THE ROPING REPORTER VISITS THE FAT STOCK SHOW

By ROSALYN GRAVES.

Lt. R. W. Coltharp, one time farm boy and now a navy doctor, is back in his element at the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show Rodeo.

Coltharp who hails from Turnersville, was lassoed at he cheered on a matinee performance of the show, the first one in Fort Worth that he has seen.

"I've been to a lot of rodeos here and there," he exclaimed, "but this is the best one yet!"

Raised on a farm, the lieutenant takes a great interest in horses and his favorite event at the show here is the "bronc busting." He reminisces that he used to ride a lot and even tried breaking in a few horses, "after which experiences, I hand a lot of credit to these bronc busters here—they're doing a swell job." Runner-up in his favor is the trick riding.

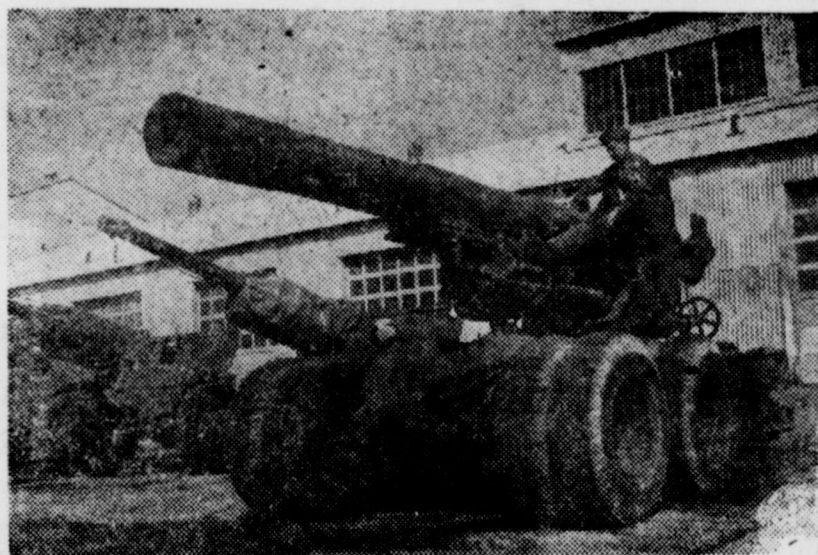

Coltharp, a graduate of the University of Texas medical school, has been in the Navy three and a half years. He served aboard a destroyer for 17 months in the Pacific area, including Bougainville, Rabaul, Tarawa, Hollandia, Saipan and Guam. He is now stationed at the U. S. Public Health Service Hospital here.

Coltharp and his wife, who live at 4432 E. Lancaster, like Fort Worth so much that they intend to make it their home after his discharge from the Navy, and he adds, "this rodeo is just one more of the many things we've found here that is tops."

HERE'S ONE OF THE BIG GUNS, Gatesville and Coryell county were assisted in celebration of Army Day, April 6, by units from Camp Hood.

They brought considerable equipment, including pontoons, bridges, or runways, a medical operating truck, small arms, a "grasshopper", and two mammoth "Long Toms" as pictured above. There was a work boat, bazookas, .50 caliber machine guns, and odds and ends of equipment used by the modern U. S. Army soldier.

During the morning, Coryell countians were given an exhibition of what would happen in a blitz, when B-17s AT's, and P-47s zoomed and dived around town, and a squadron of Navy planes flew in formation overhead.

It was a pretty good day for everybody but the "demonstrators" the GIs, but usually, they don't mind too much.

Texans in Washington

By L. T. (TEX) EASLEY
WASHINGTON, April—(P)—When Speaker Sam Rayburn introduced General Dwight D. Eisenhower at a luncheon of Texas congressmen he said he would save his choice words of praise until he and the General went to Denison April 20 to see the house where the Army Chief-of-Staff was born 54 years ago.

Nevertheless, he lauded Eisenhower as a man whose ability would have made it certain that he would have reached the top in any profession he might have chosen to follow. The off-the-record remarks of the general left no one with doubt on that score. "I have never heard anyone anywhere say so much in 20 minutes in my life," commented Rep. Bob Poage of Waco as the congressmen and their guests applauded the general. A moment later Poage repeated the observation personally to Eisenhower, who gave one of his famous smiles and said modestly, "Thanks".

The talk dealt with army occupation forces, selective service, and the "Caste System"—complaints some people have voiced against the army.

Without divulging anything the general wanted kept secret, it can be said that he staunchly defended in particular the army's Lieutenants and Captains, and observed that 60 per cent of all officers had come up through the ranks by attending officer candidate schools.

Seated at the table near him as he talked was Capt. Rhoads Mustain of Aubrey, Texas, a doctor in civilian life who currently is on duty at Walter Reed Hospital. Wearing several service ribbons, including the purple heart for wounds received in action, he was the guest of Rep. Ed Gossett of Wichita Falls.

Other Texans at the luncheon, and their congressmen hosts, were: Herbert Hilburn, publisher of the Plainview Herald, and R. D. Collins of Mineral Wells, with Rep. George Mahon of Colorado City; R. C. Kay and C. E. Weymouth of Amarillo, and Judge Marvin Jones, former Amarillo Congressman, with Rep. Gene Worley of Shamrock; Mayor John C. Calhoun of Corsicana, with Rep. Luther A. Johnson; Joe Davis, Laredo, Judge W. E. Bibb and William Hollis Fitch of Eagle Pass, with Rep. Milton West of Brownsville; Dale Miller of Dallas, with Rep. John E. Lyle of Corpus Christi; John Long, Bay City and Galveston theater owner; Jim Clements, Bay City and Angleton; Charles Heine and Robert Nesbitt of Galveston; Eldrett J. Mikulanka of Hallettsville, with Rep. J. J. Mansfield of Columbus; Hollis Boone, now with the FBI, formerly of Athens; Navy Lieut. Hulan Brown, Jacksonville; Kelly Bell, Nacogdoches, Judge Joe Montague, Fort Worth, with Rep. Tom Pickett of Palestine.

Washington sports writers were made fully conscious of Texas—if they needed a reminder—when they went to the war department the other day to get a story on arrangements for a "pro" football game next Sept. 1 between the Chicago Bears and the New York Giants, the proceeds of which are to go to the army, navy and air forces relief societies.

The top figures they interviewed were three native Texans—Eisenhower, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and Lieut. Gen. Ira Eaker. As the trio passed a football around for the benefit of photographers they proudly pointed out that they were all natives of Texas where "Infants play with pigskins instead of rattlers," as they put it.

A forthcoming book by George Stimson, author and former president of the National Press Club, is to be dedicated to Houston Harte, publisher of the San Angelo Standard-Times and vice president of the Associated Press.

Entitled "A Book About A Thousand Things," the volume will be published by Harper and Brothers of New York, and is scheduled for release May 8. Several hundred thousand copies are to be distributed by one of the larger book clubs.

Stimson, whose latest work was "A Book About The Bible," for years was Washington correspondent of the Houston Post, and now corresponds for several Texas papers, including the Standard-

DEPORTATION ASKED FOR 600 NAZI PARTY MEMBERS IN U. S.

WASHINGTON — Your Capital in peacetime:

The society for the prevention of World War III has asked U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark to see to the deportation of more than 600 members of the Nazi party in this country.

The Nazi Party membership list came out of captured official German records.

Author Rex Stout, president of the society, said in part in a telegram to Clark: "The members of this fifth column created domestic disunity by promoting race hatred and other social and economic cleavages and corruptions to obscure Germany's real aim of world conquest. These people had only one loyalty—to pan-Germanism—of which Hitler's was the last notorious exponent. These people should be deported as undesirable."

JOHN H. LLOYD, who was in charge of public relations for the Office of Education before he became a lieutenant commander in the Navy, has written a song which already is climbing into the best-seller lists.

It's called simply "I Pledge Allegiance to The Flag." Right, its a sing-song version of the old "pledge to the flag" which became a school room chant a good many years ago—I think I was in the fourth grade. Ahat's a good many years ago.

John Lloyd's story about the writing of music of the "pledge" is one for the record.

"I wrote the first notes on 3-by-5 scratch pad sheets. Never having written any music before, I didn't even know if the notes should go up or down."

That was five years ago. But it wasn't until 1944 that Lloyd put his composition on paper and ready for circulation. The verse is his own composition, the chorus the traditional "pledge".

Tin Pan Alley, where John first tried to peddle his opus, gave him no encouragement at all. He finally published it privately. Few songs these days ever get any circulation that way. But in 1944, an educational journal with national circulation picked it up and printed the chorus and music.

Since then it has become a school room classic in a score of middle and upper brackets.

states from Texas to Maine, Iowa, Florida, Pennsylvania, Michigan, and Indiana Teachers, among others, have swamped Lloyd with letters about how the song is better than the old chant.

YOU can't verify it officially, but some insiders here are predicting that there will be another Federal Tax cut this year. Both Sen. George (D. Ga.) and Rep. Doughton (D. N. C.), the tax watch-dogs in Congress, are on the record against any further reductions, but the argument is that the report from income tax and other revenue returns may change their minds.

First objective of the tax reducers will be the excise taxes—those on entertainment tickets, cosmetics, railroad fares, utility bills, luggage, etc.

These were supposed to be removed six months after the end of the war. Legally the state of was hasn't even ended yet. But tax reduction advocates may not wait for that hypothetical day. None thinks that there will be any further reduction on 1946 income taxes, but there may be on 1947 rates—particularly in the

BROADWAY :

By Jack O' Brian

THE FIST THAT ROCKS THE PUG FILLS THE BEER MUG

NEW YORK — Broadway, and the Broadways of other cities, have a generous sprinkling of the Marquis of Queensbury in their various night lives. It has been a constant custom since John L. Sullivan and possibly even earlier, for prizefighters to enter some phase of the saloon business or entertainment world when their pug-nacious abilities disappeared.

The prize daffiness boys of the ring, Max Baer and Maxie Rosenbloom, have teamed their screw-ball talents and now are the stars, at $4500 a week, at the new Club 18 on 52nd St.

Bob Olin, to whom Maxie Rosenbloom lost his light-heavyweight title on Nov. 16, 1934, here in New York, now runs a very popular steak house and sports gang hangout n West 58th St.

TONY CANZONERI, ne of the toughest little men in ring history is teamed up with a night club and vaudeville comic, Joey Adams, himself a former amateur boxer, and are in the top cash bracket; they open in one of New York's more popular saloons, La Matinique, in a few days.

Mickey Walker, who fought anyone anytime in almost any weight class, also has been in the restaurant business, turned to painting and a few days ago made his debut as a legitimate theater actor in a drama called "Walk Hard."

Jack Dempsey, of course, is one of the constantly most successful in his new career; his Broadway cafe is a goldmine, and he owns all sorts of other properties—hotels, apartments, real estate of every nature.

JIMMY GOODRICH, lightweight champ in the early '20s, now runs a successful night club in Buffalo. Barney Ross, another of the toughest little men of all ring time, has a cocktail lounge in Chicago. Abe Attel, who became featherweight champ in 1908, retired after 365 fights and now owns one of the most successful smaller-cafes on Broadway; he also indulges a combination of ham and Shakespeare by reciting, during celebrity nights on night club floors, poetry which he and others have written about the fight game.

Izzy Grove, a welterweight contender in the late '20s, now is a night club master of ceremonies and doing right well at it.

Former middleweight champ Freddie Steel is a very good Hollywood actor. The late Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, one of the ring's real greats, had one of the best-known gymnasiums on Broadway, frequented by the famous of every social and commercial level.

Times. Hard pressed a few years ago for sufficient income to pay for the small office where he was accumulating files and working late at night on his books, Stimson says it was only Harte's retaining him as correspondent that enabled him to turn out his first real financial success—and the work he is most proud of, the volume dealing with the Bible.

James P. Buchanan, now resident of Washington, whose father once represented the Austin District in Congress, called at the White House to invite President Truman to attend a celebration at Washington-on-the-Brazos on the 101th Anniversary of the adoption of a resolution by the Texas Congress for Annexation to the United States. He submitted the invitation for the Buddy Wright American Legion Post at Brenham.

Maxey and Sheriff Homer Casey plan a barbecue for the visitors. Mayor-elect Richard C. Bush will be invited to speak. Present will be officers from McLennan, Hill, Hamilton, Coryell, Bell, Leon, Falls, Bosque, Limestone, Freestone and Somervell counties.

Mass. Sgt. Patrasek will soon be stationed at Camp Hood.

Those visiting in the Alfred Stoll home Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schuetz William and Noema. William has just returned from overseas after being in service 43 months. Other visitors were Gus Kreder of West, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Wolbruck and Albert of Georgetown.

FLYING EAGLE HUNTERS IN TEXAS SKY

Flying for the Eagle Hunting Club which has accounted for more than 35 eagles and a coyote. These hunters operate a small plane in Val Verde County, Texas, up and down its canyons, three times a Eagles which have preyed on young lambs in growing numbers, are being shot on the wing by flying hunters in Val Verde county.

Approximately 50 ranchmen in the county have formed the Eagle Hunting Club. They have accounted already for more than 35 eagles and a coyote. All shot from a small plane with shot-guns. Ranchmen say the eagles are commonly called ed Mexican Eagles. Fred McMichael and Gene Cowgill have piloted the craft, flying from five to 50 feet above the ground in their search for the birds. The size of the Eagles ranges from seven to 10 feet. A seven-foot eagle is considered small.

Gunner for the club is Hugh Boehme.

Flights are made three times each week, up and down canyons in the county, and in terrain likely to attract Eagles. Each trip lasts from three and one-half to four hours.

The Eagle Hunting Club started as an experiment. Hunters, describing the activity said, "The ones we don't kill we expect to scare to death."

South Africa Lets Army Boots Rot

JOHANNESBURG — (AP) — Because businessmen objected to their sale, 750,000 pairs of army boots are rotting at Roberts Heights.

They are slightly used and it was planned to have them repaired by disabled exsoldiers and placed on the market. Fears were expressed, however, as to the effect this would have on the civilian retail boot trade and the scheme was abandoned. Now nobody knows what to do with the boots.

Dickie's Wild Duck Is a Mad Hatter

PITTSFIELD, Mass. — (AP) — Dickie Potter, 11, out walking with his father, Harold F. Potter, spotted a wild duck which appeared to be lame, tried to catch it and missed. But the duck didn't. It grabbed Dickie's hat and disappeared under a bridge. Dickie went in after it and pulled out his hat with the duck at the other end. The bird is now convalescing in the Potter's chicken coop.

GENTLEMAN JIM RULES THE ROOST

MEDFORD, Ore. — (AP) — Gentleman Jim's fighting days are numbered at Ed Leach's Lane County farm.

The big 10 pound Plymouth Rock Rooster, Leach admits, killed many rats, moles, gophers and snakes—but couldn't stop.

The rooster started attacking Mrs. Leach every time she stepped from the farm house. Chased Leach's seven-year-old daughter into orchard trees, kept two cats in the barn for weeks, licked all other roosters and even had the family watchdog on guard.

Hold on to that "Million-Dollar Rain"

That welcome rain that brings new life to your land, crops and livestock is the traditional "million-dollar rain" known to every farmer and rancher.

There is an old saying, "You can't do much about the weather." But you can do a great deal about what the weather does to your land. Rain can bring relief after drouth and is worth that million dollars—or it can be a savage enemy that "dashes off with grit in its teeth and tears down our soil like a billion furious buzz saws."

Water that "walks downhill" is your ally in increasing the production of your land. And one secret of handling rainfall properly is "farming on the level"—by strip cropping, contour plowing, terracing. Cover crops, grassed waterways, dams and farm ponds also help control the destructive power of rain. Then you hold the rain where it falls. Surface run-off is slowed down to the point where it doesn't erode your topsoil away. And as your water "walks downhill," it soaks into the soil, makes plant food nutrients available to the roots of crops and, penetrating further, fills up nature's great underground reservoirs.

Water thus stored in the subsoil is the source of the wells and springs which supply homes and farms and ranches. For years this "water table" has been dropping very seriously in some sections. But where soil conservation has been practiced over large areas, the lowering of the "water table" has been a less serious problem. Soil and water can never be divorced in any good land management program. These two great resources are wedded for all time, and from their union comes the wealth of America's agriculture and the prosperity of the nation.

WORTH THINKING ABOUT

In view of the recent talk about the business, profits, etc., of the meat packers, it's worth remembering the basic economics of all businesses in this country.

To be successful, any business must do four things—1) it must purchase its raw materials at prices comparable to the prices paid by its competitors; 2) through know-how, efficiency, good operating, it must manufacture products of comparable quality at a manufacturing cost no higher than that of its competitors; 3) in doing this, it must pay its workers wage rates comparable to the going wage-scale paid by others; 4) and it must sell its product at prices that a large part of the public is willing and able to pay.

In the livestock-and-meat industry, this simply means that prices must be high enough to earn both cost and a decent profit for the livestock producer, the meat packer and the retail merchant—and low enough to keep the great masses of people eating meat.

Soda Bill Sex:

... that the dairy business is mighty colorful—red cows eat green grass and brown hay to give white milk and yellow butter. . . . that the more a feller works, the more work he finds to do.

WOOL BLINDNESS is a definite handicap. Open-faced sheep, during a test in New Mexico, produced an average of 12% more pounds of lamb per ewe. Wool on the face hindered sheep in finding feed and resulted in some becoming separated from the flock. However, the flock in the test excelled by 25% the wool production of commercial flocks.

BRED TO MEET PRODUCER NEEDS

by E. J. WARWICK, The State College of Washington

A successful example of sound breeding methods in improving farm animals is the development of the Columbia breed of sheep for the Northern and Northwestern states.

When the Western sheep industry began shifting from a "one-crop" industry—wool—to production of both lambs and wool, the need for a true breeding type of sheep, combining the vigor, hardiness and flocking instinct of the fine wool types, with the size, prolificacy, and desirable carcass characteristics of the mutton types, was clearly indicated. Recognizing this need, U. S. Department of Agriculture scientists began developing such a breed from crosses between Rambouillet ewes (a fine wool type), and Lincoln rams (a mutton type).

Today, after more than 30 years of intense selection for desirable characteristics, the Columbia is widely used on better ranges of the West. Animals of this breed are large, rugged, vigorous, prolific and productive.

Development of the Columbia breed has been successful because: (1) it was created to fill a real need; (2) the breeding program was carefully planned to preserve and concentrate the germ plasm of superior individuals; (3) rigid culling was practiced; and (4) practical production factors have been emphasized in the selection program.

Adherence to these simple principles will result in further improvements of other farm animals.

Sent Your Letter Yet? Prize Contest Closes May 1

Still time to win one of the 43 cash prizes totaling $400 for best letters on "Methods Employed by Meat Packers in Marketing Meats, Poultry, Eggs, Butter, and Cheese." Contest closes May 1, 1946. We'll be glad to send you the needed information. Write today to F. M. Simpson, Dept. 128 . . . Swift & Company, Chicago 9, Ill.

The mellow flavor of ham rates it one of the most popular of meats. Glaze your ham with marmalade or maple syrup to save sugar. Place the ham, fat side up, on rack in uncovered pan. No water needed, as the fat will baste the ham naturally. Bake in a moderately slow oven until tender. Three to four hours will be enough. Garnish the platter with pickled peaches or apricots, or hot spiced orange slices.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW!

What is the meaning of the expression "farming on the level"?

With what groups of people must a meat packing company like Swift & Company co-operate to operate successfully?

Who must earn a fair profit for the livestock-and-meat industry to operate?

Why is it important to make water "walk downhill"?

Answers to these questions may be found in the various articles which are printed elsewhere on this page.

OUR CITY COUSIN

THE EDITOR'S COLUMN

In addition to being a business corporation, Swift & Company is people—62,000 folks like you and me who have pooled their savings to build a business. These savings are invested in plants and equipment, in livestock and other raw materials, and in all the many things that make up Swift & Company.

Without people there could be no business, no Swift & Company. There must be people (shareholders) to supply the capital; others (farmers and ranchers) to supply the raw materials; many thousands (employees) who work with their heads and hands for the company; and the millions of consumers who buy the meat and other products.

The success of a business enterprise depends on how these various groups of people get along together. In other words, there must be goodwill and cooperation between the owners of Swift & Company and livestock producers, employees, and the company's customers.

To maintain goodwill we know that Swift & Company must: 1) pay fair prices for raw materials, including livestock; 2) pay a good day's pay for a good day's work; 3) provide the money to keep plants and facilities efficient; 4) pay Federal, State and Municipal taxes; 5) earn a profit to give our owners a fair return on their invested savings.

The management of Swift & Company recognizes this five-fold responsibility to the various groups of people who make our business. It is to their interest that we manage our business efficiently, that we earn a sufficient profit to let us continue contributing to the well-being of more and more people.

TURKEY INDUSTRY IN TEXAS IN DANGER FROM NORTHERN MARKETS

There's a new industry hovering on the horizon of the Lone Star State and its value to Texas and Texans in the postwar years in dollars and cents, is almost inestimable.

It's the Turkey industry that is moving to the front and actually the turkey is not much more of an innovation in Texas than the Longhorn. In fact there is a great similarity between the two.

Like the Longhorn, the turkeys not many years ago ran wild on the range. At Thanksgiving and Christmas they were rounded up and sold on the holiday markets. The hens sold for .50 cents and the toms for .75, regardless of age or size.

Today the story is different. One turkey egg will bring the farmer $10 if it is the right kind of egg. The average market value of Texas birds is $6. There are better than 4,700,000 turkeys in Texas which means that the investment is approximately $28,200,000.

Always there is a good reason behind any such forward strides as have been accomplished in the turkey industry. Credit a large share of the phenomenal growth to the R. O. P. (Record of Production) Turkey Breeders Association. This group has taken the lead in the production of a better type of market bird and breeding stock.

Members of the Association are Dr. J. E. Bauer, Refugio; Copeland Ranch, Gatesville; P. C. Colgin, Col'ge Station; Delta Farms, Kaufman; James Bar Nothing Ranch, Austin; Lee and Smith Ranch, Midlothian; Mrs. Stewart Williams, Gatesville; and Batteys Turkey Farm, Floydada. It's the Broad Breasted Bronze turkey that's the new sensation.

Texans, being Texans, are likely to become prejudiced about their turkey industry but these days they are getting a lot of backing for their boasts from out-of-state turkey authorities. Stanley Marsden of Washington, D. C., turkey specialist, United States Department of Agriculture, was a visitor to Texas R. O. P. farms last week and here's what he had to say:

"The R. O. P. Turkey Farms are the best that I have seen anywhere in the country. They are carrying on one of the most intensive breeding programs that is to be found anywhere. Actually they are far ahead of the work at Boltsville, Ma., the United States Department of Agriculture Experiment Station."

"The birds that I saw on the R. O. P. Turkey Farms had excellent balance as well as body conformation. The trap nest testing program conducted by the farms has increased fertility as well as production to where it is exceeding that of any Broad Breast Bronze Turkey being produced by other breeders."

The "blood will tell" theory insofar as turkeys are concerned has been proven conclusively by the Texas R. O. P. Turkey Breeders. Just as an example, a few years ago 50 eggs per hen per season was considered good. Today under the R. O. P. breeding program, the average production is above 70 eggs per hen. At one of the Texas R. O. P. Turkey Farms over 50 poulters per hen were produced from his trap nest birds for the season.

With such a successful program the Turkey in Texas is certain to become more than just a holiday bird, in fact already has. The breeding work has established consistency of production and, if necessary, Texas can have year-around production in the very near future.

Under the improvement program Texas has increased its production this year 25 per cent over that of last year. The state now rates second only to California in the production of Turkeys.

The big item now, authorities say, is for Texas growers to recognize the importance of their product. Out of state breeders have recognized the value of Texas breeding stock more than Texans. Eastern buyers are purchasing Texas R. O. P. toms to head their own breeding flocks and are buying pedigreed eggs from Texas breeders to procure quality foundation breeding stock for their own.

There is a reason for this of course. Cold weather strikes earlier in the north and east and naturally turkey talk starts earlier. But the answer is that Texas must start

CUT FLOWERS FLOWN NORTH IN 12 HOURS

WILMINGTON, N. C.—Northern markets are currently receiving cut flowers from fields in North Carolina within 12 hours after being cut as far heel bulb growers take advantage of post-war delivery freight by plane.

Introduced by the North Carolina Bulb Growers Association, delivery of cut flowers by plane is now being operated on a semi-weekly basis.

Florists in northern cities are accepting 378,200 cut flowers weekly by plane.

According to Adrian Ludeke, president of the association, the flowers are cut in the morning, boxed 35 dozen to the container, and shipped in the afternoon. A plane-load consists of about 450 boxes or 5,000 pounds, he explained.

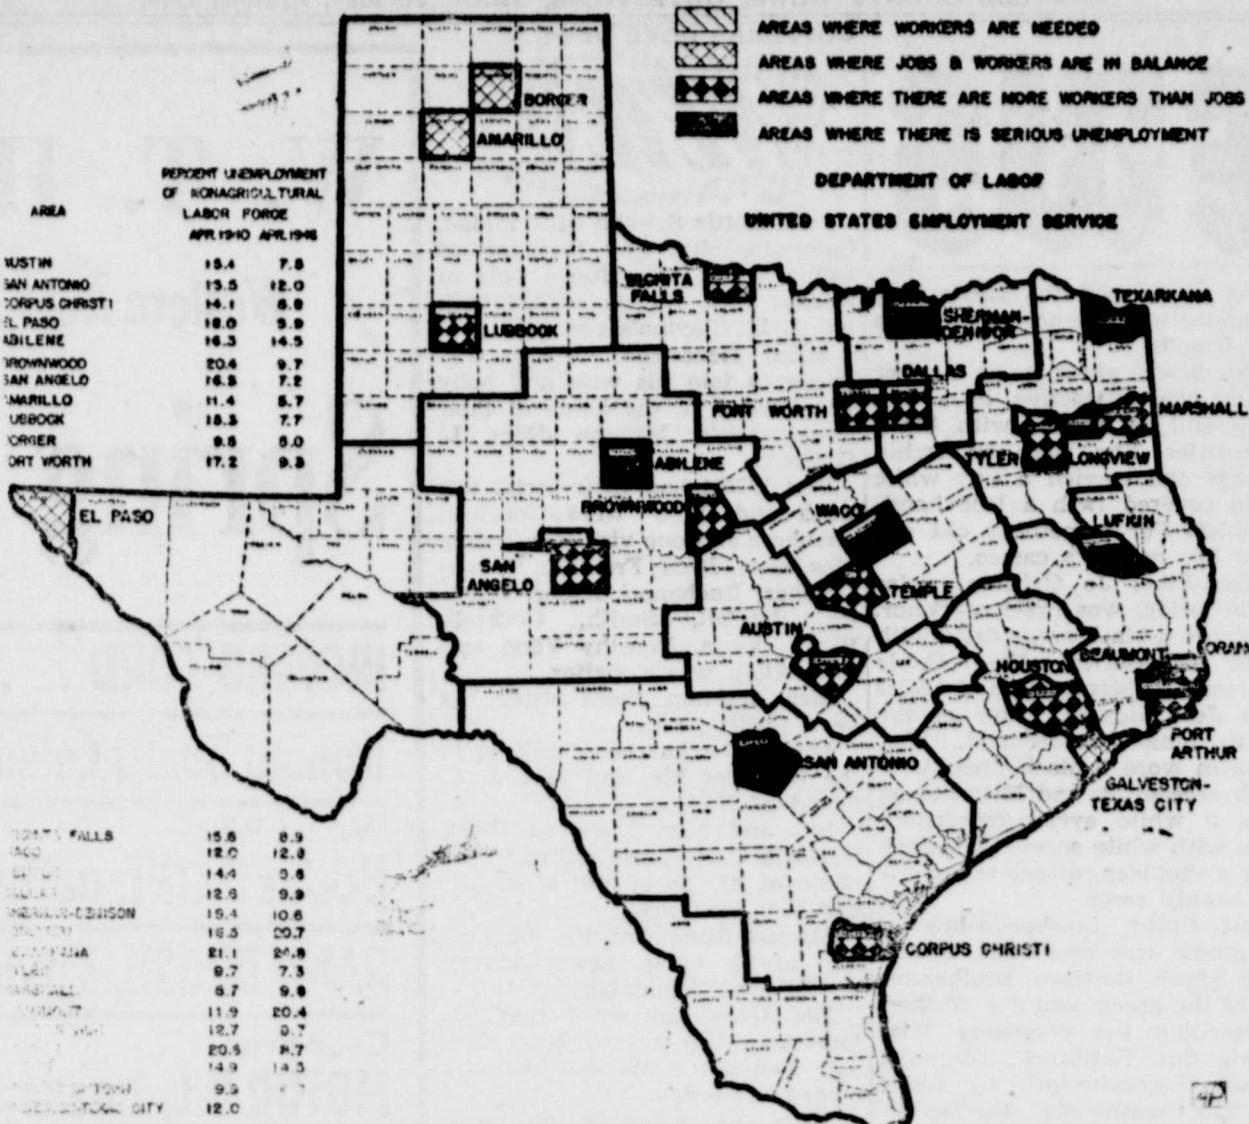

Ten cities are covered on three schedules. One route calls for stops at Washington, New York, Boston and Philadelphia; route two Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Cincinnati and route three Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Chicago.

Cost of freight per load runs from $500 to $700, Ludeke said. He declared the loss of flowers had been negligible as the planes are kept at proper temperature.

Shipment values of the flowers by plane average about $5,000 a load.

Frances Bacon translated one volume of his essays into Latin thinking they might not survive if printed in English only.

Champions—Both

Champion Warlord of Mazelain, who went best American bred male in the Westminster Kennel Club Show in New York City recently, gets the best of care and grooming. Right now he is advocating good home care and grooming by telling housewives to keep saving and turning in used fat to get the soap they need so badly. One pound of used fat will make approximately six bars of yellow laundry soap.

KITCHEN FATS HELP TOO!

The salvage of used cooking fat, upon which soap production depends these days, helps other essential industries to keep functioning too. Here, logs are felled, and started on their way to a paper mill. Used cooking fat, substituting for imported industrial fats and oils, is used in the processing of paper, as well as making soap. Save every drop.

Poles Get Back Captured Machinery

WARSAW—(AP)—Polish industries slowly are getting back machinery stripped from factories by the Nazis and carted off into Germany.

Six hundred carloads have been returned to the "Pionki" factory near Radom, not far from Warsaw. Electrical and printing equipment has arrived from Oranienburg. Forty carloads of machinery for the Lodz and Czesochowa textile mills are being shipped from the British occupation zone in Germany.

IDA LEE GRISSOM BECOMES BRIDE OF WELDON ROGERS

Before a lighted altar stocked with palms, gladiolas, calla lillies, and ferns, Miss Ida Lee Grissom became the bride of Weldon Rogers at 9:00 a. m. April 7th. Rev. Hubert Crain, assisted by Dr. Lawrence Hayes performed the single ring ceremony before a host of relatives and friends.

The bride, given away by her father, was attractive in a two piece suit of fuscina, with black accessories. She wore an orchid corsage and carried a tiny white Bible covered with a lace handkerchief. For something old she wore her mother's cameo.

TURKEY INDUSTRY

talking turkey earlier, regardless of the weather. Otherwise most of the breeding stock and eggs will be gone north before Texans get a chance at their own homegrown product.

Texas Turkey breeders also have been making the mistake of going out of the state to purchase their birds. Often the breeders pay as high as $50 for birds that have no pedigree record. Here in their home state the R. O. P. breeders offer excellent breeding birds for as low as $20, enabling the grower to get quality foundation stock at a reasonable price. The same situation is true in the purchase of eggs.

The advancement of the turkey industry in Texas is more remarkable because of its beginnings. It was not many years ago that Texas birds were so far inferior that U. S. market birds were divided into two grades—"Northern grown and "Texas Grown turkeys". There are breeders who will admit that at one time when a carload of dressed turkeys were being shipped from a certain marketing point, growers were required to leave the fan feathers on one wing to prove the birds were not buzzards.

There is a second economy in the raising of turkeys in Texas one that cannot be overlooked. The Broad Breast Turkey can be raised on marginal land, which would be left idle for other agricultural purposes. Through its use in turkey production this marginal land can be increased in fertility. Best of authorities state that fertility value is increased 300 to 500 percent in one year and furthermore the land holds the fertility for two to five years. This is accomplished through portable turkey roosts which can be moved at intervals over spaces of 100 yards. This enables the soil over an extended area to be improved in fertility.

So the Texas turkey is on its way to the front. And there is as much difference in the Texas turkey of today and yesterday as there is between the Texas Longhorn of yesterday and the Texas Hereford of today.
