. Rogers

An outstanding event of the Gatesville Annual Colt Show held here last Monday, was the entry of Maple Leaf, the prize winning draft stallion of the 11th event of the show. He took first prize in this class.

This large, fine animal is owned by H. A. and V. B. Rogers, who live eight and a half miles east of Gatesville on the old Geo. Vandiver farm. They will stand Maple Leaf at their farm next spring. This stallion was foaled on the well known Funston Farms of Marysville, Mo., and is pedigreed through the line of those fine horses. Maple Leaf will be four years old next April.

Great emphasis is being given to this type of draft horse during the past few years which shows the trend of the greater use of work animals on the Southern farm.

ONE IN SIX IS ON HELP ROLLS

AUSTIN, Nov. 8.—While "social security" advocates warmed up to do political battle for a special pension session of the legislature, a survey made today by International News Service disclosed that approximately one out of every six Texas citizens is receiving state or national government aid.

From records which showed approximate figures for the entire state relief picture, it was learned that almost one-sixth of Texas' population is receiving some form of relief.

Further social security legislation would bring the total to well above one million Texans getting government assistance.

The approximate total of 925,000 did not include state or federal employees, recipients of farm bo-

Miss Esther Stoll honored her mother, Mrs. Alfred Stoll, with a party on her birthday, Friday evening, at her home in the Mountain community. Refreshments were cakes and hot chocolate. Games of 42 and Chinese checkers were played, and some brought their instruments and played for the group.

Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Harrington and children, Bobbie Dean and Charles, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Martin and son, Bennie, Henry Stoll, all of this community, Dan Airwood, Herman Hamilton and Nash Jones, all of Gatesville.

1920 Club Entertained At E. D. Shelton Home

The autumn theme was featured in the decorations of the home of Mrs. E. D. Shelton on Founts street when she entertained members and guests of the 1920 Club Wednesday afternoon.

After games of 84 had been played, the hostess served a salad course to the following guests: Mesdames T. M. Hall, W. C. Guggolz, E. W. Brooks, Edgar Franks, C. H. Wallace, Ed McMordie, Minnie Battle, Levi Anderson, Carl Bradley, R. Thomas, R. D. Foster, M. G. Slay, Elworth Lowrey, Hurl McClellan, Dan McClellan, Byron Leaird Sr., Reid Powell, J. M. Prewitt, J. O. Brown, J. D. English, Jno. O. Potts, Guy Powell and Reb Brown.

Dinner Given For S. S. Teachers

Members of the Homemakers Class of the First Baptist Sunday School entertained with a dinner Tuesday evening in the Adult Assembly room of the church honoring their old and new teachers. Mrs. Tom L. Robinson, who has taught the class over ten years, has resigned, and Mrs. Genella Post will be the new teacher.

The group was seated around a long table, which was decorated with autumn leaves and flanked with red candles. Favors were individual bouquets of red berries tied with white ribbons. The Thanksgiving motif was featured, and a red and white color scheme prevailed.

The menu consisted of baked hen, dressing, cranberries, peas, potatoes, hot rolls, pie, cake, coffee, and hot chocolate.

After the dinner Mrs. R. E. Kirkpatrick, president of the class and mistress of ceremonies, presented Mrs. Robinson a lovely white and orchid chenille bedspread in behalf of the class.

Miss Lonelle Turner gave an appropriate Thanksgiving feasting to conclude the program.

Twenty-six members shared the courtesy.

Open House and Shower Compliments Recent Bride

Mesdames Buster Cummings, Rufus Brown, and Clyde Bailey were hostesses at an informal open house and miscellaneous shower at the home of the latter Wednesday afternoon in compliment to Mrs.

Wesley Webb, the former Miss Marjorie Wollard, whose marriage took place last Sunday.

Greeting the guests at the door were the hostesses. In the receiving line were the honoree, Miss Buchie Wollard, Mrs. John Webb, and Mrs. B. M. Wollard.

Mrs. Floyd Zeigler presided in the dining room, and she was assisted by Mrs. Robert Scott, Miss Beverly Chamlee, Mrs. Peyton Morgan, Mrs. Jim J. Brown, and Mrs. Billy Nesbitt.

The lace laid table was centered with a crystal bowl of pink roses, and at either side white tapers burned in crystal candelabra. At one end of the table was a miniature bride and groom on a reflector, and at the opposite end was the silver service. Bowls and vases of queen's wreath were placed at vantage points about the rooms.

Music for the afternoon was furnished by Miss Mabel Marion Brown and Mrs. W. C. Layne of Oglesby.

Mrs. Fitzhugh Lovejoy directed the guests into the rooms, where the gifts were displayed, and presiding at the Bride's Book was Mrs. Wollard.

Approximately 90 guests called during the afternoon.

Miss Maurine Coleman of Oglesby was in Gatesville shopping Wednesday.

Mrs. C. M. McGehee is ill in a Temple hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Ray Jr. and little daughter, Nancy Beth, spent the week end in Dublin, where they visited relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Ford of Teague announce the arrival of a baby girl, born Tuesday, November 7. She has been named Betsy Belle.

GATESVILLE, TEXAS, FRIDAY, NOV. 10, 1939

ARMISTICE DAY

ONE'S ENOUGH

Folks, since we've one Armistice, which, in itself is very unfortunate, we can do no less than reverence those who gave their all for a fruitless cause.

The thing is, LET'S DON'T HAVE ANY MORE!

A country, said to be as great as ours, SHOULD NEVER HAVE ANOTHER ARMISTICE! Not that we're pacifists, but the propoganda we fought for "To Make the World Safe for Democracy" was a splendid job of hoodwinking.

The boys that came back, must, of course, be honored. Those who didn't come back should be honored that much more, but we imagine they'd rather do without the honor, and be present, even in these uncertain times.

The whole idea is, let's keep our nose out of other people's business, with the idea that "There'll Be No More Armistices!"

It is Friday night, too late for this letter to get off on the 8:30 train for Texas, but we are all happy because we will soon be starting toward home ourselves. It will take a few days to close up some matters that our friends have asked us to look after and to close our office here, but you may be sure we will all be on our way just as soon as we can.

The House adjourned just a little while ago, after passing the conference report on the new Cash and Carry Bill by a vote of 243 to 172. We then voted to adjourn by a vote of 223 to 189. Most of the Republicans had voted against the Cash and Carry Bill, but they had not wanted to admit that they were making a party issue of such a measure (and I am sure that the great majority of Republicans and Democrats alike voted their honest conviction on this important issue). On the matter of adjournment, however, the situation was different. The Republicans saw a splendid chance to embarrass the President and the Administration by keeping Congress in session and explaining to the public that it was necessary for Congress to stay in session to watch the President. While I believe that our President is sincerely doing everything possible to keep America out of war, and that he will continue to do so, I realize that there are lots of good people who mistrust his judgement. It was, however, nothing but the sheerest political bunk for the Republicans to say we needed to keep Congress here to keep us out of war at this time. In the first place, there is no immediate danger of America going to war—certainly not before the first of the year, when the regular session will convene. In the next place, Congress is the only power that can send us to war. As long as Congress is not in session we can't declare war, and personally I am convinced that the most dangerous thing this nation could do just at this time would be to keep Congress in session thereby providing a daily opportunity for all of the swivel-chair heroes to wave the bloody shirt before the American people and build up hatred and prejudice. Like most members, I felt that there is legislation that should be passed without delay, but I know that were we to stay in session that no legislation would likely be passed before January and no major measures like Federal Pensions would ever be considered. I cannot believe that the possible good to be accomplished could justify the certain danger incident to daily fanning of the flames of hate that would have taken place had Congress remained in session. I voted for the new Cash and Carry Bill and for adjournment at this time.

As an example of new legislation that I fell should receive at-ention at the January session, but which could not receive a hearing now, I introduced two bills both of which I hope will receive some public thought and consideration that they may be given a hearing at the next session. The first of these bills provides that the Farm Credit Administration shall make loans to farmers for soil conservation work—such as the construction of terraces, ditches, etc. I think the present law gives ample authority to make such loans but the fact is that they are not being made. I hope that this bill will at least focus attention on the situation and even if it is not passed the desired result will be attained if we can get the money under existing law.

The other bill provides for the payment of substantial cash prizes by the Federal Government to anyone who develops new uses for domestic cotton. This is but a Federal application of the Moffett Bill passed by the last session of our legislature. However, I feel that since the cotton crop is of national importance and any increase in the use of cotton is beneficial to other parts of the United States as well as to Texas that the Federal Government should have a substantial part in aiding every effort to increase the use of cotton.

The time between sessions will be so short that we do not expect to try to set up an office in Waco. I shall, however, spend the time in various parts of the District and will be glad to confer with all our people who have any matters they want to discuss. It will also be possible to reach me by writing to me at Waco. Mr. Upshaw will be available at Belton and Mr. McAlexander at Temple. Anyone of us will be happy to serve any citizen of the 11th District or to give you any information we can.

Following my custom of the past I will discontinue my weekly letters until Congress re-convenes in January.

COPPERAS COVE MEETS IRELAND, FRIDAY IN FEATURE SIX-MAN GAME OF WEEK

By WILSON BRAZZIL

Six-Man Football Editor

The Copperas Cove six-man football team, the only undefeated and untied squad in the six-man league, face their toughest assignment thus far in the season when they meet the "Fighting Irish" of Ireland on the Ireland field Friday afternoon.

Ireland enters this game decidedly the underdog, having already dropped one close game to the Copperas Cove team early in the season, but are expected to put out the best they have in a mighty effort to tumble the Cove team from the ranks of the unbeaten. On the other hand, Copperas Cove will attempt to keep their record unmarred by defeat by displaying the same brand of football that won for them this perfect record, and highest berth in the league.

Ireland bases her hopes on Edwards and Pearson, a couple of gridsters who have made a remarkable showing for the Irish this season and backed by Squires and Moore, are likely to make it tough sledding for Copperas Cove.

The Cove team is depending upon the endurance and ability of their team, and upon Mathias and Faubian, a couple of lads who are as fast as jackrabbits with floating power, to bring them out of the game undefeated.

Down Flat way, Coach Harry Morhmann's Yellow Jackets get a much needed rest this week according to information received here. Copeland, star defense man of the Flat squad was seriously injured in the Ireland-Flat fray last Friday but is expected to be ready to play against Oglesby when these two teams meet on the Flat gridiron, November 17.

The Turnersville team is also due a rest this week end but will probably go through their regular practice session in preparation for their game with the Irish of Ireland, next Friday. Turnersville, second highest team in the six-man league tucked another rose in her hair by defeating a fighting crew of Oglesby Tigers at Turnersville last Friday by a score of 16 to 12.

Oglesby journeys to Pearl Friday, according to our schedule and are doped to win for the second time this year over Coach Hedgepeth's Pearl Dragons. Carter McKelvin will probably assume the ball carrying duties for Oglesby; while Moseley and Dumas are expected to lead out for Pearl.

TEXAS U. TEAM AT WACO SATURDAY

WACO, Tex., Nov. 10—The Baylor Bears, fresh from their smashing victory over the TCU Horned Frogs last Saturday will face stiffer competition here Saturday when they go up against the dangerous Texas eleven.

Texas has come along fast after being doped to finish in the lower bracket of the conference and will be double tough after being held in check by a powerful SMU eleven. Both teams have suffered one loss in the conference flag chase and Saturday's winner will still have a chance to figure in the final outcome if the going gets rough for the two top leaders—SMU and Texas A. and M.

EUROPEAN WAR SCORE

The European war, now in its third month, has been marked by activity on four principal fronts: military, naval, diplomatic and economic.

Up to the present, the military phase of the war has seen the least activity. In naval warfare the Nazis have achieved their most notable successes, sinking over 360,000 tons of neutral and allied shipping and destroying the British battle ship Royal Oak and the aircraft carrier Courageous.

Apparent stalling on the military (and aerial) front has been counteracted by a bevy of activity in the diplomatic field, and it is on that basis that we must evaluate the war at its present stage.

As the allies progressively grow stronger from the military aspect and as Germany's economy begins to weaken under the stress of the allied naval blockade, diplomatic maneuvering has produced a series of developments which can be regarded only as major and consequential victories for Britain and France.

Refusal of Turkey to repudiate her treaties with Britain for mutual assistance in the Mediterranean constituted a staggering blow for the Nazis. For that refusal created in the Turkish state a nucleus around which the neutral states of Southeastern Europe can align themselves against Nazi economic and military encroachments.

Eventual success of the allied economic blockade against Germany is in large measure dependent upon the foreign outlook of the neutral states of Scandinavia, the Balkans and, of course, Russia. For if these states permit themselves to be bludgeoned into a state of economic vassalage to Germany, their vast resources of wheat, oil, foodstuffs and other war necessities will be opened to Germany as a reservoir upon which she can draw to wage war for an unlimited period.

Had Turkey acquiesced to the proposals of Russia that she draw away from her British pledges and close the Dardanelles to allied warships, the smaller states of the Balkans would have been left defenseless before the Nazi advancement.

A blow of equally significant consequences to the Nazis is the abrupt transformation which has taken place in Italy's foreign policy. An ally of Germany, signer of a defensive treaty with the Nazis less than a year ago, Italy was regarded as the silent partner of the axis at the opening of hostilities in September—a partner who would take advantage of her neutrality to import the raw materials needed for Germany's war machine for transshipment to the Reich.

French military strategists, picturing Italy as the firm ally of Germany, debated forcing Italy to fight at the outset in order to secure an avenue of approach to Germany through the Brenner Pass.

But for week now the Italian press and Italian officialdom have refrained from mentioning the Berlin-Rome axis. Mussolini has talked little of foreign affairs and has refused to heed hints that he act as mediator for Hitler with the allies.

International News Service reported from Rome last week that Il Duce favors the creation of an enlarged Catholic Austria if and when Hitler is defeated. Rumors of this sort from the Italian capital tend to substantiate the growing conviction in allied quarters that the Italians are determined to maintain rigid neutrality and that eventual Italian aid to the allies is not out of consideration.

Of this the allies are certain: Mussolini is not going to take up arms in support of Hitler.

Of all the diplomatic moves that have occurred in the fast-moving panorama of European war politics the most vitally significant in its present and future implications is the abject surrender which Hitler has made to Communist Russia.

From the standpoint of material gain, the Russians stand at present as the only participants in the game of European power politics with no losses and great gains.

As the price of Russian military support against the Poles and for diplomatic and economic aid against the allies, Hitler has sacrificed Germany's position in the Baltic area, long a scene of deadly conflict between Slav and Teuton.

Germans numbering hundreds of thousands have been ejected from the Baltic states of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania following the establishment of Russian military garrisons and naval bases in these states.

These Germans have been an outpost for Teutonic culture and trade since the days of the Hanseatic league, and their precipitate expulsion signifies the extent to which Russia now controls this area.

Furthermore, Germany has lost control of her bread basket, the Danubian basin, to the Russians. Only the most effective diplomatic and military resistance on the part of the small states of Southeastern Europe can prevent partial economic and political domination by the Communists of Russia.

Political observers predict that Rumania will lose Bessarabia to the Russians at an early date and that Bulgaria will be cajoled into granting the Russians naval bases on the Black Sea.

The Rumanian oil wells and wheat fields have long been coveted by Nazi expansionists, and Bulgaria was allied with the Germans and Austrians in the World War.

The Turkish, Italian and Russian reverses do not complete the entire picture of German set-backs on the diplomatic front.

Loss of support among pro-Nazi groups abroad arising from the Nazi-Communist rapprochement has deprived the Germans of effective good-will agents in many neutral countries.

Nazism forfeited all claims to support by Western civilization when it abandoned its stand as a bulwark between Communism and the Western democracies.

Repeal of the American embargo on the shipment of munitions of war, while a product of American internal politics and not of international diplomacy, is the latest event in the series of reverses of a diplomatic and economic nature which has been dealt the Nazis.

The allies, it seems to us, clearly merit the nod at this stage of the epic which will decide the fate of civilization.

It is better to wait for a light to change than to wait for an ambulance to arrive.

D. D. Grubb, Correspondent

We are needing a good general rain. It is getting very dry.

Mr. A. Z. Wilson of Evant has sold his town property here in Ireland to a Mr. Smith of Pottsville, who will move here soon.

Messrs. Tom Stiles and Luther Ballard of Ohio, Texas were Ireland visitors recently. We were glad to have them with us and hope they will come again.

Mr. B. F. Grubb and family of Wink, Texas and Mr. R. M. Grubb of Hamlin, Jones County, Texas were here on business the past week and also visited relatives.

Mr. Doc Wallace of Turnersville was here this week buying a car load of fancy Hereford calves from Mr. A. H. Pagal. These calves were shipped to Shelby, Illinois, where they will be placed on feed and later when fat will be sold on the market for beef.

Mr. Raymond Edwards and family of Austin were here visiting last Sunday in the home of his father, Mr. D. L. Edwards, and family of our city.

Mr. Kenneth Pearson and family of Marfa were here on a short visit the past week to relatives.

The Wiley Grubb ranch near Ireland has just been sold to Mr. Brooks of Waco. This ranch has been owned by the Grubb family for more than sixty years and during that time no sheep or goats were owned on this ranch, and this ranch has been fenced for more than forty years. Mr. Brooks, the new owner, will make quite a lot of new improvements and will handle Hereford cattle and goats.

Mr. John Robinett and family have moved in the Spencer house in East Ireland.

Mr. R. M. Kite, our daily rural mail carrier, was a recent visitor to relatives in Oklahoma.

Our school keeps on improving with more new students. Our football teams under Coach Sivells are proving strong contenders with the best teams and are gaining ground rapidly. They are enjoying the sportsmanship with our neighboring teams, while the basketball teams of boys and girls under Coach Truman Smith are leavin' nothin' undone to make this their best year and are improving with new victories to their credit. We enjoy very much your splendid work and the work of the other teams.

Chapter One

Miki — darling Miki — had repelled the invader. Had repelled her, and was very carefully leading her away. As their footsteps clattered down the stairs, Jeanette could hear Madame Bernard crying, "Doesn't owe me much, hey? Three hundred francs for a dress and a suit! And I've waited three months."

"Then you can wait three months longer," Miki suggested reasonably. Their voices died away and Jeanette leaped energetically out of the trunk in which she was hiding, snatched up her purse and hat and flew down the stairs.

Out of the door she turned suddenly as a shower of spray and clotted mud thrown up by an automobile wheel descended on her. "Oh, oh!" she gasped in dismay. The chauffeur had stopped, backed up. Jeanette knew instinctively by the discreet lustre of the hood that his car was one of the very expensive makes.

"Sorry, miss," he spoke earnestly. "Can I give you a lift?"

"That's all right," she forced herself to say. "Taxi!...What?" And then with quick decision, "Yes."

"To the Theatre Comique," she said as she settled in the seat beside him. The streets whirled by swiftly, effortlessly. "My name's Jeanette Dupont," she offered.

"Then I have them," Jeanette announced, "because I'm leaving now. Goodbye, girls," she shouted and strode off the stage.

"One hundred and eighty thousand francs for costumes to Spirelli; 50,000 to Lanson for scenery; salaries 60,000," Thibaud was concluding his reading of the accounts. "That leaves 60,000. Have another cigar, my dear Larousse."

"Oh thank you, thank you," beamed the portly Larousse. "I tell you, Jacques, it's a pleasure to meet a man like you in the artistic field. Such business ability!"

"Everything is paid," Thibaud announced with satisfaction. "We don't owe a penny. Now in order to carry on —"

"You shall need more cash?" "Well, not exactly; my credit is good." The phone rang and Thibaud heard the door-man speaking.

"Those three gentlemen are here again and they're demanding their money."

"Yes, yes, Mr. Rothschild," Thibaud answered the phone. "I'll call you later."

"Now where were we?" he resumed turning to Larousse whose eyes had bulged at the sound of the name.

"Well I always believe in paying cash," Larousse announced. "Will a half million do?"

"Quite, quite," Larousse unpeeled three layers of coats to find his

She stood upright in lonely splendor.

"You see, I'm awfully late for rehearsal..."

Crash! Fenders locked in mortal combat. An unobserved taxi had darted from a side street and now was locked under the prow of Jeanette's juggernaut. And the taxi-driver was on his feet, brandishing his fists and shouting sulphurous imprecations.

Jeanette's chauffeur was about to reply in kind. Suddenly his face lit up and he shouted "Pierre!" "Gaston!" cried the taxi-driver. They dismounted and ran head-on into each other's arms. Two long-lost friends had found each other and the greeting followed the effusive style of the French. Jeanette was biting her lip in impatience. The policeman approached and dourly surveyed the wreck. "Whom does this belong to?" he asked, indicating Jeanette's car.

"Rene Martin," the chauffeur answered.

"Rene Martin?" echoed the policeman. "Well, anyhow, you'll have to come to court."

Jeanette slipped out of her seat unobserved and hailed a taxi.

Twenty-nine girls clattered to the end of the routine, right leg forward, canes up in air. "Now listen girls," Jacques Thibaud announced as he rolled the cigar to the other corner of his mouth. "I'm putting a new ending in that number. Instead of finishing that way, you finish so." He wound up on one knee, came out before him.

The twenty-nine girls (the yellow poster with the magenta lettering outside promised fifty) resumed the routine. Jeanette entered from the wings, passed unobtrusively along the line, took her place. The piano clattered the last chords, and she stood upright with her cane above her, in lonely splendor, while all the others knelt.

Thibaud was tired. He turned his wrath on her. "And why didn't you know the new ending?" he shouted. "Because you came in late. You think some day you will be a great star. But you never will!"

"And why not?" she retorted. "Because you must have punctuality." His expressive features writhed. "And grit, plus talent, to leave the chorus line."

check book, took the pen proffered by Thibaud, tested its flow. There were voices outside the door raised in argument. The door flew open and in walked three angry men shouting, "We want our money!" with one voice.

"My money for the costumes!" shouted one. "For the scenery!" shouted another. "And shoes!" cried the third. Thibaud was dancing in agony. "Gentlemen, M. Larousse!" he pleaded.

"Am I to understand these gentlemen have not been paid?" Larousse asked in deadly calm.

"In this theatre, no one is ever paid," volunteered one of the creditors. "Are you Jacques' backer?"

"I was," Larousse announced thrusting the check-book back into its hiding place. "And if you take my advice, Jacques, you'll refund the money you squandered or find yourself in jail." He stamped out and as he slammed the door he left Jacques facing his dismayed creditors.

"There you are," Thibaud sighed.

"Pop," the watchman, was still trying to locate Jeanette Dupont, for the chauffeur, when two of the chorus girls came through the door and saw the glistening car. "Who did you want to see?" asked one.

"Er — Miss Dupont."

"Who does the car belong to?"

"Rene Martin."

"Rene Martin!" breathed the girls together. Five minutes later the chorus was saying — "Rene Martin — you know — and Dupont!"

Ten minutes later the stage hands were talking of "secret marriage, Rene Martin."

Fifteen minutes later Thibaud was demanding from his cowed assistant Clarence, "What's this about Jeanette Dupont?"

"Well, Rene Martin and Jeanette Dupont, they —" Clarence offered mildly.

"What?" howled Thibaud. "Where's that girl? Dead or alive, she's coming back. Don't you realize she's Rene Martin's girl friend, and he's a billionaire? We're saved! We're saved!"
