GINNERS CONVENTION HELD AT PALACE THEATRE WEDNESDAY MORNING

Approximately one hundred farmers, ginners, oil mill men and visitors from Coryell County and various parts of the state, assembled in the Palace Theatre in Gatesville Wednesday morning at 10:30 a. m. for the opening of the Annual Ginner's Convention of District 21.

A. H. Mickan, of Copperas Cove, acted as Master of Ceremonies and introduced various speakers who spoke on problems of the ginners and cotton producers. Judge Floyd Zeigler gave the welcoming address and he was followed by County Agent Guy Powell, who explained the purpose of the meeting and urged the farmers and ginners to cooperate in producing a better grade of cotton in Coryell County.

Feature speakers appearing on the program were Cliff H. Day, Bryan; F. E. Lichte and Jo Brice Wilmet of College Station and John C. Thompson of Dallas. These speakers urged the farmers to "one-variety" cotton and offered to assist in organizing one variety cotton clubs in any community.

Immediately following the speaking a movie, showing actual scenes of the Ginner's Convention in Dallas was shown and all farmers and ginners were urged to attend this convention.

THEY BRING US THE WORST THINGS! CENTIPEDES

Everything comes to the newspaper office—even centipedes, and we have two of them, if the live one hasn't eaten the dead one.

Anyway, as long as there's something moving in the window folks will look.

Charles Powell brought in one he captured somewhere, and then Joe Hanna went out and brave the wilds, or something, and we have or had, another one. They don't let you sleep nights, specially, if you think about the things.

We've wondered what would happen if they got loose and got under a lot of the old papers we have stacked in here.

G. B. HARDCASTLE THANKS VOTERS OF BEAT 1

I wish to express my appreciation to my friends and supporters for their help and vote given to me in the recent primary. I shall ever be grateful and assure you that I shall continue to appreciate your association and friendship.

Wednesday, August 14, has been designated as Coryell, Bell and Hamilton, county day at the annual Bear Club Rodeo according to Ralph Wolf, manager. The show opens August 13 and continues thru the following Saturday. A parade on Tuesday will be a big feature of the show.

Yesterday, Wacoans on a good will rodeo advertising trip, hit Gatesville and attracted some 250 folks, and with two young ropers and a bevy of dancing girls, put on a show, with the help of a five piece orchestra.

Hunger hit the trippers and that is what stopped the show. They took out to eat.

N.F.L.A. MEMBERS MET: TRAVELOGUE WAS SHOWN

The Coryell National Farm Loan Association held its Annual Stockholders' Meeting at the Palace Theatre in Gatesville, Texas on August 1, 1940 with 279 borrowers and visitors present.

Speaking on the program was A. C. Williams, President of the Federal Land Bank and General Agent of the Farm Credit Administration of Houston, who also showed colored motion pictures which he made while on a trip to England, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland and Germany last summer with a group of honor students from Texas A. and M. College whose principal purpose was to study the cotton industry in all its phases.

While the pictures were being shown, Mr. Williams made an interesting talk about pre-war conditions in rural Europe. In telling of his experiences on the trip, Mr. Williams brought out many interesting facts about agricultural and economic conditions and the operations of farmers' cooperative societies in European countries, particularly Scandinavia.

Of particular interest was his description of the manner in which the farmers of these older countries take care of the soil. They plan first, he said, for the family food supply, and by intensive cultivation they make a few acres do the work of man. Most of the farmers, Mr. Williams said, practice crop rotation and other approved farming methods, and use their soil for the purpose for which it is best adapted. Land is valuable, and not only do these farmers make ever effort to prevent erosion, but they are constantly striving to build up the fertility of the soil so that it will produce bountiful crops.

In traveling through England, the group was impressed with the gardens and pastoral beauty of the rolling English countryside, countless vegetable gardens, and the green pastures dotted with well-bred livestock. Pastures are small, but special attention has been given to their development and care.

"Norway is one of the most picturesque countries of Europe," Mr. Williams said. "One of the things that interested us most was the fact that most of the farms are so small. About 90 per cent of the farms have 25 acres or less in cultivation, of which 85,000 have five or acres of cultivated land. Nearly two-thirds of the land in cultivation is in tame hay, and the agriculture of the country is built largely around livestock-dairy cattle, swine and poultry. Another principal crop is potatoes."

In Sweden, the group visited a large cotton mill that took cotton from the bale through all the various processes to finished articles of clothing, towels, etc. Farming units were larger in Sweden than in Norway. Not only in the private gardens and the parks, but in the most unexpected places there were blooming flowers in profusion. Even the lamp posts in Gotesborg were decorated with a sort of urn encircling the post in which bright flowers bloomed.

A brief stay in Holland afforded a glimpse of yet a different type of farming. Much of the land is devoted to pasture, butter, and cheese production being one of the principal industries of the country. In Holland, Mr. Williams saw large numbers of Holstein and some Dutch belted cows.

"The Danish people" he said, "have made more progress than the people of any other country in the development of cooperative organizations. It is said that half of the people in Denmark belong to some form of cooperative, and the social, business and political life of the people is built largely around these associations. Cooperative farm credit and cooperative marketing of farm products have reached a high state of development in all of the Scandinavian countries. In Copenhagen, a city of about a million people, we visited a large livestock show at which they exhibited only one type of cattle, the red Danish dual purpose cattle, and only one type of hog, the white Danish hog that is noted for its fine bacon. It is hard for anyone who has not seen the country to realize the intensive type of agriculture that is practiced in Denmark."

Of his trip to Germany, Mr. Williams said, "This was the first time I had ever seen regimented agriculture. While I was there, they were busy harvesting a bumper grain crop, and being short of farm labor they issued an order for the mobilization of college boys to assist with the harvesting. The German farmers are thrifty and industrious, take excellent care of the soil, and produce good yields of staple crops. Most of the people I saw working in the field were the older men and women. The younger men were either in the army or employed in war industries."

In addition to agricultural and industrial scenes, the film contained many scenes of natural beauty and places of historic interest.

Thank you for the splendid vote I received on July 27. The records show that I led the ticket over my opponents in the district and that I led in three of the five counties.

I wish to assure each and everyone that I shall cooperate with all the other officials to the end that our social security problems will be properly settled once and for all.

I favor a raise in the truck load limit. Every individual, and especially farmers, ranchmen, and raw producers are entitled to know how a candidate for the Senate stands on this all important matter, because it will be the salvation of Texas producers.

I have, and shall continue to work for good roads, vocational agriculture, good schools, soil conservation, and the general welfare of the people I serve.

I shall continue to sponsor the crippled children's program and shall devote my time and energy to the betterment of living conditions and a better way of life for the people I represent.

Again expressing my eternal gratitude for your confidence, and thanking you for the support you have given me in the past and for your continued help, I remain

Sincerely your friend,

LYNCH FAMILY REUNION

A very delightful occasion and one that is always looked forward to was the Lynch reunion. It was held at the old camp ground at "Round Mountain". This spot holds many pleasant memories, but as we all entered the old camp ground this year, our hearts were sad as the oldest brother, Uncle Will Lynch, passed away on March 20. How we did miss him; he was always so jolly.

Soon it was noon and the long white table fairly groaned under its load of delicious barbecue, salads, vegetables, pickles, cakes, pies and iced tea.

All too soon the day passed away. The evening shadows were falling, and we realized it was time to return to our homes. As we said goodbye to the 108 present, we felt in our heart it was good to have been there, and we each returned to our homes looking forward to another such day as this is an annual reunion.

News Baseball Championship Series Opens Monday At State

Sport News

Down at Waco the Central Texas Semi Pro Baseball Tournament is being unreeled with capacity crowds witnessing almost every game.

Apparently the Grand Prize team has the inside track and a down hill run on the other teams in the loop with the Waco Dons furnishing them their toughest opposition.

This was the tournament that the Coryell County All-Star team was to have entered had they not been eliminated in a pre-tournament game by the West Sluggers.

The playoff series in the Coryell County News Baseball Cup Race starts next Monday afternoon at the State Training School and it'll be the best brand of "bush league" baseball that sport fans of this section have had an opportunity to see at home in quite a while.

Pidcoke, Mound, Blackfoot and Jonesboro are the four leading teams, and one of the four will be proclaimed the champions of 1940 when the race is over, but we don't know which.

Having the playoff at the State, appears to be an excellent idea, as it is centrally located, natural, and by far the best diamond in the entire county.

Incidentally, the playoff in the City Softball loop is scheduled to start Monday night of next week.

For those of you who lean toward rodeoes as a favorite source of entertainment, will find the Bear Club Rodeo which opens at Waco on the night of August 13 to be just what you're looking for.

Gatesville's Rodeo Quadrille which appeared on both the Gatesville and Brady shows, will be featured during this rodeo.

MOUND PLAYS PIDCOKE JONESBORO-BLACKFOOT IN OPENING TILTS

The Jonesboro Eagles, Pidcoke Cokers, Blackfoot Indians, and the Mound baseball teams, the four leading teams in the News Cup Race, are all set, on the mark, and waiting for the "play ball" signal which will open the third annual Coryell County News Baseball Championship Series on the State Training School diamond, Monday afternoon.

There will be no admission charge and one of the largest crowds ever to "turn out" for a series of this kind in Coryell county, is expected to line the base lines when the umpire yells "play-ball" and the series will be on.

Due to lack of time no batting practice will be held before the games but each team is intitled to both infield and outfield practice sessions. Managers are asked to cooperate in every way possible to make the playoff series a success and any team that fails to obey the rules thereby agreed upon by the majority of the managers, will be eliminated from the tournament.

On Tuesday afternoon the winners of Monday's games will play and the losers of Monday's games will also be matched against each other. In this way one team will be eliminated from the running by late Tuesday afternoon, as two defeats eliminates a team from the running.

In the initial clash which is scheduled to start promptly at 3 p. m., the Mound nine will face Virgil Lockhart's Pidcoke Cokers is a contest that promises to be a humdinger. Francis Schooley Rutherford the Cokers only regular hurler, will face his most rugged test of the season when he takes up his position in the box against the Mound batsmen. Twice this season the Cokers have been delt defeat by the Mound club and whether or not they'll be able to break this third time jinx, will be left largely up to Rutherford.

Mound has several reliable pitchers, but it is likely that Wicker will get the opening call. If he is not available for the starting tilt, however, either Holcomb or Whaley will occupy the box.

In the second game which will follow immediately after the Pidcoke-Mound fray, the league leading Jonesboro Eagles will be pitted against the Blackfoot Indians in a game that promises to be the best of the entire tourney. Both evenly matched, and composed of smart players who have a burning desire to win, anything is liable to happen in this game.

Manager Otha Martin of the Indians, who is one of the smartest pilots in the league, is expected to start Jack Barton, his right hand hurling ace against the Eagles and probably Liljebblad's number will be up for the Jonesboro crew.

According to our eligibility list, (with a few exceptions here are the players who are eligible to play with each club in this championship series:

MOUND

Clawson, Bettge, Bomar, Evans, Millsap, Wicker, F. Wicker, Marshall, Whigham, Whaley, Wolf, Holcomb, Botkins, Jones, Gilbreath and Watts.

JONESBORO

Williams, B. Williams, P. T. Lemens, C. Harveston, Liljebblad, Drake, Walsh, Watson, Box, Walker, Roebuck, Wallace, Huggins and Thomas.

PIDCOKE

C. Newton, Perryman, Trammell, Smith, Lockhart, Wilkenson, Fry, Ward, V. Perryman, Rutherford, P. Newton, Porter, Hair, K. Fry, and Roye. Note: Hair and Ward, two of the regulars on the Pidcoke squad will not be available for this championship series and they'll probably be replaced as soon as possible.

BLACKFOOT

Marshall, W. Long, T. Long, Martin, Barton, Yates, Burt, Davidson, Vandiver, Mask, S. Long, Boyd, Martin, Richards, Ivy, and J. Barton.

City Golf Tourney To Start Soon

LOCAL SOFTBALL TEAM DEALS DEFEAT TO WACO W.O.W. 8-6 IN WACO WED. NITE

Wednesday night a softball team from this city, composed of players from the Arnold Electric team and the Coca-Cola Bottlers, defeated the WOW softball team of Waco by a score of 8-6. The game was played on the Cotton Palace grounds under the lights.

Holt pitched the entire game for the locals and did an excellent job of throttling the Woodmen's hitting attack, while his mates pounded the WOW hurler for eight runs. This was one of the first out-of-town games that this particular team has played this year and they'll probably make several more trips before the closing of the season.

SYNOPSIS

Steaming up an African river on an old boat with her host, Baron Charles de Courland, multi-millionaire and big game hunter, and Jim Logan, safari guide, beautiful Linda Stewart evolves a plan. She'll show interest in Logan and in this way pique the baron into a proposal she has long been waiting for. But Logan, aviator and soldier of fortune, begins to interest her strangely. She has met Logan at M'Pola, the African seaport town to which the baron has brought her on his yacht, and after refusing to go on safari has abruptly changed her mind.

CHAPTER V

LINDA STEWART found that she didn't like shooting crocodiles from the boat railing and deliberately missed, much to the baron's chagrin. His attitude was that if he liked to hunt, she should, too. Lo-one blows a bugle and off you go into death and destruction, never thinking for a moment you may die yourself. It's just some exciting game where you can play hero, never thinking that you're shattering peace and security.

"Sometimes you have to fight for peace and security. Maybe that's your answer," Logan said.

"My answer?" Linda asked, puzzled.

"What I was doing in China. You see, I learned something a lot of people don't learn until it's too late. I learned it overnight in a little village near Vienna. One day we were gay and having fun. The next, a shadow fell across us and we didn't laugh any more. We spoke

"If you'd only told me to dress, too—" was Linda's amazed comment.

Jock pointed out the envious natives and explained that this was his way of drumming up trade. He indicated a tall native wearing a high silk hat, who seemed to be surrounded by women.

"He's the chief with his six wives," he said. "He's my com- on. Traded him that opera hat for an ivory tusk. He didn't want the ivory and I didn't want the hat. So everybody was happy."

Jock and Logan introduced the chief and his wives to Linda and de Courland. The natives presented their guests with gifts of native fruits. Then Jock presented the medicine man who joined the party.

The chief stared, fascinated, at Linda. He managed:

"Missy look like ivory."

"That's right, chief," Logan agreed, laughing. "In England they call the lady a blonde."

The chief mumbled the word happily. Linda told him:

"You catch on quickly, chief. You—brunette."

"Me—brunette—" The chief smiled happily and spoke several words in dialect. Logan told Linda after he'd finished:

"The chief likes you. He says he'll ask the witch doctor to tell your fortune. That's something extra special."

"Fine," Linda agreed.

The chief led the way to the entrance to his hut. In the background were the tom tom players, the weird musical instruments, the dancers around the fire light, stamping out their primitive dance. Then the chief took them into the hut.

The medicine man performed his mumbo-jumbo over a bed of hot coals. He smiled as he finally looked up at Linda, spoke in his native tongue.

"He says," McPhail told her, "that 'tis well ye took this trip. Fer on it, ye'll find y'r heart's desire. Or words to that effect."

The medicine man selected the baron next. Jock again translated:

"Ye'll find hunting guild. First, a leopard."

"Excellent!" exclaimed de Courland.

The medicine man spoke again.

"It's all about blood," Jock translated, laughing. "I think he takes ye fer a cannibal, baron!"

The baron laughed, too, and exchanged a swift smile of amusement with Linda.

Then the medicine man eyed Logan. His smile left his face as he gazed into the coals. His eyes were grave as he looked upward, following the smoke to the ceiling.

He spoke swiftly, excitedly.

"That's not fair," Linda said.

"We couldn't understand."

"It was nothing in particular," Logan said, easily.

McPhail gazed soberly at him and said:

"He told ye ye'd pass through the valley of the shadow of death—"

Linda's hand went to her throat as she sent a swift, darting look at Logan.

"But," added McPhail, "that ye'd come out of the shadow unscathed."

The medicine man performed his mumbo-jumbo over a bed of hot coals. He smiled as he finally looked up at Linda, spoke in his native tongue.

gan seemed to understand her feelings for after her second failure, he told her she looked relieved.

"The crocodile is probably relieved, too," she replied.

The baron took the gun from her, telling her with some rancor that she hadn't the instincts of a hunter. He suddenly whipped the rifle to his shoulder and shot down a vulture on the wing. Even Logan was impressed. He said, admiringly:

"That's good shooting!"

"I'm not exactly an amateur," de Courland boasted as he laid aside his weapon.

Logan explained to Linda that vultures lived on cadavers.

"I've seen 'em pick a body clean in five minutes," he said.

"I'm afraid Mr. Logan is trying to impress us, my dear," the baron told Linda, his tone rich with disbelief. "Africa is not so wild as—"

"That was in China, baron," Logan interrupted, sharply.

"Oh, yes—you were fighting there? You must have needed a job very badly," the baron replied.

"I wasn't paid for it."

"Then why did you—" Linda began.

"Those things are pretty hard to explain—without a soap-box." Logan waved his hand as if to dismiss the subject.

"I've known men like you," Linda said to him, almost bitterly. "Somein whispers." Logan turned to de Courland. "I don't like to speak in whispers, baron. So I learned that liberty isn't just a word. It's a tangible, living thing to use or lose—as real as a loaf of bread. It's something to fight for—"

Jock McPhail's harsh voice interrupted.

"There ye go!" the trader complained. "Talkin' about fightin' again. A man nae can turn his back for a wee snooze wi' out—"

And he, in turn, was interrupted by the sudden thunderous beating of tom toms on the bow of the boat.

"What's got into them?" Linda asked, alarmed, indicating the natives.

"Listen!" Logan directed. The drums thundered to a climax and then ceased. Then came a distant answer. "The boys know they are nearing home," Logan added. "They sent word ahead and their village answered. We'll be there by dark."

Logan's prediction proved correct. Fires were lighted in the dusty community of thatched houses. The air was filled with the beating of tom toms and other native instruments. A circle of natives danced around the main fire. Jock appeared on deck wearing his principal articles of merchandise, including a brown derby, a mildewed scarlet coat and glass beads around his neck. He held a pink cotton umbrella over his head.

FALSE LIBERALISM

The fundamental assumption upon which the Fascist dictatorships of Europe were founded is that man as an individual is incapable of acting for himself for the betterment of his own welfare or of the interests of the state. Therefore, the state must think and act for the individual who, under this thesis, assumes the status of a cog in a machine, valuable to society only so far as he contributes to the proper functioning of that machine.

Democracy rejects this assumption of man's role in the social, political and economic order, championing the role of the individual as an individual and the right of the individual to think, act, talk and worship as he pleases so long as the pursuit of these rights does not conflict with the welfare of society as a whole.

Believers in democratic institutions of government do not believe that civilization can continue to record the progress of the last two centuries if the initiative and intellect of the individual are stifled and suppressed under the smothering cloak of totalitarianism.

The story of modern scientific, industrial, social, economic and literary progress is built upon the gigantic intellects of outstanding men among the free peoples of the earth—Edison, Ford, Theodore Roosevelt, Lloyd George, Thackeray are names that stand out in these respective fields in my mind. Among the "dark" nations of the world—China, Russia, Turkey—where throughout the nineteenth century the rights of man were ground under the despotic heels of tyrannical rulers—no progress nor outstanding achievement in any of the fields of endeavor where man recorded such significant and impelling progress from 1800 until 1939 was forthcoming.

Free men—men free in spirit, in mind and in body, men working according to their own dictates of conscience, men responding to their innate talents for specific work—are responsible for the progress which has brought to the contemporary generation scientific and industrial achievements that revolutionized the personal and collective lives of every young person on this globe.

It is impossible to conceive of men working under the lash of a dictator producing such scientific marvels as the electric light, the telephone, the diesel motor; improving the social order and the political organization of a society through the pooling of their intellects, the public debate of controversial issues; contributing to the fields of literature and art great masterpieces which endure through the ages, for all the great literature and works of art which the Anglo-Saxon peoples cherish today are the products of individualized minds.

Can one conceive of a slave of pre-Civil War days making any contribution to social progress, except through the work of his hands? Yet in Europe today the dictators concede to the individual no more right to intellectual freedom than the slave enjoyed. And the status of the slave and the Fascistized European is identical in the role of each in society was or is to contribute his physical work according to the dictates of a supreme ruler.

Through the ages man's struggle for freedom has necessarily assumed divergent courses as conditions have changed. When Herbert Spencer wrote "The Man Versus the State," the freedom of man was endangered by the power of the conservative class, which dominated the social, political and economic life.

In the day the liberal was the champion of the rights of man. The conservative challenged those rights.

In this century, democratic government as the preserver of individual liberties has been wrecked more often upon the shoals of unsound liberalism than upon the recalcitrance of conservatism to social progress.

So often it has happened that the modern liberal, seeking to correct the abuses and inequalities of nineteenth century conservative domination, has imposed even more galling restrictions upon the individual.

For example, in France the Popular Front of Leon Blum attempted during 1937 to correct the abuses of economic power by inaugurating government control of the larger industries. The disorganization which followed this ill-advised action was one of the prime reasons why France was industrially unprepared to fight the war with Germany.

The liberal of 1940 is following a false premise when he bases his philosophy of government upon compulsion rather than upon the free and responsive will of men.

The rights of the minority in any democratic society must be zealously protected by the majority, for the majority of one day may be the minority of the next day.

In a government like that of the United States, the independence and integrity of the three separate branches of government must be preserved at all times and at all costs, for so long as the activities of the executive, the legislative and the judiciary are confined to their respective spheres, there can be no dictatorship in this country.

If liberalism is to survive in America, it must not challenge concepts of economics and democratic practice which have prevailed since free men assumed the direction of their own affairs centuries ago. Liberalism is only as strong as the foundations upon which it rests, and among these essential foundations are sound government finance and the unchallengeable freedom of the individual from unnecessary governmental restraints.

Liberalism, to be strong, must be sound. Liberalism, to survive, must be tolerant.

LIBERTY-OHIO CLUB

Grace Elam, Reporter
The Liberty Women's Club met its bitterest disappointment of the year last Tuesday morning when the news spread that Mrs. Curtis Keller, hostess of the day, had been seriously injured in a car wreck.

The meeting at her home was postponed indefinitely. Mrs. Keller is a real favorite with the club ladies. She is a member of old stand and the meetings at her lovely home are always joyous events. Everyone wishes for her a speedy recovery.

The Junior 4-H girls are wading deeply into the fields and gardens with their lethal jars. They are capturing every known insect and spider from the trantula to the blister beetle. A cash prize is offered for the best collection, identification, and histories. The jars were presented by their sponsor, Mrs. Loy Gene Brown. They will construct their own display boxes and card cases. We are all betting on the Juniors.

Mrs. Brown has also invited any senior girl, who wishes, to join her insect identification class.

The next Club meeting will be at the Liberty School house August 13, with Mrs. David Hedgepeth, hostess. We are expecting a great rally and a grand time.
