Truck-Car Wreck At "Center-Park": Machines Damaged

Friday night, on the northeast part of the square, a car driven by M. C. Bigham of Brown's Creek community crashed at the west end of the "parking lane" in the center of the north side of the square.

Both vehicles were damaged, and Mr. Bigham's finger was knocked out of place. The driver of the truck was uninjured.

It was evidently a case of a mixup of the drivers in "figuring out" how to drive around the "parking lane", another of Gatesville's traffic hazards. Visitors, or "through traffic" does not understand on which side of this "park lane" to drive, and consequently, get mixed up with local citizens, and, there are no directions or markers.

Turnersville Boy Gets Free Trip To Chicago

Bruce Hollingsworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Hollingsworth is one of the two Central Texas boys to get the free trip to Chicago to the 4-H Congress Thanksgiving Day, probably the 21st. The other Central Texan is Henry Schaefer of Robinson.

According to County Agent Guy Powell, only 19 Texas boys have won this award this year, and Hollingsworth is most certainly to be congratulated on winning this prize. The trip by train is arranged by a well known railway line.

"Home Guard" Will Probably Be Started Here

As a part of Waco's Military District, American Legion members are going into the proposition of the organizing of a "home guard" in Coryell county, which, as is being done in other Central Texas cities, will take the place of the National Guard units which are being Federalized and made a part of the U. S. Army.

In this district, under Colonel W. C. Lattimore, there are some 13 counties under this central officer.

At the next regular meeting of the Legion, this matter will be gone into further and more complete plans will be made.

Schools have been organized in various points and it is possible a group school for reserve officers might be held here.

KEON-FOSTER DRUG HAS REXALL SALE BEGINNING WED.

The famous 1c Rexall Sale opens at Koen-Foster Drug Wednesday of this week, and continues for four days, thru Saturday, as you have probably already seen from the advertisement opposite the editorial page in this issue of the News.

Yes, this sale, which in any part of the United States needs no introduction, brings to Coryell county buyers, many, many values which are standard the world over, and comes at a time when the Winter supply of cold and other remedies have just about been depleted in the medicine chest.

Anyway, whether you're sick or think you might get sick there are still many bargains (did you see the circular) which you'll need for, well,—you'll need.

Irvin McCreaty of Temple was a visitor in Gatesville Monday. Mrs. Laura Rayford spent the week end in Fort Worth.

Among the visitors to the Waco Brazos Fair Sunday were, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Collins and children, and Mrs. W. L. Bowlin

R.E.A. Line Being Built in County: Been Delayed

After a number of different delay, some explainable, and some not, the REA line which comes into Coryell via Hamilton county is being staked off, and is a certainty now.

In a telegram from Congressman W. R. (Bob) Poage, the good news is passed on as follows: HON. GUY POWELL, COUNTY AGENT

ADVISED BY R.E.A. THAT THEY ARE TODAY DEFINITELY APPROVING EXTENSION OF HAMILTON COUNTY R.E.A. INCLUDING LINE IN CORYELL COUNTY.

W. R. POAGE

Of course, this telegram was received about the first of October, and since then the "machinery" has been working and the line is in motion.

Of the $658,000 allocated to the REA, $270,000 of this is to the Hamilton-Coryell project, and this project was the only one in Texas receiving an allotment.

This line comes after much work on the part of the people of this section and the continuous help of Congressman Poage. The line starts at Arthur Schloeman's down to W. E. Hayes', across to Frank Wilson's, around the State Training School, on south by Sam Powell's to the section around the Golf course, amounting to some 30 miles of line.

Assisting and co-laboring with Congressman Poage was Congressman Clyde Garrett of the district of Hamilton and other counties west of here.

Same Number, Same Family, Two Drafts

Two brothers, Jim Ross Wittie and Grover Wittie, both of the Schley community, have registered, one in 1918 and the other in 1940.

On September 16, 1918, Jim Ross registered and his number was 1223, and 22 years and one month later, October 16, 1940, Grover registered. When comparing the numbers, after Grover had received his, they found that both had the same numbers, 1223.

It's just one of them things!

There'll be "spook" shows at the local theatres, and then there'll be other dooin's 'round the town, and if you have anything loose, better anchor it to something.

We'll be working, and if any of you need to get away from the old bad spook, come in, and you can see the News in action. This will be a "safe anchorage" for anybody who wants to get away from these denisons of the netherland, and, of course, you're welcome.

"QUARTERBACK" STIMSON CALLS "NUMBERS" IN NATION'S SECOND DRAFT

The Government's "numbers" racket starts today! It'll be the draftiest call, ever.

About 11 a. m. today, Secretary Stimson will reach his hand in a very much glorified "bowl" and grab a number out. This same number will be transcribed on every draft board list in the United States and this number will call just that many men, and will take them out of "civies" and put them in "uniform", barring, of course, a number of exemptions.

A special guard of Philadelphia police has brought this big bowl from Philadelphia to Washington, and during the ceremonies, President Roosevelt will make a speech, and the greatest peace time draft in th history of the USA will be on. There'll be some 7,500 numbers in the bowl, and it'll take about 15 hours (estimate) to complete the drawing. Whether Quarterback Stimson will call all the numbers is not known, but he's going to have an enormous team before he gets thru.

Following this calling, special questionnaires will be sent to all "numberees" and they'll fill them out, and from these sworn answers, Uncle Sam's Various Draft Boards thruout the country will know how many "wrong numbers" have been called.

The prize in this lottery will be a free ticket on Uncle Sam, that is, if you have no exemptions.

Still more Serial Numbers are handed out by the local Draft Board, which now has as it's permanent office worker, Mrs. T. K. O'Neal. Here are the latest, carrying the local list up to 2206:

WEDDING OF RUBY MAE KELSO, GROVER C. CARR SOLEMNIZED

The marriage of Miss Ruby Mae Kelso, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Kelso, 1203 Garza, and Grover C. Carr, Dallas, son of J. A.

Carr, Roysse City, took place Thursday night at the Tyler Street Methodist Church. Rev. C. R. Hootpe performed the ceremony.

The altar was decorated with vases of white chrysanthemums and seven-branched candelabra before a background of palms and fern. The pews were marked with white satin ribbons. The music was furnished by Mrs. C. R. Hooten, organist, and James Langley, vocalist. Mrs. Mack Kelso lit the tapers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of slipper satin designed with sweetheart neckline outlined by a pleated ruffle. The long sleeves were puffed at the shoulders and held tight at the wrists by self-covered buttons with a tiny pleated ruffle making the points over the hands. The skirt was fitted at the waist and flared into a short train. Her veil of illusion fell from a lace tiara trimmed with tiny pearlized orange blossoms. She carried a Bible topped with gardenias.

Miss Vera Mae Fisher was the only attendant of the bride. She was dressed in blue taffeta and carried a colonial bouquet of gold chrysanthemums. R. T. McClanahan attended Mr. Carr as best-man.

A reception for members of the family was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Julia McClanahan, after the ceremony. Mrs. Cecil N. Carr presided at the tiered wedding cake and Miss Dovie Conway at the punch bowl. Miss Mary Fisher had charge of the bride's book. The bride's mother was dressed in soldier blue with a corsage of yellow roses.

The bride chose as her traveling outfit a suit of beige and brown with matching accessories. After a short trip the couple will be at home in Dallas.—The Dallas Morning News.

Among the out-of-town people who attended the ceremony and reception were, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Sims and Miss Ann Hill, all of Gatesville.

TERRY PITCHES OGLESBY TIGERS TO 20-12 VICTORY OVER COPPERAS COVE

The Oglesby High School Tigers featuring C. H. Terry, lanky center on the offense and Jack Clearman on the defense, gave a hustling little crew of Copperas Cove Bulldogs a 20-12 trouncing on the Oglesby gridiron Friday afternoon as hundreds of pigskin fans from far and near, lined the field to see these two top-notch six-man teams in action.

The Bulldogs opened with a blitzkrieg drive down the center of the field that brought them within easy reach of the goal line, but a Bulldog pass that easily could have resulted in a touchdown, was pulled down by Ethridge of the Tigers breaking up the drive. After getting possession of the ball the Tigers moved back toward their own goal at a torrid pace and finally bogged down deep in the Bulldogs territory.

Copperas Cove drew the first blood when Kunkle, Bulldog center, tied on to a pass in the second quarter and loped across the goal line for a touchdown. The kick for the goal went wide. Shortly afterward, after a series of line plays had advanced the ball well on its way to the Oglesby goal, Ethridge snapped a pass to Terry who in turn heaved it to Clearman who was in the clear and just back of the goal line, tying the score 6-6. The Tigers also failed to convert the extra points.

In the third quarter, the Bulldogs again threatened when Fabian carrying the ball, raced down the sideline for approximately 40 yards and with 10 of the goal before he is pulled down from behind by Clearman. Here the Bulldogs bogged down and the Tigers get possession of the ball.

The Tigers drove across their second marker of the afternoon on another double pass, Ethridge to Terry to Clearman. This time the try for points was completed and Oglesby was out in front 14-6. The remainder of the game was about even with both teams scoring a touchdown in the last quarter, making the final score read, Oglesby 20, Copperas Cove 12.

Demoralized by the loss of McKelvin the Tigers scoring ace who was out with a fractured hand, the Oglesby team apparently were due to take a beating but they rallied early in the game and turned the tide to cop the contest.

Here's the starting lineups:

Cop. Cove		Oglesby
Kunkle	C	Terry

Horner	LE	Ethridge

Turnersville Breaks Into Win Column: Defeat Regan 20-6

The Turnersville High School Buffaloes romped over a Falls county half-dozen at Turnersville Friday afternoon to the tune of 20-6 to win their first game of the 1940 six-man season.

The Turnersville team have had trouble getting started this year, having met defeat at the hands of most all the local teams, but since they have at last got off on the right foot, Turnersville fans can be assured of a harder fighting team.

Regan is located in Falls county, near Marlin and has matched games with several teams in the Coryell county loop.

Pearl Dragons Lose To Flat Jackets 26 to 10, Friday

The Flat Yellowjackets still remain in the ranks of the undefeated in the Coryell county six-man league and annexed their fourth victory of the season Friday afternoon on their home field by turning back the Pearl Dragons by a score of 26-10. The Jackets were leading 20-0 at the half.

The latter part of this game was played in the rain and neither team was able to do much in the last half due to the wet ball and the slippery condition of the field.

Love, Taylor and Poe sparked the Jackets to victory while Fetner and Haines carried the brunt of the Dragon's attack. Mosley, sparkplug of the Dragon team was out due to injuries and did not see service in the game.

Pottsville Beats Irish In Six-Man Battle At Ireland, Friday

The Pottsville 6-man team rolled to an easy victory over coach Smith's Irish of Ireland at Ireland Friday afternoon the reported score being 28 to 6.

No highlights of the game were reported, only that Pottsville scored freely all during the contest and kept the Irish mostly on defense. A wet ball and the soggy conditions of the field probably had a bearing on the outcome of this game.

HORNETS SCORE IN LAST MINUTE OF PLAY TO DEADLOCK SCORE 6-6

By WILSON BRAZZIL
News Sports Editor

The Gatesville High School Hornets played their most listless game of the season here Friday night when they clashed with the under-rated Itasca Wampus Cats and had to depend upon "Lady Luck" in the last minute of the game to keep from being defeated. The game ending in a 6-6 deadlock.

Using a badly balanced drive on offense that neither had power or deception, the Hornets never gave the Cats a serious threat until the last minute of the game when they drove almost the full length of the field for a touchdown shortly before the final whistle.

Napps, 174 pound Itasca tackle, stood out like a sore thumb for the visitors and his excellent kicking with a slippery ball, accounted to a large extent for the excellent showing the Cats made against the Hornets.

Whitefield and Mires, backfield stars, put on a two man aerial show and passed their way to pay dirt in the third quarter for the first score of the game. They failed to convert the extra point. Snyder at left end, and captain of the Cats, also played heads-up for the visitors.

Fry played his usual steller game for the Hornets, but fumbles due to a wet ball, and lack of support by his mates in the pinches of the game, wrecked the majority of his plays. Gribble was outstanding on the line for Gatesville.

With only a few minutes remaining in the ball game the Hornets got possession of the ball near the Itasca 10 yard line and drove straight back up the field and over for a touchdown shortly before the final whistle. Had they exhibited this kind of drive all through the game, there is no doubt but what the Cats would have been soundly defeated.

'NORTH WEST MOUNTED POLICE'

SERIALIZED BY JAY LANCER FROM

CECIL B. DEMILLE'S

TECHNICOLOR PARAMOUNT PICTURE CO-STARRING

GARY COOPER · MADELEINE CARROLL

CHAPTER ONE SYNOPSIS
The Canadian North West in 1885 is faced with bloody civil war when the Metis, half-breed French-Indians, resent the intrusion of the North West Mounted Police in their affairs and threaten to rebel against the authority of the British Crown under the leadership of idealistic Louis Riel (Francis McDonald). Dan Duroc (Ahim Tamireff), a trapper, and a notorious criminal, Jacques Corbeau (George Bancroft) are aiding Riel. Sergeant James Bret (Preston Foster) and Constable Ronnie Logan (Robert Preston) come to the Metis settlement of Batoche to investigate the situation. Ronnie meets Louvette (Paulette Goddard), Corbeau's wildcat daughter, and arranges a rendezvous at Fort Carlton. Meanwhile, Shorty (Lon Chaney, Jr.), one of the rebel ringleaders, threatens Bret with a rifle.

CHAPTER II

THE halfbreed's gun was pointed at his heart, but Jim Bret did not move; it would have been fatal. "You no like Corbeau?" said the breed.

"No," said Jim. He looked the man in the eye. "He'll only come if he smells blood, Shorty."

"Maybe," said Shorty harshly, his eye lighting with purpose as he sighted along the barrel of the rifle, "he smell blood pretty quick, then."

Still Jim did not move. It would have done no good anyway. His revolver was holstered; his Winchester was in its boot. He could not get to them in time. Besides, in that mob, already inflamed at the thought of rebellion, even if he killed Shorty, he would be torn to pieces.

Calmly, he stared at the breed, but out of the corner of his eye, he saw Tod McDuff, the strange Scotch halfbreed, sitting on the stoop of a nearby house. Tod McDuff was knitting; always was he knitting, but nevertheless he had turned his rifle so that it pointed at Shorty. Tod McDuff, halfbreed or no, was loyal to his Scottish forbears.

The moment stretched out, drew thin with the terrible tension, as Shorty, enjoying the suspense, seemed to await the Mounties' fear before pulling the trigger. Then, from the window of the hospital thrust a lovely, blonde head and April Logan called:

"Shorty! Come quick! It's a boy!"

Jim Bret threw back his head and laughed; the crowd laughed. Shorty, the halfbreed, had, while riding to war, brought his wife along to the hospital for confinement. Shorty now looked rather foolish as he lowered his gun, for a man who has just become a father does not kill. He laughed joyously, his belligerence forgotten, and rushed to the hospital. Jim rode on through the crowd, which was threatening no longer, but he stopped by Tod McDuff.

"Thank you, Tod," he said quietly, "but I'm glad you didn't pull the trigger. It would have started the war."

The Scotch breed regarded the sock he was knitting, said dourly: "Perhaps, but Jim, mon, 'twas no' in me to see ye slaughtered in cold blood. Ye're holdin' the empire which me feyther helped to knit together. I'll no' see it unraveled w/out a scrum."

Jim Bret smiled. "I know," he said. "We'll need you, if it breaks. Come to the Fort in the morning and Inspector Cabot will swear you in as a deputy."

"Tod McDuff," said a voice nearby. It was Dan Duroc. "You an' me frien'. You'll not fight against Dan Duroc, Tod McDuff, or Dan Duroc scalp you!"

The Scotch breed and the French breed glared. Old friends, they were, and Jim knew it. But he had no doubts of Tod. He rode on to the hospital and despite his uneasiness, his trouble lifted a little. April Logan met him there.

His cold eyes softened with the love he felt for her. "Thank you," he said. "You saved my life."

"No," she laughed. "Shorty's baby saved it."

"But you were magnificent."

She turned to the squaw, Ekawe, who had brought her daughter, Niska, to the hospital. Niska's leg was broken and April was wrapping squaw, Ekawe's, amused stare. "I'll always love you and were you to go to the ends of the earth I'd follow you. Remember that!"

He turned abruptly and left her and did not see the flush on her cheek, the tears that welled in her eyes. Outside, he met Ronnie. The younger man looked at his superior and said archly:

"Did little sister treat you rough?"

Jim glared, then said gruffly: "Let's ride. We've got to send these demands to Regina tonight."

They rode, then, at a dead gallop to Fort Carlton. It was dusk, when they reached there, an uneasy dusk, gloomy with the growing certainty the cotton fleece about it, preparatory to putting it in the plaster cast. But she said:

"Your men didn't want to let me through but I came anyway," the Texan drawled calmly.

"Magnificent?" She looked up at him from her work with a quizzical expression. "You were magnificent, too. You're always magnificent," she went on, and there was a little note of ruefulness in her voice. "Perhaps that's it. If I married you, I think I'd actually marry the North West Mounted Police, too." She looked at him thoughtfully. "There are, you know, other things, Jim. Love, for instance."

"Try me and see."

She laughed a little, resuming her work, and said: "Duty, duty, duty. You're a slave to duty, Jim. You'll never know anything else until you're beaten to your knees somehow. You—"

But he interrupted. "April," he said, "how can you deliver a baby, set an Indian brat's broken leg, save a man's life and still look like the loveliest woman in the world?"

She hesitated in her work for only a moment. "That was very pretty," she said. She sighed. "And unusual. No, Jim, it's too unusual. There wouldn't be time, much time, for things like that. There would always be duty." She finished with the fleece and turned to him. "I'm a little afraid of you," she went on, "so I'm answering duty too. As an Anglican Mission nurse I have a new assignment. I'm going to Nova Scotia."

He had faced the breed's murderous rifle with more equanimity. Now he trembled. Then he said softly:

"I love you." He gathered her to him suddenly and kissed her hard on the lips, unaware of the of the uprising. Inspector Cabot, the commandant, said:

"Batoche will boil over and scald half of Canada. They'll never grant these demands. But I suppose we ought to send them."

Jim took the papers, handed them to the telegrapher.

"Batoche already is uneasy, sir," he said. "I'm sure they're gathering for Corbeau and Riel."

"Have Grove and Fenton reported?"

"No, sir."

The commandant drummed on the table. "Fifty men here," he said thoughtfully. "In all Canada only five hundred Mounted Police." He looked at Jim Bret. "Jim, if the Cree and the Blackfeet follow Corbeau . . ."

"I was thinking, sir," said Jim, "that—"

He did not finish. Outside there was an uproar and a clatter of hoofs and shouts. Inspector Cabot and Sergeant Bret, their nerves on edge, reached instinctively for the guns in their holsters, then stared.

In the doorway stood a man. He was tall, lean, blue-eyed, with little wrinkles at the corners of his eye sockets that betrayed a lifetime of looking at great distances. On his head was a huge white Stetson and he wore the overalls, high heeled boots and tremendous roweled spurs of the American cowboy. He grinned at the two officers who had their hands on their guns. Swinging at either hip from gunbelts he wore two guns himself.

"Your men didn't want to let me through but I came anyway," he drawled calmly. "I'm from Texas, gentlemen. Lookin' for a murderer!"

Man About Town

Newspaper men everywhere can be proud of the way one of them died, in London. His name—one to remember—was Arthur F. B. Portman. Many Americans knew him through his by-line Audax. That was tagged on the copy he penned for Horse and Hound, for Portman was one of Europe's best racing reporters. Portman's wife was an invalid, bed-ridden for several years. She was unable to go to the shelters when the Nazi bombers came over to wage Hitler's war. That's the way it was the last morning the Portmans heard the raid siren. The reporter went where he always went during raids, to the bedside of his ailing wife. And there he was killed, with her, by a bomb.

Douglas Mackenzie, an Australian scribe, who distinguished himself in London until he connected with a New York paper, was being shown the midtown places by confrere Gene McHugh, 20 years with the same sheet. Gene is a man of few superlatives, but when Mackenzie asked him what sort of a fellow a rival was, Gene's orchid was what any reporter would welcome on his tombstone: "He's a newspaperman. Period!"

The Headliners: Margaret Lindsay's quote: "Every actor has a certain amount of ego" . . . Yeah, sometimes they think they're good and sometimes they think nobody else is . . . Same lady's comment: "Actresses like to talk about themselves" . . . Except when they're gargling . . . Ann Sheridan's warning: "There are some things girls have to know about men" . . . She means that it is less of a strain to walk some place with a man than go there with him in a taxicab . . . Adolphe Menjou's line: "The screen is an educator" . . . Sure, a diploma from the screen entitles you to enter any kindergarten.

Sinclair Lewis has quit the stage because, he complained, acting took up too much of his time . . . Anybody who ever saw Red play a scene knew he was bound to run out of time sooner or later, the way he was consuming it.

New York Novelette: This is the very sad story of Strawberry Sam, a milk-wagon horse, who had the West Fifty-eighth street beat. Sam would walk up onto the sidewalk to greet show-folks coming home in the wee hours. They usually gave him sugar lumps or they'd pet his nose . . . One dawning Sam went too far and bit a chorus girl's fingers . . . So they treated him like a policeman who is being demoted . . . They banished poor Sam to the Jackson Heights "sticks" for three months . . . But he took it all like a man, and is now back on the Fifty-eighth street beat again.

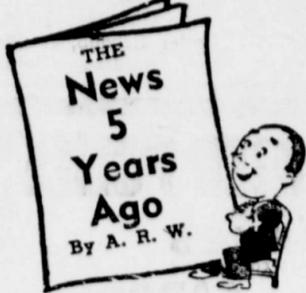

Memos of a Midnighter: The fingerprinting of night club employees, etc., revealed six convictions against a famed joynr owner . . . Joan Burgess, the lovely dancer, and millionaire furrier Merl will middle-istle . . . What's happening to the Broadway Royalty? "Prince" Mike Romanoff has gone to work in a night club, and now "Duchess" Cynthia Cavanaugh is booked at Bertolotti's as a thrush . . . A famous actress was locked up in Los Angeles on a dope charge.

Paul Munt and Nigel Bruce almost came to blows on the "Hudson Bay" set . . . Page 40 in Life has the midtowners giggling . . . George McKee (who plays Hilda in "Ramparts We Watch") became Mrs. N. H. Willis in Illinois . . . Mischa Auer will next marry Joyce Hunter, vocalist with the Henry King orchestra. Auer gave his wife the $25,000 house and big coin for his freedom . . . Literotics say Christopher Morley didn't write "Kitty Foyle," that his daughter did, and that the book was peddled under his name to make bigger money for her.

Sounds in the Night: At The Whirling Top: "They grew to love each other more and more month after month and round after round" . . . At The Beachcomber: "I don't care if she's got a skeleton in her closet—long as it ain't her husband" . . . In Leon & Eddie's: "Be careful, gal. One false move and I'm yours!" . . . In The Forty-eighth St. Tavern: "What has he got that she hasn't gotten?" . . . At The Torch: "She gives away kisses as though they were campaign buttons" . . . At Armando's: "He's very good at inventing things—especially lies" . . . In The Mayan: "What a plagiarist. You know—a guy who can read—and then write!"

This Is New York
The burlesk temples dripping with stale ciggie smoke, giving ugly, tin-horn shows. Years ago these same theaters were the scene of the most scintillating first-nights . . . The violent political argument between two women in the Grand Central Terminal. No political issues were mentioned. One just didn't like the type of campaign button of one candidate. The other thought it was "pretty" . . . The dreary beaneries—the cabbles' Stork Club!

Pilot's Persiflage: Or, Air Chatter

Motor: See Engine.
Multiplane: An airplane whose lifting surface consists of a number of planes, one above the other.
Nacelle: The body of a pusher

Mr. Fraley, in his collection of imitations, reproduces the sound made by a flea, a honey bear and a muskrat, among others. machine, housing the cockpit and useful load and sometimes the engine.

Natural Stability. See Stability.
Neutral Lift Line: A line taken forward from the trailing edge of an aerofoil, which, when coincident with the direction of motion results in neither lift nor depression of the aerofoil. It is determined by wind tunnel research. The angle it makes with the chord varies according to the camber.

Nose Dive: A dangerously steep descent, head on.
Nose Heavy: The condition of an airplane in which the center of gravity is forward of the center of pressure. This will vary with all angles of incidence, speed, and revolutions of the motor. A machine is said to be nose heavy when upon releasing the elevator control it tends to nose down.

Ornithopter: A form of aircraft deriving its support and propelling force from flapping wings.
Overhang: The lateral projection of one plane over the one below it.

Phillips' Entry: A shape, pointed in section, given to the leading edge of an aerofoil, resulting in decrease of drag.
Pitch: To rock backward and forward about the transverse axis.

Pilot Tube: A tube with an end open square to the fluid stream, used as a detector of an impact pressure. More usually associated with a concentric tube surrounding it, having perforations normal to the axis for indicating static pressure. The velocity of the fluid can be determined from the difference between the impact pressure and the static pressure. This instrument is often used to determine the velocity of an aircraft through the air.

Pontoon: A boat like structure designed to sustain an airplane on water.
Propeller: Developed area of see "Developed Area". Dick area of, see "Disk Area". Right hand, one in which the helix is right hand; one whose rotation is clockwise when viewed from the rear of the plane facing the direction of flight (vix. in the air stream).

Blade: Propellers are usually made with two blades, very often three and sometimes four. The blade is that portion of the propeller from the hub out.
Face of Blade: The surface of the blade which drives the air away from the propeller. In airplanes always to the rear. Back of blade in airplanes is always on the side of the direction of motion.

Leading Edge of a Blade: That edge in the direction of rotation.
Trailing Edge of a Blade: That edge in the direction opposite to rotation.

Pitch: The distance the propeller would travel in a forward direction in one revolution if it revolved in a solid substance.
Race: The air stream formed by the rotation of the propeller.
Slip: The difference between actual and theoretical distance a propeller advances in one revolution.

Torque: The rotary motion imparted to the frame of an airplane by the rotation of the propeller. This is in a direction contrary to that of the propeller rotation, and is the resistance of the propeller to a rotation, corresponding to the drag of an aerofoil. It is due to this that one wing of the airplane is either dropped or washed out.
Pterygoid: Type of wing long and narrow, as opposed to apteroid.
Pusher: a Type of airplane with the propeller or propellers in the rear of the wings.

Pylon: A stake marking the course in an air-drome.
Raking: A formation of the wing tip by which the trailing edge is made longer than the leading edge.
Resistance, Head: The total resistance of an airplane to forward motion, including structural resistance and drag.

Parasite: Same as structural resistance.
Structural: The resistance offered by those parts of an airplane other than the lifting and controlling surfaces. See Drag.
Rib: A rib in the form of a hollow, box-like structure. Used where desired to give rigidity over a considerable breadth of the aerofoil surface, e. g., at the base of the lower wings, on which the pilot steps on entering the cockpit.

Camber (Wing, Ordinary): A rib whose function is to give shape and rigidity to an aerofoil.
