

"Bowie-Blitz" Hits G'ville: East Mon., West Today, East Wed.

TROOPS-SUPPLIES "SHUTTLE" 3 DAYS "BUSINESS" NOT "AS USUAL" IN G-VILLE

"ALL-OUT" OBSERVATION AND "BLACK-OUT" ON BUSINESS IN CITY

The biggest parade ever witnessed in Gatesville opened early in this little city yesterday, with more than 18,000 men moving from Bowie and other training centers to Mansfield, Louisiana for the largest peace time maneuvers in the history of the United States.

According to Major R. M. Ives, Assistant G-2 for the Division, the 71st and 77th Infantry Brigades went thru yesterday and they included the 141st and the 142d composing the 71st, and the 143rd and 144th, composing the 77th, with Brig. Gen. P. A. Weathered as the Division Commander.

Tuesday, the trucks, some 1500 or more which transported the troops yesterday to Fairfield, will go thru here again, this time, empty, to Camp Bowie. They'll be here at 10:20 a. m. today.

MORE TROOPS WEDNESDAY

Wednesday, the hard-ridden trucks will again pass thru Gatesville, this time, with the 61st Field Artillery under the command of Brig. Gen. Robert Whitaker, and also Special Troops, 111th Medical and Quartermasters, and Division Headquarters troops.

Major General Claude V. Birkhead, well known in Gatesville is commanding the entire movement from Camp Bowie to Mansfield.

Overhead, in a fast U.S. Air Corps plane was Major General G. V. Strong, who, according to Major Ives, was "flying the column" and observing from the air, the movement of the convoy. Major General Strong is commander of the VIII Corps Area.

INFANTRY MARCHES 12 MILES

On arrival at Fairfield, Texas, the Infantry divisions which passed Gatesville yesterday, will bivouac, and will march from Fairfield, 12 miles to Red Lake, where they will stay four days, or until Sunday, and then the "shuttle" will begin again from Red Lake to Mansfield, La., which will be headquarters of the divisions from Camp Bowie.

MILITARY PRECISION IS USED IN CONVOY'S EVERY MOVEMENT

Major Ives stated that the troops are "run thru in serials, with certain time limits for the "serial" to pass thru a town, and there are one minute intervals between the "serials" to prevent traffic snarls and pile-ups. These "serials" compose "march units". Between the "march units" four minutes are allowed for the local traffic to pass thru.

Major Ives, and all controlling officers, have complete charts of the towns, highways, streets, etc., passed thru, and a complete time schedule for each and every unit. Everything is "orders" and just like railroading, or bus lining, they are to make the schedule. Detachments of MP's are stationed at "charted" intersections for the protection of both the civilian population and the convoys.

Forty minute stops are made for lunch "somewhere on the route" about noon so the men may have "chow".

TEAGUE-FAIRFIELD ARE SUPPLY DEPOTS WITH GAS, OIL, ETC.

Of course, all the trucks and men have to have supplies, and "rail heads" are at Teague and Fairfield, Texas, where enormous supplies of oil, gasoline, and all the other commodities used by the army are awaiting the convoy.

These are arranged for the utmost speed for handling the men, and as one officer put it in Gatesville yesterday, this maneuver or convoy was as near actual war conditions as could be, and that every minute made, was one saved, and a battle might be won or lost in 30 minutes.

Commenting on the handling of traffic in Gatesville, Major Ives said it was handled nicely, and appreciated the effort of local law enforcement officials, and the city fathers for their cooperation.

Temporary headquarters was set-up in front of one of the Main Street drug stores here, as "sparks" was there in an official looking car, pounding his brass radio key, and Lieutenant Colonel Crawford, who was in charge of the Military Police and directed the convoy with his efficient men; also a Major, a Brigadier General, Staff Sergeant, Sergeant and a Corporal.

At each important intersection thruout the town, the MP's took charge, no double parking was allowed, no "cutting" in on the convoy, and movement both of the convoy, and the local traffic was handled in an efficient manner.

The eastward movement thru Gatesville was completed about 1:30 p. m., and the remaining MP's piled on their truck and left for the east.

"You Have To Take The Good With The Bad". We Got Both

One man brought us a peach last week, that was good. Also, while we were gone hustling business, bills and collections, we got something bad.

He's in a bottle in our window. The kind of a thing that'll make you see things at night—something you would not want to walk across your face, in fact, any part of your anatomy. We'll be glad when he's dead, the rascal, him (or is it a her), we wouldn't know.

It's a centipede!
And, if you want him, you can have him, or, her.

CHARLIE MOUNCE'S CAR BURNED NEAR MCGREGOR FRIDAY

Fire caught in the back end of Charlie Mounce's car Friday, about 4:30 p. m. and ruined the interior of the car, the spare tire in the rear compartment, and caused other damage.

Harry Jones, who was driving the car, didn't know how the accident happened. First notice of the fire was when the spare tire was smelled burning. They stopped, opened the compartment, but could not put it out. After closing the compartment, they went to McGregor after a chemical fire truck, but someone opened the rear compartment during their absence and the fire spread, otherwise, it might have been confined to the compartment.

The car was insured, and was taken over by the insurance company's adjuster. No one was injured in the accident.

District Court Turns Civil, Then Criminal Only One Case

Things started in the now August term of District Court in a "civil" way this morning, but the "civil" case was postponed, and the scene changed back to criminal, and the first and, according to District Clerk Carl McClendon, the only case called was: The State of Texas vs. Floyd Crosby, charged with burglary.

The Petit jury called for this week was all sent home, and excused, except the following, who were detained in the Crosby case: Mat Kemp, D. M. Coward, D. C. Rhodes, Clarence Woodard, Edwin Riddle, Hilley Etchison, Ed Fritz, Lawton Searcy, Paul Johnson, A. C. Vick, Jim Epps, and Seth Basham.

That's all!

The car was said to have sideswiped a car driven by Bruce Weaver, Weaver's car having the fenders and running board on one side damaged, and Freeman's front left and rear fenders were damaged. No one was hurt. Tom says a new fender costs $15.00.

FROM OUR CONGRESSMAN

W. R. POAGE

There has probably been more heat than light generated by the discussions in Congress this past week. There has been no vote on any of the vital defense bills, but there has been much discussion of legislation that is certain to come before us in the future — particularly the tax bill and the retention of the selectees. The tax bill is expected to produce $3,500,000,000 of new tax money. This is, of course, a tremendous additional burden on business, but I think everyone in Congress must realize that even this tremendous increase in taxes will not be nearly enough to care for the new defense burdens of the country. The tax bill is now expected to come before the House on next Tuesday. This is at least two months later than it was first expected, but the Ways and Means Committee has had a very difficult job of drafting this bill. All taxes are unpopular. It has been hard to agree on the items of taxation. No one is satisfied with the bill, but with one important exception it is probably about as fair as could be expected. On the other hand, the bill strikes down the principle of community property, which Texas has recognized since the days of Spanish rule. There are only eight community property states — all in the Southwest and far West. I feel that the committee was wrong in ignoring our system of separate property rights, but we just don't have enough votes in the Southwest, and as a result I fear our people will suffer.

The President's speech of Monday has greatly impressed the Congress and has brought about a great deal of discussion and debate. As yet no one knows just what legislation will be brought before us. We do know that no one wants to force anyone to make unnecessary sacrifices. No one wants to keep any soldier in service a day longer than necessary for the defense of the country. I, myself, can remember how anxious I was to be discharged as soon as the armistice was signed in 1918. I felt then that the moment the fighting ceased the government should have discharged every soldier. I can well understand just how desperately many of those now in training hope to be released as soon as possible — and I want them to get home just as soon as they can without jeopardizing the safety of the country. But, I am sure that most all of us will agree that the best way to prevent war is to be ready. Therefore, if we announce to the world that we are depleting our army we invite war and should the disruption of our army result in an aggravation of the international situation we would simply have to call back the very men we were releasing. This would help no one and would further disrupt and endanger the lives of the soldiers and the Nation. One thing that many people overlook is that under existing law the enrollees went in not simply for one year's training as many people have seemed to suppose, but in addition to the provision for one year's training the law expressly provided a method for keeping these men in service in event of a national emergency. I am sure no one can dispute the existence of a national emergency at this time. Nor can anyone overlook the fact that the original Selective Service Act provided that enrollees should remain in the reserve for ten years and be at all times subject to active duty. There can, therefore, be no question of the legal right of the government to ask further service from the men now in training. The only question is whether or not a real emergency exists. Surely the events now taking place in Asia and South America, as well as in Europe, make it seem very dangerous to bet that we will not need these men.

Another matter that is giving me serious concern is the possibility that the government may see fit to fix or "freeze" all prices at present levels. I realize the dangers of inflationary price spirals, but I do not believe that in an effort to prevent a rise in the cost of living that we should freeze the farmer's income at a figure that does not allow him to make a living. Practically all wages and industrial incomes are far above "parity", but most farm products are still below the parity figure. Certainly there is nothing wrong in the farmer's request that he be given as favorable a position as other sections of the population before prices are fixed. Many of us from farming regions have felt that we should try and convince the price-fixing authorities of the justice of the farmer's case before any action was taken. With that in view I have had the matter up with both the Office of Price Administration and with the Department of Agriculture. I have tried to show them that even if cotton went to twenty cents per pound it would not add more than a dime to the cost of a shirt, and when wheat sold for $2 a bushel in 1919 bread was just as cheap as it is now.

AMERICAN DAIRY MEET AT A.&M. IN '42 SCIENCE ASSO. TO

head of the Texas A. & M. College department of dairy husbandry, "brought back the cream" from a recent meeting of the American Dairy Science Association at Burlington, Vermont, when he persuaded the delegates to hold their 1943 meeting at A. & M. College.

Attendance at the Burlington meeting was in excess of 825 of the nation's leading scientists, operators and educators in the dairy field. The 1942 meeting will be held in East Lansing, Mich., and the June 1943 meeting at College Station will mark the first time the American Dairy Science Association ever has held its meeting this far South, a previous meeting having been held at Louisville,

Ky. The four-day session is expected to be held at the college. (Continued on page 3)

SIDE GLANCES ON TEXAS HISTORY

By Charles O. Hucker
University of Texas Library

Of Travis' Well-Known Line And One Who Didn't Toe It

A French soldier of fortune who as a young man retreated from Moscow with Napoleon is among the interesting men whom historians of Texas have largely neglected. He is interesting as a Texan because he was the one man who chose not to step across the famous line which Col. William B. Travis drew on the floor of the Alamo in 1836.

His name was Moses Rose, and his story has been so nearly forgotten because many people still think it incredible and untrue. Mr. R. B. Blake of Nacogdoches, however, has produced a quantity of evidence, now recorded in the Archives Collection of the University of Texas Library, which substantiates—or at least does not contradict—the story as it has come down to us.

It begins dramatically on March 3, 1836, the ninth day of Santa Anna's siege of the Alamo. During the afternoon Col. Travis broke the news to his men that, whether they surrendered, tried to escape, or continued their defense, they were inevitably doomed. He drew his line on the floor and left each man free to cross it and remain with him to the end or not, as he chose. Alone among the 180-odd trapped in the fort, Moses Rose, Napoleon's veteran, chose to attempt to escape.

And he did. Somehow, Rose made his way through and out of the city unmolested by the Mexicans, though they saw him get away. Why they let him pass remains a mystery even today. Perhaps, as has been suggested, they thought that if he got away the entire garrison might follow his example and come out into the open.

At all events, he did escape from the doomed fort late in the afternoon of that day, March 3; and for many days thereafter he wandered slowly eastward toward the colonial settlements, crossing rivers on floating logs and eating what he could find in deserted houses along the way. Settlers had already fled before Santa Anna's advance.

The first night was his worst. Hastening to get as far from danger as possible before daybreak, he stumbled against many cactus plants, filling his legs with their thorns, and would not linger to draw them out. And when at last he thought it safe to stop, it was too late; he went lame.

Yet he traveled on until finally he crossed the Brazos River and found friends, the Zubers. They took him in, sheltered him for two weeks, and temporarily eased his lameness. He told them his story before he left—and in doing so unknowingly, he left it for the future. For Mrs. Zuber repeated it later to her son, and he in time wrote it out, together with Rose's account of Travis' March 3 speech. That was in the 1870's.

This version, handed down thru the Zubers and recalled from memory after almost forty years had passed, is the nucleus of our knowledge of Rose, his escape, and his trek across Texas, now augmented by Mr. Blake's research.

For Rose himself, once having told his story to friends, apparently would tell it no more. Soon he dropped into oblivion and about ten years later—forgotten, neglected, lamed and dreaming Napoleonic dreams, no doubt—died and was buried in a now unidentified grave in Louisiana.

CAMERON'S New Farm and Ranch Plan Book and Survey Service

GEE, I'M THIRSTY

MAKE MINE Spiffy
5¢ 12 OZ.

What is CAMERON'S New Plan Book?

Here is a practical, new Plan Book which offers you new plans of Farm and Ranch Buildings—structures which are:

1. The most economical to build for their specific purposes.
2. Are designed to increase your profits and income.
3. Are constructed so as to last—reduce upkeep—increase the value of your investment—save you time and needless steps and work.

These plans contain the accumulated experience of Wm. Cameron & Company's 73 years of meeting and successfully solving Southwestern Farmers' and Ranchers' building problems.

These plans are ready for you to see and use at your nearest Cameron Lumber Store. They are hot off the press—brand new and include the best and latest in Farm and Ranch construction. When you buy your materials from Wm. Cameron & Company, the necessary plans are furnished you free. Included in the Plan Book are important technical data on ventilation, necessary size of structures for each given number of livestock, etc. Regardless of whether or not you are now planning any building, remodeling or repairing—it will pay you to see this new Plan Book at your nearest Cameron Lumber Store—TODAY!

What is CAMERON'S New Survey Service?

A Farm or Ranch is, in fact, a factory. Its purpose is to earn profits. The buildings and structures on that Farm and Ranch are important in causing a profit or loss. The location of the buildings in relation to each other, the convenience of their inside layout, their efficiency, upkeep cost, and the time and work they do or do not save determines whether you will have high or low operating costs. The lower your operating costs, the higher your profits will be.

To have a low operating cost Farm or Ranch you must plan your buildings—their location, construction, interior layout and the use of correct materials. You must have a plan—low operating cost farms don't just happen—they are based on careful study and planning.

To meet this need, William Cameron & Company developed their new Farm and Ranch SURVEY SERVICE. Special printed survey forms are provided on which you, with the assistance of your trained local Cameron Man, can:

1. Make a survey of your existing buildings—their layout, location, condition, etc.

2. The findings of this survey are placed on the Cameron Survey Form, furnishing a written record of the layout, design, efficiency, condition, etc., of your existing buildings and equipment.

3. Next, on the basis of this information, plus your needs and the new ideas, plans and data contained in the Cameron Farm and Ranch Plan Book—you can scientifically determine what must be done to make your Farm or Ranch Factory a lower operating cost one.

4. On these facts a definite program is laid out—not to be completed in one year—but over the years a sound plan is set up which will reduce your operating costs and increase your profits. As you proceed with the plan—it will begin to pay for itself.

Right now, take advantage of this new, scientific Cameron Way of increasing your profits. It's the businesslike way—the way factories—your Farm or Ranch Factory—can be made to increase its earnings. MISS CARRIE BEAVERS RESIGNS
AFTER TEACHING 25 YEARS

The resignation of Miss Carrie Beavers from the Training School faculty marks the end of a quarter century of service.

She began her teaching career near Pottsville in a little one-teacher school, teaching two years at this place. Other years she taught in the schools in the Pearl vicinity of Coryell county.

Under C. E. King as superintendent of the State Juvenile Training School, she started teaching on August 8, 1916 in the first grade. The next year she asked to teach the fifth grade which was granted. After nine years' work in this grade, Miss Beavers again took the position as first grade teacher, where she continued teaching until the close of the present term, July 31, making 25 years of continuous work under four different superintendents. This alone speaks of her supreme loyalty to her work, the superintendent, and co-workers.

Cheerfully at her post of duty, she was never late with few days of absence against her record for any reason whatsoever. The influence of the good Christian woman has gone to practically every city in Texas as well as many states in the United States into Old and New Mexico because of the boys she has taught reading, writing, and arithmetic.

The progress of the Mexican boy has been especially noticed; often times these boys could not speak English when coming to the institution, but learned to read and write under her teachings in a remarkably short time. Miss Beavers has been called upon to interpret many Spanish-written letters to the boys.

Problems of the boys, extreme home-sickness, nervous crying spells had to be overcome before they could possibly get down to work in school. These she handled tactfully. Her influence has helped in many places other than in the schoolroom. She has always had the character training of the boy at heart as well as the 3 r's. She had been a teacher all this time in the Sunday School for the inmates and children of the employees of the institution when going to church and Sunday School in town was almost impossible for lack of transportation.

Many has been the grown-up boy who has come again to the institution to pay a short visit to this much-loved teacher, having learned to love her as his first grade teacher.

She has always been a lover of games, especially is she interested in football, following the state institution's games, encouraging the boys to play a clean game. She keeps well up on all local as well as college games in season. She was among the first to bring basketball into the playground activity. Ordering a rule book, she played it with her pupils in the Missouri Cove, Sweet Home and Pearl schools in her early teachings.

Miss Beavers' lovable disposition has been truly portrayed among the co-workers in the institution. Her valuable counsel with others in their problems was freely given and accepted by many. She helped the children of co-workers in their school work. Often they have come to her room at night for help in their studies.

She gave freely of her reading matter of books and the best periodical magazines to all who came. She has directly put good reading before many who otherwise would not have had it. Those closest knew the many deeds of kindness she did, yet in her quiet way, many of her acts were never known.

A party was given by the employees of the institution in her honor Tuesday, July 29, at 8:00 o'clock in the evening on the beautiful grounds of the training school. 84, 42, and relay games were played, then she was presented a beautiful rocker as a token of their love and esteem for her, after which punch and cake were served to all.

Miss Beavers has moved to her Sweet Home residence near Pearl, where her friends will be become with that ever cheerful ringing voice, "Come in!"

Miss Holcomb, Bride-Elect, Honored At Linen Shower

Miss Nannie Belle Holcomb, bride-elect of Tech. Sgt. George Davis Featherston of Camp Grant, Rockford, Illinois, was honored with a linen shower when her aunt, Mrs. C. A. Holcomb, entertained in her home on East Main Wednesday afternoon. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Holcomb of Gatesville.

A color scheme of red and white was carried out in the decorations and refreshments. Mrs. L. A. Seaberry of Waco presided at the lace-laid refreshment table, which was centered with a crystal punch bowl flanked with fern and crepe myrtle. Presiding at the Guest Book were Misses Dorothy Nell Clary and Gwen Seaberry.

While receiving guests, Miss Frances Holcomb entertained at the piano. Games and contests were directed by Mrs. Jesse Wiggins and Mrs. L. A. Seaberry.

Advice to the bride was given by Miss Dorothy Holcomb, to the groom by Miss Minnie Jane Featherston. A humorous story, "How To Roast a Husband", was read by Juanita Featherston.

Gifts arrived on a "Honeymoon Special", drawn by Bobby Dean Clary, Frances Brown, Edwina Holcomb, and Neta Milner.

Sharing the courtesy besides the honoree were: Misses Frances Holcomb, Bobby Dean Clary, Jemmie Will Clary, Dorothy Nell Clary, Dorothy Holcomb, Juanita and Minnie Jane Featherston, Bobby Jean Gatlin, Effie Marie Henson, Edwina Ann Holcomb, Frances Brown, Neta Milner, Betty Kate Murray, Doris Marie Alford, Master Billy Clary, and Mesdames, N. Pederson, Cora B. Holcomb, C. A. Holcomb, A. R. Clary, Bill Smith, A. A. Clary, J. W. Featherston, L. G. Shelton, B. D. Clary, E. F. Phillips, Paul Alford, J. B. Wiggins, W. A. Holcomb, and Leonard Milner.

Somebody's got to STEER IT!

Democracy is rule by the PEOPLE.

But rule by uninformed or mistaken people isn't democracy; that is MOB RULE.

Now, what newspapers are for is to INFORM THE PEOPLE.

This is Earl Browder

Browder ran for President last year. He advocated "Dictatorship of the Proletariat," Communism. Most Americans think that this Russian brand of government is akin to mob rule. However, Browder's candidacy and his speeches were duly reported in the press.

This is Franklin D. Roosevelt

Roosevelt ran for President, too. He advocated HIS political views. Many disagreed with him, but many also agreed. You read about him on every front page.

This is Wendell Willkie

Willkie ran for President. He disagreed with Roosevelt on many points, AGREED on many others. Most Americans decided to choose between Willkie and Roosevelt. Willkie's ideas were also printed.

All during the election campaign Americans were trying to decide which man's ideas were right.

We were NOT trying to decide whose mob was biggest!

What your newspaper is for is to TELL what OTHER PEOPLE do and say and think. "Other people" may be the editors or politicians or other citizens or foreign visitors.

After you have been TOLD, your duty is to choose which way you will STEER.

In America we believe that the people—PROVIDED THEY ARE FULLY INFORMED—will be right more often than any one person is right. That is Democracy.

Democracy doesn't stop with picking the right political candidates or favoring the right laws. YOU, a citizen of a Democracy, have the right to decide how, when and where you shall spend your money. Here is Store A. It tells you what it has to offer—in its advertisements in the paper.

Here is Store B. It also tells you what it has to sell, URGES you to buy its wares. Again, yours is the privilege of DECIDING. You aren't FORCED—by ANYBODY—to buy something which you do not want or need, from ANY store.

So, you see, we have democracy—rule by informed people—in business as well as in politics.

The system doesn't always work perfectly. There isn't always enough NEWS about government or enough ADVERTISING about goods and services. However, an IMPERFECT DEMOCRACY and IMPERFECT but unblased newspaper work better, we think, than anything dictatorships have to offer.

"I WANT A DIVORCE"

Based on a story by ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHNS

CHAPTER ONE SYNOPSIS
Jerry Brokaw (Joan Blondell) is an unwilling witness at her sister Wanda's (Gloria Dickson) divorce trial because she feels that the latter has no real reason to divorce David (Conrad Nagel). Later she meets Allan MacNally (Dick Powell), young attorney, whom she had not seen for eight years. MacNally's overtures to renew the friendship get the cold shoulder from Jerry because he was one of the lawyers at the trial.

CHAPTER II
Jerry determined that she was going to see Wanda more often, even if it meant seeing large doses of Wanda's friends, as well. Trying to be fair, and thinking back, Jerry had to admit that she had always been really intolerant of the new crowd Wanda had surrounded herself with. Perhaps once you got to know them, they would be all right, she figured. Maybe she had never given them a chance, she reminded herself. And besides she had to acknowledge she had never met any of them when they were sober.

Wanda needed companionship now, Jerry knew that. Divorced from David, she needed someone she could lean on when the going got tough, someone who would stand by, just as David always had. Perhaps too, Jerry thought hopefully, the whole divorce business might not be so final, either. She was sure her sister still loved David and that that had merely become temporarily side-tracked. A separation might prove the very thing to bring them together. Jerry resolved to do everything she could to make that happen.

The day the divorce became final, Wanda had been too flippantly gay when they had driven down to Grandma Brokaw's, Jerry remembered, looking back. She had even withstood their grandmother's acidly critical remarks on divorce. She had taken it all with a toss of her pretty head, seeming not to care a hang what anyone thought. That was until David had arrived. She had tried to be casual with him, Jerry knew, but somehow it hadn't come off. And when David left, taking little David with him for the three months that the court agreement had specified, Wanda's deep brown eyes were shiny with tears that Jerry was sure were not all because little David was going away.

But she had sounded gay enough over the phone today, Jerry recalled, when she had called to insist that Jerry come to a cocktail party.

"It's to celebrate my new found freedom," Wanda had laughed over the phone, "and you must come because it's going to be lots of fun, and besides, someone has been asking particularly for you, and he said he wouldn't come unless I swore you would be there."

Jerry had promised, but even now was regretting it. It had been a gruelling grind at the office all day, and she was dog tired. Then a pleasant thought seized her, and she found herself smiling. It must have been Allan MacNally who had asked Wanda whether she would be there. No other friend of Wanda's cared whether she lived or died, let alone showed up for a cocktail party.

Previously, and she hoped circumspetly, Jerry had queried Wanda about him, and had liked the report. He was a good friend of David's, Wanda had told her, rather serious, rather broke, and hell bent on being a good lawyer. Jerry felt ashamed when she remembered the way she had behaved outside the courtroom. She would apologize nicely, she informed herself, and she had a feeling they would get along well.

Jerry, at the door of Wanda's apartment, was stopped by the noise and confusion of several people on their way out. Over their good-byes she could hear Wanda's voice, pathetically eager, begging them not to go. She had a tight hold on Michael Lewis's arm, Jerry noticed with disapproval. Michael was a variety of male Jerry could not abide. He was a professional glamour boy from way back, and a thorough going sponger as well.

"Oh, don't go," Wanda was saying. "I have a terrific idea. Michael and I have a date at the Clover Wanda was interrupted by Michael, who barged into the crowded kitchen. "Jer-EEEE," he shouted, stretching out his arms to hug her.

Knowing Michael of old, Jerry slipped from her perch, and moved to the other side of the table. "Lay off, Michael," she warned.

"But Angel," he said, following her around the table. "You shouldn't be hidden away in here. You've got to come out and meet everybody."

"Please leave me alone, Mike. I'm in no mood for nonsense," Jerry countered, backing away from him.

Michael made a sudden lunge, grabbed Jerry, picked her up in his arms and was headed for the living room laughing, as Jerry ominously Leaf and why don't you all come? Let's make it a party—on me."

"Sneaking off here," Wanda scolded playfully. "Why didn't you let someone know you were here?"

As Jerry edged her way in she heard some of the party agreeing and some begging off with reasons. She glanced around the room quickly. No sign of MacNally. Maybe he had left. Jerry hoped not. She marched through the living room and into the kitchen to think it over. She knew it would be a late party and lots of drinking, but if there were a chance of seeing Allan, she thought she would go along. She would ask Wanda whether he had said he was coming.

Right now Jerry was starving. It would be hours before that crowd got organized enough to leave for the Clover Leaf, and no telling how long after that when food would be forthcoming. This was Wanda's same old crowd that David had objected to, performing their best tricks—screaming inanities at each other, making passes, drinking too much and generally acting like high school kids. As she made for the ice box through a wake of lemon rinds, dirty glasses and tired canapes, she wished Allan were there.

With a chicken leg and a glass of milk, Jerry had settled herself on a clean corner of the kitchen table when Wanda walked in.

"Sneaking off here," Wanda scolded playfully. "Why didn't you let someone know you were here?"

Through a mouthful of chicken, Jerry sputtered, "Hungry."

"Well don't spoil your appetite. I'm taking you out to dinner," her sister informed her.

"With those?" Jerry asked, gesturing toward the living room. "Do you mind if I don't, You know I'm a working girl and I have to keep hours."

Oh, please, darling, we—warned him to put her down, which Michael showed no intentions of doing. As they passed the sink, Jerry reached out, picked up a large platter, and with a fine crash, brought it down on Mike's skull. He dropped her as though she were dynamite and stalked out of the kitchen.

"That was a filthy thing to do," Wanda said furiously.

"I'm sorry, Wanda," Jerry said penitently. "Really, I am."

"No you're not," Wanda shot back at her. "You're not the least bit sorry. You don't like my friends and you never miss an opportunity of showing it."

Jerry had neither the energy nor the inclination to argue with her. Before it went any further, and they were both saying things they would wish unsaid, Jerry decided the best thing to do was leave.

She drove along slowly until she came to a Drive-In. Some hot coffee was what she wanted before calling it a day—and a bad one. She parked the car and swung the door open to get out. There was a clatter and a crash. Jerry had parked too close to the next car and her door had sent a tray flying, laden with coffee and sandwiches. There was an anguished yell from the car, then the driver jumped out. Of all the people in the State of California Jerry would have chosen not to inundate with coffee, Allan MacNally was easily the hands down choice.

Dripping steaming java from a pair of very light trousers, Allan crawled uncomfortably to where she was standing. "You'll have to convince me that wasn't deliberate," he said, mopping himself up with a handkerchief.

CONSCIENTIOUS GUIDANCE IN TIME OF NEED

AIR CONDITIONING WITH PURE ICE

NOTHING CAN TAKE THE PLACE OF REAL ICE

Modern ice refrigerators are built along scientific principles. Warm air is lighter than cold and consequently rises as cold air, being heavier, falls. As the heated air from the food in the refrigerator rises it is cooled by the ice and descends, so that the air in the refrigerator is kept in constant motion. Furthermore, because the ice in your refrigerator is purer than the water you drink, this air is being constantly washed and purified. This adds immeasurably to the proper preservation of the foods in the refrigerator.

SAFE—No gases nor moving parts to worry about.
AIR CONDITIONED—Fresh, washed air is kept circulating in an ice refrigerator.
MOIST—Foods retain their original freshness
TROUBLEFREE—Nothing to get out of order, no repair bills to pay.

Cameron-Built Texan Home Drawing Large Crowds: All Week

The evident interest and the enthusiastic comments of visitors who have already inspected the Cameron-built "Texan" model home at Highland Drive this week indicate that the home is still a subject near and dear to the heart of the American people," declared G. W. Dennis, local manager of Wm. Cameron & Co., sponsor of this home.

This home will be open for free public inspection each day during the remainder of this week between the hours of 1 p. m. and 8:30 p. m.

"Persons who visit the "Texan" during this week can see for themselves the convenient arrangement of rooms, the attractive wallpaper and paint color styling in each room, the extra convenience and beauty of the many kinds of built-in woodwork specialties, and other modern features of home planning and construction," said Mr. Dennis, the manager. "One should bear in mind that the cost and the durability of this or any other good home go deeper than visible or surface things. Every home builder who borrows through the FHA can know that his home is constructed basically sound in every detail, for FHA architects check the plans and specifications in advance of the beginning of construction and then inspect the building several times while it is in process of being built.

"The FHA has certified to the soundness of the foundation, framework, cost of materials, the method of applying the roofing, plumbing, and electrical installations, and every other important element of home construction involved in the "Texan". From any conceivable viewpoint, this exhibit home is clearly a convincing demonstration of the possibility and practicability of building a home of your own low in cost but high in quality and livability.

"Such a home requires a minimum of 10 per cent down payment, and thereafter the monthly payments will amount to less than $1.00 a day. This makes it just as easy to build and own exactly the home you want as it is to select and buy an automobile or electric refrigerator. The amount of cash required and the monthly payments for one of the low-cost homes are very little, if any, more than for an automobile. It is almost unbelievable easy today for almost any family to own its home, and it is far pleasanter to pay rent to yourself than it is to someone else."
