809th Guests Of Gatesville And Coryell County

They came, they saw, and they had a good time, it seemed!

At least, that was our impression of the entertainment put on, and, given by the 809th Tank Destroyer Battalion July 4.

Arriving by eleven o'clock, the trucks and vehicles were parked around the square. The men, with their rifles and side arms then paraded east down Main street, back via Lutterloh avenue to Leon and then back to the square where they were dismissed for a barbecue at Raby Park, sponsored by the City of Gatesville and the Gatesville Chamber of Commerce.

In the reviewing stand, in the 900 block on E. Main street, were Lieut. Col. M. W. Bonwell, and his aide, Lieut. C. R. Wagner of the 809th Mayor and Mrs. C. E. Gandy, Mrs. H. K. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. McClellan, J. O. Brown, R. L. Saunders, Eiland Lovejoy, R. H. Miller, Rufus Brown, Mrs. Tom Mears, and Judge Floyd Zeigler.

Wouldn't it have been nicer, on that hot 4th, if the high school band could have been in the parade, for a little music? It was the quietest parade we've ever seen—all you could hear was the tramp, tramp of the men's feet, and an occasional squeaks of the army shoes. Then, at the reviewing stand, the officers in charge, calling "eyes, RIGHT." That was all, save some cheering that could be heard as the men, sweating a pint each, passed by.

Activities for the afternoon and evening, included a ball game between State School for Boys and the 809th Base Ball Team, with the results being 11-12.

At 9 o'clock, in the high school gym, the girls were there, and the boys too, along with a Juke box, and the combination "did all right" for the 809th boys, who go in for friendly relations with the opposite sex. Vari-colored "spots" added to the touch, and some other "censored" activities, pleased the guests.

Too, at the same hour, the 809th and the Rambler's tangled in a soft ball game under the lights, and the Ramblers came out on the long end of the county by a 1 to 0 score.

Forgetting, at 7 o'clock, a part of the men were taken into Gatesville homes and given some "home cooking," but many, took care of themselves, ate back at Raby Park, or visited other places.

It seemed, the participating parties, both the 809th, and the local citizens, both had an enjoyable and much more sane and safe 4th, than is the usual case.

809th, we're glad you came, and "let's let it happen again!"

Stephen H. Lindley, Jr. of Gatesville was a member of the graduation of Class 42-9 Bombardiers, July 4th, at Victorville Army Flying School, Victorville, California. Steve, who was commissioned Second Lieutenant, will arrive today for a visit with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Pederson, and other relatives.

CAPT. JOHN C. HOOKER OF OOC NO. 1 NOW MAJOR AT JACKSON

Maybe you knew him, at least, you did thru the News because we had stories of Capt. John C. Hooker, who proved himself quite an expert marksman in two Texas rifle and pistol meets.

A brief note comes today from Fort Jackson, South Carolina, where the Captain is stationed, that he has just been made a Major, and is now in command of the 774th Tank Destroyer Battalion, and, he thinks it more probable that his battalion will remain at that post.

We are glad to get this note from Major Hooker.

MRS. ELBERT SLONE MADE HONORARY DIRECTOR

Mrs. Elbert Slope has been made an Honorary Director of the Texas Safety Council, according to a letter received last week.

The letter came from P. Pierce Brooks, head of the council.

This organization promotes safety on highways and in all other endeavors in Texas.

Last War Took Out Those That Didn't Advertise

These figures, authentic as they are, sounded good to us. They might sound good to you, too.

Raymond Moley, writing in News Week, in a study of 17 concerns, "doubting Thomases" that stopped their advertising for the duration, found out:—

"Six sold out or were absorbed by competitors. One failed and went out of business; one went into receivership; one was deflated 97% in terms of personnel; one lost 81% of its sales volume; one ended with only two customers; three lost their leadership in their fields; one was operated by banks for five years; two found that competitors had grown at their expense."

Now, we wouldn't know and just pass this on, for whatever it may be worth. Anyway, it is a fact!

"Rugged Individualism" Key To "Fourth"

Gatesville, last remaining seat of individual Americanism, showed its "rugged individualism" the "Fourth" as usual.

What with cooperation thruout the nation, Gatesville preserved this "laid down in the Constitution" rugged individualism.

Some didn't close the 4th at all, some Saturday, and some Monday. Tuesday isn't here yet, and it can't be said, so far, we've heard of no one that closed Friday.

All of which, don't mean a thing since it's happened before, here.

Watch where and how you walk! Two out of every five traffic deaths are pedestrians.

The invitation of the open road too often proves to be an invitation to greater chances for death and injury. Last year the accident rate in cities and towns decreased, but accidents in rural areas and on the open road jumped at an astounding rate.

Adventures of Marco Polo

Introduced by ARCHIE MAYO

Released thru United Artists

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
Marco Polo, famed 13th Century Venetian traveler, comes to the Court of Kublai Khan in Peking and falls in love with Kukachin, the Emperor's daughter. Through the machinations of Ahmed, the ruthless and scheming Minister of State, Marco is sent to the camp of a rebellious chieftain, Kaidu, to act as a spy, but enroute an attempt is made upon his life and that of Binguccio, his servant. They escape and make their way to Kaidu's camp. Marco charms Kaidu's wife, Nazama, who saves him from being boiled in oil. Kaidu warns Marco he is safe as long as he can keep the jealous Nazama amused.

Chapter Five

Kaidu was a happy man. The problems of war were as nothing compared to the problems of appeasing his jealous wife, and he no longer had those problems. Marco Polo, the Venetian, had the extraordinary ability to charm and divert her. Now Kaidu had time for other things and nothing, one of the things he found time for was the pretty serving maid. And in another tent in Kaidu's camp, Marco Polo exerted every effort to entertain Nazama. If for one moment he allowed her interest to lag, Kaidu's cauldron of boiling oil awaited him; he was very charming indeed. When he returned to his tent that night he found Binguccio fretful and impatient.

"I hope," sneered the little man, "You're pleased with yourself. Made another conquest, haven't you?"

Marco was fingering a piece of black stone and paid little attention.

"Are you crazy?" screamed Binguccio. "This is nothing but a dirty stone."

Marco smiled. "But it burns, Binguccio. They call it coal."

Binguccio sniffed derisively. "Fine presents for your father! A dried-up white sack, a child's fire-cracker, and some dirt that burns! It would be better if you put aside this foolishness and began to think of our escape."

Marco turned on him angrily. "Listen to me, Binguccio. I'm not staying here because I want to. But the instant that lady becomes bored, you and I will be popped into a big kettle of boiling oil. So you'd better be grateful to me for keeping your miserable body and soul together and be patient until I can think of some way to get back to Peking alive."

Many leagues away, in Peking, Ahmed was gradually beginning to usurp the power he had long coveted. He made public proclamation of higher taxes upon paper, silk, shoes and rice. He announced a new door tax of ten pieces of silver. The people listened dully and looked heavenward for deliverance. When the news reached Ahmed by eagle-carrier that Kublai Khan's army had been destroyed by a terrible typhoon in the China Sea, he grew bolder still. He was seated on the Emperor's throne when the Court Chamberlain came to inform him that the Persian Ambassador requested an audience.

"I'm getting a little tired of the Persian Ambassador," remarked Ahmed.

The Ambassador entered, followed by a page carrying a jewel casket.

"His Majesty, the King of Persia, bids me remind the Minister of State that the night is but a week hence when, on the seventh moon will shine in all its mellow magnificence, in expression of my Master's impatient affection for his future bride, the Princess Kukachin, he bids me present this token."

"A most gracious gesture," murmured Ahmed. "I will escort you to her."

At the door to Ahmed's quarters, the Persian Ambassador was seized by Ahmed's guards. His frantic protestations fell on deaf ears and the door closed. Ahmed took a beautiful necklace of diamonds and star sapphires from the casket and went directly to Kukachin's apartments.

"I bring tribute to Your Highness," he said, fastening on the necklace.

"And whom do I thank for this tribute?" inquired Kukachin coldly.

"Please say no word of thanks. This is only a hint of my devotion." Kukachin unfastened the necklace and returned it to Ahmed. "I return the hint, Ahmed. Take it and yourself away."

Mr. and Mrs. Willis M. Jones of Alice are visiting their sons, Dr. Kermit and Mat Jones, and their families.

Ahmed's eyes glittered angrily but his voice was soft and insinuating. "I'm grateful for your superb hospitality. It will be all the more pleasant to watch the cold moon of your hatred as it gradually yields to the brilliant hot sun of love in your heart."

Kukachin stamped her foot. "My father will punish you for your impudence!"

Ahmed thought this an excellent time to tell the Princess the unhappy news that her father and his army had met with disaster. And at the seventh moon, he added, he would make her his wife and proclaim himself Emperor.

"You don't at the moment think me qualified to be your husband," he said suavely. "But time will convince you of your error. I have had seventy-eight wives already — and I assure you, I have profited by experience!"

Although she refused to believe that her father was dead, Kukachin was thoroughly alarmed. She sent Vishahka, her maid, to the Tower of Eagles with a message. Inside the cannister was a note for Marco Polo. The Imperial bird, flying swiftly westward, was sighted by some Tartar horsemen and brought down with an arrow. Thus it reached Kaidu — and finally, Marco Polo.

"Kaidu!" cried Marco. "Let me go back. She is in danger — desperate!"

"Not so desperate," smiled Kaidu, "as others I could name." He rose and his voice was sharp. "We will see you at dinner. And I give you friendly warning, Marco Polo, don't try to escape."

Nevertheless, Marco searched frantically for some means to return to Peking. Good fortune smiled upon him again, for he made a startling discovery. The night guard at Kaidu's tent was Toctai, Ahmed's spy. Marco took Toctai aside and confided that he, too, was a spy of Ahmed and that they must work together toward Kaidu's destruction. Toctai insisted the privilege of killing the Chieftain must be his, and Marco reluctantly yielded the point. But, he insisted, they must strike tonight. They agreed on a plan of attack.

That night in Kaidu's tent Marco entertained his host and Nazama with music until the time when he knew Toctai would be on guard outside. On a pretext of showing them a game, Marco took up Kaidu's shield and then gave Toctai the signal to strike. Toctai threw his javelin at Kaidu — but Marco stopped it with the heavy shield. Two guards rushed in and seized Toctai.

"That is one of Ahmed's men!" cried Marco.

"You — you traitor!" screamed Toctai. "You trapped me —"

When he had been dragged away, Kaidu said, "You saved my life. I thank you, Marco Polo. How did you know that man was going to kill me?"

"I, too, have been doing a little spying," replied Marco. "And now let me ask you something. Why are you in revolt against the Emperor?"

"Because my people have been taxed to the point of starvation."

"I don't blame you. But why don't you do something about it? Take your army to Peking — storm the Palace!"

Kaidu laughed. "My army — against all the forces of Kublai Khan?"

Marco leaned forward tensely. "Kublai Khan and his forces have gone to war against Japan. And with the Emperor away, Ahmed is in command in the Palace. He is going to marry the Princess Kukachin and proclaim himself Emperor."

"Ahmed! Emperor of China! Better the black plague!"

"You can prevent it. The road to Peking is open to you."

"But the Palace walls! When I get to them, what do I do?"

"You'll have to leave it to me to get you through the walls."

Kaidu was thoughtful. "I owe you a debt which must be paid. You saved my life — and you can name three wishes which I will grant if it is in my power."

"First," said Marco, "Give me the swiftest horse you have. Second, give me an hour's start at daybreak — before you tell your wife I've gone! And the third — I'll reserve till later!"

At daybreak, Marco Polo was galloping toward Peking on Kaidu's fleetest horse, leaving Nazama behind to fret alone and unloved ones.

WITH THE COLORS

Pvt. Cloyce C. Key has just arrived a short time ago in the Hawaiian Islands, according to a letter received Thursday by his parents Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Brazzill. Cloyce was formerly a member of the News Staff, doing his stuff as a city delivery boy, and a darned good one.

Dear Mat:

Just thought I would drop a few lines to let you know that I haven't forgotten you all, and the good old Coryell County News. I sure have missed it lots since I left good old Gatesville.

How is everything down in Coryell? Swell, I hope. Sure would like to be down for a while. I guess things have changed a lot in the last few months, since most of the fellows have left to help win the war.

Mat, the Navy is really O. K. I am on board the U. S. S. Dixie and have been for about three months. She sure is a swell ship. Just wish I could tell you more about her and what we are doing, but the Censorship regulations won't permit, and I am sure it is best.

How is Hubert and Annie? Tell them hello for me, and Mat and Hubert Jr., give the lads my regards.

Mat, you know I guess being as you have been in the U. S. Navy (I haven't there are times that a fellow gets pretty lonesome. Some of these days, if you have a line or two to spare, it would be very much appreciated if you would tell the kids down there to write me. It sure makes a fellow feel good to get news from home and his friends.

There is not very much more I can write just now, but will keep in touch with you along, so keep the old press rolling and you all down there keep your chin up as we are doing. The morale here is sure good, because we all look forward in returning home as soon as we all do our job. Would appreciate getting lots of letters from you all.

Best Regards,
CHESTER BRAZZILL, Seaman

Now, there you are! All you Flat folks write this boy a letter. I am, too. You can't just know what good a 3c stamp and just a little of your "precious" time will do to a boy in the service, unless you've been there. Don't have to stop at Flat either; anybody in Coryell county who knows, or don't know Chester Brazzill, write him!

Henry Morgenthau Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, today made public the official War Bond Quotas by States for the month of July, which places the nation on a Billion-dollar-a-month basis to aid in meeting the War cost. The above table also gives May War Bond sales in the various states in comparison to the May Quotas. (June sales by states will be available for publication shortly.) The percentage of Quotas range from 71.3 percent above quota in Utah to 22.6 percent below the quota in Montana, but puts the nation as a whole above the $600,000,000 total May quota. Vulnerable Alaska and Hawaii led all states in sale of War Bonds on quota basis.

"Everybody, every pay day ten percent" is the Treasury slogan which is expected to place one of the attractive new window stickers in every American home. "We're Buying at Least 10%" reads the sticker, printed in the national colors. The new window stickers and the new "10%" lapel button, which indicates that the wearer is investing at least ten percent of his income in War Bonds every pay day, are yardsticks of patriotism in the War Bond Drive.

Longer Life for YOUR RADIO

You depend a lot upon your radio these days so take good care of it and make it last, as no more will be manufactured until the war is over. Here are some suggestions that will help.

Is your radio located near a window? Then move it before you forget. An open window—a sudden shower and the cabinet may be damaged or the wiring short circuited.

Is your radio near a heater or fireplace? Too much heat may warp the cabinet—may dry out the insulation—may shorten the life of the set. Better move it to another spot.

Don't clean out back of radio with dust cloth. You may loosen tubes or disturb wiring. Dust won't harm your radio. If you must clean it, use vacuum cleaner attachment.

Young children ought not to operate the radio-phonograph. They may damage the player mechanism or put it out of adjustment. Load it for them and avoid trouble.

Be careful in moving your radio from one location to another. Hard shocks or jars may damage tubes or connections. Radios are delicate instruments. Handle with care.

The Army's fighter planes are the finest in the world and develop speeds up to 400 miles an hour. They cost approximately $100,000 each, provide fighter escorts for the huge flying fortresses, and combine speed, range, altitude and blistering fire power.

America's plane production plants are working over-time turning out thousands of these fighter planes. War Savings Bonds will help pay for them and the American people are committed to at least ten percent of their income to finance their cost in War Bonds. Every American, buying his share every pay day, will make it comparatively easy to supply our army and navy air corps with these supreme Eagles of the air.

SIDE GLANCES ON TEXAS HISTORY

By Charles O. Hucker
 University of Texas Library

Pedals on the Cattle Trail

Wherever Texas and cattle are mentioned in the same breath, the name of Charles Goodnight is bound to crop up. Goodnight is renowned as the man who opened the Texas Panhandle to ranching, who founded the famous JA Ranch in the valley of the precipitous Palo Duro Canyon—taking wagons to pieces and lowering them into the valley by ropes—and built up a huge cattle empire in partnership with an English lord, John G. Adair. Goodnight's own story of his early small-scale ventures in Texas, New Mexico and Colorado, and of the physical and financial hazards of driving cattle to market in the days of the enormous "round-ups" is recounted in "Pioneer Days in the Southwest from 1850 to 1879," a collection of experiences of big men of the era compiled by John A. Hart and Emanuel Dubbs. A copy of this volume is found in the University of Texas Library's extensive Texas Collection.

Share Herding

Goodnight came to Texas as a 10-year-old lad, halting for a year in Milam County, in 1847 moving on to Palo Pinto County. He passed through the "wilderness" of northeastern Texas, he told Dubbs. "Dallas was a mere village, its first house having been built five years before, while the military post, known as Fort Worth, was not established until 1849."

At the age of 20, he and a friend, J. W. Sheek, entered business for themselves, contracting to handle a herd of cattle "on shares," branding one-fourth of the increase for themselves. "As the end of the first year's branding resulted in only thirty-two calves for our share, and as the value was about three dollars per head, we figured out that we made between us, not counting expenses, ninety - six dollars," Goodnight said.

"It was a gloomy outlook at the time. However, we determined to hold on to our contract, and the herd entrusted to us became one of the largest and finest in the country; at the expiration of our contract we had 4,000 head for our share."

Opening the Goodnight Trail

On his return from the Civil War, Goodnight found his herd decimated by Indian depredations and Confederate requisition, and decided to take the remainder elsewhere. He and Oliver Loving, joining the herds, started to New Mexico with 14 men. "We drove the cattle by way of Fort Belknap, to Fort Sumner, New Mexico, opening what has since become known as the Goodnight trail," he explained.

They sold the entire herd for eight cents per pound, and headed back toward Texas to purchase and drive another herd to market that same season.

"Turning back on the trail, with the proceeds of our sale loaded on our pack mules, an incident occurred which came very near wrecking our new found hopes," he related. "While in the roughest and most dangerous part of our journey back, and when we were using every precaution to prevent giving notice to the red skins of our presence, a mule bearin six thousand dollars in gold in the pack, broke away in the darkness, scattering the provisions she carried in every direction.

A Mule's Threat to Gold and Life

"The gold, however, was saved, for I grabbed a rope that was dangling from the pack and checked the frantic animal after being dragged quite a distance down a rocky slope at the risk of a broken neck. The old mule saved but our provisions were entirely lost, and there was no way to get them renewed. We traveled for eighty-six miles without anything to eat until we got to the Pecos River, where we accidentally ran across a man who divided his meager stock of food with us."

On the third drive, the following year, the Goodnight-Loving outfit fell prey to Indian onslaughts. "While we halted for the night near Camp Cooper, the Indians attacked us, shooting one man in the head with an arrow, but not fatally," Goodnight said. "Very tierd by our day's ride, I was sleeping on a buffalo robe by the fire and an arrow sent with all the force of a strong bow, struck the edge of the robe, deflecting sufficiently to pass under me, barely missing my body." The outfit recovered all the horse stock but one mule, but over 300 cattle were driven away.

A few days later Loving and one companion, J. W. Wilson, rode on ahead. They were assaulted by 600 Indians near the present side of Eddy, N. M., and took shelter under the bank of the river. Loving was wounded, so Wilson, to bring aid, stripped and swam under water until he had passed the Indian lines.

"Three days afterwards," Goodnight reported, "he reached our camp, which was close to Adobe Walls, naked, barefooted, weak and exhausted, and so changed in appearance that his own brother, who was in camp, failed at first to recognize him."

The rescue party found the spot where Loving and Wilson had been ambushed, but no trace of the wounded man. "I afterwards learned that Mr. Loving had evaded the Indians by going several miles up the river instead of down, where he was found by some Mexicans and taken to Fort Sumner, but the five days' exposure and suffering before he was found proved too much, even for his iron constitution, and he died shortly after reaching the fort."

THE WRVERN TALKS

By Corp. Tech. Joe I. Fox
The corporal was walking down the road to town and as he neared his destination he spied a lonely spaniel in the road, lovely and lost. The dog was adopted by the soldier and taken back to camp. He fed it tidbits from the kitchen and set out to find the owner. In the meantime the dog became the pet of the outfit. A week later, he received an answer. The dog belonged to a young lady about 22 years old. She was very glad to find "Dog-Face." The name was reminiscent of the army so the doughboy spruced up in his finest and went to town to deliver the pooch. Alas and alack, who should open the door but the lady's husband, a Marine Corporal. Hereafter the soldier will leave all dogs alone.

Kangaroo came back from his furlough, and tells an exciting story of his trip.

A veteran was telling the "rookie" here how dusty it was when he arrived at the camp 10 weeks before. "Why," he exclaimed, "the dust was so thick that you couldn't see five feet ahead of you."

The rookie wasn't much impressed. "That's nothin'," he came back. "Where I come from, in Kansas a feller's got to stop every three feet and look behind him to see where he's been."

The Army jeep has lengthened the imagination of the song pluggers. It's getting all kinds of praise.—on the battlefields and on the home front—even the controversy of "peep no jeep" which was settled by a War Department order which says, to-wit, "Jeep, a 1/2-ton bantam vehicle," and rules out the word "peep." Yes, that two-by-four streak of lightning is tops. Some of the songs to date about the little "Highball Express" are, "The Jeeps are Coming," "Keep the Jeeps A-Jumpin'," "Johnny got a Jeep" and "The Jeep Song."

The new mailing system, Uncle Sam has invented for foreign service is the V... Mail Form Letter. After the letters have been written they are photographed and reduced in size to fit a 16mm film and then films are sent to your Military Post Office over there. They are then enlarged and reproduced in the writer's own writing to the original size of the form letter before giving to the parties who are supposed to get the letters.

By using this method, they save over 95 per cent of ship cargo space which can be used for other valuable cargoes. It saves a lot of time.

These forms are available at most post offices.

More than 45,000,000 acres of Texas land are now under lease to Texas has produced more than 27 per cent of all the oil produced in the entire United States to date.

Approximately 55,000 dry holes have been drilled at a cost of over one billion dollars by Texas oilmen in their search for additional oil reserves.

A standard driver's license law well administered, takes some drivers off the road, but just remember that it makes a much larger number of drivers fit to stay on the road longer.

638th Drops Close One to Local Softballers

Under the lights, Friday night, the 638th Tank Destroyer Battalion was nosed out in a close one by the Ramblers of Gatesville, under the managership of one "Red" White, and under USO sponsorship.

Details are lacking, as the "cards" was destroyed or misplaced, but the final results gave the Ramblers an edge of 12 to 11. Wilson was the winning pitcher for Gatesville.

"State" Drops Hard Ball To 809th Saturday P. M.

Saturday afternoon at 4, the 809th Tank Destroyer Battalion went off the diamond with the scalp of the Gatesville State Training School for Boys under their belts. The final was 13-8.

It wasn't as easy as all that, because the state blew in the 8th, when the two teams were tied up, 8-8.

Batteries for the day were: McCallister, P; and Marino, C; for State.

Following the ball game, approximately 40 men and officers were guests of the school for supper.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bradford and daughter, Virginia, spent the weekend in Wichita Falls where they visited Mr. and Mrs. David Franks and baby.

"Ramblers" Take Soft-Ball Game By Shut-Out

Jam-up softball was one of the features of the Fourth here, when Saturday night, "Red" White's Gatesville Ramblers hung a shut-out decision on the 809th Tank Destroyer Battalion under the Kleig's. The count was 1-0, truly, a story-book game.

Rutherford, new at the CCC camp hurled the shut-out for the top hands, and was opposed by Housman for the 809th. That, was an immemorable meeting an unstoppable.

Rutherford got 2 hits, and made the lone tally for the evening, and that's another unusual for a hurler. Here's the box:

Ramblers	809th
Loer, lf	Hoff, cf
Post, ss	Lupino, c
Anderson, c	Mallick, 3rd
Sullivan, lb	Vangel, 1st
White, sf	Leonard, ss
Wilso, cf	Houseman, p
Kirkpatrick, rf	Hallis, lf
Culberson, 3b	Vickers, sc
O'Neal, 2nd	Milless, 2b
Rutherford, p	De Camp

Each hurler in seven innings, 6 strike-outs in seven innings.

Staff Sergeant W. B. McBroom is visiting his parents here. Sgt. McBroom is on a ten-day furlough before being transferred from Ellington Field to Wisconsin.

Joe Hanna, Jr., and Bobby Melbern both of A&M were visitors with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hanna, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Melbern over the weekend.
