IT'S A RACE! TWO ENTRIES IN STORK DERBY FOR 1940: FINAL DATE MONDAY

It's not a race unless there are two in!

There are two in! They came in this week, BUT they still may be losers if some other baby's parents, friends or others bring in a slip, properly signed with the necessary "dope" on it.

It won't be long now, before we'll be able to welcome the little stranger and declare a winner for 1940. Of course, the decision is final by the News. All entries will be considered, and NO information will be out until Tuesday morning January 16. There's still time.

These contributors or donors, who have assisted "materially" in this 1940 contest are: Regal and Ritz, Morton Scott, Mayes Studio & Radio Shop, Western Auto Associate Store, Cozy Cafe, Thomson Grocery Co., Jim Martin, Duncan Coffee Co., Gatesville Drug Store, Gamblin's Dairy, Coryell County News, Mrs. J. B. Graves, Florist, City Drug Store, Perry Brothers, Koen-Foster Drug, The National Bank of Gatesville, and Murray Grocery, & Market.

There is still time, if any other merchants care to participate in this Fourth Annual News-Merchants Stork Derby Contest.

M. Tharp Calls League Meeting

At the call of Director General M. (Peck) Tharp, all directors of the Coryell County Interscholastic League will meet in the District Court room of the courthouse Monday afternoon at 5:30.

No indication was given as to what would be taken up at the meeting, but it will more than likely be problems concerning the coming County Meet.

Big Gobbler Feeds 13: Given Xmas

Thirteen people in one family feasted on the "fat of the land" as a result of Walter Stephens' generosity during Xmas.

Mr. Stephens intended to give the turkey to the Tin Can Matinee committee, the Firemen or the Lions, but at the time, they could not be located.

So, Mr. Stephens found him a family of 13, with a terrible outlook for an Xmas dinner.

He gave them this big gobbler, and thirteen people had a lot more dinner than they would have had Christmas, except for Mr. Stephens' generosity.

It is a good sign, this generosity, such as was shown by Mr. Stephens.

"FINS" FOR THE FINNS

Business picked up considerably in Finland this week, and reports are they have the Russians on the run, and have captured and killed many Russians. The best reports from Finland are that they ARE being cared for by funds from the United States, which we believe we read is taking care of many destitute Finns at approximately 25c to each person.

Coryell County and Gatesville people who have "dug in their jeans" and given this week to this fund are:

- Already Reported Tuesday, H. R. Haase, $1.00
- Received Since Tuesday, Rev. E. S. Bayless, $1.00
- Joe Hanna, $1.00
- A. L. Mann, $1.00

This makes a total this week of $4.00 and $1.00 has already been sent in by J. H. Head and the News.

As far as is known, there is no quota for Coryell County and there has been on solicitation. These donations are all free will gifts.

The News will be glad to take any donations from 1c up. It all adds up, and goes direct to the Finns with any "overhead" or "administrative" costs, as we understand.

We are requested to send these funds in weekly, and a check will be sent to the State Headquarters Saturday.

J. Manley Head and H. William Allen

J. Manley Head

FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY

H. W. (Bill) Allen

So far, this week, since Tuesday, only three have placed their announcements with the News as aspirants for office.

H. William (Bill) Allen, District Attorney, who is busy with the Grand Jury at this particular time, has also placed his announcement with us. A statement will also be forthcoming from Mr. Allen in the near future.

Also, a new comer comes in, W. J. Dube, Jr., of The Grove announces for Representative from this county and his statement is presented in these columns.

"Auditors" Busy On County Books

Three men are "double-checking" the county books in the County Court room, that is, they are making an audit of the records under the direction of Judge R. B. Cross, to whom the report will be rendered.

These men are W. T. Caruth, Tom Freeman and R. R. (Andy) Anderson. The Judge says it'll probably take five days to do the job.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hensler Jr., are moving to Hillsboro where Mr. Hensler will be with the State Highway Department in that city.

LIONS CONCENTRATE ON GOLDEN GLOVES TOURNAMENT: ENTRIES COMING IN

W. J. DUBE, JR. IS OUT FOR REPRESENTATIVE MAKES STATEMENT

To the Voters of Hamilton and Coryell Counties:

I have been solicited by many friends to become a candidate for the legislature. Upon much thought and serious consideration I wish to present to the voters of Hamilton and Coryell Counties my candidacy for representative of the 94th district.

I have decided to make this race because I feel as though I am fully qualified for the position, and am willing to dedicate myself to the people as their servant. I am a University graduate with the Bachelor of Arts degree, and have had several years of business experience. I ask every citizen to investigate my record as to reputation and qualifications.

I am entering this race with a free hand not "tying up" or obligating myself to anyone except to the people of Hamilton and Coryell Counties whom I am to represent. If elected, I will endeavor to work energetically, honestly, with good common sense and with a Christian attitude.

I realize our common State is facing some great issues demanding the highest views and boldest actions to solve our problems. Once our problems are solved its beloved history and happy memories are maintained, and its happy future fully assured. With this in mind I shall consider it to be my duty to do less whenever I shall believe what I am doing is detrimental to the cause, and I shall do more when I shall believe what I am doing will help the cause. I shall try to correct mistakes when shown to be mistakes, and shall accept new opinions when shown to be true opinions.

It is my desire to contact each and every voter of the district if possible, may I urge that every qualified voter pay your poll tax before the dead line January 31st, in order that you may enjoy the privilege of casting your vote.

Yours very truly,
W. J. DUBE, JR.
(Political Adv. 1tp)

Gatesville Boy Gets "Notice" In Capitol

In "U. S. and Us" by columnist George D. Riley in the Washington Sunday Times-Herald, Glen Blackshear, who is well known in this vicinity received a nice mention, along with others in Capitol politics and high places.

Quoting Mr. Riley: "Five times each century a general population census is provided for. One will be conducted in the next general election year (1940). More than 130,000 jobs of high and low degree will be available for those who toe the right mark. J. C. Capt, formerly in WPA, has charge of recruiting for these jobs. His assistant is Glen Blackshear, former secretary to former Representative Maury Maverick. David K. Niles has control of the better jobs.

FEMININE FOOTBALL GAME POSTPONED DATE TO BE ANNOUNCED LATER

Coryell County's first feminine football game was to have been played in the Butter Bowl at 3:00 o'clock Wednesday afternoon but weather conditions the past week has interfered with practice sessions and the game has been postponed to a later date.

So far as is known, this is the first all-girls grid contest in this part of the state and much interest is being shown by the entire student body in the local high school in promoting this game. The teams will be selected from the Junior and Senior classes but the line ups, officials and other information pertaining to the game has not been learned. Though the black eyes, broken nails and dirty faces that the girls are likely to acquire in their tussle over the old pigskin, can't be counted as beauty aids they are sure to leave the game with a better understanding of the nation's leading college game and more respect for the lads who carry the football banner of the old Alma Mater.

Reports from the high school states that the game may be played next Wednesday but the exact date will be announced in Tuesday's issue of the News.

Hornets Play Mart Panthers Friday Nite

The Mart Panthers will be host to the Gatesville High School Hornets tonight in the Mart gym. Nothing is known of the strength of the Mart quintet this year but everything points to a close contest with the Hornets slightly favored to win.

Ward, Moore and Koch will probably lead the attack for the local team and Jones and Schoenewolf will likely occupy the guard positions.

Gatesville Basketeers Meet McGregor

Tuesday afternoon the McGregor basketball teams came to Gatesville and lost a couple of games to the local cagers and Saturday nite of this week both the Hornets and Hornettes go to McGregor to play the return game.

The McGregor teams will be out for revenge after dropping their first games to the locals and fans who follow the teams to McGregor Saturday night will probably see a grand exhibition of basketball, however the locals are favored to win.

A ceremonial greeting among the Japanese is to remove on slipper.

Hornets Slaughter McGregor, Tuesday

Last Tuesday afternoon the Gatesville basketball teams were hosts to the McGregor teams in the High School gym and when the games were over, Gatesville had added two more victories to their credit.

In the girls' game the local "second string" played the entire game with the exception of approximately two minutes and won by a comfortable score of 25 to 5. Caufield was high scorer for the Hornets with 10 points and Rose tallied 6. Pete Hardin also played a brilliant game for the Hornets.

In the Hornet-Bulldog clash, lanky Jack Moore and Rosy Ward led the Hornets to a 30 to 13 victory and tied for scoring honors with nine points each. Schoenewolf, another Hornet star, staged a wonderful exhibition of goal tossing and was one of the most outstanding players on the floor.

Amelunke, Bulldog forward and former McGregor football star was high scorer for the visitors with 5 points.

Pearl Cagers Clash With Copperas Cove

Last Thursday night, January 4, the basketball teams of Copperas Cove High School journeyed to Pearl and engaged the teams of that school in a couple of thrilling basketball games.

The Dragonettes, inspired by the brilliant shooting of Chandler, Franks and Graham, won from the Cove lassies by a score of 28 to 19. Dorothy Graham, Pearl forward, pounded the basket for 12 points to carry off the scoring honors and Wilson, of Copperas Cove, was next with 10.

In the boys' game the Dragons were trampled 33 to 28 by the Copperas Cove quint. Coming from behind the Dragons managed to tie the score 24 to 24 at the end of the third quarter but the visitors rallied and were out in front with a five point lead at the final whistle. Adams, husky Copperas Cove center tallied 15 of the visitor's points and Moseley paced the rest of his teammates with 12.

Here's the lineups for the boys game: Pearl; Moseley, Dumas, Blacklock, Conner and Smith.

Copperas Cove: Adams, Miller, Mathias, Tienert and Leonhard.

Cage Record for Flat Quint is Improving

Reports from Flat high school states that Yellowjackets are improving rapidly as the season progresses and are expecting a successful cage season.

Last week they defeated the Holland Hornets in a Little River Academy League game to the tune of 18 to 6 and Friday night they shellacked the Oglesby Tigers by a score of 30 to 13 at Oglesby.

In the Holland game the Jackets got moving in the last half after a very shaky start in the first two frames. Half time score was 6 to 2, Marion "Scaly" Holcomb was the high point man for the Jackets with 8 points. Jarma was high for Holland.

Last night the Flat quintet went to Little River and engaged the Friendship High School team of Williamson county as a part of the Little River Round Robin Tournament. Later they plan to enter the annual tourney at Turnersville where they are scheduled to clash with the Copperas Cove quint.

Hornettes Tangle With Irish Fri. Nite

Friday night, January 12 the GHS Golden Hornettes travel to Ireland and clash with the Irish of Ireland.

Both these schools have excellent teams and a large crowd is expected to witness the game. There has been a great deal of rivalry between these two teams in the past and both will be hustling their best to win.

Flat Yellowjackets Beat Oglesby Tigers

Tuesday night of last week the Flat Yellowjackets coached by Harry Mohrmann Jr., engaged Coach Shults' Oglesby Tigers in the Oglesby high school gym and flashed surprising power in downing the Tigers by a score of 30 to 17.

Powell, Halcomb and Young were standouts for the victors while McKelvain stood out for his team, scoring 10 of the Tiger's points.

Evant and Gatesville Cagers Clash Sat. Nite

The Evant High School basketball clubs will play hosts to the Gatesville High School teams Saturday night when the two teams meet for the first time this year in the Evant gymnasium.

Nothing is known of the Evant girls' squad but the Elks have an exceptionally strong team having already won several games this season. In one of their battles they downed the Woodrow Wilson quintet from Dallas and are expected to take the Hornets.

Pearl Dragons Lose To GHS Basketeers

The hustling Hornet basketball teams scored two victories over the Pearl cagers in the high school gym at Pearl Monday night.

In the first game of the evening, the GHS Hornettes, paced by Rutherford and Moore were victorious over the Dragonettes by a score of 28 to 16. Ruth Rutherford, flashy Gatesville forward captured the scoring honors by parting the mesh for 17 points and Moore, another accurate tosser on the GHS squad was second with 8. Muller turned in her usual bril-

Rosy Ward played an excellent floor game for the locals and Schoenewolf starred at guard.

PEARL CEMETERY ASSO.

The Pleasure and Profit Club, sponsors of the Pearl Cemetery Association, met Thursday, January 4, 1940 and elected officers for the year. Mrs. Tom Jones was re-elected for president and Mrs. Emmett Cox was elected for secretary and treasurer.

If you have been to Pearl recently we hope you noticed the rock wall and entrance which is being built on the south side of the cemetery; also how well kept the cemetery is. For the year 1939 we had, with special help from the Pleasure and Profit Club, enough money to pay the cemetery keeper and to build about two-thirds of the rock wall across the South side.

In the year of 1940, besides paying the care keeper, we hope to complete the rock wall across the south side and make some other improvements. To do this we must continue to have your cooperation. Let everyone begin the New Year by sending your annual dues to the secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Emmett Cox, Pearl, Texas.

MAKE LIBERAL PROVISION FOR ELECTRICITY IN PLANNING HOME

With more and more accent being placed on electrical conveniences it is wise for all prospective home builders to devote careful attention to the wiring of their homes.

Because of the rapid increase in both the number and the kind of new electrical appliances it is ordinarily wise to have a margin of safety in planning the electrical side of the home, to allow for extra sockets, so that costly re-wiring will not be necessary later on.

No one, of course, can predict what inventions will be made in the future, but by providing an adequate number of sockets in all likely locations the wise home planner needn't worry about future inventions—his foresight will enable him to capitalize fully on all of them.

A concrete illustration of this can be seen in the present day tendency of most families to have more than one radio. This presents an annoying problem in cases where bedroom outlets were not provided for, it is usually necessary, in such cases to have a maze of wires hanging like vines from the sole lamp cord. Desk and bed lamps complicate this problem further.

Builders, architects and electrical contractors are usually the first to suggest complete electrification of the homes they are working on but many times they neglect to do this in the interest of economy. For safety's sake, be sure to specify adequate electrification of your home—for both the present and the future.

J. P. (Joe) Jones, a resident of the Liberty community, is seriously ill. His daughter, Mrs. R. E. Ashby, of this city is at his bedside.

BETWEEN BOTTLES

By W. MAT JONES, JR'S "GHOST WRITER"

In my second year. Certainly, wasn't I born in '39. Justice of the Peace George Miller has the record.

Too, I started the new year right, the Old Folks and I celebrated about an hour on that eventful night—we made (I) almost as much noise as there was in night clubs and other points of celebration throughout the country.

This baby business seems to be starting off very slow in the frolicsome forties, and I thought by now, I'd be able to pass some advice on to some Stork Derby Winner, but so far, Pop says, there are none. Don't they want these prize gifts, or what have you. I could tell'em, how to keep the folks up, well, I'm not going into details until some of these youngsters appear.

There was a long list of "new born candidates" Pop said, when I was expecting a list of new boys and girls.

Cousin Margaret Ann came over the other night, and like all these women, she wanted to hold me, and she did a swell job of it.

Heard 'em talking' about how much I weighed. I started with 6, was weighed and they said 10, re-weighed and they said 8 lbs, 4 oz. Now I don't see that is makes too much difference. Anyway, I am getting more "quality" foods now—they've changed the diet.

'Been being treated just like any columnist or correspondent in a "country newspaper." Got my stuff left out, and, of course, it'll be marked, or should be "Intended for Tuesday" or something like that. Of course, the reason was everybody's taking inventory, and didn't have any time to advertise, therefore, there haven't been the usual number of pages, so Pop says. And, I guess I'll eat again, the three hours of museing have passed.

INFANT DAUGHTER OF LIEUT. AND MRS. FAULK DIES

Mary Josephine Faulk, 4 months old daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. W. J. Faulk of this city, was discovered dead in her bed about 9:00 o'clock Wednesday morning. The little body was taken to San Antonio Thursday morning for burial.

MRS. D. M. McAFEE SUSTAINS BROKEN HIP FROM FALL

Mrs. D. M. McAfee sustained a broken hip as a result of a fall about 6 o'clock Thursday morning. While walking from one room to another, she had a rheumatic stroke in here leg, and became unbalanced and fell.

According to the physician, she will probably be crippled the remaining part of her life.

She was reported as resting nicely.

E. A. Shingle of Austin, formerly a resident of Gatesville was a business visitor in Gatesville Thursday.

High School gymnasiums over the county are involved in a regular whirlwind of activity as the 1940 basketball season gets off to a flying start.

It looks like the struggle for supremacy among the rural teams of the county is going to be a long hard fight as Pearl, Jonesboro, Evant, Ireland, Flat, Turnersville and several of the other schools seem to be generously sprinkled with basketball talent.

Big Jack Moore, lanky GHS

basketball star is one of the smoothest performers that we've seen in action this year. He has speed and energy to burn and can skim over the court with all the ease and grace of a ballet dancer and drop the old inflated leather through the basket before the opposing guard hardly realize what is happening. On a crisp shot he's a regular "Dead-eye Dick" and its my prediction that he'll put the Hornets out of many a tough spot before the season is over.

While waiting for the main games to start the other night we sat in the local gym and watched the Jr. Hornets go through a brisk workout against a rural team. Though a little shy on experience, the youngsters seemed to be catching on fast and later may form the foundation of another State Championship team.

Troy Jones, Dr. T. M. Hall and Francis Caruth spent Tuesday fishing on the Colorado River near The Bend, Texas. Wednesday a party, composed of Happy Lee, Peck Dyer, Owen Dyer and Alvin Adams, went fishing there also.

GATESVILLE, TEXAS FRIDAY, JAN. 12, 1940

NUMBER 7

The third session of the 76th Congress opened Wednesday (January 3rd) at noon. Opening day is always exciting and is attended by almost every member of both Houses who can get there. There is also a mad scramble for tickets to the gallery. The sessions of the House are considered public meetings, but the galleries are not very large, seating probably 1000 people. On days when an especially large crowd is expected tickets are given to each member for distribution to his friends. There are 435 members of the House so that if each member is given two tickets practically all the space in the galleries will be occupied. However, since President Roosevelt has been in office he has followed the practice of delivering a personal message to the opening session of the Congress. This message is delivered before a joint session of the House and Senate but in the Hall of the House of Representatives as it is larger than the Senate Chamber. Not only does the Senate attend but the cabinet members are given seats on the House floor. The front one-third of the Chamber is reserved for the distinguished guests. In the gallery the representatives of foreign nations are given special seats in the Diplomatic gallery while another large section is reserved for the President's family. Wednesday not only did the President's wife and mother attend along with his grandchildren but many of his more distant relatives.

With all of these people to care for it is only possible to allot each Congressman one pass to the gallery for the first day. There are always dozens of people, many of them from home and now working in offices here, who want that one ticket. For a short time it is about as bad as selecting a Postmaster but fortunately for the Congressman, most of those who can't get in take it good naturedly and recognize that it is impossible to give one ticket to a dozen different people. I gave my ticket to my wife, but as she had previously seen the President and Congress convene she passed it on to Miss Marak, who is in our office this session, and who has never before been in Washington.

There is very little actual work conducted the first week. The committees will not hold any meetings until next week, and while a number of bills have been introduced it will be several days before the real grind is under way. All of the members are having to get their families located, (no small task in Washington to answer some of the great volume of mail that has always accumulated before they arrive, and to visit some of the Department down town in regard to some of the various matters in which their constituents are interested. Mrs. Poage and I are located in a small hotel just across the street from the Senate Office Building. We have only two rooms with a kitchen in this wall, but we are convenient to our work and that saves us lots of time.

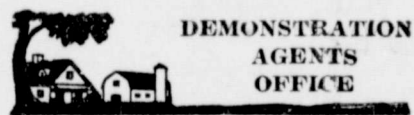

This morning I went with a number of my colleagues to call on the Army Engineers and urge that they hasten a report on the Miller Springs Dam on the Leon River at Belton. This is an important unit in the Brazos project and we are hopeful that the engineers may give us a favorable report at once. If the report is delayed too long, there will be no chance of getting the dam authorized at this session of Congress. This afternoon, Mr. Upshaw and I visited a number of the divisions of the Post Office Department with which we had matters to discuss.

On yesterday the President sent his budget message to Congress. This he sent my messenger and it was read by the Clerk. It was very well received by most of the members. Of course, it was not as impressive as the personal message of the day before. Neither of the President's messages were of the controversial type and yet he has lost none of his personal charm or persuasive powers of speech. The great Republican Senator Borah did not attend the joint session to hear the President. When asked why, he said, "It is dangerous to listen to that man Roosevelt. He could make an algebra problem sound interesting, and he will persuade you in spite of yourself." I am sorry that Senator Borah did not listen to the President last Fall. Maybe he would have been persuaded then.

As soon as the committees begin to meet I expect to call on the Ways and Means Committee to give my pending bill for a universal thirty dollars per month Federal pension to the aged and blind, and the crippled, a hearing. I shall also seek a hearing by the Committee on Agriculture on the bill I introduced to establish a substantial prize for anyone who could devise new commercial uses for cotton.

The weather is bitterly cold here tonight. There has been snow on the ground ever since we arrived in Washington. In fact, we ran into snow in Tennessee as we drove up and found it on the ground all the way. It makes us think of what a long time it will be before we will be able to get home to Central Texas.

Rep. Burney Sends Letter to Governor

We present here a letter written by Representative Weldon Burney to Governor W. Lee O'Daniel, which will be of interest to readers in the 94th Legislative District.

The letter reads:
Jan. 4, 1940
Honorable W. Lee O'Daniel
Governor of Texas
Austin, Texas
Honorable Sir:

I appeal to you in the name of the people of state of Texas, urging you to call a special session of the legislature, for the purpose of redeeming your pledge to raise truck load limit, as advocated while you were candidate for Governor. It is needless to point out, as I am sure you are well informed of the great handicap our live stock and agricultural industries are under, caused by this unreasonable 7000 pound limit law. It is evident that the transportation industry and all who patronize that industry can be relieved, by a general revision of the laws, that regulate motor transportation. As our present motor transportation laws are inadequate and out of date, making it impossible to enforce, and impractical to obey. I am asking you to declare yourself as chief of all law enforcement in this state to either enforce this law on all alike, or strive to repeal it.

As you will remember I have called to your attention and requested your help, on several other occasions, during the time the modification bills were being considered by the committee, of which I was a member. It is true that the 46th legislature did fail to consider this all important question, and it is also true that you as Governor of Texas refrained from any actions, while this legislation was being considered by the members of our committee on highway motor traffic. As we are now approaching the harvest season of our citrus fruit, and spring harvest of our grain products, it will again be forced upon the producers to either sacrifice their profits and obey the unreasonable 7000 pound limit law, or be a violator of that law. I therefore appeal to you in the name of the shippers, producers and consumers of the state of Texas, to call a special session, not later than January, 1940 in order

Congress and the Political Situation: Part III

Republicanism faces the vital 1940 presidential campaign clouded in as much uncertainty and beset by as many dangers as the incumbent Democratic party.

Comparatively little has been spoken or written about the cleavages within the ranks of the Republicans while much has been made of the possibility of a split in the ranks of the Democrats arising out of the conservative-new deal schism.

For Republican strategists are far from being in accord as to the platform to be adopted, the method and tenor of attack against the Roosevelt administration, and the choice of a candidate.

This is due, in part at least, to the fact that the Democrats are in power, having the executive and majorities in both houses of Congress. For this reason, their party policies are of more public interest and concern than the policies of the minority party.

But the rift within the ranks of the Republicans between conservatives and liberals is just as pronounced and as perilous to their chances of victory in November as the conflicts between the two Democratic factions.

Former President Hoover is the titular leader of the conservative forces among the Republicans. Among Republicans outside of Congress, former Governor Landon represents the nearest approach to a leader among the liberals, although his actual influence has dwindled to a modicum.

The active and forceful leadership of the Republican party today is in the halls of Congress, where such figures as Senators McNary, Austin, Bridges, Taft, and Vandenberg, and Representatives Martin, Wadsworth, Englebright, Hope and Woodruff have formulated a tentative platform, outlined campaign strategy, provided the only effective opposition to and attack of the Democratic administration, and from whom at least one of the Republican nominees is expected to be selected.

This Congressional group is, generally speaking, independent of both the Hoover and Landon factions. Rather than ally themselves with one of the cliques contesting for mastery of the party, the Republican Congressional leaders have consistently sought to mollify the difference among the leaders and to unify the party for the approaching campaign.

They look with favor upon the candidacy of Senator Vandenberg, and would prefer either Vandenberg or Senator Taft over Dewey.

The outbreak of war in Europe, enhancing as it did the popularity of President Roosevelt, gave a decided but probably temporary setback to Republican hopes of victory in November. But with the passage of the neutrality act, domestic affairs have once again taken precedence over foreign policy in the minds of the people and it is here that the Republicans consider the Democratic record to be most vulnerable.

Failure of the Roosevelt administration to solve or even to propound workable solutions to the fundamental problems of labor, agriculture, unemployment, federal finance and recovery constitutes a point of attack upon which the Republicans count to score heavily during the campaign.

The Good Old Party is not without promising talent for consideration in the July convention. Actively seeking the nomination are four nationally known figures: District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Senator T. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan.

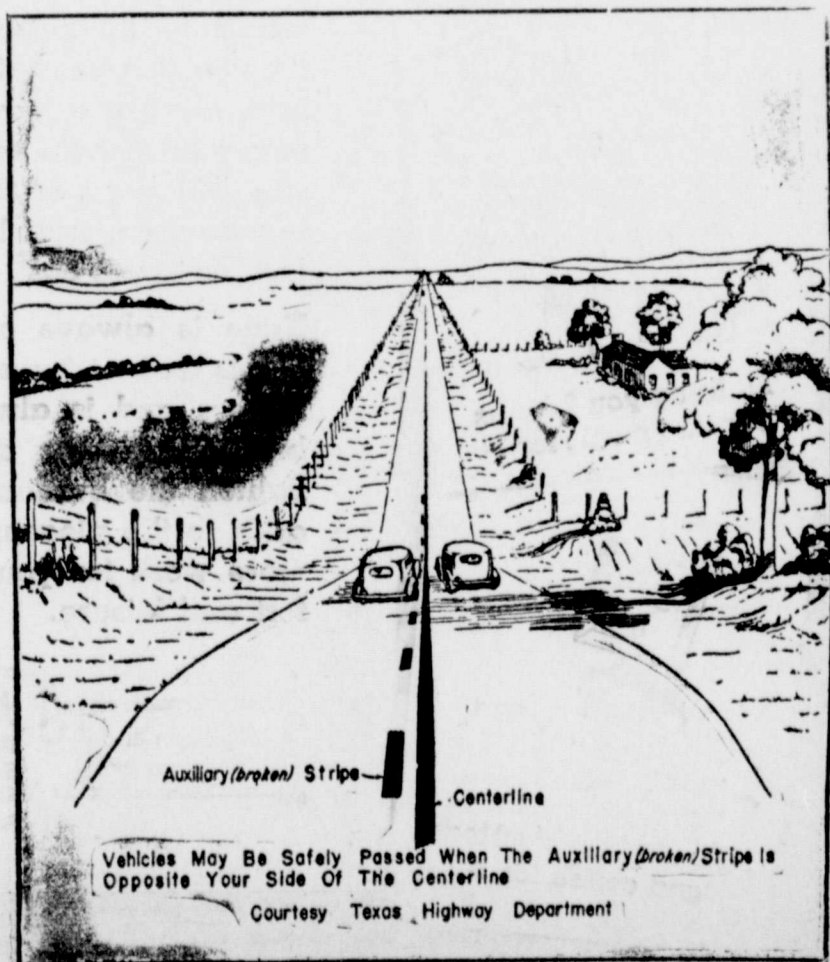

On the basis of past governmental experience, Senator Vandenberg is the most potent one of this group. But the Republicans will not necessarily turn to one of those making an active campaign for the nomination.

Other names which have evoked considerable interest are the popular Republican Congressional leaders, Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon and Representative Joe Martin of Massachusetts. Some observers predict that one of these will surely be accorded a place on the ticket.

Governor Arthur H. James of Pennsylvania, Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio, Herbert Hoover, Representative James W. Wadsworth of New York, Frank E. Gannett, New York publisher, and Wendell L. Willkie, president of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, are also being mentioned as possible candidates.

"GERONIMO!" Novelized by BEN ALBERT
 from the Paramount Picture
 Featuring PRESTON FOSTER, ELLEN DREW, ANDY DEVINE

SYNOPSIS
 Jack Steele, young lieutenant serving under his marinet father in the campaign against Geronimo, has grown to hate the old man for his insistence on army discipline and lack of any personal feeling for his son. He writes a letter to his mother (Marjorie Gateson) and his fiancée (Ellen Drew) back east, telling them to join him. He plans to resign from the army and establish a home in California, where they will never see his father again.

CHAPTER V
GENERAL STEELE glanced at the group of officers and scouts gathered before him in his office at Fort Grant. "Gentlemen," he said, "Geronimo is ready and eager for war because he knows that we are not prepared. Unless you are anxious to be massacred, and all the women and children in this fort with you, you will restrain your impetuosity and realize that you can't survive against thousands of fight-crazy Indians with only your bare hands. Geronimo wants to force us into action, and he'll stop at nothing to start it. But you mustn't give him that chance until I'm fully prepared. Understand?"

The officers nodded, saluted and left the room, but Sneezer, in obedience to the general's nod, stayed behind. "Sneezer," said Steele, "our ammunition train is coming up from Prescott. You will take half a company of your best scouts, meet the wagons at Gila Bend and escort them here by way of Mescal Pass. You understand the importance of keeping those wagons out of Geronimo's hands. Everything depends on their safe arrival. Remember that. Now, you may go."

For a moment after Sneezer had left, General Steele sat quietly. Then, suddenly noticing Jack Steele standing in the doorway, he drew himself up rigidly. "What are you doing here, Mr. Steele? I dismissed the officers."

"I wish to speak to you alone, sir," replied Jack, quietly.

Steele nodded slowly. "Yes," he said in an embarrassed tone. "Been wanting to talk to you—meaning to for a long time—but never got around to it. What is it?"

"I wish to resign from the army, sir; effective at once."

Steele stiffened. In his narrowed eyes could be read the fear that his son was a coward. "Just as we are preparing for action?"

"Action!" Jack ground out the word. "That's what I begged for six months ago. Not now! You've made me hate the army! And you might as well know that my mother and fiancée are on their way out by stagecoach. They'll be here today. I didn't tell you sooner because you'd have stopped them. But it's too late now!"

Steele's jaw set tightly. "You are under arrest for insubordination," he said icily. "You will remain confined to quarters."

Jack spun on his heel and walked from the room. Outside, he bumped into his friend, Captain Starrett, who motioned to the back of the house. "Overheard what went on, Jack," he drawled. "Your horse is saddled." And without waiting for Jack's thanks, he walked quickly into the general's quarters.

"You sent for me, sir?" Starrett asked.

"Yes," replied Steele. "There's a coach due from the east. Meet it and bring the passengers safely to the fort. That will be all, sir."

Geronimo, tipped off as to the arrival of Mrs. Steele and Alice by his good friend Gillespie, waited crouched behind a clump of rocks with his sub-chiefs, while they all watched the coach approaching their hiding place.

As it rounded a bend, Geronimo raised his hand in signal, and a stream of war-painted braves streamed out of clefts on the rocks, urging their horses to greatest speed, heading directly for the coach.

Inside the coach the two women, the only passengers, cowered in terror as the driver slashed his whip viciously at the horses to make them go faster, and the two guards rose to their feet and started returning the fire of the Indians. In a return burst of fire, the guard seated alongside the driver, threw up his hands, clutched his head and tumbled, dead, to the ground.

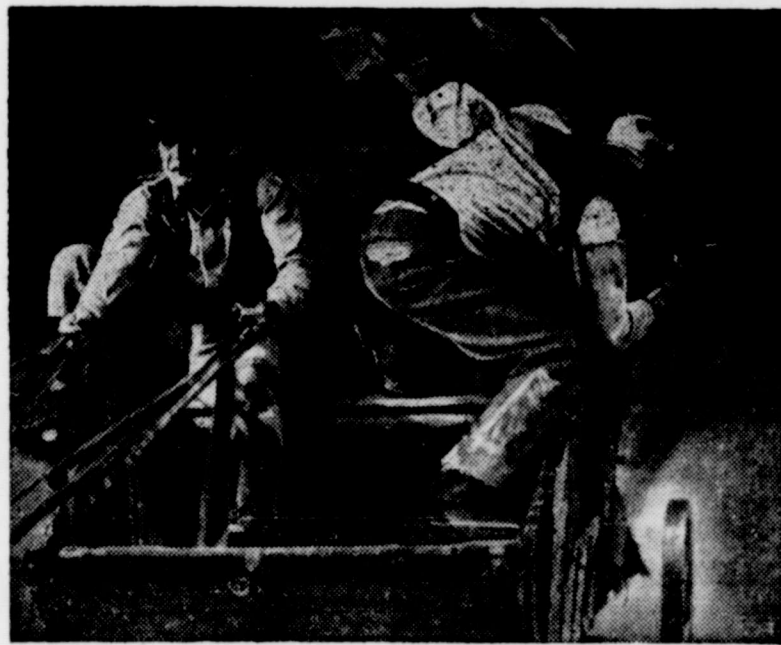

The guard at the back of the coach raised his gun for a shot at the floor. So heartbroken was the boy that he noticed neither the arrival of Starrett, Sneezer and a cavalry troop nor the hasty retreat of the Indians. He turned at Starrett's sympathetic touch on his shoulder and cried, "He wouldn't let me meet them! I could have saved them! He wouldn't let me save my mother and Alice!"

Sneezer interrupted, gently, "The girl'll be all right, soon's I get this bleeding stopped. Looks like it's only a scalp wound."

The three men left the coach and mounted their horses. Jack's face showed his determination. Suddenly he wheeled and sped away in the direction which Geronimo and his Indians had taken!

As the coach pulled into the courtyard of Fort Grant, Starrett dismounted and made his way into General Steele's office. He saluted and Steele rose and accompanied him outside. Steele glanced about him. The strange, ominous silence that colored the scene was heightened by the strained attitudes of Suddenly, on both sides of the coach, Indians appeared on horseback. Two leaped onto the coach, and grabbed the resisting driver and guard.

Colonel White and the men of the guard. The old man noticed the drawn shades, and looked around as if seeking the answer in the faces around him. He glanced at White and Starrett, and from their heart-sick, grief-filled faces he read the story. Slowly his hand moved to the closed shade, slowly he drew it aside and stepped into the coach beside the body of his wife.

He pulled back the sheet covering the body, murmured "Eleanor . . ." and stepped out again. "Where is the young lady?" he asked.

the Indians' leader, but before he could pull the trigger a shot rang out from the other side of the road, and he, too, tumbled to the ground.

The driver, seeing that his only hope lay in speed, whipped his horses frantically.

Mrs. Steele and Alice, in an agony of terror, sat as if paralyzed while an Indian raced up to the side of the coach, took careful aim at the older woman, and shot. Mrs. Steele stiffened in her seat as the bullet met its mark. A spot of red appeared on her dress immediately over her heart, and Alice looked on in mute horror as her body slumped to the swaying floor of the coach. The Indian, still riding alongside the coach, raised his rifle a second time, and as he fired again, Alice's hands sprang to her head, she screamed and fell to the floor on top of Mrs. Steele's body.

Suddenly, on both sides of the coach, Indians appeared on horseback. Two leaped onto the coach, grabbed the resisting driver and swung their tomahawks viciously onto his head. As he dropped to the ground, the Indians seized the brakes and the coach lumbered to a stop. The Indians all made a dash for the coach, but at a signal from Geronimo, who pointed to the trail behind and shouted a command, they all wheeled and rode swiftly away to hide behind the boulders at the side of the road.

Jack Steele, riding like a demon toward the silent coach, pulled his horse to a panting stop, jumped aboard the coach and recoiled in anguish from the sight of his two loved ones lying still and bloody on

"In the hospital, sir," Starrett replied. "We'll know soon how badly she's hurt."

"Where is my son?"

"Geronimo's got him, sir. The Indian we captured is boasting of it."

Starrett's voice became urgent. "Let me take some men, sir. I'll go . . ."

"Captain," interrupted Steele, "Geronimo's attack was intended for exactly what you want to do. But we will not go into action until we are prepared."

"But," cried Starrett, forgetting himself, "you can't leave that boy—your own son—to be tortured and killed!"

Steele nodded. "I've told you before that sentimentality has no place in the army. I can't sacrifice the lives of hundreds of people to rescue one man." His voice faltered. "Not even my own son," he concluded, brokenly.

"But you can't . . ." begged Starrett.

"Those are orders," Steele said with finality. He turned to Colonel White, a true soldier, absolutely right in his attitude toward his duty, in his own judgment, yet a victim of the very sentimentality which he abhors. "Colonel," he said, "you will order assembly, please. I want—I want to hold services for my wife."

White nodded as he blinked away a tear. "Yes, sir," he replied, and nodded to the bugler who stood waiting.

As General Steele turned and walked slowly back to his office, the first strains of the bugle rang out in assembly call.

to rewrite our transportation laws, so as to provide more adequate and economical law that can be enforced, and provide for greater safety upon our highways of our states, by so doing we can give our shippers and producers an even break with other states, that are now operating under a more adequate, and modern motor traffic regulation. Again this will be a great step in the direction of lowering the high freight rates, that all the consumers of this state must pay. It is time our people should be awakened to the fact of the enormous freight rate that is now taxing excessively the people of Texas hundreds of millions of dollars annually. Truck competition is our most effective way to beat down this high rate. Your help is needed for the welfare of all Texans, who must directly or indirectly patronize the transportation industry. Your answer is anxiously awaited.

Sincerely,

WELDON BURNEY
