COGITATIONS and APHORISMS of JODOK

Has it ever occurred to you that one, who keeps his eyes and ears open while out on the street corners, may hear almost any variety of sentiment he has ever heard of or thought of?

Well, if it has not, just try it for a few days and see if that is not just about a fact. As I stand on the street corners or meander leisurely up or down the streets and listen to the conversations of my neighbors who are there, it seems to me that I have been able to hear almost every line of sentiment expressed from the humorous to the deeply pathetic, including the thoughtless and haphazard guessing, vindictiveness, spite, envy, sympathy, and pity and also including a lot of just good sound common sense.

I was listening to a group of men last Saturday among whom was Oscar Turner, George McLean, Clyde Goodwine and others, and George and Oscar, who were originally homesteaders over in New Mexico, told of some of the interesting and some almost harrowing experiences of those early days, when lots of people from the more Eastern states moved into New Mexico to take up homesteads on the free government land of that state.

Well! It seems from their report that many of these people stayed and made good there, but many of them became discouraged or starved out and gave up their claims and returned east again, and during several of those years, jack rabbits furnished the material for the most popular contribution to the menu of the homesteader's table, and people were still coming in while others were leaving out, mostly in prairie schooners, and camping at night in the open.

Oscar stated that one could always tell which direction the campers were moving by looking at the camp sites after they had gone on. If the camper was moving westward his camp site would be strewn with empty cans that had contained fruits, vegetables and meats of various kinds; while, on the other hand, if the camper was moving eastward, his camp site would be strewn with the hair, skins, heads and ears of jack rabbits, the campers having caught the rabbits as they wended their way eastward.

Both Oscar and George joined in the statement that after a man had lived there a few weeks, he was able to outrun a grey hound and could easily pick up a jack rabbit on a straight run of only a short distance. They also carried the statement to the extent that many of those men had worn away their fingers, and some the entire hand and part of the arm, just reaching out to grasp the rabbit's hind legs after they had overtaken it. (Or it occurs to me that they were the men who made the statement.)

Well, as I sauntered back up the street, they were still talking, and their conversation had switched to the new and old "Farm Bills" passed by congress, and the free check being paid to farmers for their compliance with the requirements of the old bill, and the possible payments to be secured under the new bill.

Apparently most of us farmers are considerably "at sea" as to just what this new bill does provide for us and as to our obligations to the government under it and various opinions were expressed concerning it.

It just occurred to me that by their conversation, the farmers of the country have become so accustomed to receiving these free pay checks from Uncle Sam, that it will be mighty "against the grain" should any arrangements be made whereby they will not be so "forthcoming" or so liberal as heretofore.

When we first began receiving these government checks, they came in the form of a kind of sedative or narcotic, to help us to bear the pains of a bad spell of agricultural illness, and they fulfilled exactly that purpose, but now we have come to look for them as a "matter of course."

One man, and I think it was Clyde Goodwine, expressed it in this manner: These checks came to us originally as an opiate to quiet us but we have been taking them so regularly that we have now become

A LETTER FROM THE PEARSONS

The Star was last week in receipt of a letter from Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pearson, of Garden Village, Texas, and since their letters always include the entire community, we feel that it is due us to give them in full to all our readers. The letter follows:

Garden Village, Texas
February 16, 1938.
To The Friona Star,
Friona, Texas.

Dear Editor:
Please accept my hearty congratulations on the latest issue of your paper. Not only the editor and his aids, but Friona with its trade territory, may feel justly proud of a "weekly" that would do credit to a business center and population many times larger than "The Friendliest Little Town in the Panhandle." What pleased us most was the evident use of the Friona Star for advertising by the merchants. The public likes to know what the merchants have to sell and to be invited to examine and purchase the goods advertised.

Of course, we read "Jodok" and by your increasing personal columns of personals, locals, school and church news, funerals, marriages, births, and civic and social events, we find the Star a very welcome weekly visitor to entertain.

That story in the right-hand corner of your last issue is a classic, and "Safety First" should broadcast it wherever children go to and fro to school.

We feel sure if you keep your present standard going, you will command an increasing circulation, local advertising support, and be recognized among the institutions of Friona, as its outstanding promoter of business, good will, development and prosperity.

Mother and Yours Truly were concerned about Nancy Shackelford, whom we both loved, and hope she is home again. Also, would you give our heartiest greetings to Rev. Dollar with the hope that he will stay many years to minister to the group in the Congregational church, and to the wider group in Parmer County, who compare with any folk to be found in the United States or anywhere else.

Yours heartily,
Dad and Mother Pearson.

CARD OF THANKS

It is with the deepest feeling of appreciation that we hereby extend our heartfelt thanks to all our friends and neighbors for the many words of comfort and cheer and the many deeds of loving kindness shown us during the illness, death and burial of our beloved daughter and sister, Goldie; and for the tokens of esteem and sympathy expressed by the many beautiful floral offerings.

Mrs. Eva Stevick,
Miss Lottie Stevick,
Otha Stevick,
Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stevick and family,
Mr. and Mrs. Orval Stevick and family.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

The Girl Scouts met Thursday, but our sorrow Mrs. Stover could not be with us, but we had our business meeting and were dismissed.

We had our meeting at the home of Mrs. J. C. Wilkison, one of our sponsors.

Troop Scribe,
Inez Ezell.

M. Lacy, of Lubbock, was here over the weekend looking after his farm interests.

A HERD OF PARMER COUNTY SPOTTEDPOLAN DS.

Our picture this week shows a herd of spotted Poland China hogs on the farm of S. H. Osborn, about 8 miles west of Friona. This herd represents hogs of nearly all ages from the young pigs to the mature brood sows, and shows that hog raising in Parmer County can be made one of the chief sources of revenue for Friona farmers, and that spotted Polands are among the best breeds for this plains country.

LOCAL LEGION MAY BUILD HALL

The American Legion of Friona, at its regular meeting here Tuesday night, among other things, discussed the probability of building a Legion Hall in this city, this being the only Legion Post in the county, and those present expressed themselves as being unanimously in favor of the project.

The city, at present, has no suitable building to be used for such purposes, and such a move on the part of the Legion will be a decided move in the right direction, and should have the most active and interested support of all our people, regardless of whether they be Legionnaires or not.

The local organization needs the hall and if built it will be arranged so that it may be used for any and all public and civic purposes, and it is to be hoped that the boys will meet with the necessary help and encouragement to make a perfect realization of their plans.

NANCY SHACKELFORD STILL IN HOSPITAL

The Star has received no recent word as it goes to press concerning the condition of Nancy Ruth Shackelford, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Shackelford, the last word received at the Star office, however, was to the effect that she was gradually improving.

Miss Nancy has been confined in a hospital in Amarillo for the past several weeks, following an operation for appendicitis. The Star joins her many other friends here in wishing for her an early recovery and return to her home here.

COMMUNITY PROGRAM

A community night program will be given in the school auditorium on Tuesday, 8:00 p. m., March 1. The new school picture projector will be used in showing educational and comedy films, from 8:00 until 8:30 o'clock. After 8:30 there will likely be a few songs by teachers. There will also be a brief discussion of current school projects and activities.

The Parent-Teacher Association will be represented in the program and will give a dialogue showing the value and importance of observing safety rules.

After all numbers of the program have been presented, the films will be shown the second time. This will give those who wish to attend the Methodist Revival Services an opportunity to attend church and also to be present for all of the Community Night Program.

METHODIST REVIVAL ENCOUR- AGING

The series of revival services that are in progress at the Methodist Church this week and to continue through next week, are receiving a satisfactory interest and attendance, according to Rev. C. R. Hardy, pastor of the church.

As is rather unusual, the meetings started off with a satisfactory attendance from the first service, and is so continuing. Rev. Orion W. Carter, pastor of the Methodist church at Memphis, is doing the preaching, with Rev. Hardy leading the singing. All the auxiliaries of the church are functioning most harmoniously and successfully.

HAS RESUMED DRILLING

Mr. O. G. Turner, who has been doing some prospecting for oil over in the State of New Mexico, informs the Star that his company resumed drilling operations again last week.

It appears that one well had been drilled to the verge of the pay sand, when drilling was stopped until the necessary arrangements could be made for bringing the well in, and during that time the well had been tampered with, so that when drilling operations were resumed it was found necessary to drill an entirely new well, and this is the drilling operations above referred to, and which are now under full headway.

Mr. Turner and those interested with him in the development of the locality as a paying oil territory feel confident that their labors will soon be rewarded in the striking of a good paying well.

E. G. Gonsler, who lives out near the Syndicate Hotel in this county, with his brother, is doing the drilling, assisted also by Mobley and Cockrell, of New Mexico, who are part owners in the drilling outfit.

HAS LETTER FROM FORMER RESIDENT

D. H. Meade last week received a letter from Mrs. Mary E. Brownlee, a former resident of this community but now of Detroit, where she has been with her son, Reed Brownlee, for the past year and a half.

Mrs. Brownlee stated that her health is no better now than when she was here, and that she probably would not return to Friona to reside, but would always think of it as her home. She gave Mr. Meade instructions to repair her house here and to rent it furnished, as her household goods were still therein, and he has rented the home and will proceed at once to effect the necessary repairs.

NEXT FARM MEETING MARCH 7

Leo McLellan, president of the Friona Farmers' Club, announces that the next regular meeting of the organization will be held Monday evening, March 7th, at the school auditorium.

Jason O. Gordon, County Farm Agent, of Farwell, will be present and will assist in the discussion of the plan for adopting a uniform variety of cotton for this community and all the territory served by the Friona Gin.

Mr. Belew, manager of the gin, has promised his cooperation in the plan and will also be present at the meeting. Messrs. Gordon and Belew will have all the information they have gathered, regarding a desirable variety, together with seed supply and prices.

Mr. McLellan urges that all farmers within this gin territory shall attend this meeting and secure all the information available concerning the plan.

Mr. and Mrs. Ditmore, who have been living in apartments in the J. W. Parr home, have moved to the new house recently completed by Mrs. S. K. Smith, near the Baptist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Audley Alexander and baby, of Muleshoe, were guests here Sunday of Mr. Alexander's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. W. Alexander.

FRIONA FARMER LIKES CONTOUR

Roy T. Slagel, one of Parmer County's most progressive and successful farmers, whose farm home is some eight miles west of Friona, is a firm believer in the method of tilling his land on a contour with the slope of the land, and in the use of a "dammer" lister as well.

In an interview with Mr. Slagel this week, he stated that on a half section about nine miles northwest of Friona, which he purchased last year, he has practiced the contouring method and used a dammer lister as well, he now has an abundance of moisture to the depth of at least four feet.

Mr. Slagel stated that when he bought the land the grass had been broken out but no crop was on the land at the time, and before he began his farming operations for summer tilling for wheat last fall, he had his contours designated by stakes and listed it with his dammer lister, and on each occasion when there was any rainfall upon the land during the summer, the furrows stood brimming full of water immediately after the rain had fallen, all of which was absorbed by the land and none of it was wasted.

He tilled the land during the summer to keep the weeds out of it partly leveling the lister furrows as he did so, and then, with plenty of moisture in the ground at seeding time, he seeded the entire tract to wheat.

As is well known by everybody in this locality, there has been very little moisture fallen here during the past winter, but Mr. Slagel, being desirous of ascertaining the condition of the land in regard to moisture at this time, went into the field one day recently, and with a post-hole digger, dug holes to a depth of at least four feet in all parts of the field, but in none of these holes did he reach any dry dirt, although in some places he dug through the soil to the underlying strata of caliche, but still found an abundance of moisture.

Mr. Slagel says his wheat on this land is looking as well as any he has seen on land that is under irrigation, and gives his hearty endorsement to the contour system of farming and the use of the dammer lister.

CITY OFFICIALS TO TAHOKA

Two members of our City Commission, Mayor F. W. Reeve and Commissioner Carl C. Maurer, drove down to Tahoka, Tuesday on a business mission for the city.

Their mission was to interview a representative of a bonding company in regard to the company taking over the city's Refunding Water Works Bonds, now being held by the Sherman Machine & Iron Works.

No deal was made at that time but a representative of the company was in Friona, Wednesday, looking over the existing conditions and making further investigations.

D. K. Roberts, of Farwell precinct, was a visitor in Friona, Monday afternoon. Mr. Roberts is a candidate for the office of County Judge of Parmer County and is making an active campaign for the nomination.

Milford Alexander spent Saturday and Sunday at Lubbock. He reports good moisture and good crop prospects in that locality.

GOLDIE STEVICK PASSED AWAY

The hearts of all our people were shocked and saddened on Friday morning of last week, when it was made known that the Angel of Death had spread his sombre wings again over our city and had removed from our midst one of our most highly esteemed young ladies, Miss Goldie Stevick, daughter of Mrs. Eva Stevick.

The news of her death came as a shock to all her friends owing to the fact that very few of them were aware of the fact that she was sick, her death coming after an illness of eight days, but the family not feeling that her ailment was serious, had not made the fact known to the neighbors.

Miss Stevick was born in Ohio on January 4th, 1904, and came to Friona with her parents in the year 1907, when she was but three years of age, and the remainder of her life was spent in Friona or the immediate vicinity.

She was a graduate of the Friona High School, and served as assistant post mistress under post mistress Mr. Sutton, and post master J. A. Guyer, since which time she has remained at home with her mother and sister and brother, assisting in the work of the household. In 1924 she became a member of the Friona Union Congregational Church, of which she has ever since been a consistent and active member, and has for several years been the faithful and attentive secretary of the Sunday school, which office she held at the time of her death, and the duties of which she performed out of a pure motive to do what she could in the service of her Master.

Her death, which came totally unexpected, even by the other members of her family, occurred at about eight o'clock Friday morning, February 18th, at the age of 34 years, 1 month and four days, and the funeral services were held at the Congregational church at 2:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Carl C. Dollar, newly arrived pastor of the church, following which the remains were laid to rest in the Friona cemetery, with Clyde Goodwine, Carl Maurer, Oscar Lange, Glenn Reeve and Otha Whitefield serving as pall bearers.

By her gentle and kindly disposition she won the friendship and esteem of all who knew her besides whom she leaves of her immediate family, her mother, Mrs. Eva Stevick, one sister, Miss Lottie Stevick and three brothers, Walter, Otha and Orval Stevick, to mourn her untimely death.

The Star joins with the other many friends of the family in extending sympathy to the bereaved loved ones.

SEVERELY INJURED IN CAR WRECK

Two people, a man and his wife, residents of Kansas, whose names the Star was unable to learn, came near losing their lives at the Friona Draw Bridge a mile west of Friona, Saturday morning of last week, when their car collided with the concrete railing at one end of the bridge.

It appears that for some reason the man, who was driving, undertook to swerve the course of the car and the slippery condition of the road caused the car to skid and threw the front end of the car upon the end of the railing, and the car losing its balance, rolled over into the ditch, which was several feet deep at that point.

Both were made unconscious by the fall, and the man had just recovered consciousness and had succeeded in getting his wife from the car, when some passerby took them into his car and brought them to Friona, where, owing to the absence of a physician, only meagre first aid could be given them, and a doctor at Hereford was called, who sent an ambulance and they were taken to the Deaf Smith County hospital at that city.

The lady suffered a broken arm and other minor bruises, while the man had a long and deep gash cut on his head, which required 21 stitches to close. No injuries of a fatal nature were received by either of them and at last reports here they were recovering. The car was not so badly damaged but that it can be repaired, and it is thought they will soon be able to resume their journey homeward.

MRS. STEVICK QUITE ILL

Mrs. Eva Stevick, who was taken ill on Tuesday of last week with an attack of influenza, is still quite seriously ill, but at this writing is reported somewhat improved.

Bees' Ancient Rookies Face 2nd Year Jinx

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY

CAN Jim Turner and Lou Fette, the Boston Bees' "graybeard rookies," escape the second year jinx that baffles so many baseball sophomores after a sensational first year performance?

That's the question fans everywhere are asking about these thirty-one-year-old pitchers as the spring training season gets under way. The answer won't be written until the season winds up next October. But many informed baseball men are betting that they will overcome this jinx the same as they upset the tradition that minor league veterans can't make good in the big leagues.

Getting their first big-league trial after more than a decade in the minors, these astonishing veterans each won 20 games for Boston in 1937, or more than Fireball Van Lingle Mungo has ever won in a single season. Together they accounted for more than half the games the Bees won. Their combined record was better than that of all the other pitchers on the staff put together.

Turner led the entire National league in effectiveness with an average of 2.38 earned runs per nine-inning game, pitched the greatest number of complete games, 24, and shared with his ancient colleague Fette in pitching the most shutouts, each turning in five.

Baseball Fatalists

Neither pitcher expects to duplicate his 1937 performance, for they are baseball realists and know that bad breaks, poor support, injuries and any one of a number of things can turn the tide against them. But they don't expect to have a poor season. They think they have a better chance of getting by the jinx than lots of young fellows because of their experience, maturity, attention to keeping in condition and their complete lack of over-confidence. During the winter, Turner kept himself in shape by working for a dairy in his home town of Molensville, Tenn. Fette, over in Alma, Mo., did chores around the farm, went hunting and hiking and kept down to pitching weight.

It was due to the astuteness of Bill McKechnie, then manager of the Bees and now pilot of the Cincinnati Reds, that Turner and Fette were rescued from the American association in 1937. He gambled on them and they paid out.

Turner pitched for Indianapolis and Fette for St. Paul. Year after year they worked, not getting a nod from the big leagues. Neither was spectacular. Neither had much color. Both had fair speed, an average curve and good control. Both won their share of games.

But when major league scouts dropped into the ball park, it wasn't Turner or Fette they were looking at, but some flashy youngster.

Age Creeps On

After they passed the age of twenty-five, they began to be resigned, but kept plugging along anyway. Scouts who might happen to see them pitch would say: "They're good bushers, but not big time call-bers. Too old. Not enough zip."

Turner had a try in the big leagues at the tender age of seventeen, in 1924, when he made the spring training trip with the Boston Red Sox. But that was the nearest he got to fast company until the Bees grabbed him early last year.

He believes he was a pitcher of major league dimensions as far back as 1930.

"About that time I learned to use my head as well as my arm," he explains, "and I think I could have made good in the majors."

But the scouts continued to ignore him and Fette until McKechnie got the bright idea they might help him at Boston. Other big league managers grinned when it was announced that these elderly rookies were pitching for the Bees. But the grins faded when Jim and Lou outgassed their star batters.

Home to Big Ten

Returning to the Big Ten conference for the third time, Herbert O. "Fritz" Crisler takes the job of football coach and assistant director of athletics at the University of Michigan, left vacant when Harry Kipke was fired a while back.

Crisler came first to the conference as a gangling, round-shouldered kid at the University of Chicago about the close of the World war. He hadn't played football in high school but he soon showed he could do it in college. He became a star end and will be remembered for his play in the epic Princeton-Chicago games of the early twenties.

Next he was an assistant coach at Chicago under A. A. Stagg. Then he became head coach at Minnesota, winning conference titles. Six years ago Princeton signed him. The Tiger football fortunes were in the doldrums.

Under his six-year tutelage Princeton won 35 games, lost nine and tied five. Two of his Princeton teams went undefeated, in 1933 and again in 1935, each eleven winning nine straight games.

Crisler will be assistant director of athletics at Michigan. The supposition is that he will succeed Fielding H. Yost, when that veteran of sixty-seven retires three years hence at the age of seventy.

Incidentally, the Big Ten to which Crisler is returning, recently celebrated its forty-second birthday. In 1896 the appointed faculty representatives of seven large midwestern universities met for the first time as the organization which today stands as a leader of 73 similar college alliances scattered throughout the United States.

Institute of Golf

Robert T. "Bobby" Jones, Jr., lawyer and golfer supreme, has added another title to his distinguished list. He is director of the recently launched American Golf institute.

The Institute, as Bobby explains it, will serve as a "clearing house for all kinds of information relating to the game of golf."

And the "grand slam" king emphasized the words "all kinds." He said:

"We do not plan to compete or conflict with the U. S. G. A., the Professional Golfers' association, and others, but we will do all in our power to stimulate interest in golf as a game. We'll answer questions, give advice on financial matters, on club layouts. In fact, anything that is golf." He revealed that he will be an entrant in the Masters' Golf tournament held annually at Augusta, Ga., early in April.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK... By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—In 1929, at the age of seventy-one, Frederick H. Prince, the Boston banker, was still playing polo. He has great faith in the durability of men, institutions

Time Better Than Reform for Business

He left for Europe to forget about business for a while and intimates that it would be a good thing if the government would be similarly neglectful. "Washington should stop trying to reform business and leave the situation to time," he says.

Time has treated him nicely and he may well give it a testimonial. At seventy-nine, he is the grand seigneur of American business. Only four years ago, he engaged in a hard-hitting slugfest over the control of Armour & Co.

He got what he was after—the chairmanship of the board. He has many such trophies, having controlled 46 railroads, and, in general, one of the biggest cuts in the American dream of any man of his day.

His (mainly liquid) fortune is estimated at around $250,000,000. But for many years, he says, he has made it a point to be about $20,000,000 in debt. That is revealing in connection with his ideas about money and success. He emphasizes the dynamics of money. It isn't money unless it is working. Stagnant money just dries up and blows away. Hence you draw cards even if you do have to drag a few chips for markers.

Makes Point of Being in Debt Always

He's a little too heavy for polo, with a massive gray head, deep sunken, pondering eyes, and heavy, gray moustache; a bit grim, perhaps, but not formidable. When, early in October, 1929, a small black cloud appeared on the horizon, he viewed it with a telescopic eye, saw it for what it was, and got out of the market.

The cyclone never touched him. Until a few years ago, he was still riding to the hounds at Pau, in southern France, master of the hunt. He has marble palaces here and there, one of them the former mansion of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, at Newport. Remarking that he has been in business 55 years, he says this little squall will blow over in two or three months.

THE reason isn't quite clear, but, these days, the colleges compete for tuba players as well as athletes.

Tuba Aces Prized Same as Athletes

Dr. Walter Albert Jessup deplores this and other phases of the scramble for students in the annual report of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, of which he is president. The fight seems to be entirely in the field of extra-curricular activities. No mere scholar gets competing bids from rival faculties.

Since he became head of the Carnegie foundation, in 1933, Dr. Jessup has been a consistent deflationist, so far as education is concerned. He wants fewer and better students in the colleges. He assails the colleges which would "teach anybody anything." He is against educational trappings, excesses and gadgets, as the little Scotch ironmaster doubtless would be if he were looking over the current scene.

Brain Mill Needs Raw Material

So they go after even the tuba players. At any rate, each can blow its own horn.

Dr. Jessup was president of the University of Iowa from 1916 to 1933. A native of Richmond, Ind., he was educated at Earlham college and Columbia and gathered several honorary degrees in later years. He was superintendent of schools in Indiana and dean of the college of education of Indiana university. He has won high distinction in the educational field and is the author of a book on arithmetic.

One gathers that he would not recommend Benny Goodman for a college faculty and that quite probably the next Carnegie report may find adversely on the shag, the eeper and the susy-q. He is for low kicking and high thinking, as against the prevailing reversal of this formula.

Giants Short Lived

The circus giant, the man with abnormally long legs or other abnormalities of frame, is a short-lived human. Tall men fall into two classes, those who attain their extraordinary growth because of inherited tendencies and those who become freaks because of some upset in the glandular functions. The man who "comes by his height naturally" usually lives a normal life span, but the freak seldom attains middle age. An insurance company, given to research in such matters, found that a number of men ranging from 7 feet 6 inches tall to 8 feet 7 inches had an average life of thirty-four years. The oldest died at forty-five, the youngest at twenty-seven.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

If You Are Making a Crazy Patch Quilt.

MAKING an old-fashioned silk crazy patch quilt is a simply fascinating thing to do. From the moment you start collecting bits of silk and satin and velvet until the second you invent your own combination of embroidery stitches it holds your interest.

This type of quilt is not quilted after piecing, but tied like a comforter. No padding is needed if soft warm material is used for the foundation. The pieces are always in irregular shapes—often very tiny and the largest is seldom more than four or five inches long. They are pinned or basted to a foundation of soft muslin, flannel or an old wool blanket is good to use. One patch shown here is a piece of ribbon and the selvages are not turned or covered. It is best to arrange a number of patches before you start to sew them in place with the embroidery stitches.

The embroidery is really used to give balance and unity to the whole design. If a patch seems too light make it darker by embroidering it in dark thread. If it seems too plain you can trace the little forget-me-not design shown here onto it and embroider it in natural colors or use some of the more simple designs shown here as fillers.

Many more authentic old patchwork stitches are in a new leaflet which is now included with the book offered herewith. This book also tells you how the draperies in today's sketch are interlined.

Every homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; curtains for every type of room; lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address, enclosing 25 cents (coins preferred) to Mrs. Spears, 210 South Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Progress Ignores Doubters

Railroads were opposed because people said they would startle people and cause premature births among women, cattle and hogs; cause cows to cease giving milk, and stop hens from laying. Automobiles went through the same barrage of opposition. Airplanes are still looked upon with suspicion by the older generation.

On the Highway

Probably the worst fault in driving a car is believing you haven't any fault.

The dullest drivers usually have the brightest headlights. Many a woman thinks she can drive as well as a man, and, too often, it's the sad, sad truth.

It isn't so funny to be a crazy driver as it is crazy to be a funny driver.

Less automobile horn blowing—and more responsibility.

Kisses may shorten life, says a physician. Especially when you snatch them while driving a car.

Strange Facts

Sounds Can Be Photographed

SURPRISING as it seems, it is possible to take pictures of sound. A flame can be made to vibrate in unison with a sound wave and the vibration of the flame then be photographed with the aid of a revolving mirror. Such photographs are useful because they help to identify the overtones of musical instruments.

Closely allied to the subject of sound is the science of acoustics, that branch of physics which has to do with making sound easily and distinctly heard in large rooms, halls, or out-of-door meeting places. In the construction of theaters, churches, or concert halls the matter of acoustics is of great importance. A room is said to have poor acoustics when sounds from the front cannot be heard clearly in every part of the room or when troublesome echoes are produced. Echoes are caused by the reflection of sound waves from large, smooth surfaces—in a room, from walls, floor, or ceiling. If the room is so constructed that there are no large surfaces of wall, the echo is broken up into small waves, none of which is heard by the listener. Smooth surfaces can also be broken up by curtains or by rearrangement of furniture, thus improving the acoustic properties of a structure with reasonable accuracy from the architect's plans. Notice how strange your voice sounds in a large empty room without furniture, curtains, pictures and carpets. In the same room, completely furnished, your voice sounds more "natural." That is a simple experiment in the science of acoustics.

Loud Noise
A man was trying to rent an apartment in one of the most modern apartment houses in his city.
"Have you any children?" roared the owner.
"No, sir," replied the prospect, meekly.
"Any dog?"
"No, sir."
"Any cat or canary?"
"No, sir. But I have a fountain pen that scratches a little. Would that be objectionable?"

Three Frocks—a Wardrobe

IF YOU want to be all set for a full and gay Spring, have these three dresses in your wardrobe. Something for morning, something for street and a lovely frock for afternoon parties. All three are easy to make. And you can have the complete group for a fraction of what you would usually spend, if you make them at home.

The Patterns.
1976 is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 34 requires 4 1/4 yards of 35-inch fabric.
1452 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 16 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch fabric.
1451 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 5 1/2 yards of 39-inch fabric. For collar in contrast 1/2 yard.

Shirtwaist Style.
Trim and tailored, this is the favorite silhouette for Spring. The skirt with kick pleat back and front is fun to wear, very comfortable for walking and going about your daily work. Note the yoke top and inverted pleat in back of bodice to permit perfect freedom. It is a grand spectator sports dress and will make up beautifully in silk crepe, rayon print or cotton fabrics.

Princess for Morning.
You'll feel sweet as sixteen in this pretty square-necked princess dress with fitted lines. The silhouette is molded and slim. Note the pretty sleeves, puffed high, to make the waistline look even smaller. Choose a pretty cotton print or one of the new rayons to make a dress as charming as the one shown. You'll find the pattern complete with sew chart telling you exactly how to proceed.

Fitted Lines for Afternoon.
Look lovely and picturesque in this frock on molded lines with uplift at the waist and soft shirring in front of bodice. The roll collar and low V neckline is very slenderizing. You'll enjoy the good lines, the flattery of this dress and its grand wearability. Whether it is a luncheon for six or a dinner at eight, you'll be correctly dressed in this frock.

Uncle Phil Says:
Excrete the "Maybe" Man
There is a constitutionally "no" man. You don't like him because he is stubborn. You also dislike the "yes" man. What about the "maybe" man?
At first Fortune smiles, after you have made your pile, then she threatens.
Common sense is mostly the ability to estimate results of one's actions.

Special laws should be made for special malefactors. The trouble is we are saturated with the idea that all must be punished alike to reform a single group.

Guide-Book to Good Values
When you plan a trip abroad, you can take a guide-book and figure out exactly where you want to go, how long you can stay, and what it will cost you. To save you time, the obliging author has marked especially interesting places with a star, or two or three—so that when you land in Europe, you know exactly where to go and what to look at. The advertisements in this paper are really a guide-book to good values... brought up to date every week. If you make a habit of reading them carefully, you can plan your shopping trips and save yourself time, energy and money.

WHEN COLDS BRING SORE THROAT

The speed with which Bayer tablets act in relieving the distressing symptoms of colds and accompanying sore throat is utterly amazing... and the treatment is simple and pleasant. This is all you do. Crush and dissolve three genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets in one-third glass of water. Then gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back.
This medicinal gargle will act almost like a local anesthetic on the sore, irritated membrane of your throat. Pain eases promptly; rawness is relieved.
You will say it is remarkable. And the few cents it costs effects a big saving over expensive "throat gargles" and strong medicines. And when you buy, see that you get genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.
Plan With Vigor
The method of the enterprising is to plan with vigor; to sketch out a map of possibilities, and then treat them as probabilities. —Bovee.

JODOK
"dope fiends" so to speak. Personally, I believe that is the most clever and sensible way of putting it, that I have ever heard, and so it seemed to affect all who heard it.

Yes, and another man in the group, as I recall, was John Silver-tooth, and when the discourse drifted back into a kind of reminiscent vein, and they began talking about the time a few years ago, when government representatives came into our community and began shooting cattle and hogs, and cutting off the heads of sheep, which had been paid for by the government in order to cut out the overproduction of meat in the country, although I have been told that there were thousands of people in the United States then almost starving for enough meat to keep them alive.

Well! anyway, John told this story about a government man who was sent out to select this stock to be killed, and he came across a billy goat in a herd of cattle or sheep, and he did not know what it was, so he wrote back to Secretary Wallace to find out what to do with it. He described it as an animal with a long face, a longer beard, and wearing a rough, unkempt, shaggy coat.

Well, Mr. Wallace, or some of his assistants wrote back to the man and told him: "That animal is a 'farmer.' Don't kill it. The government may have some use for it later on."

I did not witness the circumstance and therefore do not know anything about it; but John told it for the truth, "if he ever told the truth," as Col. Erasmus Tack frequently says.

Well, we are making arrangements for our fourth annual Farmer County Meat and Calf Show, to be held here on Saturday of next week, March 5th, and our old tried and trusty committee on arrangements, Messrs. Prof. J. T. Gee, head of the Department of Vocational Agriculture of the Friona High School; Dan Ethridge, insurance man and president of the local chamber of commerce; and Howard G. Morris, of the Buchanan Implement Company, all of whom are deeply interested in the welfare and progress of all branches of farming in the county, and especially that being done by our boys; are making every effort in their power to make this the biggest and best show we have ever had.

And I am planning strongly on being there, or at least for a part of the day, even if I have to get John Chronister or Oscar Turner to take my place on the street corner, to keep an eye and ear open for what is said and done there while I am gone to the show. For I sure like to look at nice fat calves, and more especially at the many good things to eat that will be placed on display there, by the members of the various home demonstration clubs, of the county, which will be under the direction of Miss Margaret St. Clair, our very efficient County Home Demonstration Agent, for I sure like good things to eat. I hope everybody in the county will be able to attend this show for at least a part of the day. Just come on in, People, it will do you good to see this show.

FRIONA WEATHER

During the past week we have not had very much clear weather, neither have we had a great deal of moisture in the form of rain or snow, but some of each, and a great deal of fog and mist, totalling, perhaps, a half inch in all.

A few days the weather was rather chilly and Sunday afternoon and Monday were about as cool as any we have had this winter. Several little flurries of snow and a few very light showers of rain have fallen, and on Saturday night we received about an inch and a half of good snow, with a three inch fall again on Sunday night. And fortunately, there was not wind enough to blow it away, so that by Wednesday afternoon it was practically all melted where it fell and had gone into the ground.

Farmers all say we have not had as much moisture yet as we need, but that it will be of great benefit to the wheat in carrying it through for a few weeks longer, possibly until spring. We are all grateful for what we have thus far received and sincerely hope for more rain or snow.

DR. STOVER TAKEN TO QUANNAH

Dr. J. E. Stover was taken with an attack of pneumonia the latter part of last week, and was removed from his home here to a hospital at Quannah, near his former home at Truscott.

Word was received here early in the week to the effect that the doctor was relieved of the pneumonia and would probably be able to return to his home and office here in the very near future. Friona is entirely without a physician during Dr. Stover's absence.

W. H. GARRETT MAKES CORRECTION

W. H. Garrett, one of the Star's farmer friends living several miles southeast of Friona, paid the Star office a friendly visit Wednesday afternoon, and while here made the necessary arrangements for the Star to continue its weekly visits to his home during the present year.

Mr. Garrett stated that he has been employed on the local highway work during the past few weeks, and that the work of building the crossings connecting the highway with the various streets of the city is being done by the highway contractors and not by the PWA, as was erroneously stated in last week's issue of the Star.

The Star appreciates Mr. Garrett's visit and correction and hopes he will visit us oftener.

EMERGENCY CROP AND FEED LOANS AVAILABLE

Applications for emergency crop and feed loans for 1938 are now being received at the courthouse in Farwell by Carl Hill, Field Supervisor of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration.

The loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers who cannot obtain credit from any other source. The money loaned will be limited to the farmer's immediate and actual cash needs for growing his 1938 crops or for the purchase of feed for livestock, and the amount which may be loaned to any one farmer in 1938 may not exceed $400.

Farmers who can obtain the funds they need from an individual, production credit association, bank, or other concern are not eligible for crop and feed loans from the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration. The loans will not be made to standard rehabilitation clients whose current needs are provided for by the Farm Security Administration, formerly known as the Resettlement Administration.

As in the past, farmers who obtain emergency crop and feed loans will give as security a first lien on the crop financed, or a first lien on the livestock to be fed if the money borrowed is to be used to produce or purchase feed for livestock.

Where loans are made to tenants, the landlords, or others having an interest in the crops financed or the livestock to be fed, are required to waive their claims in favor of a lien to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration until the loan is repaid.

Checks on payment of approved loans will be mailed from the Regional Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office at Dallas, Texas.

HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUBS

HUB DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Hub Club met at the home of Mrs. A. H. Boatman, Wednesday, February 16, with eleven members and two visitors present.

The meeting was called to order and the business was taken care of. Mrs. Boatman then gave a report of Miss Swift's talk at Bovina on Monday, and Mrs. Jones gave a report on the Council meeting at Bovina on Saturday. Miss St. Clair gave a demonstration on the making of sweet breads.

The refreshments consisted of the sweet breads and coffee. Those attending were: Meses Clifford Boatman, Will Jones, Cayson Jones, R. F. Jones, C. R. Owens, Ernes Gatlin, Clarence Day, Eula Newton, Luther Boatman, Russell Loflin, A. H. Boatman, Ervine Boatman, Bell Parr and Miss St. Clair.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Clarence Day, Friday, March 4th. The subject will be "Yeast Breads for Lunches." All members are urged to come and bring a friend.

FRIONA HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

Despite the snow and cold Thursday afternoon, February 17, our home demonstration club turned out with eleven ladies present. Miss Margaret St. Clair assisted by Mrs. Parr from Paris, Texas, gave a very interesting demonstration on yeast sweet dough variations, making pecan butterscotch rolls, dutch apple cake, Swedish tea rolls, braid, pecan coffee cake and plain coffee cake. Two visitors, Mr. Ralph New and Mr. J. M. W. Alexander enjoyed the delicious rolls and cake with us, and voted the pecan butterscotch rolls the best.

Our roll call was answered by giving our favorite sweet roll. Mrs. B. A. Hughes gave a report of our last council meeting. We still have a few year books, so if you want one ask for it at our next meeting, which will be Thursday, March 3. We are always glad to have visitors, so come again and bring someone with you.

EASTER SEAL SALE FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Dallas, Feb. 24—Without distinction as to the causes of their ailment, all crippled children of Texas will be aided by the annual Easter Seal sales campaign conducted by the Texas Society for Crippled Children. The President's Birthday celebrations, recently successful throughout the nation, were to aid victims of infantile paralysis only. The Spring campaign of the Texas Society for Crippled Children is to raise money for children accidentally crippled, crippled by disease, or crippled from birth. The money will go to aid unfortunate children with club feet or cleft palates as well as those deformed through infantile paralysis or similar diseases.

Abe Goldberg of Port Arthur, noted for his philanthropic work, is the Easter Seal chairman for the state. With him are serving Charles F. Ashcroft, Sulphur Springs; Sam Whitley, Commerce; Mrs. A. Y. Troutman, San Antonio; Thomas S. Reed, Beaumont; W. H. Richardson, Austin; and Milton Warner, El Paso. Every county in Texas will be organized for the Easter Seal Sale which will commence April 1 and last until Easter Sunday, April 17. Chairman Goldberg expects that Texas will contribute $50,000 toward crippled children as the result of this drive. The money raised will be spent for crippled children in Texas and none will be sent out of the state except for the purchase of seals.

Mrs. "Tater" Webb and baby, of Dismitt, spent Tuesday here visiting relatives and friends. Mrs. Webb was formerly Miss Myrtle Ricks and is a sister of Mrs. Fred Rogers.

Royal Breeding on Exhibit
The Friona Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a livestock show to recognize the livestock breeders in Parmer county, and particularly to provide a central place where all the well-bred animals may be displayed.

We each have a great part in making the show successful. Our attendance at the exhibitors' banquet on Friday night, March 4th, and all day Saturday, March 5th, is a small contribution. Yet the members of the Chamber of Commerce would be well repaid for this work if a large crowd is present to see the outstanding animals which may be exhibited.

Your county agent is working up a list of pure-bred breeders in this county. We would like to establish an information desk providing the names of the breeders and a pedigree tabulation of high bred animals. We hope to attract breeders who are looking for registered animals. If the reader has only one registered animal, we would appreciate you mailing your registration papers to this county office. These valuable papers will be promptly returned to you.

What better advertisement of your breeding herd would you ask than to have several animals on exhibit at this county show, together with their pedigrees accessible to a prospective buyer?

MOTHERS-IN-LAW GET SEATING PREFERENCE TO HEAR FIRST LADY

Mothers-in-law of the Panhandle will be given preference over all others who want to hear Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt when she lectures Mar. 9 in Amarillo.

America's No. 1 mother-in-law will speak in Amarillo's municipal auditorium as part of the celebration, expected to attract one of the Southwest's largest crowds.

Reservations for the lecture may be made now by mail. Tickets will be $1.75 or 50c and all orders sent to Lois Black at The Globe-News office in Amarillo should be accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

"The demand for seats will exceed the supply so if you plan to hear the First Lady of the Land make your reservations now to avoid disappointment," said Miss Louise Evans, who has charge of arrangements.

Valerian, an Old Plant

Valerian was supposed to have been poured in ancient form upon Christ's feet by Mary Magdalene. One of the Hindu legends pertaining to this plant is that a man after planting one of the plants went away for a long visit. He told his wife to care for this plant patiently until he returned. This man dressed as a beggar and came back unexpectedly one day to see if his wife had fulfilled her promise. This was his test of her faithfulness to him. He found the plant in fine condition and they lived happily ever after. Valerian is sometimes used for seasoning in broths.

HEALTH NOTES

Austin, Texas—Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, states that slightly more than eleven Texans die each day from tuberculosis. In other words, over four thousand persons died of this disease last year.

In these days of economy, when the seeds of disease are being sown in the bodies of undernourished children, the prevention of tuberculosis is more necessary than ever. Tuberculosis formerly held first place as a cause of death; it now ranks third in Texas, while for the country as a whole it ranks seventh. Pneumonia was the only communicable disease that caused more deaths last year than did tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis has been known for centuries and constant search for a specific cure has been the goal of doctors for many years. However no medicine, yet discovered, will cure this disease. The treatment consists of rest, proper food, fresh air and proper medical supervision.

The greatest loss of life from this disease is between the ages of 20 to 40 years, and its economic cost to families and the State is enormous. Tuberculosis can be arrested if found in its early stages, therefore, the State Department of Health urges that everyone not feeling up to par should go to their family physician for a complete physical examination. In this way early beginnings of tuberculosis or other disease may be discovered in their early curable stage.

Roy Williams and Miss Ann Johnson drove over to Abernathy Sunday, and spent the day with relatives and friends there.

Everybody should bear in mind that the annual Parmer County Meat and Calf Show will be held at Friona on Saturday, March 5.

SYNOPSIS

In Spanish-governed California of 1783 a conflict between Church and State is represented by two friendly enemies, frail old Fray Junipero Serra, Franciscan missionary, and Don Pedro Fages, civil governor. After telling Serra he is sending to Mexico for his wife and son whom he has not seen for eight years, Don Pedro refuses his aid toward the founding of the Santa Barbara mission, Serra's cherished dream, and the two part in bitterness. In Mexico City, Dona Eulalia, accompanied by her duenna, Angustias, arrives at the embassy in response to a letter from her husband, Don Pedro. Shown a map of California by the viceroys, she is told that there she would be a queen in her own right.

CHAPTER II—Continued

"I suppose," she panted, then took a deep breath and spoke defiantly, coldly, "I suppose I may take my coach to Monterey?"
As she left the room the three men looked at one another.
"Why did you tell her she might take her coach?" expostulated General de Neve to Romeo.
"Um-m-m—she might," he answered slowly.
The Viceroy was looking at the map.
"I have heard," he said, tracing a trail with his finger, "that there are places on the road where scarcely a burro can pick its way."
"Right," agreed de Neve. "There are places where she will have to go on foot."

CHAPTER III

Father Junipero Serra paced quietly along the dusty road, little more than a path, that led from the humble adobe church of San Carlos Borromeo to a hut where an Indian lay dying. Only an Indian, but Padre Serra wore vestments suitable to the occasion, and bore in his hands the sacred oil.
Some time later, the Indian's soul having been commended to Heaven, Father Serra started back to the mission.
Horses' hoofs suddenly shook the ground. Two horsemen rode beside him as he limped steadily on, murmuring a psalm. They dismounted near him. One, as he dropped on his knees, crossed himself and threw his reins to the other with the same gesture. Padre Serra did not glance at them as they knelt beside the path. But he knew well who they were: Don Pedro Fages, Gobernador-General of the Californias, and his servant were on their knees at the passing of the sacrament.

"Hola!" Called Serra.

When he had returned sacrament and pyx to the church and divested himself, Pio told him that the Gobernador was waiting to see him. He sighed deeply.
He had seen the Gobernador many times since they had parted so bitterly that autumn evening. But only at mass. They had never exchanged a word since then. As he tied the heavy cord about his robe, his fingers trembled. He prepared himself for the interview with a brief fervent prayer, and went to meet Don Pedro.
There was a slight embarrassed silence, then the Governor moved impulsively forward and knelt at the priest's feet.
"Your blessing, Father," he begged.
"With all my heart!" answered the Franciscan, lifting his hands over the broad shoulders of the kneeling man.
Then Fages rose with a deep breath, and a smile.
"Well!" he said.
"Ah, Padre mio, I have news for you! Great news, good news! Your prayers have been answered, and so have mine!"
"You mean—"
"Yes! Your two men of God are arriving, and we shall consider the Mission Santa Barbara. These priests are coming in the train that brings my wife and son to me, and I am—"
But the priest heard only the first words, and was stumbling toward a chair to support his trembling frame, murmuring, "Ave Maria Purissima! Ave Maria!" For a moment his head rolled against the back of the chair, and his eyes closed.
Fages knelt by him, and looked anxiously into his face.
"Father, Father, what is it?" he asked as he chafed the worn trembling hands.
"It is more than I can bear. Pardon my weakness, your Excellency, but I have spent so many hours in prayer, and I have hoped, and I feared, so about this matter. I should have had greater faith. Ah, praise God!"
Fages poured wine from a jug on the table and carried it to Serra.
They drank, and smiled over the cups.
"Yes, they are coming. They are even now on their way. Everything comes to pass in good time, Father."

"It is strange you should have to tell me that, my son. I will have to do many penances for my lack of faith, I am afraid."
"Ah, no. You are a saint. But think! Even now the cavalcade is on its way, with my Dona Eulalia, and Pedro the Younger, as he is called, for me."
Serra rose from his chair and limped to the Governor. "Ah, forgive me, I have not congratulated you on your happiness. How joyful you must be! What a happiness to have your family with you. And when will this cavalcade be arriving?"
Fages frowned. "The time will go so slowly I hardly dare compute it. It will be months, of course, nearly a year. But because it is spring now, they will be in Monterey before the old year passes. I am going to meet them!" he said, excitedly pacing back and forth. "Yes, I am going to meet them, and escort them here in safety. I am going at once, Father, for they have by this time departed from Loreto."
The priest smiled at his impetuous speech.
"I'm sure you should go. You would be too impatient to sit here and wait, as I must do. But I shall be here to greet you all when you return."

"Ah, yes, there was something I wanted to ask. I must have my house in order and I want to have the little Indian maid, Indizuella, in the house for my wife's servant. Will you see to that?"
Serra's face fell.
"What is the matter? Does she not do well?"
"Very well, indeed. She has been taught to sew, spin, cook and will be a good wife for a good soldier. But need I remind you that the Indian neophytes are wards of the Church, and we are responsible for their welfare? We have not deemed it well for the Indian maids to associate with the—with the—"
"With the soldiery, I suppose? Well, good Father, do not be afraid. She will associate with my wife, and I assure you she is not a soldier-like person at all, and will not corrupt the little one's morals."
The father protested. "I do not mean that . . ."
"And there will be another woman, too. There is the Dona Angustias. Ha! She will make that Indian maid adhere to the straight and narrow path. She is my wife's duenna, a very thin female with mustachios like a grenadier, a pious churchwoman, and a militant virgin."

Serra smiled. "Ah, my son, your humor is dear to me. You are responsible for many a smile that would not otherwise have lightened my face, just as you are responsible for many a heartache—but none of that. Come with me, Don Pedro, and you shall see Indizuella."
They paced slowly together, and stopped before an unpretentious structure, built as all the other mission buildings were built, long and low, with a thatched roof.
"Hola!" called Serra. The chattering and laughter that rolled through the high barred window apertures stopped. A song ceased suddenly in a singer's throat.
It was the quarters of the young Indian women, half facetiously called the monjeras—the nunnery. The sun shone on the warm red of tiled floors, and vividly emphasized bright colors on blankets and cloth which some of the girls were weaving. It shone on sleek blue-black heads raised for a moment from fine needlework, and seemed to point out to Fages' eyes a young girl, whose half-opened mouth had still a fragment of song lingering on the lips.
"Indizuella!" called a woman's voice excitedly. "Grisa! Do you not see? It is El Gobernador himself! And Fray Junipero! Rise, all of you!" There was a great fluttering, as the Spanish matron and her flock of dark doves made their obeisances. When they were seated again, and pretending to work, Fray Junipero walked to Indizuella and took her by the hand, saying, "Your benefactor, El Gobernador, wishes to speak to you, child."

The singing girl walked toward the Governor with grace and poise. "Somehow lighter, somehow taller, somehow fairer-formed than other Indians," he thought as she came the long length of the room.
She waited for him to speak first, but he only twisted his beard, so she spoke in careful Spanish.
"I hope you are well, Senor el Gobernador. I pray God for your good health and deliverance from all infirmities. I thank God daily for your kindness in saving me from death and horror."
Fages started at her words. "Someone has taught you to say that! You have learned it word by word. Haven't you?"
"Si, Senor el Gobernador. Padre Junipero and Dona Maria have taught me."
Fages laughed, twinkling his eyes and opening his mouth widely. The other girls and the matron looked at one another. Serra looked at the floor.
"Have you, then, so little gratitude that you must have words put into your mouth to thank me for bringing you here from the desert of the Colorado where I found you deserted and starving? What say you?"
The girl looked at the matron—then proceeded along her own lines. "They would not let me say the things I think myself, Senor. For I have said you are the most wonderful man in the world. I think you are a god, surely, and that—"
"Ai, ai! Indizuella." The matron hurried forward, and Father Serra lifted a restraining hand. But Fages only roared louder.
"You are right, Dona Maria, and Fray Junipero! Don't let her talk about me! A god—a hero! Ai, ai, ai! Ho, ho—" He stopped breathlessly. The girls giggled, and Indizuella sat indifferently down to her weaving.
At last Fages got his breath. "After all, Padre Junipero," he said, "she is just a child."
"My son," answered the friar, "I am pleased at your unworshipfulness. Come with me and see this dove-cote." He led the Governor through the long dormitory where he could see little straw pallets beneath barred windows.
"Nests where they sleep at night, safe from harm," explained the priest.
They went into the kitchen where great bowls of mush boiled and bubbled, and curious girls watched the process that they might learn it. Then they passed into the garden.
"Now, Padre Fages," said Serra gravely, "think well on what you have seen. Remember this dove-cote where ignorant Indian girls are made into useful pious women, where they are kept safe from the evils of the world. Most of the girls you have seen so busily engaged, would have been depraved animals had it not been for the teaching we bring them."
"I know," replied the Governor thoughtfully.
"Do you not think they are better off as they are?" inquired Serra anxiously. "Do you not think they are really happier? Think of their lives as savages! You know as well as I the frightful filthy customs that attend the Indian women at their child-bearing—"
"Ugh, indeed I do, Padre." He put his hand on the other's shoulder. "You are a wonder worker," he said respectfully.
"Thank you. Oh, I have prayed, my son, that the blessed Santa Maria would soften your heart toward her poor savage children. If that had happened—if that could happen—the way of Junipero Serra

Paris Thieves Re-Enact a Crime, Then Find the Job Recorded by the Camera

From the days of Vidocq, who founded the French national detective service under the name of La Surete Generale, in 1830—now the adjective is "Nationale"—the scientific reconstruction of crime as an aid to successful solution has been generally practiced, writes a correspondent in the New York Times.
Both assassin and robber have been forced, whenever possible, to reproduce in the original environment the maneuvers which caused their arrest. When not possible, detectives themselves have assumed the roles.
The underworld of Paris has become so accustomed to these "reconstructions" that its most unfortunate members take pride in their acting and even ensure the absence of "properties." The "surface fraternity," however, consisting chiefly of pickpockets and shoplifters, was thrown into consternation when two of its most recent recruits from Poland were not only made to reconstruct their delinquencies but to do so under the retentive eye of the camera—an innovation that caused considerable annoyance to the ones whose pictures turned out to be excellent portraits, unconsciously and naturally posed. The police record of the case is brief: "Inspectors Chailion and Seppece of the police judiciaire, recently arrested two Polish pickpockets, who had just taken the gold watch of a well-known doctor in the crowd coming out of the Etoile station of the Metro. With the consent of Dr. — the theft was repeated, and excellent pictures have been placed on file at the Prefecture."

Dined on "Point"
Up to a few years ago in Ireland, very poor families often "dined on potatoes and point" for months at a time. Having no other food than potatoes, says Collier's Weekly, they added an imaginary flavor to each mouthful by pointing the food at a bottle in the center of the table which contained a preserved bit of bacon, fish, cheese or salt.

UNCLE SAM is the producer of "The River," regarded by many as the greatest of current motion pictures, and one of the greatest motion pictures of all time. Specifically, "The River" was produced for the Farm Security administration by Pare Lorentz, a former New York film reviewer, who for the past two years has been turning down big-money offers from Hollywood in favor of working for the government.
"This is the story of the Mississippi, where it comes from, where it goes, what it has meant to us, and what it has cost us," the beautiful voice of Thomas Chalmers intones as the picture starts. From then on in magnificently photographed scenes we are shown an epic. The Mississippi rising in rebellion is far more stirring and majestic than all the actors you have ever seen in imaginary crises.

Months ago David Selznick and Paulette Goddard, who sometimes answers to the name of Mrs. Charles Chaplin, indulged in a bitter argument. Friends reported that Paulette expected to play the role of Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind." Mr. Selznick replied crisply that she was not even being

Kate Smith had a guest star on her program who cost her almost as much as the sponsor. The guest star was Hortense Odium, who took over a failing store a few years ago and built it into one of the greatest sources of women's fashions. Kate doesn't have much time for shopping, and she was so impressed by Mrs. Odium's talk that she gave lavish orders for her spring wardrobe then and there.

Peter Lorre, the sinister "Mr. Moto" of Twentieth Century-Fox films is never the victim of practical jokes in Hollywood. Folks out there know he always strikes back. When he was leaving London for America, his director had a big drag horse delivered to him at the last minute as a parting gift. Mr. Lorre sent the horse to a friend's farm, then arranged to have three hundred singing canaries delivered to the director at three in the morning.

Norma Shearer has never forgotten the stars whose pictures thrilled her when she was just getting started in pictures fifteen years ago. She gave the names of some fifty players to the casting director of her "Marie Antoinette" and asked that they should be given roles. It was hard to locate many of them, for in recent years hard luck, poverty, and despondency had dogged their footsteps, but now they are all happily at work.

As in America's California and a few other favored spots, sports loving residents of Switzerland can live in mid-summer heat one day, mid-winter cold the next. Mountain retreats have long been popular during stifling July heat, and an ever-increasing number of winter sports enthusiasts find skiing, mountain-climbing and skating quite as pleasant in August as February. Swiss scientists, in their Alpine scientific institute, are now studying the effects of lofty elevations on health, with results that thus far bode well for the future of mountain sports. This much is certain, however: Although mountain climbing in a heated railroad train is a diversion anyone can afford, only the strong-hearted should venture such a journey afoot.

TIPS to Gardeners

Know Your Soil

A GARDENER who knows the quality and texture of his soil can get maximum returns from his garden.

Clayey soils require careful handling, but are productive. Sandy soils are early. Sandy loams are just about ideal for most home garden crops.

Peas, lettuce, cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, beets, carrots, radish and onion like moderately cool, moist conditions during development. Plant them early so they will develop before the extreme heat of summer arrives.

Plant them again later, timing the planting so they will mature during the cooler, moister Fall months.

Sweet corn, beans, tomato, pepper, egg plant, cucumber, melons, squash and pumpkin are not as hardy as those listed above and prefer plenty of heat, sunlight and ample moisture for best development.

They should be planted later than peas, lettuce and carrots, so as to come into maturity during the warmest weeks of the summer.

Favorite Recipe of the Week

SCALLOPED dishes are favorites for cold weather because it is a pleasure to use the oven, and because the blended flavor of foods makes such delicious finished products. The tartness of tomatoes complements most any meat that is being served, and while there are almost unlimited ways of making the dish, you may enjoy trying the following recipe:

Scalloped Tomatoes.

1 No. 2 1/2 can tomatoes
1 1/2 tsp. minced onion
1 1/2 tsp. sugar
2 cups bread crumbs
4 tsp. butter
1 tsp. salt

Combine the tomatoes with the onion and arrange a layer in a baking dish. Mix the salt and sugar with the bread crumbs and blend with melted butter. Place a layer of crumbs over the tomatoes, add another layer of tomatoes, crumbs, and so on until the dish is filled and ingredients used. Leave crumbs on top. Bake about 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees).

ROCKY ROAD TO PARADISE

Since 1912 visitors to Switzerland's mighty Jungfrauoch have gasped at the little electric railroad, five and three-quarter miles long, which bores its way through solid rock to an incredible resort near the mountain top. Here, in modern buildings hugging the sheer cliff, vacationists enjoy winter sports in mid-summer. FOTO-FEATURE makes the trip from picturesque Interlachen (left) to the world's loftiest railroad terminal, 11,340 feet above sea level. It is truly a "rocky road to paradise" for, although Jungfrau railway has a smooth roadbed, the rails rest on hard rock. And Jungfrauoch settlement is a genuine paradise for snow lovers.

This most unique railway was started in 1896 from plans of a Zurich engineer. It cost 12 million Swiss francs. Since then hotels, railroad stations, an observatory and (in 1931) a high alpine scientific institute have been added as inducement to tourists who visit the Interlachen district. All Jungfrauoch buildings are made of stone and iron to resist the elements.

Jungfrau railway passengers board their train at Little Scheidegg, 6,770 feet above sea level. Sport clothes and extra wraps are recommended, though the railway provides equipment for neglectful tourists.

First one and one-quarter miles of the ascent is in open air, to Eiger glacier, where the little electric train suddenly dives into a pitch-black tunnel for the rest of the journey.

First stop is Eigerwand station, 9,406 feet high, blasted into the mountain. From apertures the visitor sees Lake Grindelwald. (Two apertures are ringed in above photo.) Then the train proceeds to Eismeer (below) where travelers can either eat lunch or take an elevator to Berghaus.

Here is Europe's loftiest settlement. The buildings, left to right, are Berghaus, the tourist hotel and the international scientific institute. Station Jungfrauoch is inside the rock. Since this picture was taken the meteorological observatory (right) was built, necessitating blasting which caused startled Europeans to think Switzerland was fortifying her mountains. The observatory is reached direct by elevator from Station Jungfrauoch.

THE REST OF THE RECORD

By Gov. James V. Allred
Last Week's Letter.

WASHINGTON—Mrs. Allred and I are in Washington at the invitation of Vice President and Mrs. Garner to attend their annual dinner honoring the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. We found all of them in splendid health and the best of spirits. All the Texas Congressional delegation are quite busy, especially Senator Connelly and Senator Sheppard in their fight against the Anti-Lynching Bill and for the Farm Bill. While here I am trying to look after several pending matters in which the State is interested.

Before leaving Austin the past week, I requested the Attorney General to file suit to cancel one of the Land Commissioner's famous leases on Gulf Coast lands. The requested cancellation was based on two grounds, first, because the small cash consideration with no drilling obligations was so unconscionable on its face as to amount to legal fraud, and, second, because the parties receiving the lease had not complied with the law requiring them to drill offsets where production has been secured within one thousand feet of State lands.

The Attorney General promptly advised me that he would file this suit on the grounds set out in my letter, thereby confirming my contention that these leases ought to be cancelled. I then officially requested him to file suit to cancel eight other leases, but he has been quoted as saying that he would have to study the facts in each case and that he would probably file only one suit as a test case. Of course, if he waits on a case to go through all the courts, then the State's rights in the other tracts cannot be protected. They will be proved either dry or productive before the one suit can be disposed of. Also, in the meantime, these leases can be sold to others who can claim to be innocent purchasers.

The Attorney General is also quoted as saying that there's a good deal of politics involved in my requesting him to sue to cancel these leases. He ought to be the last person on earth to talk about somebody playing politics. If the Attorney General thinks my request was for political purposes then he should not file the suits. He either approves or disapproves of the manner in which the Land Commissioner has leased our public lands. He certainly should have an opinion that is either legal or illegal, one of the other.

If he thinks it is legal and approves of what has been done, then he should say so and refuse to file the suits. If he thinks it is illegal then he should file suit and go after it as hard as he runs for office. But he can't win a lawsuit by starting in with the statement that politics dictated his course of action. What would you think if you hired a lawyer and he started out by telling the court that he questioned your motives and doubted whether you were right but filed the case because he had to?

That's not even the way he prosecuted Mary Dugan over the radio when he played in the Little Theatre at Dallas. He went after her hammer and tongs, and if he will only go after this bunch half as hard, he can win more for the State than he will get in ten Green cases.

The fact remains that lands belonging to the school children have been frittered away. I've done my part and the Attorney General is the only one who can get these mineral rights back. It's up to him.

This Week's Letter

My fight to secure the return of the State's lands has developed rapidly the past week.

When I requested the Attorney General to file a number of suits to recover these lands for the State, he told the newspapers that I was childish. From Paul's letters to the Corinthians, he quoted:

"When I was a child, I spake as a child; I understood as a child; I thought as a child. But when I became a man I put away childish things."

I can readily understand why the Attorney General, who calls himself the "Great McCraw," would have to resort to the Scriptures to prove that he has grown up.

Immediately after I demanded that these suits be filed, however, the Land Commissioner cancelled the big lease I had been complaining about—the one where he turned down $103,000 in cash and accepted $310.

This is the second time I have made him back up and cancel out. It appears, therefore, that my "childishness" has already resulted in the cancellation of two valuable leases which he had executed.

You will remember that the Attorney General also said that he would not file all the suits that I had requested, but would file only one test suit. He said that the State's rights would not be jeopardized, but when I pointed out that if these people were allowed to let the matter rock along until a test suit could be drawn out through the courts they would then have their gamble and know whether the well being drilled was a producer or dry; and when I pointed out that these people could even assign these leases to others who could claim to be innocent purchasers, the Attorney General changed his mind and filed nine additional suits.

So my "childishness" has resulted in further action.

The trouble now is that the Attorney General only set up one ground in asking for cancellation of these leases. He did not allege in his petitions that the facts constituted legal fraud, as I had requested him to do. Nowhere did he allege the facts and circumstances taken as a whole clearly show a fraud upon the rights of the people. I am sorry that the Attorney General is not going to give the court the opportunity to pass on these facts. I would rather have three legs to stand on in a lawsuit than just one, especially where millions of dollars belonging to the school children are involved.

To save my life I can't understand why the Attorney General hasn't been just as anxious to investigate and go after these matters as I have been. Heretofore, the Attorney General's office has been regarded as the watch dog for the people. One after another, former Attorneys General have stepped out with lawsuits to protect the rights of the people. The most recent instance was when former Attorney General Dan Moody broke up the highway contracts, and was immediately elected Governor.

The "Great McCraw," as he calls himself, has had a similar opportunity and failed to take hold of it, even after I furnished him with all the facts and made an official request of him. I hope he will yet amend his pleadings and go after these suits seriously and in a fighting mood.

Mrs. Allred and I tremendously enjoyed our visit to Washington. Of course, we were honored beyond expression by being privileged to attend Vice President Garner's dinner to the President; but, to our joyous surprise, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt invited us to have lunch in the White House last Sunday. It was just a fine family party, one which made us all feel perfectly at home. The President is in the best of good spirits, still thinking and working for the people.
