'Round These Parts

A famous couple, headliners for many years in state politics, open in their campaign in Waco at 7:30 Saturday, April 27. They will also be on a stated-wide radio hook-up.

Do we need to tell you who these folks are? Nearly every one of you, at some time or other have voted for one or the other or both of them.

In case you haven't figured it out yet—They're Ma and Jim.

In our window is considerable publicity—nearly a month's collection of tax paid (directly or indirectly) propoganda, news, features, and "pure junk" from state agencies, schools, bureaus, departments, etc.

Multiply this by 500 and that'll only be a part of what is mailed (at your and my expense) from these various agencies. Nine-tenths of it is NOT informational, but pure propoganda. Of course, most of this goes to various officials in every county, every town, and in every agency.

Only ONE sheet of the entire mess in our window have YOU read. Nine-tenths of it—you would not be interested in, yet, YOU pay for the material, paper, stenographers, typewriters, mimeographs, "big shots" (who dictate this) office equipment, etc., etc.

NOW, if this was informational; told the real inside of what is actually going on at these places—the cost of various items to Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public, it would, in a measure be justifiable. It is not!

"Propoganda" is a fine art, used by everyone who wants to get something over. It is used by England, Germany, France, Finland, Russia, not to mention, the good old U. S. A.

Here's a part of the 25 per cent some gubernatorial candidates can omit whether it be Ma, Harry Albert, W. Lee O', Ernest O. Jerry, or who?

IN MEMORY OF FRANK MAYHEW

Francis Marion Mayhew was born August 12, 1860 in Pontitoc County, Mississippi to Aaron and Eliza Mayhew. He came to Texas in 1876 and was married to Melissa Ann Crow September 8, 1881. To this union nine children were born, seven dying in infancy.

It was on Wednesday evening at nine o'clock, April 9, 1940 that the death angel winged its way into the home of F. M. Mayhew and claimed for its victim our Darling Father. Dear Father, how we miss you each day. It seems as if I can feel your beckoning hand as your sweet memory around us creeps. I can see your sweet face and hear your tender voice saying, "Dear, be good to one and all! live a Christian life by doing good deeds". It is comforting to know that we will meet again and have our sorrow past.—Written for the family by Miss Mary Fortune of Jonesboro, Texas.

STIRRING DRAMA IN NEW FILM

What is said to be the most daringly realistic jailbreak ever shown on a screen provides the breathtaking climax of "Johnny Apollo", the new 20th Century Fox drama, starring Tyrone Power and Dorothy Lamour, which comes to the Palace Theatre on Saturday.

But then realism is the keynote of this thrilling picture, which tells in terms of bite and dynamite, the story of the banker's son who turned from college man to mobster when the father he idolized was sent to prison and his wealthy friends turned against him.

Tyrone is seen as "Johnny Apollo," while Dorothy Lamour has her best role to date as "Lucy" Dabarry, the sophisticated night club entertainer, who walks out on her gangster boy friend, Mickey Dwyer, when Apollo walks into the picture. Edward Arnold is the banker father.

Lloyd Nolan plays Dwyer and others selected by Production Chief Darryl F. Zanuck for important featured roles are Charley Grapewin, who is cast as a tippling ex-judge turned underworld lawyer and Lionel Atwell.

Involved in the jailbreak sequence are Power, Nolan and Arnold and among its many breathtaking thrills the scenes include one of the most terrific hand-to-hand battles the screen has ever shown. Power and Nolan and both

BIRCH BRINGS SHOW OF WONDERS

Perhaps the greatest achievement of Birch, Master Magician, who will present his mystifying array of tricks and illusion to Gatesville people tonight at the City Auditorium at 8 o'clock, is his solution of the "Hindu Rope Trick", the mystery which has baffled the world for centuries. This seemingly impossible miracle will be performed before your very eyes and you will never forget it! Birch presents the "Hindu Rope" mystery for the first time in America.

Another most interesting illusion is the Vanishing Pony, in which "Princess", a beautiful miniature horse, is caused to disappear while suspended in mid-air. Many other thrilling illusions are included in the Birch repertoire, and a musical interlude will be offered by Miss Mabel Sperry, well-known xylophone artist.

"I believe that magic appeals to both young and old—at least to those between the ages of six and ninety-six. I do not feel any lack of enthusiasm after more than eighteen years of entertaining the public, but I find it necessary to be "on my toes" to keep my performance new and different".

During these years Birch and Company have toured throughout the United States and Canada. Several months each summer are spent in creating new effects and building spectacular illusions in a magical workshop which is completely equipped with the finest, most modern electrical machinery.

Topsey Defeats Plainview 11-5

Last Sunday afternoon on the Topsey diamond the Topsey baseball nine one of the entries in the county baseball race defeated the Plainview club by a score of 11-5. Excellent hurling by Vance Roye and able support by his teammates enabled the Topsey team to come out on the long end of the score.

Tooter Hall and Paul Bailey performed the pitching duties for Plainview and both are credited with turning in a good game. These two teams will meet again Sunday, April 28 at Plainview.

For the first five innings the game was a hurling duel between Buster and Holcomb, but in the sixth stanza the Yellowjackets got on to the tricks of the State hurler and combing two hits, a base on balls, two errors and a long fly the Jackets tallied three runs. Three more were tagged across the plate in the seventh inning on two hits two bases on balls and an error.

THE PICTURE HOLLYWOOD SAID Could never be Made!

"OF MICE AND MEN"

by JOHN STEINBECK

Released thru UNITED ARTISTS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
George Milton, migratory ranch hand in California, acts as guardian to his friend Lennie Small, who has the strength of a bull but the mentality of a small child. They are kept on the move because of Lennie's strange compulsion to "pet soft things" — such as a mouse, a bird, or a girl's velvet dress. It is an innocent habit but conducive to trouble, because Lennie cannot control his enormous strength. They secure jobs "bucking" barley on a Salinas Valley ranch, where they win the enmity of Curley Jackson, the boss's son who constantly has a chip on his shoulder over the flirtatious tendencies of his pretty young wife, Mae. But Slim, the much-admired mule skinner of the ranch, becomes their friend, and gives Lennie one of his little pups to pet. After supper Curley learns that Slim is in the barn, and he goes out there in search of his wife. Most of the ranch hands follow, hoping to see a fight, but George and Lennie remain in the bunkhouse.

Chapter Four

Alone in their corner of the bunkhouse, Lennie teased George to recount again the wonders of the little place they were some day going to have as their own. "Oh, I just tole you, Lennie,

He gripped the hand in his viselike clutch.

Jest last night." "Go on, George — tell again." "Well, it's ten acres. Got a little windmill. Got a little shack on it and a chicken run. Got a kitchen orchard. Cherries, apples, peaches, cots and nuts... There's pig pen... Maybe we'll have a cow or a goat... and the cream is so thick on the pan you got to cut it off with a knife..."

They had completely forgotten about Candy, lying silent in his nearby bunk. But Candy was drinking in every word of it with the utmost fascination. At last he could contain himself no longer. He struggled to his feet and asked George in awed tones: "Do you know where's a place like that?"

At first George was hostile, uncommunicative. But Candy humbly refrained from asking more information than they wanted to give him. However, he had an interesting proposition to offer. Candy had $250 which the ranch had been compelled to pay him for the loss of his hand four years ago, and another $40 he would receive at the end of the month. He begged to be allowed to put in all this in return for a partnership in their place; just for the right to live there, and hoe in the garden, and wash the dishes.

"I'll be on our own place, an' I'll be let to work on our own place. An' I'll make a will, leave my place to you guys in case I kick off."

George decided to make the deal. He and Lennie would receive $100 between them at the end of their month. This, with Candy's fortune, would give them $440 — enough cash to secure the place they had in mind, for which the needy old couple who owned it were asking only $600. Candy and Lennie could go and get the place started, and George would continue working on the ranch until he had earned the balance.

For the first time their dream seemed close to reality. Candy happily handed over his $300, and George was stowing it away when the ranch hands returned from the barn. Among them were Slim and Curley, still arguing. At least, Slim was arguing, while Curley was apologizing for having asked Slim once too often about Mae's whereabouts.

Curley was really on the defensive, accepting Slim's reprimand with nothing more than a wheedling explanation. Others seconded Slim's advice to look after his wife; Carlson, even Candy. And as Curley looked about, wondering whom he could safely attack, his glance fell upon Lennie sitting on a keg, his eyes still rapt with the vision of the little place with the rabbits.

"Don't tell nobody," Lennie was mumbling under his breath. "Gonna live on the fat o' the land." "Who you think you're laughin' at?" screamed Curley. "Get up on your feet! No big lug is gonna laugh at me! I'll show you who's yellow!"

George motioned the mountainous youth over to his bunk. But as Lennie arose and turned his back, Curley grasped his arm, whirled him around, and lashed at his face with both fists. Lennie cried out in terror.

"George! Make 'im let me alone, George!"

George, seeing that which he had dreaded most happening, was for once at a loss. Curley kept raining blows mercilessly on Len-as laboratory and workshop. Unlike other services, trades and professions, The Navy man's home is with him wherever he is on duty.

He wakes in the morning in a comfortable bunk or hammock (Navy Names for beds) near which in his personal locker, large enough to hold all his clothing and personal articles. He takes his shower in adjacent washrooms and after dressing has his morning coffee. His meals, wholesome and scientifically balanced, are served in spotless compartments in sterilized utensils. There is a library and a reading room, a dental office and a ship's hospital where he receives attention for even such minor ailments as a headache. It is not an exaggeration to state that today, on the ships of our Navy, the men have far greater comforts and better facilities than are provided in many homes.

Amusement and recreation are not neglected by the Navy, even in the most critical times. Sports are an important part of every Navy man's life and a part of the routine as it is a strong factor in building and maintaining morale. Every ship has its motion picture facilities and by special arrangements with the industry, the latest films are shown, often before they are released to the public. Music is one of the Navy's forms of relaxation, a band concert being part of the routine of the day, and the formation of ships' orchestras is encouraged by every Commanding Officer, and to complete the picture, it must be remembered that there are radios in the living quarters and recreation rooms.

Fifty million acres of Texas land are now being lease from farmers a dother land owners of the state by the Texas oil and gas industry.

CREW QUARTERS ON NAVY SHIPS

The appointments and facilities provided for enlisted men on a modern Navy Ship would be a decided surprise to any landsman whose mental picture of such quarters were derived from reading conrad and other writers of sea classics.

The comforts provided for the modern man-o-warsman, superior to that of any other Navy, presents conveniences for group living that are seldom equaled.

It must be remembered that the Navy man's ship is home as well

The House has carried on a very bitter debate on the so-called Walter-Logan Bill during the larger part of the week. This bill undertakes to establish definite rules of procedure for the various Federal agencies (the bureaus and corporations)—Everybody, or nearly everybody, agrees that this should be done. It is also agreed generally that anybody who feels that he has been mistreated by an administrative rule should have recourse to the courts. The bill provided for that also. At first glance, it seemed to be a very desirable bill. In fact, last year the Senate passed this bill by unanimous consent, but a little later after looking further into the bill the Senate recalled it for further study by a committee. When the bill was first brought before the House most of the members felt that it was a good bill. Nearly all members agree that this must remain "a government of laws and not of men". That is the fundamental difference between a Democracy and a Dictatorship. In a democracy every officer is and should be subject to the laws of the land. In a dictatorship the administrative officers make the rules or laws under which they act. Therefore, in their desire to protect the form of government which we all hold dear it is not surprising that members of the House overlooked some of the very dangerous situations into which this bill might lead us.

President Roosevelt first called attention to these dangers. They were again emphasized on the Floor by the Democratic Leader, Hon. Sam Rayburn. They pointed out that the bill by requiring 20 days notice to every interested party of the adoption of any administrative rule would make practically in-operative such agencies as the AAA and the Soil Conservation Service, which often have to make rules to meet situations as they arise. It was also pointed out that the bill would allow any "interested party" to appeal any rule to the circuit court of appeals and this in effect allowed the court to completely substitute its judgement for the judgement of the agency making the rule or order, even though the rule or order was supported by "substantial evidence". This would give the power companies and the holding companies an opportunity to again drag the Federal Power Commission and the Securities Exchange Commission through the courts and in effect to nullify all of the work that has been done during the last 7 years toward controlling these corporations. I know that many fine men voted for the bill with the best of purposes, but I also noted that practically every the House voted not to recommit the bill, I voted against it. I fell sure that the President will never allow this bill to become law in its present form. There should be some further reasonable control over the bureaus and agencies, Republican and practically every Democrat who has opposed this Administration's policy of public power voted for the bill. I felt that we were preparing an operation on our government somewhat similarly to cutting off a foot to get rid of an ingrowing toenail. I want to save the foot—so I voted to send the bill back to the committee that they might find a less destructive way of getting rid of the existing abuses which we all recognize as undesirable. When and I therefore hope that the Senate will give the bill the further study and revision that it needs.

The House has just passed a bill extending to cotton the same type of crop insurance that has heretofore been made available to wheat. For many years our people have recognized the advantages of insurance. We have come to look on life insurance, fire insurance, and automobile insurance as something to be taken for granted, but we have never made any very substantial progress in the matter of crop insurance. Yet we all recognize that farming is the greatest gamble in our economic world. When the farmer plants his crop he never knows what he is going to get. He does not know whether a drouth is coming or whether a flood is on the way. He may lose his crop to the boll weevil or to the grasshopper, or as a result of hail. The hazards are so great that the private insurance companies have never made much effort to develop crop insurance. So, the government in an effort to try to be of assistance to the already hard pressed farm, undertook to provide this insurance itself to give the farmer some protection, and to give him some sense of security. More than a year ago we started this on an experimental basis by making provision for insurance on wheat. It is now proposed to extend the protection to cotton. The premiums are to be paid not in money but in cotton itself. No one knows as yet just how much cotton it will take. It is estimated from 5 to 20 pounds of lint per acre to pay the cost of the insur-

Plans are completed by Mr. Cliff Tucker of Gatesville for the proposed Knox Curtis Memorial home to be erected, under the direction of the Knox Curtis Post of the American Legion of Coryell County. We had a hard rain this morning. I suppose that is completely ruined the famous cherry blossoms around the Tidal Basin. They had snow and a hard freeze just as they started to bloom.
