Officials Look At Other Coryell Areas Friday

Officials of San Antonio came to Coryell Friday and took another look at "beautiful Coryell" from another angle.

Accompanied by City Secretary Eiland Lovejoy, H. K. Jackson, Robert W. Brown, Joe Bailey Walker, and Dan McClellan, four U. S. Army officers made the trip.

They were emphatic in their statement that they were just looking, and as far as they knew, it might be a pleasure jaunt.

The officers were met near Oglesby by the local men, and had been accompanied to that point by members of the Waco Chamber of Commerce.

After their visit, those who were with them stated they made no comment one way or the other as to any plans for anything, and said they knew nothing, for certain. Just looking.

SELECTIVE SERVICE BOARDS SOLICITED TO JOIN "PIE TROUGH"

It has come to the attention of Selective Service Headquarters, that boards throughout the U. S. A. are being solicited to join an organization whose professed purpose is to secure compensation for the members of Selective Service Boards.

A letter from a Dallas board to General J. Watt Page, says they're After discussing the matter, the governor slowly called the roll of state representatives who had supported the measure.

WALLACE FINDS NAZI PROPAGANDA IN MEXICO

Behind the scenes, Henry Wallace played quite a part in the Mexican-U. S. agreement to work out joint plans for national defense.

It was Henry's job, during his trip to Mexico, as vice president-elect, to put across some quiet diplomacy with new President Avila Camacho aimed to smooth out all U. S.-Mexican problems. This he did, and became completely "simpatico" with high Mexican officials.

However, Henry also brought back a very worrisome picture of Nazi activity in Mexico.

Being a farm boy from Iowa, and skeptical about the Zimmerman affair during World War I when the German foreign office invited Mexico into an alliance against the United States, Henry went down to Mexico as an unbeliever as far as Nazi propaganda was concerned. But he came back, his skepticism gone.

The great mass of the Mexican people and the Mexican government are sincere believers in friendship with the United States, Henry found. But a small minority, plentifully supplied with Nazi-Fascist cash, has been doing its best to poison friendly relations.

In fact, there were some indications that the Nazis might even go to such lengths as outright sabotage or damage to the United States in such a way that Mexico would get the blame, thereby stirring up animosity between the countries.

Note—Last year $2,000,000 in U. S. greenbacks was taken to Mexico from New Orleans by Count Roberti of the Italian legation, presumably for propaganda purposes. Count Roberti is the son-in-law of Ogden Hammond, ex-ambassador to Spain and a leader of the move to cooperate with Spanish Dictator Franco.

GUARDING THE CAPITOL

If you visit the United States Capitol in the near future don't carry an isolationist banner or anything more explosive than a cigarette lighter, or you may wind up in the brig. Tightest police restrictions since World war days are being put into effect at the Capitol building.

Under a plan devised by Speaker Sam Rayburn, Sen. Harry F. Byrd, chairman of the senate rules committee, and Arthur E. Cook of the Capitol police board, all visitors will be required to check packages before entering the building.

BRITISH DACHSHUND

Most unusual household pet in Washington is owned by the British ambassador, Lord Halifax. Believe it or not, he has a German dachshund.

The envoy bought the dog from a kennel in Virginia shortly after his arrival in the United States.

Note—The dachshund was widely used by American cartoonists during the last war as a sinister symbol of Germany, and some animals were mistreated by misguided zealots.

There is an auction next Saturday and a hometown boy, visiting his parents, tells of life in Panama.

The hunting season is closing, and beyond a couple of bad colds there were no casualties.

The editor is against a county-improvement program because he thinks it is not needed. He's for the traveling dentist for the school, even though he thinks every family ought to take care of its own, dentist-wise.

Multiply this by 10,000—there are that many weeklies. Add a couple of thousand dailies and you begin to see what our newspapers mean to us.

Other countries have newspapers, too, of course. But America is about the only place where a hundred and thirty million people have no restrictions on their news. No musts, no can'ts, no censors, no "government-inspired" iron hand in a velvet glove.

I believe Americans want their papers this way. I know American businessmen want to offer their wares to people who are free to choose from all that is offered—and to offer their goods in newspapers which merit and hold the real confidence of their readers.

The autocratic and dictatorial governments with their gagged editors offer a mighty poor substitute for this little 4-page American newspaper I've just read.

BOTTLE BOSSIES

The department of agriculture is completing plans to breed 2,500 cattle this spring by artificial insemination.

The cattle are the property of Indians, on reservations in Arizona and New Mexico. Able Indian Commissioner John Collier asked agriculture to help build up the quality of the stock, and the problem was how to service the cows with a limited number of bulls. Through artificial insemination, one bull can be bred with any number of cows. Most spectacular experiment of this kind was conducted recently by experts in the experimental farm at Beltsville, Md. They sent artificial insemination by air express one morning for a mare in Miles City, Mont. In vacuum bottles, it was delivered the same day, and the process was completed that evening. Result was a healthy colt, from a mare in Montana, sired by a Belgian stallion in Maryland.

THE STORY TO DATE
While King Philip of Spain is preparing to send out his mighty Armada to destroy England, Queen Elizabeth sends young Michael Ingolby to the Spanish Court to learn the names of traitorous Englishmen who are plotting against her. Michael is detected by the Spaniards but makes his escape from the Court and races on horseback for the coast to apprise the Queen of what he has learned, and also to claim his sweetheart Cynthia, the Queen's maid-in-waiting.

Chapter Six

High up on a cliff overlooking the English Channel, the watchmen had waited for days upon end, straining their eyes ever northward for a glimpse of the hated enemy ships whenever they should heave into sight.

At last the day had come. One after another, like tiny specks growing imperceptibly larger, the ominous sails appeared on the horizon. There seemed no end to their number.

"The Armada! The Armada!" The hoarse cry was taken up and flung from one to another along the line of watchers. Torches licked at the bases of signal beacons—in a few minutes the flames were leaping high overhead.

Meanwhile the couriers leaped on their waiting mounts and dashed toward London to carry the news to the Court and to the army, spreading the call to arms:

"The Armada! The Armada!" Queen Bess and her subjects were ready. Drake's ships were straining at their cables. And the army, led by Leicester, was already encamped at Tilbury.

To Tilbury, against the advice of her faithful, Burghley, Elizabeth resolved to go, sped on by a message from Leicester that her army and her people needed the comfort of her presence (and neglecting to mention that he needed her most of all).

"In the meantime, at the Court, Cynthia had been growing more and more distraught at the absence of any news from Michael. "Do you think he will come back?" she asked.

"I'm not Providence," retorted the Queen.

"But what does Your Grace think?"

"I have seen blacker fears turn to hopes. Hope on till you know there is none."

Into the camp at Tilbury Elizabeth marched on horseback, motioned away the crowd of flunkies waiting upon her, and addressed herself directly to her army of wildly cheering Englishmen.

"My people! I am come to live and die amongst you all, to lay down for my God and for my kingdom and for my people, my honor and my blood, even in the dust. I know I have the body of a weak and feeble woman, but I have the heart and valour of a King, and of a King of England, too! Not Spain nor any Prince of Europe shall dare to invade the borders of my realm! Pluck up your hearts! By your peace . . ."

She was interrupted by the clamor of a tired, haggard man trying to break through the ranks and approach her, struggling with her bodyguard.

"Let him approach!" cried the Queen.

The man flung himself to his knees before her. It was Michael. "Majesty," he gasped, "The news from Spain!"

Alone with her and Leicester inside the Queen's tent, Michael poured out the story of what he had learned at the Spanish Court, of the duplicity of the English conspirators. The Queen wasted not a moment. She sent to their tents to summon them all before her. Meanwhile, with impulsive gratitude, she took Leicester's sword and conferred knighthood upon Michael.

"Your Grace! Your Grace!" breathed the boy, unable to say more.

Elizabeth then confronted the conspirators. Caught in their atrocious crime, they offered their lives in payment.

"Nay, my sons," cried the Queen.

"There is a better way to die! Sir Michael Ingolby, come here. I shall give you a command. If you took seven little ships, tarred them, and piled them with firewood, and so sailed out sighted against the Armada . . . if you took not swords in your hands, but torches . . ."

In the cold, blurred light of an English dawn, Sir Francis Drake's little fleet, outnumbered and outmanned by the gigantic Armada, put out to do them battle.

As they hove into the channel seven small vessels darted forward from among the English fleet and, as they approached the Spanish ships, burst into roaring flames from stem to stern. Thus heroically died the six conspirators—some by fire, some under the Spanish guns, some by leaping overboard and drowning.

But Michael, more agile than the rest, having driven his flaming ship square into the rigging of a Spanish galleon leapt into the water and safely reached the side of an English vessel. There, as the two fleets joined in combat, he led the hand-to-hand fighting that ended in the complete rout of the Spanish Armada and victory for the Queen, her brave fighters, and her subjects.

Following the victorious battle, Michael returned to London to claim his lovely Cynthia. "You are back with me, you are back," she half laughed, half sobbed. "I'll never let you go away again!"

All London was echoing to the exultant music of a thousand pealing bells.

"Listen to our wedding bells!" cried Cynthia.

"It's over, dear, it's over," he murmured, holding her close.

"Oh, Michael! It feels as if all the world were washed clean!"

"No past, no future—just you and I, darling—free!"

THE END.

BASEBALL MANAGERS ARE URGED TO MEET IN NEWS OFFICE NEXT SATURDAY

All managers and persons interested in the Coryell County Baseball League are requested to be on hand in the News office Saturday, March 29, for a special meeting of the League. A constitution, rules, and the regulations for the season will be ironed out and the schedule will be discussed. The reason for this meeting is to get as big a start as possible before the opening of the season, which is scheduled to get its initial send-off on April 13. Managers will want to get the players together and have a few practice games before that date and by meeting Saturday and organizing they will have enough time to do this.

Managers who have not sent in their teams entry are urged to do so before Saturday so as to give the members at the meeting Saturday a chance to outline a playing schedule.

At present there has been only three sure entries sent in. They are from Copperas Cove, who is getting set for its initial season in the league, Ireland, who is also entering for the first time, and Pearl, a team which was an entry last year. We have also heard that Blackfoot was going to enter but have not received any official word from that section of the county.

Managers and representatives from the following places are especially urged to be present Saturday for the meeting: Copperas Cove, Ireland, Pearl, Jonesboro, Blackfoot, Pidcoke, Flat, Plainview, Coryell City, Turnersville and Moshier.

The meeting will be in the News office at 3:00 and all managers and various representatives are requested to be there at that time so as to get the business off as quick as possible.

In volley ball the Gatesville boys and girls took first in each of their divisions. The boys won from Copperas Cove, Jonesboro and Oglesby in that order. The girls won first place by defeating the Jonesboro sextette.

With all the county meet over except the playground ball, which will be held on April 12 the baseball season will soon get underway in the county. As yet their has been only three entries in the county race.

These entries have come from different sections of the county. From Copperas Cove, Ireland, and Pearl. But several more are expected to enter this week. Soon as there has been enough entries to arrange a schedule there will be a meeting of the managers for that purpose.

Pidcoke, Jonesboro, Blackfoot, Turnersville, Plainview, and Coryell City are other teams that are expected to enter the race. But from such places over the county as Flat and White Hall there may be more entries.

Joe Lewis defended his title last Friday night, but the Brown bomber had hard trouble in defeating his 240 pound opponent, who after being knocked down in the early rounds came back and pounded Lewis harder than any of his former victims.

All Baseball managers who have not sent their entries into the League are urged to send it in as soon as possible.

The Coryell County Meet is all over except for the playground ball but track events and volley ball games are over. It was Gatesville again this year that took off the ribbons in track events as well as in the others.

The Hornets took first in the 880 and first and second in the 220 yd. low hurdles. In the high jump Ward defended his last years first place by repeating and he also copped the vaulting. In the 120 yd. high hurdles Gatesville placed first second and third. Blanchard, Ward and Dyson placed in that order.

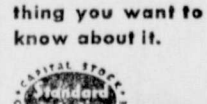

WHY ON EARTH DO THEY DO IT?

...shop around for low-cost insurance

When you buy insurance because it's cheap, it's like buying a cheap pistol for self protection. If you have to hold off a bandit, you want a weapon that will do the business. If you aren't going to be held up, why spend any money at all to protect yourself? The catch is, you don't know.

Moral: Be sure your insurance is COMPLETELY dependable. We'll be glad to tell you anything you want to know about it.

For the first time in nearly three

County Judge Floyd Zeigler an-nounces information has been re-ceived that bids are being asked on a three and one-half mile stretch of Highway 7 east of Gates-ville beginning where the 5.4 mile stretch and continuing to the site of the Coryell Creek bridge, leav-ing only one stretch on which bids are to be asked.

ARW
Members of the Roundtable Club honored Judge Floyd Zeigler, who will soon be a "fireside" prisoner, with a picnic Wednesday night at the Gatesville gun club. Judge Hix and his three state boys en-tertained the group with trumpet solos and singing. Later in the evening, Sherrilline (Laughing Boy) Kendrick blended his melo-dious voice with the echoes in the hills, keeping everyone spell-bound with his singing of "The Lone Prairie". Next on the pro-gram was the Roundtable "run-ning water" quartet, composed of Maurice (Half Pint) Ewing, Sena-tor "Esau" Alvis, "Heinie" Zeig-ler, and Sherrilline Kendrick, blending their voices to the ef-fect that many believed they were listening to the Mills brothers.

CCC NEEDS 5,000 IN APRIL
