DALLAS MAN'S CAR IS DAMAGED IN CRASH MAIN AND N. 19TH

Saturday evening a car driven by Tom Newland of near Gatesville figured in an accident with one driven by Charlie Walsh of Dallas. No one was injured in the accident.

Walsh was driving his brother's car, and it's light and one fender were knocked off. Newland was said to have driven his car off, and it was apparently not damaged much. Both the Walsh boys were former residents of Jonesboro.

BATTLE OF RAG WEEDS ON, BENEFIT HAYFEVER SUFFERERS

The city is after the ragweeds, and if you've a lot or place where they're growing, advise the city, and they'll take care of them.

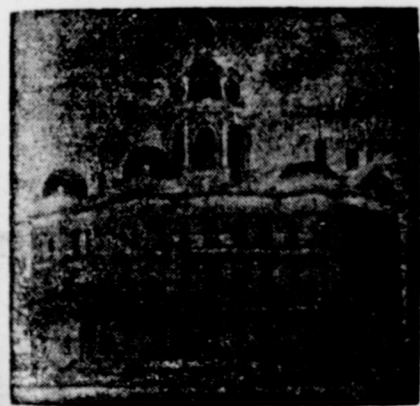

It's "Blossom Time" for the ragweeds, and a survey was made Saturday morning by Mrs. Mable Gardner and Mrs. Tom Mears as to the location of this pest.

You can phone 58, the Chamber of Commerce, or the City Office, 244 and they'll get'em.

Monday, Sept. 15th School Openings Are Plenty, Plenty

First, here are the ones opening, as we have it from County Superintendent Ollie Little's office: Purnela, Pearl, Jonesboro, Murrell, Longview, Copperas Cove, Ireland, and Pidcoke.

Pidcoke, according to Superintendent S. M. Anderson, will take up in the church there, until the new school is completed. They have an extensive building program there and are putting up a really fine school plant.

Story about the other opening comes from Purnela where Principal Earl Hite is the head man. He says there'll be an entertaining program, and the patrons are urged to be present and see and hear a new radio just purchased. (Hope the static isn't bad). Also, they've bought and paid for a new bus for the school.

Teachers for this year, besides Principal Hite, are C. T. Hoard, Miss Cleo Holder and Mrs. Ocoee Warden.

All pupils are urged to enroll the first day and assist in holding up the attendance.

Escapee From State School Taken Near Hearne: Left 5th

James B. Layne, who escaped from the State Training School September 5 was taken about 6 a. m. Monday as he was attempting to board a freight near Hearne. He was one of two who ran from the hospital.

Layne, in a signed statement in County Attorney C. E. Alvis, Jr.'s, office said he took a car belonging to Paul Whigham of near Flat at the Church there, Sunday night. It was abandoned, and he picked up J. L. Glass' car and drove it to Temple, where he ran into a dead-end street. The car was abandoned there.

He then took a dump truck in Temple and drove nearly to Hearne, where this vehicle was abandoned. Thumbing his way to his home in Milano, he got his own clothes, and went back to the freight yards to catch a freight out, when the officers, including Sheriff J. H. Brown caught him.

In his statement, Layne stated he was in the Army ten months, and deserted, going to Chicago where he stole an automobile and drove to his home in Milano. He was sent to the Gatesville school from Milano.

Asked about why the boys ran

POAGE-CONNALLY WIRE $64,049 IN WPA FUNDS FOR COUNTY-CITY HOSPITAL HERE

Both our representatives in Washington, Congressman W. R. (Bob) Poage and Senator Tom Connally wired County Judge Floyd Zeigler, that funds were available for the new County-City Hospital which is to be built on North Lutterloh and Saunders Streets. Only a work order from the San Antonio WPA office is necessary for beginning the work.

Here are the two telegrams: Washington D.C., Sept. 6
Floyd Zeigler, County Judge
Gatesville, Texas

Just secured presidential approval of WPA project for Gatesville in sum of $64,049, to construct hospital and improve grounds including drives, sidewalks and necessary landscaping. Actual construction awaits work order from San Antonio office.

W. R. Poage, Congressman

11th District, Texas." Senator Connally's telegram reads:

Washington, D.C. Sept. 6
Floyd Zeigler,
Gatesville, Texas.

Your Hospital application has been approved by work projects administration and is cleared for presidential action. Shall keep you advised of developments.

Tom Connally"

This will be welcomed news by every man, woman and child in Coryell county, and especially those who have relatives who have needed hospitalization in the past few years.

As soon as the work order is received, work is expected to start on this addition to Gatesville and Coryell county's institution of mercy.

Three Fires Give A Chance To Test New Fire Equipment

Firemen were rather busy Saturday, beginning about 10:00, when their old standby, the vacant lots between North 14th and North Lutterloh caught fire, and burned. Dry grass was the cause, that, with a match, cigarette, or uncared-for trash burning. Anyway, it wasn't serious, but it's a warning.

No. 2 fire was at Swindall's in Torbett Town in East Gatesville where an outhouse was burned. No other damage was reported. It happened about 12:30 p. m.

For the third, at 5:30 a house back of East Saunders street residences in about the 1500 block, burned. The roof was afire when firemen arrived, and not much was saved. A Quisenberry family lived in the house which was recently bought by Charlie Bauman.

Mrs. J. H. Malone and son, Kenneth, and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Lipsey are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Brazzil in Littlefield. Mrs. Malone will remain for a longer visit with her daughter and son-in-law but the others will return the middle of this week.

at the State, he said the administrator had nothing to do with it. The boys "just wanted freedom" and they ran. He said most of them were not afraid of the old "bloody" hounds, as they thought they could outwit them, and that they thought now was as good a time as any to run. He was in the county jail and charges of car theft have been filed against him, according to County Attorney Alvis.

Light Airplane Crashes Via R.E.A. Line On Golf Links

Alvin Catalano, of New Orleans, piloting a Taylor-craft, light plane crashed on Gatesville Golf Club Saturday afternoon about 4:45 p. m. He was ferrying the plane from the R. E. Powell place after arriving with W. A. Prewitt, Jr., from Shreveport, La., after a 3 hour trip. The ship belongs to Prewitt. Catalano was uninjured.

The ship hit a REA line, and rode the wire to the ground, damaging struts, the fuselage, blowing a tire, and sustaining propeller damage.

Saturday night, the plane's wings were taken off and the ship loaded on a truck and taken to Waco for repairs.

Mr. Prewitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Prewitt of Gatesville travels four states for a desk manufacturing company, and had completed a 4,000 mile trip in the plane last week. Catalano was acting as his pilot.

300 Attend C. of C. Old-Fashioned Picnic In Park

Approximately three hundred persons were in attendance at the Gatesville Chamber of Commerce's annual old-fashioned picnic held in Raby Park Friday nite. Prof. Neil Foster of Baylor University spoke on the position of former Coryell county residents "in the world".

Prof. Foster's talk replaced that of S. P. Sadler of Dallas, who was unable to speak because of an infected throat; however, Mr. and Mrs. Sadler were present. His prepared speech was read by Judge R. B. Cross.

After the picnic, an informal program, with George Painter acting as master of ceremonies, was given. Mrs. E. L. Stewart and Lee Colwick sang a duet, and let the audience in singing "God Bless America".

SIDE GLANCES ON TEXAS HISTORY

By Charles O. Hucker
University of Texas Library

DR. JAMES LONG GOES TO TEXAS

The Spanish-American treaty of February, 1819, which set the Sabine River as the border between the United States and Mexico, was expected to prevent further Anglo-American invasions of Texas such as Magee's in 1812; yet, ironically, records in the University of Texas Library's Texas Collection show, the treaty directly caused the last and possibly the most famous of them all—that of Dr. James Long of Tennessee.

The United States relinquished its sixteen-year-old claim to Texas arising out of the Louisiana Purchase, in order to get Florida from Spain. But the abandonment of Texas brought forth a storm of protest. In Natchez, Miss., a public meeting raised a company of volunteers, with Dr. Long, formerly of the U.S. Army, at its head, which was to set out to take Texas back from Mexico. The expedition is perhaps as well remembered as it is because no one can say just why it turned out as it did.

When Long's company, grown from seventy five to 300 men, reached Nacogdoches, they set up a provisionally government in the control of a supreme council, which immediately declared Texas a freed and independent republic and proceeded to organize it as one. It passed land laws, set up a printing shop, and established trading posts throughout the nearby territory.

Now it was Long's plan to enlist the aid of the notorious Jean Lafitte, who at the time was raiding Spanish shipping from headquarters on Galveston Island; so he sent a representative to wheedle the pirate chieftain into the service of the new republic. But Lafitte, already having seen several such filibustering campaigns sputter out, politely declined to be wheedled. Then Long, determined to have his help, set out for Galveston himself. He not only failed in his turn, however, but almost at the same time got word that Spanish royalist troops were at last marching on his outposts at the Brazos river.

One by one the scattered trading posts and settlements fell before the advance of the government troops, until all but one, a village on the Trinity held by seventy-five republicans, had been smashed. Rather than attack it first, the Spaniards turned on Nacogdoches, and Long reached the town just in time to evacuate his men safely across the Sabine into Louisiana.

While one part of the Royalist army lingered about Nacogdoches to watch for more trouble from Long himself, the other now turned to the garrison on the Trinity. There was a long and hard fight just outside the village, but eventually the defenders, who were vastly outnumbered, were routed. Some of the survivors crossed the river to Bolivar Point and secured themselves there in a fortress, where Long finally joined them.

As the Spanish army soon left the territory, thinking the republicans effectively dispersed, Long took advantage of the lull to go to New Orleans for recruits and supplies. It was late in 1820 when he returned to Texas; and he landed on Galveston Island on the same day that Lafitte left it at the request of the U. S. government. So he and his recruits—James Bowie among them—took over Lafitte's old stamping ground, where they eventually gathered together all the scattered forces of the Texas republic.

This time Long set off on a new track. He led his men into transports and sailed down the coast to the mouth of the San Antonio river. From there they advanced on and took Goliad without difficulty.

Meanwhile the Republic of Mexico and been successfully established in the interior; and now, for some reason still not known Mexican troops fell on Goliad, breaking up the volunteer force one and for all and taking Long and a few fellow prisoners. After a short time in a Mexico City jail, Long was released—but only to be shot down in the street by a soldier—again, for an unknown reason; and the last invasion of Texans was suddenly and definitely a thing of the past.

Spindle Top STARTED IT!

Forty years ago an oil gusher roared in on a low hill south of Beaumont to open a new industrial era for Texas.

That discovery at Spindletop started our modern Texas petroleum industry and made Texas the nation's leading oil state.

In the forty years since Spindletop blew in, nearly 200,000 wells have been drilled throughout Texas. Over 500 separate fields are now producing in all parts of the State. Today Texas supplies over one-third of the Nation's oil and has over half of its petroleum reserves.

Our industry, by refining almost all of this oil in Texas, has created our largest manufacturing enterprise. By furnishing cheap fuel it has laid the foundation for many other Texas industries.

From a handful of Texans forty years ago, this industry has grown until now, directly or indirectly, it supports almost one million of our people. Its expenditures reach into every section of the State and benefit every Texan.

The discovery of America's first gusher oil field at Spindletop has turned out to be one of the most important events in the history of our state.

Today all of Texas salutes Spindletop!

On October 9, 10 and 11, during its annual convention at Beaumont, the Texas-Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association will dedicate a monument to Spindletop.

Inscribed in ageless Texas granite will be the story of oil.

This is more than a monument to petroleum. It is a tribute to Texas enterprise and initiative which in forty years have built a great industry in our State — an industry in which you and every other Texan share.

This is a Citizen—This is a Stooge

WHAT IS A CITIZEN?

A citizen is someone who is well informed—who knows how to take part in self-government. He knows the FACTS on events and issues of the day. He is equipped by this information for the responsibility of voting. He gets this information from his newspaper.

Citizens live in Democracies.

WHAT IS A STOOGES?

A stooge is someone who is UNINFORMED. He is kept from knowing the things that the citizen has to know. He can't take part in self-government. He can only do what he's told—submit to regimentation—because he doesn't know any better. He hasn't any honest newspaper to show him he's a stooge. All he reads is propaganda.

Stooges live in Dictatorships.

NOT SO THE CITIZEN

He buys where he WANTS to buy ... where he can get the best value for his money. Merchants have to COMPETE for his business. They tell him about their wares in newspaper advertising columns. He gets the FACTS about what they have to sell, then makes up his own mind about what to buy. Nobody can force him into it.

STOOGES STAND IN LINE

They line up in the state-controlled stores to buy what the dictators tell them. They don't get what they want; they get what the dictators want them to get. And they pay what the dictators want them to pay. If the dictators' propaganda says that butter made from axle grease tastes good, the stooges have to smack their lips over it. Or else get smacked!

Stooges exist under dictatorship, without independence in their newspapers. But to the citizens of the United States—who really LIVE—the newspapers are invaluable. They print the news facts that make self-government possible. They print the advertising facts—the all-important information that helps Americans to LIVE BETTER.

More than 320 leading newspaper publishers join together to bring you this weekly message about the function of the press in a free nation. Newspaper Publishers Committee, 420 Lexington Ave., New York.

WHY ON EARTH DO THEY DO IT?

... put good money into sports equipment... and leave it uninsured

Sports and hobbies often call for expensive paraphernalia. And such paraphernalia is easily stolen ... damaged or lost. Sidestep the worry of losing a good camera, gun or other sports equipment! Let sound insurance carry the load!

Moral: Do it now. Hand the responsibility over to us... and enjoy your hobby, free from worry.

BUT BETTER LIGHT WILL!

WATCH your child when he works or reads. If he rubs his eyes constantly it may be a sign of eyestrain and eyestrain leads to a lot of trouble—headaches, fatigue, even nervous indigestion.

One way to prevent it is to make sure the lighting in your home is safe for seeing. Surveys show that scarcely one in ten homes is properly lighted. Yet good light and plenty of it costs only a few cents a night.

Stop in at our office today and look at the attractive new lamps and fixtures. I.E.S. lamps, designed by scientists, will give you enough light and the right kind of light for safe seeing. You'll find dozens of clever new "adapters" that will change your old lamps and fixtures into modern light-sources in a jiffy. Don't risk eyestrain. Fix up your home lighting now!

"I WANT A DIVORCE"

Based on a story by ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHNS

CHAPTER EIGHT SYNOPSIS Allan MacNally, young successful divorce lawyer, pays so much attention to his business that he finds little time for his beautiful wife, Jerry. When he fails to show up at her birthday party, Jerry fears that she is losing his love.

CHAPTER IX

BRANDON was waiting impatiently for Allan when he arrived back from luncheon. "Don't bother taking off your hat," he called to Mac. "We're taking a plane for Reno in half an hour. We can pick up ten grand in less than twenty-four hours," he said excitedly. "Come on and I'll tell you all about it," he went on, pushing him out of the office.

They got to the airport just in time to make the plane, but with not a second to spare. Mac was frantic. He had to let Jerry know. As he rushed into the plane he grabbed a porter, slipped him a bill, bellowed his home phone number at the startled man, and instructed him to call Jerry that he had to fly to Reno on an emergency couldn't understand it, when just a few hours ago her sister had seemed on top of the world.

"What has slapped you down?" Jerry asked her.

Wanda told her simply, and directly. She had been looking forward to this day for a long while, and had planned every detail carefully. After months of being away from David, she had realized that he was the only person she could ever love.

"I've been on a merry-go-round for the last two years," she admitted. "I've been drinking too much, and filling up my life with people who meant nothing to me—and I meant no more to them than a person who ran a well stocked bar," she added ruefully. "Then I realized I wanted a sane, comfortable life, with a sane comfortable man—David. I wanted to be with him and together I wanted to watch little Davey grow into a fine person, with maybe a small Wanda to keep him company."

house, his club and all the bars in the telephone directory, but no luck," she pronounced. "I even phoned the Receiving Hospital."

"The Receiving Hospital?" Jerry and Wanda chorused.

"Yes'm," she said. "I always used to find my second husband there. Or if I didn't, I'd tell them to expect him, cause that's where he was goin' to be when I got through with him," she remarked, obviously hoping that Jerry would take the hint.

Wanda's friends arrived. At a glance Jerry could see what Wanda meant by what she had said earlier about filling up her life with purposeless people. They were perfectly all right, Jerry admitted, but not for her. They were both probably married, and in their own home towns no doubt behaved like sensible citizens. But in a strange town, on their own, they were ready for anything, and wanted to tear the town apart.

Jerry and Wanda were scarcely the girls to do it with that night. As they wandered from night club to night club, they both grew more preoccupied with their own problems. Wanda put on a better act than Jerry, though. "She's probably more used to it than I am," Jerry thought, pitying her.

Through Jerry's mind hurled all sorts of thoughts. Had Allan tired of her? If not, what was he doing lurching with other women? Had she nagged him for working with Brandon? She didn't honestly believe so. Yet how was this thing going to straighten out? Jerry knew that they couldn't go on the way they were going. They had grown as far apart as the two Poles. Even if business were to blame for it, and the fact that Mac had less and less time to spend at home, Jerry knew she would never be satisfied with that kind of a life. It would have to change—and quick.

The thought of spending countless evenings like this, palled on Jerry. She knew she could never lead the sort of life Wanda was apparently able to throw herself into. Grandma Brokaw was the person she would normally go to at a time like this, but that good woman had declared herself only today at luncheon, Jerry remembered. She had said it was Jerry's job to stick with her husband. It was, was it? Well, Jerry decided she had stuck long enough on the basis they were on, and that that basis was going to change, or else—And she didn't want to think about the alternative.

Allan was stumbling his way into the dark house. It was quiet as a tomb until he strode up the stairs calling Jerry at the top of his lungs. Not finding her in bed he rushed down again and bumped into Celestine.

"Ain't no use shoutin'," she announced. "Mrs. MacNally ain't here."

"Where is she?" Mac demanded. "Out," Celestine said complacently.

"Out? Out where," he bellowed, more concerned.

"With Mrs. Holland and two gentlemen friends," Celestine explained.

"With Mrs. Holland and two gentlemen?" Mac repeated, not believing his ears.

"Yes, sir," Celestine went on, with a vengeance. "And if my second husband had stayed out all day and half the night, on my birthday too, I wouldn't go off with no two men. No sir," she continued, pleased with herself and a chance to avenge Jerry for the day of worry she'd put through. "Boy, I'd get me an army," she concluded. Mac kicked the door closed in bewilderment.

Mac kicked the door closed in bewilderment.

Through Jerry's mind hurled all sorts of thoughts.

trip. The red cap grinned agreeably, pocketed the bill, and dismissed the whole thing from his mind promptly.

Jerry, meanwhile, was getting more and more upset. She was determined not to call Allan's office. She was hurt that he should have completely forgotten her birthday luncheon, and even if business—drat it—had kept him tied up, there was still Mr. Alexander Graham Bell's fine invention for letting her know what had happened. Finally, about eight o'clock, the phone rang. Jerry rushed to it eagerly, but it was Wanda.

"Darling, what are you doing?" her sister asked.

"Just sitting here," Jerry told her bitterly. "Waiting for my husband. I haven't heard from him all day."

"Two chaps I know have just gotten into town," Wanda told her. "They phoned me earlier and I turned them down, but now I'm low and depressed, and I think I'll go out for a whirl. Will you come along?"

"Why, yes," Jerry said. She decided it would be a good idea to show Mac a thing or two. She wasn't going to be a sit by the fire, wait at home wife any longer. "It sounds like fun," she agreed.

"I'll have them pick us up at your house then," Wanda said. "I'd like to talk to you first, so I'll come over now, if I may."

Wanda arrived, and she looked even bluer than she sounded. Together they made a fine pair. Jerry

"It all sounds perfect to me, darling," Jerry said. "What's to stop it?"

"Simply, that I missed my chance for that. My timing was bad," Wanda said close to tears. "David wanted it too, but I didn't give it to him, and I guess he can't believe I'm capable of changing."

Then she told Jerry of how she had done everything possible, to try to show David she wanted to go back. When she had left Jerry's earlier, she had gone home and cooked a stew that used to be David's special dish, in the early days of their marriage. She had coaxed him to stay for dinner, before he left to take little David on his vacation. But David had shown no inclination to stay.

"He kept wanting to leave," she recalled. "Why he wouldn't even sit down. And when I asked him if he couldn't possibly stay for dinner, he was more anxious than ever to get going, and insisted on hurrying Davey up too."

"Perhaps he just has to get used to the idea. It's new to him," Jerry suggested.

"There's no sense kidding myself," Wanda admitted, "so don't try to console me. It's over, and I know it. So I might as well return to the world of gaiety, and try to anesthetize myself, somehow."

Celestine came in to report that she had phoned everywhere in town, and had found no trace of Mr. MacNally.

"I phoned his office, the court-
