Ballard George Dies in Waco

Ballard W. George, 49, associate justice of the Tenth court of civil appeals and prominent Texas democrat, died suddenly at 5:30 p. m. Wednesday while visiting with friends at Karem Shrine temple in Waco.

At a Waco hospital, where he was carried, attendants said death resulted from a heart attack, caused by coronary occlusion.

Associates said Justice George was putting on his coat to leave the clubrooms when he was stricken, and friends caught him as he was falling to the floor.

News of the fatal attack was told Mrs. George when she came for her husband a few minutes after the ambulance left.

Associate Justice George, long active in court, religious, civic and school work, was born at Cryer Creek, Texas, December 9, 1889. He served several years as county attorney of Navarro county and was later a member of the Corsicana law firm of Davis, Jester and George, before coming to Waco in 1937, at which time he was appointed to the Tenth court bench upon the death of Justice J. A. Stanford. He was elected to that bench for the first time last year. The jurist was a 32nd degree Mason in the Dallas Scottish Rite consistory, member of Karem shrine temple and of the blue lodge at Barry, near Corsicana.

He had just returned from Fort Worth, where he was a delegate from Austin Avenue Methodist church to the Methodist conference.

Justice George had been one of the most active members of the alumni of the University of Texas, and served in the aviation corps during the world war.

Justice George was well known and liked in Gatesville, and also, Mrs. George, who has many friends and acquaintances here.

As was in the case of his appointment to replace Justice Sanford, Governor W. Lee O'Daniel is the one who will fill the place on the Tenth court bench, made vacant by his untimely death.

HORNETS TAKE ON MARLIN BULLDOGS IN BUTTER BOWL TONIGHT: SHOULD WIN

Tonight at the Butter Bowl, Gatesville High School Hornets will again expose themselves to the ravages of the Class A football conference, when they will take on the Marlin Bulldogs, in their next to the last game and also next to the last conference game.

Coach Earle Worley has been giving the boys the works this week, in preparation for this game, and barring a few slight injuries, has the boys in the mood physically and mentally.

With a percentage well over the .500 mark, the Hornets will be favored to take this contest, and also to end a successful season, with only the classic of this vicinity ahead of them, the McGregor Bulldog game, which practically all scribes say will cost them a defeat of about 30 to 0.

Jan Jones, Hornet punter, and fullback, is not in the pink, due to lime burns, but it is possible he will see service. Others on the squad have slight burns of this character, but in the main are in top shape for the contest.

As yet, we don't have the Marlin squad's starting line up, but Worley will use practically the same as has been used in the previous games, and if not, substitutions will be in order at any time during the game's progress.

A capacity crowd is expected at this, the Hornet's last home conflict, and of course, the Marlin fans will be here to support their club to the limit.

$1,002,541.33 On Deposit at Nat'l

At the director's meeting of The National Bank of Gatesville Wednesday, it was discovered that the deposits in this bank total the tidy sum of $1,002,541.33.

In confidence with one of the bank's officials we found out that money was no cheaper, at least we could not borrow on any cheaper interest rates.

Regardless of all this, this is a heap of deposits in a little town the size of Gatesville, and indicates somebody is doing some nice business in these parts.

New Classing of Loan Cotton

In a letter to County Agent Guy Powell, from officials of the Dallas office, Division of Cotton Marketing, a new method of classing of cotton on which loans are to be made or have been made has been announced.

The letter reads: "We are informed that instructions issued by the Commodity Credit Corporation to warehousemen in connection with the 1939-40 loan program will provide that the Form 1 classification which is issued to members of organized groups will be accepted for loan purposes. Warehousemen, however, will be required to certify the gin tag numbers as provided by Commodity Credit Corporation requirements. Approved ware-

Notes From Co. AAA office

Ninety-nine per cent of the 1939 Cotton Parity Payments have been received and these checks delivered. These applications for payment were handled with only a 1.4 per cent county suspension rate, compared to a 1.7 per cent suspension rate for the state. This is an enviable record which this office intends to maintain or better.

Cotton Acreage Allotments for 1940 were received in this office Thursday, November 16, and will be mailed to the producers within the next few days.

More than one-half of the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Applications for Payment have been signed and submitted to the State AAA office. Notices to the producers to sign the remaining applications are being mailed daily. Checks on a part of the applications that have already been submitted to the State Office are expected daily since the State AAA office has certified that applications would

High-Stepping Majorettes to Prance For NTSTC Exes at Homecoming Tilt Nov. 18

Denton, Tex.—Returning lettermen and other exes who come back to the campus of the North Texas State Teachers College in Denton Nov. 18 for the biggest campus football event of the year—the annual grudge battle between Jack Sisco's Eagles and Bob Berry's Lions from Commerce—will get an eyeful of the above "high steppers" between halves. One of the major campus improvements of the year—in NTSTC band circles—the five colorful "queens of prance" are an innovation at the Teachers College. Bob Marquis, director of the Eagle band, has selected Flora Mae Tatum of Gladewater (upper center) a brunette, as the first girl drum major in the history of the college. Her four "majorette" assistants include a red head, Kay Walker of Bowie; two brunettes, Gloria Mitchell of Lancaster and Lois Kikes of Gladewater, and one blonde, Theresa Corcoran of Denison. The Denton-Commerce battle will gain undisputed possession of the championship of the Lone Star Conference. The game is dedicated to lettermen and members of the T-Club, former student athletes. A general invitation to all exes to return to the campus for the Homecoming has been extended, and special invitations have been sent to all former athletes whose addresses are known to college officials. Fraternities, sororities, and other campus clubs will hold open house for their exes during the Homecoming Day celebration.

IN THE ORIENT

If "face" saving is a Japanese tradition, the Tokyo's new Foreign Office spokesman, Yakichiro Suma needed an "honorable" face lifting last week. Two weeks ago Suma labeled Tokyo newspaper stories of imminent negotiations between the United States and Japan on vital problems in China "pure imagination." But last week Tokyo's Foreign Office was the scene of just such talks.

Foreign Minister Kichisaburo Nomura invited U. S. Ambassador Joseph C. Grew in for a long chat on Japanese-American relations. Press reports said Grew followed up his frank speech of October 19 on American resentment of Japanese army tactics in China with a blunt warning of U. S. economic pressure. But high government sources said the talks were conducted "in an atmosphere of extreme good will."

Moreover, at Washington, the U. S. State Department officially denied that the Ambassador had threatened pressure of any kind. Grew's report home it was pointed out, showed he had dealt only with "objective facts," including: (1) damage of American property in China, and (2) Japanese army restrictions on American trade and other rights in the Orient.

Normura's invitation to Grew was generally taken to indicate that Japan is most anxious to mend her strained relations with the United States. Biggest urge in that direction is known to stem from the fact that Japan is faced with expiration of the American Japanese trade treaty in January.—Pathfinder.

ONE OUT OF EVERY FOUR ADULTS HAS—

Sinus Disease

According to leading doctors "sinus trouble is one of the most prevalent diseases of today. This dreaded and severely painful disease is caused by and follows the COMMON COLD." All kinds of serious complications besides sinus infection follow the common cold. America's Public Health Enemy Number One, the common cold germ wages its attack to pave the way for such serious illnesses as bronchitis, pneumonia, tuberculosis, and other serious health-wrecking diseases. Frequently cold infection creeps into the ear or mastoid.

HEAT YOUR ENTIRE HOME FOR YOUR HEALTH'S SAKE

DURING the common cold months, or winter season, it is especially important to take every precaution to protect your health. Quick changes of temperature should be avoided. Sudden changes of temperature, such as occur when going from a warm room into a cold one, make it easy for you to "catch cold." For your health's sake, and to obtain the greatest value from the fuel you use, heat your entire house and provide adequate ventilation during the short winter season.

Denton Teachers College Helps ETCC Relize Dream of Building Yam Dehydration Pilot Plant

CONSTRUCTING FRAME OF PILOT PLANT DRYER.

EAST TEXAS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE COOPERATES WITH NTSTC.

TELLING TEXAS ABOUT CHEMURGY

NTSTC CHEMURGIC EXHIBIT AT DALLAS FAIR

Denton, Texas—Students are busy these fall days in the chemurgic laboratories at the North Texas State Teachers College building a sweet potato dehydration pilot plant which will realize a dream long held by East Texas Chamber of Commerce officials.

The plant, which is to have a maximum capacity of two tons of dehydrated potatoes a day, is being installed in the basement of the science building at the college and is to be operated on an experimental basis under the direction of Gilbert Wilson, instructor in chemurgy.

A big 35-foot dryer with a 26-foot drum has already been completed, and is ready for operation. Framework for the dryer is shown at the upper left as it was inspected during a recent trip to NTSTC campus by Elmore R. Torn, agricultural and forestry director of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce. Gilbert Wilson is next to Torn, and W. N. Masters, head of the NTSTC chemistry staff, is at the right.

In the picture at the upper right, Torn and Wilson take another look at the "Wilson press", which was built by Wilson and others when the young scientist was instructor in science at White Oak High school. This work was begun last spring by Wilson as chairman of the sweet potato starch section of the chemurgic division of ETCC, of which Victor H. Schoffelmayer is chairman.

Principal difficulty in the dehydration problem was an efficient sweet potato press which would free the sweet potato from the necessary water solubles in order to obtain a chemically stable final dehydration product. This press is believed to have solved the difficulty and to have thus linked the sweet potato and starch industries, enabling the latter to operate on a 12-month basis.

To be constructed yet are a pilot plant press, chemical mixers, and a grinder, all of size proportionate to the dryer. All machines are being built on the Teachers College campus especially for sweet potato dehydration processes.

Arrangements have been made with the Laurel, Miss., Sweet Potato Starch Plant to ship six tons of White Triumph sweet potatoes to Denton to be run through the dehydration plant for technological study, The White Triumph being the potato best adapted for industrial purposes. Arrangements have also been made with Col. W. E. Talbot, manager of the Brownsville Chamber of Commerce to ship several tons of White Triumph grown in his district to Denton for processing. Some of the potatoes in this area are said to be as large as 23 inches in diameter. Plans are also under way for conducting feeding tests of the dehydrated products in the Cisco community.

The pilot plant at Denton is being constructed as a result of a recommendation of a special ETCC committee headed by M. E. Darsey of Grapeland. A separate committee outside the ETCC has been appointed to receive investments in the pilot plant operation. Those investing in the pilot plant will be given an opportunity to invest in a commercial unit to be built on the results of the findings made by the NTSTC chemurgist. E. L. Kurth of Lufkin was the first man to make an investment in the East Texas Sweet Potato Dehydration Pilot Plant Association, which hopes to open great new industrial markets for farmers of this area. Satisfactory market outlets have been established with the Laurel Starch Plant and the Warriner Starch Plant Inc., according to Wilson.

The lower picture at the left shows Elmore R. Torn, agricultural and forestry director for ETCC, broadcasting a talk on the chemurgic exhibits at the Dallas Fair from the Denton Teachers College campus. W. N. Masters is at right. The North Texas State Teachers College fair exhibit is at lower right.

The SPORT SCROLL

By WILSON BRAZZIL

Probably the closest scrap of the week will take place at Flat when the Jackets meet the Oglesby Tigers in a "bone cracking" free-for-all. Oglesby will be fighting desperately to move up to second highest position in the six-man league and chances are they will take the Flat squad, but not too handily. The Jackets chances to win this game are somewhat slim due to injuries that have placed some of their star players on the bench. Copeland who suffered a shoulder injury in the Ireland-Flat game several weeks ago will not be able to play, according to reports received early this week. Clawson, a dependable player who has showed up well this season will probably be switched to the position formally occupied by Copeland.

Carter McKelvin, brilliant Oglesby ball carrier, was also injured last week but is expected to be ready for the opening whistle Friday. Conditions of the playing field may have a lot to do with the outcome of this game.

Turnersville is the next team to get a crack at the high-flying Copperas Cove crew and will attempt in every legal way possible, to tumble them from the ranks of the unbeaten.

Sparked by Huckabee, a curly-headed lad who has set the league on fire with his spectacular broken-field running, and assisted by the line-plunging Walker, the Cove boys may be faced with one of their toughest assignments this year. However, if Copperas Cove displays the same kind of football in this game as they have in the past, chances are that they will quit the field with their record still unmarred.

The Irish of Ireland who went down before a superior six-man team from Copperas Cove on a muddy field last Friday, are slated to meet the Pearl aggregation on the Pearl gridiron Friday afternoon.

Though Pearl has a fighting team, they are handicapped by lack of experience and are expected to drop the game to the Irish who have already handed them one defeat this season.

Competition among the girls basketball teams of the county is expected to be rather keen this coming season. Last Friday while waiting for the Copperas Cove-Ireland football game to get under way we saw the Irish lassies of Ireland go thru a slight practice session and hit the basket from almost every angle on the hardwood floor. Chances are this team will be among the best when the fun does start.

This football craze seems to have spread to the fairer sex, at least in some states. In southern California, for instance, an all-girls football league has been organized and games are arranged and played according to schedule. However instead of working out plays when they go into a huddle, the girls simply drink soda pop, powder their noses and exchange the latest gossip.

SPORT SCRAPS

By JONES

Well the Worleys (Hornets) are back at it, and were all the week. They are taking the games as they come to them, and the next one is with Marlin tonight under the lights.

This, if the punter Jones can go with the lime burns he has, should be the Hornet's by, well, approximately 18 to 6. However, weather can not be guaranteed at this time of year, and wet weather might make this about 12 to 6 or even by a one touchdown margin. Anyway, who knows?

Coach Schwarz has put away his team's football togs until next season. The boys on his Junior did O. K., altho they dropped three out of four, and this was probably due to their size, but more likely, their inexperience.

In the six-man, our schedule reads, Oglesby at Flat, Copperas Cove at Turnersville and Ireland at Pearl.

Lime seemed to be the worst on the boys during the Hamilton game. This lime used to mark the lines on the field WAS slacked lime, but gets damp, according to Coach Worley, and causes burns. Hodges, Gribble, and some of the other boys in addition to Jones, are victims of these unavoidable burns this week.

The club doesn't look too impressive against the scrubs, but this is natural, since the scrubs know the plays, and in fact, are just about as tough as the regulars. They'll show tonight, however.

MOUNTAIN CLUB HOSTESS TO LEAGUE OF HOME ECONOMICS CLUBS

The League of Home Economics and Home Demonstration Clubs of Coryell County held its 14th semi-annual meeting at the Mountain in Wednesday, November 8, with the Mountain H-D Club as hostess.

Seventy-eight women registered during the hour of registration. After the opening exercises, the meeting was turned over to the president, Mrs. Matt Kemp. During the business meeting a committee was appointed to meet with the Commissioner's Court and endeavor to secure the services of a county health nurse for Coryell County.

Other committees appointed were: an Exhibit committee, composed of Miss Estelle Cooper of Priscilla, Miss Eva Durham of Topsey, and Mrs. Fred Robinson of Pearl. Mrs. Joe Watkins of Purmela, Mrs. Parc Williamson of Harmon, and Mrs. T. C. Music of Mountain were appointed to serve on a nominating committee.

Cash prizes were awarded to Priscilla, first, Topsey, second and Harmon, third, for having the best exhibits.

In the afternoon, after a brief program by the Mountain Club, a round table discussion was held. Many interesting accomplishments of the Clubs were given by various members. Pearl Club is to be complimented on the work they have done so far in cleaning up and taking care of their cemetery beautifying project this year.

Before the meeting adjourned, Mrs. Wade Hampton, "Mother of the League", was presented, and she gave a short talk.

The next meeting will be held at Pearl with the Pearl Club as hostess.—Reporter.

Strikes & Spares

By THE BOWLERS

The boys in the league seem to be "sweating a rest" on the league play. They haven't been on hand in sufficient numbers for the last two Monday nights.

During the interm, however, there've been some really good scores made, Clayton Franks turning in a 245 and a 228. That was last week, and this week, so far, Ed Schloeman has turned in a 208.

Biggest score among the fair sex we've heard of lately is the one turned in by Flogene Martin a big 180. Treva Davis has even beat that.

Some of these fair ones are interested in forming a league, and there are just about enough of them to make two teams.

Waco ladies went to San Antonio last week, and brought home to Waco, a championship among the lady bowlers.

New Classing —

housemen may secure information and forms from lending agencies as soon as the printed supply becomes available, about 3 weeks hence. Members of organized groups who have already had their cotton classed and have their Form 1 Memoranda, will not need to have it classed again, provided such cotton is properly identified as required by the Corporation. Organized groups which have been approved for the free classing service under the Smith-Doxey Act may continue to send in any eligible cotton for free classing in the same way as in the past. We are calling your attention to this because a fee of 15 cents per bale will be collected for the classing of samples other than those entitled to free classing under the Smith-Doxey Act. If, therefore, members of groups organized under this Act want to use the free classing service (Form 1) and save the 15 cents per bale classing fee, it is important that they continue to send in their samples to the classing office in the same way as they have in the past and see that these samples are not included along with other loan cotton submitted by warehousemen. We shall continue to class cotton for approved organized groups at our Dallas, Austin, Lubbock, and Altus offices as we are now doing. Classing will not start on other loan cotton until a date to be announced later."

If you should see a bit of roller pigeons performing acrobatics above North Hollywood, California, they are probably from the lofts of Jack Stafford, breeder of fancy pigeons. He has trained and bred a remarkable number of prize winning Birmingham Rollers. These versatile birds will do 100 spins in a 45 minute flight. Other birds called parlor rollers, tumble across the ground. They cannot fly.

BRITISH LABOR'S PEACE PROPOSALS

At intervals since the start of the European war, this column has discussed the possible bases which peace must be established when the war is brought to a conclusion.

In the column of Oct. 24 and again on Nov. 3, it was suggested that the new peace which will follow the cessation of hostilities "must be a peace of collaboration in which Germany will participate as an equal along with her present adversaries, the United States and the principal neutral nations of the world."

Further, on another point it was stated in the column that the peace "... must be a peace under which the peoples of the world can be freed of the ever-recurrent spectre of war and under which they can look forward to an era of several centuries of progress".

In his comment before the House of Commons on the peace appeals of Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold, Laborite leader Clement R. Attlee enunciated peace proposals which substantially parallel and to some extent supplement those previously laid down in this column. It is interesting to analyze the peace which British labor envisions as following the war.

Attlee spoke of an international setup to guarantee the rights of all people to conduct a bold economic program to meet the economic upheaval after the war.

"Europe must federate or perish," he said, declaring that the acceptance of the principle that international authority is superior to that of the individual state should be part of any peace treaty.

In a statement of war aims similar to that set forth by Lord Halifax, foreign minister, in an earlier address, Major Attlee reiterated Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement that peace cannot be achieved on a lasting basis with a German government whose word cannot be trusted. The German government that negotiates peace, he said, must abandon Hitlerism and repudiate any policy of aggression.

The peace conference would have to include a denunciation of aggression and the use of force, Attlee said. Then these six principles of peace could be established:

1. No dictated peace.
"We have no desire to humiliate and crush a divided German nation. There must be restitution made to victims of aggression, but all ideas of revenge and punishment must be excluded . . ."
2. Recognition of the right of all people, regardless of their color, creed or national strength, to live and develop their own characteristic civilizations without infringing upon the rights of others.
3. Complete abandonment of aggression and the use of force as an instrument of policy. War must be outlawed and the rule of law accepted.
4. Recognition of the right of national, racial and religious minorities.
5. Acceptance of the principle that international authority is superior to the individual state endowed not only with the rights over them but with the power to make them effective and operative not only in a political but econ-mic sphere.

6. Abandonment of imperialism and acceptance of the principle that in government of the colonies and dependencies where self-government cannot yet be conceded, the interests of the natives must be paramount. There also must be equal access for all nations to markets and raw materials.

In an ensuing column, these proposals for peace will be correlated with those previously discussed in this space and a general formula of peace presented.

4 CORNERS H-D CLUB

The 4 Corners Home Demonstration Club met November 2 at the home of Mrs. J. L. Bland for an all-day meeting.

At 12 o'clock a most bountiful dinner was enjoyed by the club members and four guests, Miss Gibson of Gatesville, Mrs. Music of Mountain, Mrs. Jouett Allen and Mrs. Ellen Shaw of Copperas Cove, and the following club members: Mesdames Orrin Hoover, George Hicks, Debbie Morris, Doyle Manning, York Stacy, Orin Beverly, R. C. Horner, C. R. Latimer, O. C. Marshall, and the hostess.

In the afternoon the club was called to order, and after a short business meeting the new officers were elected for the coming new club year. Mrs. R. C. Horner was elected president; Mrs. George Hicks, vice president; Mrs. Orrin Hoover, secretary; Mrs. Debbie Morris, treasurer; Mrs. York Stacy, council delegate; Mrs. Doyle Manning, bedroom demonstrator; Mrs. Charles Latimer, poultry demonstrator; and Mrs. J. L. Bland club reporter.

The next meeting will be November 16 with Mrs. R. C. Horner, hour 1 till 4 p. m. Visitors are always welcome.—Reporter.

GATESVILLE GIRL IN SWING BAND AT TSCW

Miss Martha Moore of Gatesville is a member of the sixteen piece swing band, the "Campus Serenaders", at Texas State College for Women this year. For the second year Miss Velma Bargainier of Marlin, senior student, is conducting the group.

Daughter of W. G. Moore, Miss Moore is a freshman student at the college majoring in library science.

Initial out of town appearances of the Serenaders this fall was at the Texas-Oklahoma District Convention of the Kiwanis Club in Wichita Falls last month. The orchestra has made appearances all over Texas and Southeastern Oklahoma and plays twice weekly for campus dances.

Orchestra uniforms are pastel satin evening dresses. Travelling with complete equipment, members go in college busses to fill their engagements.

Accident records are proving, however, that the driver is still in a daytime daze.

He forgets that he cannot possibly drive as fast at night as in the day.

The hazards are greater and the vision is more restricted.

Colored Minstrel At Flat Friday

The main attraction at Flat this week is a "Blackface" minstrel which is to be presented in the high school auditorium Friday night, November 17.

This "rib-tickling" comedy show is presented under the auspices of the school and is said to contain all the songs, gags and stunts that compose the major portion of any minstrel show.

Several short plays are also included as a part of the evening's entertainment. Don't miss it.

TURKEY TIME

When the Pilgrim Fathers first set foot on New England's rock bound coast, they found running wild an abundant supply of large and handsome guinea fowl. Palatable and easy to hunt, the birds graced the colonists' first Thanksgiving tables and eventually became an important export to the mother country. There they were confused with a similar type of African guinea fowl, first imported into 17th century England by way of Turkey and accordingly named the "turkey cocke".

Though in recent years the native American wild turkey, which once made a strong bid for the eagle's place as a national emblem, has been saved from extinction only by vigorous conservation efforts, the approach of America's annual turkey-eating season this week found the domesticated bird more strongly entrenched than ever. The 1939 crop of 32,000,000 turkeys is the largest on government record, 22 per cent above the 1938 crop, which was valued at 70 million dollars, and 15 per cent above the previous record crop of 1936.

With two Thanksgivings to observe—November 23 under President Roosevelt's proclamation and November 30, the traditional "last Thursday" decreed by half the nation's Governors who objected to "juggling" the holidays—Americans this year may eat even more than the 25,696,000 turkeys consumed in 1938. In that year they paid to the nation's turkey farmers $68,526,000 for the birds, the peak consumption coming during the Thanksgiving to Christmas holiday period. Retail prices at the current turkey time are expected to be roughly the same as last year, about 33 cents a pound.

Even more favorable is the long-time turkey outlook. To meet the needs of the small family, geneticists of the Department of Agriculture are experimenting with a small plump and "streamlined" turkey. In five years they hope to have available for commercial production a white cross breed—without the fan-tail and wattles of the Pilgrim variety—of Austrian and native turkeys weighing only 7 to 9 pounds dressed.

Another possible stimulant to turkey consumption was recently devised by the National Sausage Casing Dealers Association. Smoked turkey, veal, pork and several other ingredients will be stuffed, as in a hot dog, into sheep casing and sold on rolls at 15 cents each. The new product will be called a turkeyfurter or hot turk. A smattering of cranberry sauce on the hot turk will bear the same relation as mustard to the hot dog.—Pathfinder.

The ALEXANDER KORDA'S FIRST MUSICAL PRODUCTION GAIETY GIRLS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
When Rene Martin's chauffeur spashes Jeanette Dupont, he offers her a ride to the theatre. En route they collide with another car, but she proceeds to the theatre. Arriving late, she is involved in an argument with Thibaud, the director, leaves her job in the chorus. Thibaud is faced with ruin when his creditors reveal his involved finances to his backer. Because Martin's chauffeur comes to look for Jeanette, the rumor soon gains currency that she is Martin's sweetheart. Then she returns and Thibaud greets her with open arms and makes her the star of the show. Everybody wishes favors, merchandise on her. She is puzzled until she hears of the rumor from her friend Miki. Martin is one of Paris' leading millionaires, and it is only with difficulty that Miki prevents her from exposing the hoax. Martin, suddenly faced with an influx of strange bills, decides to investigate this Jeanette Dupont business.

Chapter Three

Martin arrived at the stage door of the Theatre Comique shortly before rehearsal time. The doorkeeper admitted him with such celerity when he heard the name, that Martin would have been suspicious if he had known a little more about stage doors.

"I'm sorry you caught me like this!"

Just before Martin arrived, Paul Duval, leading stage reviewer had presented himself for an interview. While Duval waited outside Jeanette's door, Thibaud discovered him and dragged him toward the office, explaining, "I never let my stars give interviews. They don't give you the real story."

So when Martin was admitted to Jeanette's dressing room, it was natural that she assumed he was Duval. Her head was immersed in a noisy mechanical hair dryer. He accepted her invitation to sit down and began resolutely.

"I came here to see you on a certain matter."

"Fatter?" she echoed from beneath the metallic dome. "Yes, but I've been dieting."

Martin tried again with no better success. Finally he raised his voice to a shout. "I have no wish to pry into your private affairs. No wish at all. But please understand that I cannot be a party to deception."

Jeanette clicked the switch, the mechanical whir died and suddenly she emerged from beneath the bell-like contraption, lovelier and fresher than he had ever dreamed. "And that is final," he finished lamely.

"I'm sorry you caught me like this," she said frankly and pleasantly. "How do you do?"

He took her extended hand. Martin gazed at her dumbly.

"Now what's this about a mistake?" she asked.

"Mistake? Oh, er, I thought I was in the wrong room."

"Well, give me your hat. Do you know, I thought you'd be different."

"Oh, you were expecting me?" Martin asked hollowly.

"Yes, when they told me that Paul Duval was coming to interview me I expected a stern old man with a beard, and, you know, much older and harder than you."

Now Martin understood. He decided to play up to his role. "And I expected you to be different. I mean you're so... so... Awfully nice room this."

"Yes, isn't it?" she agreed. "Now where shall I begin?"

"At the beginning, please."

"Well, I was born on a farm in Bordeaux," Jeannette began.

This was the first story of her life that she would tell to the press. Perhaps when she really got to be a star they wouldn't be quite so fantastic. "Then quite suddenly I got this chance."

"How did you get it? Through hard work or influence?"

"What do you mean?"

"I understand there's a Mr. Rene Martin."

"I thought so!" she cried. "I thought you'd get around to that. There's absolutely nothing between Rene Martin and myself."

"I see," he persisted. "Where did you meet him?"

"Oh," she gaped. "At a party last winter."

"But I thought Rene Martin was in Egypt."

"Well, isn't Cairo in Egypt? That's where the party occurred. I shall never forget that summer evening under the stars."

"I wish I'd been there," he sighed.

Heartened by her luck, she went into a detailed story of their acquaintance. And when she finished, she asked, "You won't put anything about him in your article, will you?"

"No, no."

"Well, you must excuse me. I have to change."

"I'm sorry. I wanted to ask you some more questions." Martin hated to go. "How about lunch. Tomorrow? I'll send my car."

"You'll what?" she queried sharply.

Martin recalled himself. "I was only fooling. How could I support a car on a reporter's salary?"

"Well, perhaps we ought to make it tea," she offered helpfully. "At the little cafe across the street. Four o'clock."

Little Clarence was bustling about the dressing room. "Miss Dupont, please, you're wanted on the stage." Martin jammed his hat on his head and buzzed out of the theatre like a happy bee.

It was noon before he got to the office and his staff could barely contain their anxiety. He slammed through the door, shouting many merry "Hellos."

"I'm glad to see you, sir," Marcel spoke gravely. Martin signalled for the faithful retainer to follow him into his office.

When Marcel arrived at the sanctum, Martin was poised with his hands on his hips surveying the scene with evident distaste. He seemed to be thinking aloud.

"This office," he began, "definitely lacks charm. Everything about it lacks charm. You lack charm."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Martin," Marcel offered.

"Don't apologize about it. Do something. You must brighten it up. You don't expect people to work in surroundings like these. We want something here and something there."

Martin was moving nervously about the office followed by Marcel.

"We want flowers," he announced suddenly.

"Flowers?"

"Yes, sweetpeas. They're gay and bright and make for efficiency."

"Yes, sir."

"I wish you'd think a little more deeply about the psychological aspect of things."

"Yes, sir, I will."

"It's very important for business."

"Oh, yes, sir."

Martin ushered him out of the office and returned jubilantly to look out of the window on the busy world outside. He had never felt like this before.

RUSSIAN RAZZLE-DAZZLE

Not many years ago, Soviet Russia made a policy of preaching revolution to the workers of the world. Achieving nothing that way, it then put on the clothing of democracy and called upon liberal groups everywhere to band together in a "Popular Front" against reaction and Fascism. It stopped lambasting capitalism, began combing its hair, started to wear a silk hat, and threw fancy caviar-and-cocktail parties in its embassies throughout the world. Now all that is changed. Last week, marking the 22nd anniversary of the Communist revolution in Russia, the Soviet high command began lambasting capitalism once more. "Workers of the world" said Premier Molotoff, in effect, "unite, revolt!" And with this cry, Communist Russia laid down a new "party line" to be followed by party members for special application in France, Britain and the United States. These three countries, said Soviet Russia, were living under a "decadent" capitalistic system, and it was high time for the proletariat to overthrow them.

Thus, the U. S. S. R. is back to its original idea of world revolution. And in that sense, the new "party line" is not really new; it is merely significant, and it is significant because it is a perfect example of political razzle-dazzle designed to obscure the curious treacheries of Russian diplomacy. When he joined hands with Hitler, Stalin confused Communists all over the world. His subsequent actions have not at all served as an explanation, and so it seems safe to say that he has been playing a shell game in which he hides his real motives by quick changes of front. Essentially, however, his latest move is so brazenly stupid that it hides nothing whatever.

All the razzle-dazzle imaginable will not serve to cover up the basic immorality of the Soviet Russian government. Its past and its present are terrible witnesses against it. This government that now preaches for world revolution, this government that sets itself up as a great and glorious liberation for the masses, is the very same government that deliberately let millions of its citizens starve to death not many years ago. It is the very same government that has killed off all vocal opposition with fire and sword.

This government that now preaches against "imperialism," this government that now says it wants peace for the oppressed is the very same government that has played the vulture's role in bleeding Poland. It is the very same government that has made a political feast of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania. It is the very same government that now wants to make Finland a vassal state and dominate the whole Baltic.

This government that now preaches against capitalism, this government that calls upon the workers of the world to revolt, is the very same government that has one of the lowest living standards in the world. This government that preaches against the "decadence" of France, Britain and the United States, this government that speaks about justice, is rotten to the core. It lacks morals, it lacks liberty, it lacks everything that free men cherish, and no shell game can cover up that.—Pathfinder.

CORYELL COUNTY STUDENTS AT JTAC HAVE PERFECT DEPARTMENT RECORDS

Raby Alford, Frances Brown, Joe Ned Brown, Nerine King, Lillian Mack, Thomas Richardson, James Yows of Gatesville and Cloyce Huckabee of Ireland were congratulated today by Dean J. Thomas Davis of John Tarleton College for having a perfect department record for the first preliminary of the school year. "In not receiving a single demerit for these weeks," said Dean Davis, "you have displayed an attitude of cooperation and punctuality."

The dean further explained that the habit of meeting all engagements promptly and complying with the regulations of an institution was just as essential as the requisition of technical knowledge. To have a perfect department record at Tarleton a student must comply perfectly with all the military regulations as well as other college rules which prohibit one's being absent from classes.
