COUNTY-WIDE MEETING ASKED SATURDAY TO HEAR EXPLANATION OF BOND ISSUE

It's new and so new, that all the county officials want YOU to be at the courthouse Saturday, in the District Court Room, this coming Saturday at 2 p. m. to discuss and hear an explanation of a proposed highway bond issue for Coryell County.

Elsewhere in the News, you'll see an official notification of this meeting.

We have heard a part of the details, but to give you a chance to hear first hand, the details, which will be explained fully at the meeting.

Personally, the little we've heard, we think this is a good way to "hedge" on highway work that the entire county wants to insure.

Mark your calendar, cuff, or whatever reminds you and be sure to be in the District Court Room, Saturday, November 30, at 2 p. m.

Town Lighted On December Fifth, Santa Claus, 6th

The town's going to be lit up December 5, and Old Santa Claus will make his 1940 debut here at 11 a. m. December 6, heralding any town and county's greatest season.

Already, workmen are assembling and reworking the old wires, lights, etc., etc., and are getting things ready. Since the old wire is practically useless, much new equipment will be bought, and this week, business men thruout Gatesville gave cold dollars to make it possible to have the town "lit up" for Christmas, and not with "spirits" but with spirit.

Gatesville, always "puts on a good show" in welcoming Old Santa Claus and his entourage, and this year will be no exception. Hardly any town this size has as much decoration during Christmas during Yuletide, if you'd noticed.

TEXAS 7 AGGIES 0 TEXAS WINS IN 55 SECONDS

It started this way. A. & M. booted over the goal. Ball brought back to the 35. Pass puts ball on Aggie own 35 yard line. Second pass puts ball on Aggie 1 yard line. Pete Layden puts it over for 6. Another Longhorn boots the extra, and it's Texas 7, Aggies 0, in 55 SECONDS.

The rest of the game, don't matter.

A SUMMARY OF WORLD, NATIONAL AND STATE NEWS

JAPAN GETS FRESH

STRIP-PICKET WINS

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 27 (AP)—Because her part in a movie had been cut out, Gerta Roazan picketed the offices of the producers and said she'd remove one article of clothing each day until the part was restored. The first day she shed her blouse, and then came off her skirt. Her press agent said things will continue to come off until... well, she won the one-woman strike and has a "better" job.

WOPS BRACE, BUT BEATEN

Athens, Greece, Nov. 27 (AP)—The Italian's stubborn resistance of the southern sector of the Albanian front with the aid of reinforcements of fresh troops and planes sent from Italy was declared Wednesday night in military dispatches to have been broken after fierce fighting.

The Greeks, said a government spokesman, thus were advancing in a quite satisfactory manner, mopping up the terrain.

50 MILLION, NAVY BASES

Washington, Nov. 27, (AP)—A $50,000,000 allotment to provide oil and other storage facilities and ship and plane anchorages at the defense bases recently acquired from Great Britain was announced Wednesday by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox.

F.D.R. WARNS DIES

Washington, Nov. 27 (AP)—President Roosevelt called on the Dies committee Wednesday to be careful not to defeat the ends of justice in carrying on its campaign against alleged un-American activities.

WOPS-LIMYS SHIPS BATTLE

Italy's men 'o war have again refused to do battle with the British fleet in the Mediterranean, the London admiralty reported yesterday retiring at "high speed" to the shelter of a shore base with British warships in pursuit.

From the Italian Government, they claim to have inflicted damage to a battleship, aircraft carrier and other lighter ships, and that they didn't run. We would not know.

SO. TEX. DRYING UP

Houston, Nov. 27 (AP)—South Texas, harrassed four days by great floods, began the long recovery process tonight.

Only the die-hard Brazos river and the Sabine, in places showed signs of spilling out over more acres.

Damage was incalculable. Thousands of head of cattle floated dead in the waters. Crops were ruined, homes gone, and silt all over everything.

Amarillo, too, is near normalcy again, after four days of worst ice storm in history. Water, light and power and phone service has been partially restored.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left for Freeport where they are making their home.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. DAN WEEKS

On Monday, November 18, at ten p. m. the death angel claimed the spirit of Mrs. Dan Weeks at her home in Wheeler, Texas. She was laid to rest in the Wheeler cemetery November 19 at 3 p. m. Rev. Woods, pastor of the Methodist Church, where she was a member, held the funeral service. He was assisted by Rev. Lollar, the Baptist pastor and a friend of the family.

Bessie Turner Weeks was born in Dublin, Erath county, Texas March 11, 1889. She moved to Coryell county with her parents when a small child and lived near Turnersville until a few years ago. She was converted and joined the Baptist Church at the age of 13. Later she joined the Methodist Church with her family.

She was married to Dan Weeks May 31, 1909, and to this union seven children, six boys and one girl, were born. All were at her bedside when she passed away with the exception of two. She lived a consecrated Christian life, always ready to do something for others; she was a devoted wife and mother. The last few years of her life she was confined to her home, but she bore her affliction patiently and with a smile. She was seriously ill only two days. Although there is a vacant place in her home, in the church and in the community and though our hearts are made sad, we can say with the apostle, Blessed are those that die in the Lord, they do rest from their labor and their works that follow them.

She leaves to mourn her going her companion, Dan Weeks, and the following children, D. B. of Lubbock, Harmon of Wheeler, Curtis of Dallas, Alton, Glen, Elsie, and Garland of Wheeler; 2 grandsons; one sister, Mrs. Ed McLarty Gatesville; three brothers, Ernest Turner, Gatesville, Edgar Turner, Purnela, and Emmett Turner, Arnett. All were present for the funeral except two brothers, Ernest and Edgar Turner. She also leaves to mourn her passing a number of relatives and friends.—Written by one who loved her.

CHAPTER TEN SYNOPSIS
The Canadian North West in 1885 is facing a civil war with the Metis, a nation of half-breeds incited to rebellion by Jacques Corbeau, notorious criminal when Dusty Rivers, a Texas Ranger, comes to this wild country to arrest Corbeau for a Texas murder. Dusty becomes friendly with Sergeant Jim Bret of the North West Mounted Police and accompanies the latter on an expedition to capture Corbeau. The outfit is ambushed when Constable Ronnie Logan, brother of April, a frontier nurse with whom Bret is in love, is snatched from his post as trail scout by Louvette, Corbeau's wildcat daughter. Later, Bret captures Corbeau by a clever ruse at the camp of Big Bear and Dusty sets out alone on a special mission.

CHAPTER XI

AS Jim Bret rode, Dusty Rivers also was riding. He had left April and the others with Colonel Irvine and the reinforcements that were moving against Batoche and the halfbreeds, who awaited word from Corbeau. The militia, more than one thousand strong, were well armed and equipped. They again in the horse's flanks and was away.

The breeds gave chase, of course, but they could not ride as a Texas plainsman rode. Dusty outdistanced them, laughing. But he soon sobered. For Dusty had a plan. The first part of his plan had worked. The rest . . .

Another day he rode and another, passing many halfbreeds and their families, for something like panic had struck the Metis. They had heard of the loss of the gun; they had heard, also, of Corbeau's arrest, the loss of the Indians as allies and the approach of the reinforcements. The Metis rebellion was petering out.

Dusty, therefore, rode in safety, and he asked questions and because he received answers to his questions, that night he was in a small Indian village and he rode until he came to a certain lodge.

friends and was traitor to my country." He looked up, his eyes wild, his voice suddenly shrill. "Can't you let me alone?" he yelled. "Can't you let me alone?"

"I could," said Dusty slowly. "There's April, though." Ronnie started as if he had been struck. "I reckon she thinks you're a brave man, boy. I just thought maybe you mightn't want to disappoint her."

Ronnie Logan stared . . . And Louvette ran through the forest. She ran to the lodge of a renegade Sioux, a villainous Indian, and in her heart was murderous hate. Hate for Dusty Rivers who had come and who, somehow, would harm her Ronnie. She talked to the Sioux. For a few dollars this Sioux would do murder and Louvette paid the few dollars.

"A tall man," she said. "He rides a blazefaced horse."

She ran back, then through the forest avoiding the trail, but at the lodge she stared stricken. For within there was only Dusty.

"Ronnie!" she screamed. "Where is he?"

"Why he's gone back ma'am," Dusty drawled. "I reckon he thought he'd take his medicine like a man. I lent him my horse."

"Your horse!" It was a shriek. "Your blaze face horse!"

Louvette ran down the trail like a frightened deer. "Ronnie! Ronnie!" she screamed as she ran, "Ronnie! My love, my love!"

Dusty Rivers, startled, ran after her at a dogged trot. He heard the hateful rifle shot heard Louvette long before he saw her, heard the weird chant of despair that rose in the forest. The Sioux had done his work well. He had shot the tall man on the blazefaced horse.

Louvette crouched, cradling the dead lover's head in her arms singing the weird Cree death chant. She did not see Dusty as he came up; she paid no attention to the hand he laid on her shoulder. Her chant grew wilder in the forest . . .

Dusty Rivers, saddened, rode into Batoche with Ronnie Logan's body across his horse. It was a peaceful Batoche now, for Colonel Irvine had arrived. The rebellion was over. He rode up to the trading post which, he had been told, was the headquarters of Colonel Irvine and the court of inquiry, opened the door and stood for a moment.

Jim Bret was there and April Logan and Colonel Irvine and the officers. They were, in fact, inquiring into the desertion of Constable Ronald Logan.

April gave a little cry, sprang to her feet, rushed to Dusty to take Ronnie's head in her arms. Dusty looked at her, then at the others and said, in a husky voice: "Constable Logan reporting."

(To be concluded)

"Get out!" Louvette screamed to Dusty. "You come to hurt him."

There he dismounted and tethered his horse. At the door he paused for only a moment, before he entered.

Within the lodge were Ronnie Logan and Louvette.

The boy was dishevelled, unshaven, his eyes dull with despair and staring from hollowed sockets. And he wore, now, instead of his scarlet tunic, a buckskin shirt with fringed sleeves. Already, thought Dusty, degradation had set in.

Ronnie stared at him wonderingly, but Louvette was on her feet in a rage.

"Get out!" she screamed. "You come to hurt him!"

"I couldn't do that now," Dusty drawled gently. "I reckon nothin' I could say or do would hurt him much. He's hurt himself enough already."

Ronnie Logan stared at him with despairing eyes. Neither he nor Dusty noticed when Louvette, with a little sobbing cry, brushed past them and out of the lodge.

"What do you want?" said Ronnie hopelessly. "I'll be like this for the rest of my life. I'll be in a hole like this eating my heart out, knowing that I killed my had no need of Dusty and he took his leave.

Dusty Rivers also had a mission. He circled about the country for a day, then, under cover of night, rode near to the halfbreed camp. It was pitched on a bluff above the river, not far from Batoche. There the breeds meant to stand, if necessary, and there they had emplaced their precious Gatling gun.

Dusty abandoned his horse near the camp, crept forward on foot. There would, of course, be sentries, so Dusty, crawling through the underbrush by the river, made for the boats tied there at the mooring. There were many of them, for many of Riel's troops had paddled down the river to join the army.

Dusty Rivers, therefore, cut the painters, set the boats adrift. Then he hurried, as fast as his caution would allow, up the bank into the trees that stood near the gun emplacement.

He had not long to wait. The halfbreeds saw the drifting boats, set up a howl of dismay, went running to save their craft. As they did, Dusty stole to the horses tethered nearby, mounted one. It was a strong animal, with a blazeface. He uncoiled his lariat, set his big rowels in the horse's flanks, galloped toward the gun, threw his rope.

The rope snaked out, the loop settling over the gun, and he drew it tight, galloping on, jerking the gun from its emplacement. With the gun trailing, clattering over stones and brush, he made for the river, disregarding the yells of dismay from the halfbreeds, who had discovered the ruse. When near the edge of the bluff, he reined the horse in, pulling on the rope, throwing the dreaded gun out into space over the river.

The rope paid out and Dusty released it from the horn of the saddle and as he did the gun fell into the river with a great splash. He turned, then, set his spurs

Oglesby Tigers Win 6-Man Trophy; Defeat Flat Jackets 19-6

CLEARMAN AND McKELVAIN STAR AS TIGERS OUT-POINT FLAT YELLOWJACKETS

The Oglesby High School Tigers annexed the six-man football championship of District 7 on the local gridiron Wednesday afternoon by rolling over a scrapping crew of Flat Yellowjackets by a score of 19-6. These two teams with only one defeat to mar a perfect season's record battled back and forth the length of the gridiron with the heavier Tigers finally crashing through to a win.

The Jackets started the ball rolling by scoring a safety in the first quarter after a beautiful kick by Williams had sent the ball deep inside Tiger territory. Oglesby fumbled on the first play and a Yellowjacket pounced upon the ball behind the goal line for the first two points of the game.

The Tigers drove their first marker across pay dirt shortly after when a nimble-legged backfield man shook loose from the Flat defense and marched around right end for a touchdown. The try for the point was good and the Tigers were out in front 7-2.

Williams again carried the ball on the Jackets second touchdown trek and finally pitched through a solid line of Tigers gathered on about the 1 yard line to put Flat in the lead by a count of 8-7.

During the remainder of the game the Jackets defense apparently fell apart and the Tigers drove across two more touchdowns making the final score read, Oglesby 19, Flat 8. Twice afterwards, however, the crafty little Flat team placed the ball within inches of the goal line but on both occasions they were thrown for losses by the heavy Tiger line.

The Oglesby team as a whole played their usual sparkling brand of ball but they also had their stars. Jack Clearman, speedy backfield ace out-classed the Mighty McKelvain with his sensational broken field running that brought down cheer after cheer out of the Oglesby stands. His sixty yard return of a Flat punt was one of the most sensational plays of the game. McKelvain and Terry also were outstanding for the Tigers.

This defeat was a "heart-breaker" to the plucky little Flat crew who had run up one of the most sensational records in the history of six-man football. Tired of being stomped by the other teams in the league like they had been in the past few years, they rose up in revolt this year and set the league on fire with their whirlwind march to the championship. In this, their most important game of the year, they were playing without the generalship of "Tiny" Love who was riding the bench with an injured leg. Williams, was by far the best man on the field for the Jackets and carried the pigskin in "Big John Kimbrough" style. Thomas, Whigham and Blackshire also came in for their share of the glory.

This game brought the six-man season to a thrilling climax with the Oglesby Tigers standing as the undisputed champions. In closing we take our hats off to them, the 1940 champions of District 7 and also the Coach Harry Mohrmann and his Flat Yellowjackets who took their defeat "on the chin", as all sportsmen should and they merit the respect of every fan in the county.

Here's the starting lineups.

Terry	C	Poe
Clearman B.	RE	Taylor

Humble Broadcast Includes Two Big Conference Games

Saturday's Southwest Conference football slate calls for only two games—SMU-TCU at Ownby Stadium in Dallas and Rice-Baylor at Houston. Both promise to be thrillers. Texas University, A and M. and Arkansas take time out because of the games last Thursday.

Both the Dallas and Houston games will be on the air on the regular Southwest Conference broadcasts of the Humble Oil and Refining Company. The SMU-TCU tilt begins at 1:50 p. m.; the Baylor-Rice game at 2:20.

A TRUE STORY

Believe it or not, this is a true story. Mr. Lamont Jenks went shopping for a topcoat. He knew where he wanted to go. He had seen just the right topcoat advertised by a store he liked. So he took time off at lunch and went out to make his purchase.

The first salesman knew nothing about the advertised coat. The second had seen the ad, but hadn't seen the merchandise. The third salesman had seen both the ad and the merchandise, but had to admit there were only two of the topcoats in stock—and they were in the front window on display forms.

That's why some advertising doesn't pay.—Sell.

FORMER PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR MOVES TO KILGORE

Rev. James M. McLean, former pastor of the Gatesville and Turnersville Presbyterian Churches, has recently moved to Kilgore to assist in the outpost work of the First Presbyterian Church of that city, according to word received here.

The Rev. Mr. McLean left the Gatesville work in 1937 to take up the pastorate of the Troup church. His removal to Kilgore places him in charge of Shell Presbyterian Church, and the out-post work of Leverett's Chapel, a unit of the First Church, Kilgore.

This work is of the most promising and fastest growing in the Synod of Texas, and the Kilgore church, under the vigorous leadership of Dr. Cecil Lang, pastor, is doing an outstanding piece of work. Mr. McLean writes he feels there is a great opportunity in this field. News of equal interest to local friends of the McLean's is that they have recently become the parents of another boy.

REV. BAYLESS TO ATTEND INSTITUTE IN AUSTIN

Edward S. Bayless, Presbyterian minister, will leave Monday for Austin to attend a three-day Pioneer Camp Directors' Institute. Session will be concluded Wednesday.

Mr. Bayless, as chairman of Synod's Committee on Pioneer Camp Work, will be in charge of the meeting. All phases of the work of directing a church camp for middle adolescent boys and girls will be discussed during the course of the meeting. A feature of the Institute will be an address by Dr. Robert L. Sutherland, Director of the Hogg Foundation at the University of Texas, on "Group Factors in Personality Development." Institutes of this kind have been held for two years at Montreat, N. C., but this is the first one to be held in this part of the Church.

Directors of Religious Education and Directors of Pioneer Camps in the Synods of Texas and Oklahoma will attend.

W. T. Hix was an Austin visitor Thursday, when Texas and A. and M. played.

The Red Cross Roll call for November 30. Governor W. Lee O'Daniel has asked that we all join the Red Cross, and let's not disappoint him.

Deer hunters! Yes, they were deer hunters, but now they are back home and enjoying being with their friends and relating the exciting times they had a few days ago near Rock Springs.

Mr. Dink Henderson just declares he killed a 4 point buck and the bullet, not having its mission filled, went on and killed a jack rabbit. We have no record of it after that. Mr. Henderson later killed an 8 point buck with the same gun, but with another bullet. We have no further record of this bullet. Short Gaston, Bruno and Hubert Uiertel were also lucky to kill a buck.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernt Bertelson and Miss Williams visited Evelyn Smith, who is ill in the Meridian Hospital. Evelyn is a former student in the Lanham School in the 7th grade, and everyone is sorry to hear of her illness.

Mrs. Leona Welborn, who helps to prepare the lunches at school, got her hand badly crushed last Monday. Mrs. Pauline Moxley, district supervisor of the lunch rooms, visited Mrs. Welborn Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elder Neil have a new baby girl at their house.

About five inches or more of slow rain fell over this section since Wednesday night. It will be a help to grass and grain.

(a message especially for mothers)

Yes Sir,
he's "tops"!

... and his welfare is an important responsibility.

Children live in a different world

Children spend a great deal of time on the floor at temperature levels far below those at the "breathing line" of adults.

Because heat rises, room temperatures at floor levels are 5 to 10 degrees COOLER than at heights of five or six feet, depending upon the manner in which your home is heated.

Don't give a cold an even break! See to it that temperatures at floor level are healthfully comfortable for your children during the winter season.

THIS is not an ordinary advertisement.

It offers neither goods nor merchandise for sale.

Its purpose is to remind you of the added obligation of parents during the winter season. At the same time we are ever mindful of our own responsibility in keeping your gas service dependable so that you may have the protection of adequate heat to safeguard your family's health.

You see, we too, have children.

We know of the anxious hours in every mother's life when illness threatens those she loves. We have watched with alarm a child's mounting fever of serious illness that started as a simple, common cold. With sleepless, fear-filled eyes we've watched through the night into the sunrise of a new day—as across our worried mind flashed that grim published warning—one death every four minutes from pneumonia! It was then that "prevention is the best remedy" impressed us with its full significance. It was then we recognized the vital importance of guarding against the simple, common cold.

MUSSOLINI NEEDS VICTORY IN GREECE

Upon the outcome of the war in Greece depend several things besides the question whether Hitler pushes on to Suez. Probably the most important is the war's effect upon the Italian people—especially in case of set-back or defeat.

For a long time, U. S. intelligence reports have indicated that Italy was the Achilles heel of the Axis and that the Italian people were none too enthusiastic about their partnership with Germany. Basically, the Italians always have sided more with Britain than with Germany. For years they had distrusted Germany, and for an equal number of years had done business with Great Britain.

Furthermore, the war has put a severe economic pinch on the Italian people. In return they have had no great victories and conquered no important territory. Hitler has been able to show new conquests to arouse the enthusiasm of the German people, but Mussolini has had nothing to show except Albania and British Somaliland.

Even the much-heralded advance of Marshal Graziani in Egypt now has bogged down on the sands of Sahara. So Mussolini needs a Greek victory and needs it badly. And if he doesn't get it, observers in Italy believe that dissatisfaction among the Italian people might become so great as to lead to a new dictator in Rome.

Note—Because of her vastly superior air force and more modern army, the odds are very much in favor of an Italian victory. Outcome of the war, however, depends on how much aid Greece can get from Britain, which cannot risk taking too many troops away from its Egyptian defenses; also whether Jugoslavia and Turkey come in.

HULL'S WORRIES

Deep absorption in the Greco-Italian war caused Secretary Cordell Hull to muffle his lines in delivering his speech on foreign affairs for the newsreels.

Hull was supposed to speak three "takes," with a pause between the second and third. Instead he stopped after the first and began staring into space.

Recalled to the business at hand by the cameraman, he snapped his finger and exclaimed, "Sorry, I guess I've ruined everything for you boys. Would you mind starting over again?"

"Not at all, Mr. Secretary," grinned Tony Muto, Fox Movietone lens-shark. "But you sure had something on your mind."

"It's that situation in Greece," explained Hull. "I've been so concerned with it all day that I forgot for a moment that you boys were taking my picture. I promise to do better next time."

MAIL BAG

S.G.C., New Albany, Ind.—Roosevelt's speeches during the last part of the recent campaign were written by Judge Rosenman of New York Irving Brant, and Robert Sherwood, famous playwright. However, Roosevelt's speeches, after being written in rough draft by others are rewritten by himself. The Philadelphia speech was largely his own.

E.P., Springfield, Mass.—Secretary of State Hull did not attack John L. Lewis in his speech before the Press club, though it is true that a criticism of Lewis was contained in the original draft of the speech. When Frank Waltman, G.O.P. publicity chief, protested Mr. Hull's right to address the Press club, the secretary of state removed all political references from his text and merely discussed foreign affairs.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The plan still is in the discussion stage, but top-rung New Deal economists are seriously proposing that the WPA be abolished and replaced with a large-scale public works program for national defense.

The army is preparing for any eventuality no matter where it happens. It has quietly purchased over 7,100,000 yards of mosquito netting. Areas chiefly plagued by mosquitos are Alaska, Newfoundland, Greenland and Latin America.

Senator Charles McNary is one of the nattiest dressers in congress, also the best bean baker. The Oregonian loves to bake beans over an open fire, using bacon, molasses, sherry and 11 hours of simmering.

Out-going Vice President Jack Garner is the only man in history to have his picture hung at both ends of the Capitol. An oil painting of the former speaker hangs in the house lobby, and another portrait, by Howard Chandler Christie, has just been put up in the senate lobby.

Friends are kidding Henry Wallace about being disqualified for the job of vice president because, unlike Jack Garner, he does not "strike a blow for liberty." After eight years in Washington, Wallace does not drink.

At luncheon together the other day were Charlie Chaplin, Walter Winchell, Ernest Cuneo and Assistant Secretary of State Adolf Berle. Remarkd Cuneo afterward: "I was a mere ego in a whirlwind of surer-eggs. I practically had to blow a whistle to insert one word in the conversation."

NEWS

It has occurred to me that you might be interested in knowing the exact status of the Congress at this time. Congress is not "adjourned" but is technically in session. At the same time there is a gentleman's agreement that no important legislation will be taken up, at least without giving all the members notice in advance that they might return to Washington. It is not expected that anything of importance will arise. If it should, I, like other members would return to Washington at once. In the absence of such an unexpected emergency, I feel that it is better for the members of Congress to spent as much time as possible at home. Only in this way can a member of Congress truly "represent" a district. I feel that it is of great importance that I get home and mingle with the people I represent as often as my duties will permit, and I have, therefore, taken advantage of the present lull to return to Texas. Since I shall only be home a few weeks at best, I shall not open an office, as I want to be free to visit over the district, and I cannot do this if I undertake to make appointments at Waco, but I will receive all mail addressed to me at the Federal Building, Waco, or to my Washington office. I believe I can best serve our people by visiting different points, and learning as best I can in a short time, the conditions of Central Texas.

During the past summer and fall it was necessary for Congress to remain in session in order to enact the defense measures so vital to America. Some weeks ago we completed action on all of these measures. Of course, new appropriations will have to be made next year—and new taxes will have to be levied—but these matters cannot come up until the Appropriations Committee and the Committee on Ways and Means have had time to work on these bills. They could hardly do this unless Congress should abandon its regular daily sessions. As a matter of fact these committees have long followed the practice of meeting during the recess of Congress to work on the bills for the next year. Thus it is important that these committees be given an opportunity to get some of the preliminary work out of the way before the next session begins. Never before, except during the World War, has Congress remained in session for as long a period as we have done this year.

Of course, if there were any defense legislation that needed attention at this time, I am sure no one would suggest that Congress omit any of its daily session. As it is, the President and the Secretaries of War, Navy and State have all advised that they have no defense measures to submit. The House has no major bills before it. On last Tuesday we adopted the conference report on the Ramspeck Civil Service bill, thereby clearing up everything that the leadership had to bring before us. On last Wednesday the Democratic leader announced on the floor that he knew of no legislation to come before the House before January. He said that he made the statement "that the members might be put to as little inconvenience as possible" meaning that the members need not stay in Washington. I therefore returned to Texas as soon as I had contacted some of the Departments with which I wanted to discuss matters. Incidentally these trips to and from Washington are all at the expense of the members, not the Government as so many people think. The Government pays members mileage one one time per session, and never does pays members mileage only one times or families, so that the item of travel is much more expensive to a Congressman than is generally recognized.

The Senate has two or three important bills still pending. They are all bills that have already been passed by the House but it is not known whether the Senate will act on them or not. If they do not, or if they kill these bills, there will be no occasion for the House to take further action. We are therefore simply waiting to see if there will be any further work of any kind for the House. If there is, I shall return to Washington.

One final thing: There are those who fear that the country may become involved in war if Congress is not in daily session. May I remind those that only Congress can declare war, and therefore we could become involved in war more quickly with Congress meeting every day than otherwise. In fact, if Congress should continue to hold daily session with no legislation before it, it is almost certain that it would but provide a forum for firebrand speeches which

In 1903, Minnesota's football manager "swiped" the Michigan team's water jug, and since then it has been awarded to the victor after the annual game between the two teams. Painted dark blue and maroon, the jug carries enough water for an entire football team.
