EDUCATIONAL AND VOCATIONAL HELP IN U. S. ARMY

Educational and vocational opportunities offered by the army air forces to young high school graduates are being presented to the young men of the country through the medium of a manual, "Technical Courses Offered by the Army Air Forces," and an accompanying letter signed by General Carl Spaatz, Commanding General of the AAF, sent to nearly every high school in the country.

Offering a solution to young men facing crowded conditions in colleges and universities and the imminence of service in the Armed Forces, General Spaatz pointed out that, "The knowledge and skills gained at the AAF schools and in working with the equipment in various shops, hangars and laboratories will prepare them well for careers in the army air forces and in civil life. The training will also give them a sound foundation for future professional education in engineering and allied fields."

The letter from the Commanding General emphasized that individuals who enlisted prior to October 6, 1946, for a term of three years would be entitled to as much as 48 months of college education at government expense.

THE "DAM"

Looks like "they're" going to get it, and hydro-electric, too. That's why we gave so much front page space to the Miller Springs, Leon River Dam, now practically okeed.

Coryell County, as usual, is going to be the goat, and, here's why. Covered land, which, will move more and more taxes over on you and me, and, you think that won't cost. Let's see, 137,000 acres Camp Hood, 5,000, A & M's Bluebonnet Playground, and now, Temple-Belton's dam, when it's hydro-electricized, it may be conservative to say, it'll cover 25,000 more Coryell County Acres. Coryell County only had 1,943 square miles originally, and has a lot less now.

The stories Friday, said the Jonesboro dam "was not recommended by the engineers," and since we've been reliably informed that the dam at Jonesboro would "floodserve" 65% of the flood lands of the Leon, whereas, the Miller Spring location, is only 15%.

We think frankly, it's not a matter of catching floods, but votes. A dam at Miller Springs, okeed by the Governor, engineers, Congress, and hundreds of local politicians in the vicinity of Belton, Killeen, Temple and Cameron, would be about one of the greatest "vote catching propositions" that could be thought of. This "flood" business, as far as land is concerned, seems to be only a selling point.

Again, Coryell County IS the G O A T!

HOLLYWOOD—HOLLYWOOD—

HOLLYWOOD — Past! Let's prowl around some movie sets and see how the picture makers deceive us.

Eight survivors of an air crash are down at sea on a rubber raft between Manila and Tokyo—but it'll only seem that way in "Seven Were Saved".

Our ocean is a 60-by-40-foot indoor tank a few steps off throbbing Santa Monica boulevard. Our suffering seafoam supposedly have supped on nothing sturdier than candy bars and sips of water for two days. Actually they feasted on roast beef, mashed potatoes coffee and pie this noon, and there's a hamburger joint across the street to which they can skip if they get hungry again.

THE Miniature sea, 4 1/2 feet deep, is 48,000 gallons of water via the city mains from the High Sierra mountains. It's heated to a constant 89 degrees for the benefit of special effects men clad in bathing trunks. One, you'll observe is crouched now under the raft, out of camera sight, giving the raft a wave-like heave now and then.

And notice the smaller waves that ripple our ocean; they're generated by other special-effects of the tank, agitating the water with metal cylinders on wooden poles.

Up one side of the tank towers a broad screen. This is a translucent reflector on which a motion picture of the real ocean can be projected to give our tiny tank an illusion of distance and turbulence. Thus our scene becomes in part, a movie of a movie.

Down giant troughs slanting into the tank are sluiced mighty storm effects.

STEP aboard my magic carpet now and we'll spy on some ing vessel appears to be speckled by dancing sunlight reflected off choppy harbor waters. But it was all done indoors. Arc lights were pointed down at big flat water troughs containing pieces of broken mirror while special effects wizards stirred the water with T-shaped poles . . . and the flickering rays angled up at the ship.

In the same picture, Brian Donlevy and Jean Pierre Aumont besides a lot of extras and a horse drawn sleigh, perform in a dense snowstorm. It's unbacked cornflakes and ground gypsum, sifted

HERE'S ABOUT DAMS

Sometime ago, we stated we'd tell what we'd previously been told about dams. Here it is.

It was at the time when the Whitney dam was first proposed and as usual, we were ranting about building dams to be filled with mud, trees, etc. in a few short years, but built with tax payers money at tremendous expense, under the guise of "flood" control.

We were told by an authority, that a "flood" control dam was only filled one-third with water. The two-thirds remaining of the structure was actually to catch the flood, and no power could be generated from a flood control dam, and very little lake would be compounded. We illustrate this below:

But, after the soil conservation flood control angle has been sold to the small town folks, the farmers and stockmen, then the bigger citizens get busy. (It's just like building a house, the foundation and superstructure, then they say, only a little more, will make it something else). That is the story of a dam.

After the "flood control" business is "sold" in the proper places the other "boys" get busy, and say, "well, with only a little more work on the proposition (they never mention money) we can make it a hydro-electric and supply cheaper (?) power to cities, the REA and for industry. So, here's the way they do this. Run the water to the top, as illustrated:

Then this backs up a nice lake for the "sportsmen" summer houses, night clubs, and does make some (with everything figured) nice high hydro-electric power. Some poor farmer's land gets covered, in a POOR county, never, or at least, hardly ever, in the "big city" county, and there you are.

If you'll notice, nearly every dam built, is built this way, and covers the land in a county that has small towns, but the pay-off is near the large city or town, for the sportsmen, fishing boys, hunting preserves, summer homes, and the "play boy".

There you are! Think it over, and see if money appropriated for big dams was spent on a water shed, by "contract" instead of thru a government agency (as is done in highway construction) for soil conservation and this soil conservation would be etled once and for all, where it should be—on the farm, or ranch.

$3,000 OFFERED IN SOIL CONSERVATION
PRIZES

To further the cause of soil conservation in Texas and to recognize outstanding work done in the conservation cause, the Fort Worth Press has announced an annual achievement recognition event in which $3000 is being offered in cash prizes this year.

Soil conservation districts, soil conservation groups within the districts, individual farmers who have completed their conservation programs and outstanding farmers in each of the districts will be recognized in the program.

Rules for choosing the outstanding districts and individuals were laid out by the supervisors of the 13 eligible districts at a meeting in Fort Worth.

Plans for the contest were made with officials of the Texas soil conservation board, and the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, who are cooperating with the Press in staging the contest by offering technical assistance and assisting in the selection of winners.

The soil conservation district in the 30-county area which has the highest percentage of work completed under its conservation agreements will be awarded a $1000 cash prize.

The community (or conservation group) which has completed the highest percentage of planned work also will get a $1000 cash prize.

To the individual who has made the greatest unselfish contribution to furthering the cause of soil conservation will go $500 in cash.

Plaques will be awarded to the outstanding farmer in each of the 13 districts and certificates will go to all farmers in all of the districts who have completed their conservation programs and who have practices current.

Also being staged in connection with the achievement recognition event is an essay contest in which high school boys and girls of the area are competing. The essays will be on the subject, "What Soil Conservation Means to My Community." First prize is $100 and 89 additional cash prizes, totaling $500 will be awarded.

Districts are doing their own judging, filling in a score card on various widely adapted practices. This same score card will be used to choose the outstanding conservation group.

Nominations for the outstanding individual will be made by each board of supervisors and they will name the outstanding farmers in their districts.

The achievement recognition event will be brought to a close early in June when a conservation Day will be staged in Fort Worth with the nations outstanding leaders in soil conservation due to be invited.

This event is the first widespread recognition of work done in soil conservation in Texas, most of which has been accomplished since the first district law was drafted by a group of farmers in Temple in 1937.

On the advisory committee for the program and responsible for selection of top districts and individuals after recommendations and records have been received from the districts are Louis P. Merrill, regional conservator of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service; V. C. Marshall, administrator for the State Soil Conservation Board; C. M. Caraway of De Leon, member of the State Soil Conservation Board; Paul H. Walser, state conservator for the U. S. Soil Conservation Service; and Walter R. Humphrey, editor of the Fort Worth Press.

Cooperating in offering the cash prizes are the Texas Electric Service Company, the Fort Worth Clering House Assn., the Sargent Mfg. Co. of Fort Worth, and Traders Cotton Oil Mill Co. of Fort Worth.

Districts which are participating in the program are: Hood-Parker, Dalworth, Upper Leon, Ellis-Prarie, Nolan-Acquilla, Bosque, Upper Elm-Red, Upper West Fork, Denton-Wise, Loyer Clear Fork of the Brazos, Palo Pinto, Hamilton-Coryell, Brown Mills.

The name contest is derived from the Greek and Latin words for hair—from a fancied resemblance between the tails of comets and long hair streaming in the wind.

GATESVILLE STATE SCHOOL HOLDS OPEN HOUSE TO DISPLAY CRAFT WINNERS

Gatesville, April 20. — How to effect the changes from quick fingered crime artists to nimble fingered craft artists were revealed at an open house of the Gatesville State School for Boys Friday and Saturday.

In the Jewelers, one of the best clubs in Central Texas, you'll see some real hot pitching by one of the best in the business. Last Friday night, Gatesville Coca-Cola drubbed the local Gatesville Ramblers, 8-2, and batteries for the "Cokes" were Ivy pitching, and McCallister, catching. For the Ramblers, Wilson in the box and White stopping.

Exhibit and Fat Stock Show held at Austin April 10-11 in which the Gatesville school competed with the 10 other state schools.

Among the blue ribbons captured by the school included 20 first places for crafts, five for foods and eight for stock entries. Two Fort Worth boys won first prizes for their art pictures and canned fruit entries.

Of most striking interest to the visitors were dainty dotted Swiss women's blouses and chenille bedspreads which were entered in the show. It was explained by Mrs. J. H. Head, a teacher in the school for 10 years, that two of the petite entries were made by boys sent to the school for murder and armed robbery.

Also shown were angel food cakes, many types of canned goods pies, bread, toy dolls, several other types of needle work and varieties of art work.

To the average Texan the school which covers 1,700 acres just north of Gatesville is where convicted boys are sent because they are too young to go to the penitentiary. But to the 368 white and 212 Negro students presently enrolled it is a place where they learn that there is a place in the world for them and where they are taught a trade to equip them to make a living after they leave school. The institution, which was organized more than 60 years ago now boasts 105 employees, including 14 teachers. It has sports teams which compete with and usually win over regular class A and AA high school squads. The school is organized on a 50-week year with the pupils attending regular classes five hours a day three days a week from 7:15 a. m. to 12:15 p. m. J. H. Head is principal of the school.

What is your GUESS? on our profits...

SOMETIMES, although an idea is wrong, it does no harm. Like the idea that a square jaw is the sign of will power. That winters aren't as severe as they used to be, or that red hair denotes quick temper.

But there are other wrong ideas, which are definitely harmful to public confidence in and understanding of industry. One such idea is the current "guessing" about profits made by large business organizations.

Many people are apt to grossly exaggerate the money made by business. So Opinion Research Corporation (an independent organization) made a survey to learn just what the public thinks about profits. Compare these guesses and yours with the International Harvester profit figures given below.

Public guess on war profits . . . 30.0%

I H four war year average profit . . . 4.9%

In this survey, the average of the guesses by the public of the war-time profits made by industry was . . . thirty per cent (30%).

But in the four war years of 1942, 1943, 1944, and 1945, the profits of International Harvester Company averaged only . . . 4.9% on sales. Less than one sixth of what the general public "guessed" for all industry.

For this period, the year by year per cent of profits on sales was: 1942—7.34, 1943—5.59, 1944—3.95, 1945—3.93.

Public guess on peace profits 18.0%

I H four pre-war year average profit . . . 7.17%

In the four peace years of 1938, 1939, 1940, and 1941, the profits of International Harvester Company averaged . . . 7.17%. This is well under half of what the public "guessed" for all industry.

Majority think fair profit in normal times is . . . 10%

I H ten-year average is less than 7%

The survey indicates the public knows that in our economy profits are indispensable. And the majority regard 10% as a fair rate of profit in normal times. Many large businesses, including ourselves, would consider it a banner year if we could reach this figure. Our average profit for the last ten years—four war and six peace—was 6.43%—more than a third less than what the public considers fair.

All these figures show that our profits are not high. As a matter of fact, the entire farm machinery industry is a low profit industry. In 1945, the Federal Trade Commission published a list of 76 industries ranked in order of their ratio of profits to sales. The farm machinery industry was 57th on the list.

What About Current I H Prices?

When the War ended and we planned our peace-time production, we had hoped to be able to serve our farmer customers at the same level which has held since 1942, regardless of war-time increases in costs of wages and materials up to that time. But recent developments have forced a change in our plans.

Wages and materials consume nearly all of every dollar Harvester takes in from sales. A Government board has recommended and the Company has agreed to pay a general wage increase of 18 cents per hour for Harvester factory employees. The Government has also allowed price increases on raw materials which we purchase in large quantities. Steel has had an average increase of 8.2%.

There has been no general increase in our prices since they were frozen by the Government early in 1942.

So our situation today is that what we BUY costs us 1946 prices. We will be paying average hourly wages 56% above 1941. For what we SELL we get only 1942 prices. This condition cannot long be met out of our present low rate of profit.

Future Prices on I H Products

It is plain that price relief will be needed to meet the increased wage and material costs which we must carry.

We regret this necessity. We prefer to lower prices, when possible, rather than raise them and we know our customers prefer to have us do that. We had hoped to be able to "hold the line," at least.

But we do not see how we can avoid operating at a loss if our prices continue to remain at their present frozen levels. We will NOT "cut corners" on any of our products, because QUALITY IS THE FOUNDATION OF OUR BUSINESS.

Our customers can be certain that we will seek no more than a moderate profit, both because of our policies and because we have approximately 300 competitors fighting us vigorously for your business. Our request for price relief will be no more than is necessary to insure continued service to our customers, continued work for our employees, and a reasonable return for our stockholders.

During the afternoons the boys engage in one of the more than 30 different trades taught. These include cooking, barbering, dairying, agriculture, tailoring and art. In the school shops are made all the clothes of the entire Texas corrective institution system. Land under cultivation by the boys furnishes practically all food for the school and herds of cattle furnish milk and meat.

Since R. E. Blair assumed duties as superintendent of the institution three years ago a merit system has been employed which eliminates the need for all fences around the grounds or any armed guards. Points are given each boy for good conduct and extra work which will allow him to be paroled or discharged in from seven months to a year. If a boy runs from the school his merits are taken away and he begins again. Lesser branches of discipline warrant fewer demerits.

A lesson taught by the faculty and displayed on a pennant in the high school lobby summarizes the chief air of the institution. It reads "Winners never quit, quitters never win." —Fort Worth Star Telegram.

IT REQUIRES ARMY TO WRITE ARMY'S WAR COMBAT HISTORY

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

(For Jack Stinnett)

WASHINGTON — One of history's big history writing jobs, a chronicle of the Army's part in World War II, will be ready in about five years.

A series of preliminary volumes destined to be rewritten, already have been published. The latest covers the first seven days of fighting for the Omaha beachhead in the Normandy landing.

At work on the final history are possibly 500 officers, enlisted men and civilian historians, culling reports, interviews, photographs and drawings which in many instances originated under enemy fire.

The result is expected to be a monumental narrative of probably 120 volumes, the most comprehensive chronicle of any war and the first for any conflict in which American troops have been engaged.

If five years seems long, note that the official history of World War I is not ready even yet. It is a compilation of battle orders and other significant documents, rather than a narrative, and is now expected to be completed in a year or so and to require some 28 volumes altogether.

The 128-volume collection of records of the civil war did not appear until 1902.

WITH plans made in advance for the first time, the army set out from the start to make a complete record of World War II placing historians in each war theater headquarters and with each field army, air force and technical service. In the later stages teams of historians went into action with combat troops.

Gen. George C. Marshall, then chief of staff, directed the prompt writing of preliminary accounts of individual campaigns, for the special benefit of wounded men. These have been found valuable, officials said, in preparing the final work.

Others of the preliminary chronicles were accounts of the first phase of the North Africa campaign, the Papuan operation in the Pacific, three monographs on the fighting in Italy and the story of Merrill's Marauders in Burma.

ALL but the first two were initially prepared in the field. Photographs were supplied by signal corps combat cameramen and civilian news photographers, a number of whom met death in making daring shots.

In accordance with Army policy, the authors of the official histories are anonymous, but some top-flight professional historians have had a hand thus far in collection and classifying of information and writing of actual narratives.

V. A. Q & A

Q. In reinstating a National Service Life Insurance policy that has lapsed, is a veteran required to take a physical examination?

A. Veterans who have let such policies lapse may reinstate them without taking a physical examination if they submit a signed statement to the veterans administration that they are in as good health as at the time of the lapse. This provision will remain in effect until January 1, 1947.

Q. May a guaranty of loan be secured from the Veterans Administration to buy an automobile?

A. Yes, but only if an automobile is necessary and is to be actually used in the conduct of a business or a farming operation.

Q. How does a veteran apply for weekly unemployment allowances?

A. Application should be made at a local office of the United States Employment Service. Discharge papers must be presented at the time of application.

Q. How may application be made for hospital care of a veteran?

A. Veterans Administration Form P-10, which may be secured at all VA offices, should be completed and forwarded to the nearest Veterans Administration office.

Q. Can a seeing-eye or guide dog be secured from the Veterans Administration for certain blind veterans?

A. Blind veterans who are entitled to disability compensation or pension for a service-connected disability are entitled to seeing-eye or guide dogs.

Q. Must a veteran have experience in business to get a guaranty of loan for business purposes?

A. The ability and experience of the veteran, and the condition under which he proposes to pursue such occupation, must be such that there is reasonable likelihood he will be successful.

BROADWAY : By Jack O' Brian

NEW YORK—Margaret Whiting was the victim for a very long while of having a dad in show business who didn't want his daughter to have any part of it. It's a safe bet now, however, that the late Dick Whiting, one of the greatest song writers in the business, would be mighty proud of his talented youngster. She's the fastest rising gal vocalist in the business.

Young Margaret tried for years to get into show business but was up against an amiable stone wall. No one gave her much attention until Johnny Mercer had her sing on a Coast sustaining program three years after her father died. That led to her recording, in 1943, one of her dad's own tune, "My Ideal," a very smart waxing with Billy Butterfield's orchestra. From then on she was "in".

By the time she was 16 she had bum of her fathers music.

THE Winter Garden Theater noted its 35th anniversary a few days ago, its first birthday as a film house . . . Originally dedicated to revues and musical comedy, the theater put a definite hallmark on certain type Broadway shows . . . it was a touch of distinction to have a production referred to as being in the Winter Garden style.

The Broadway playpot, now showing "Tomorrow Is Forever," the Orson Welles-Claudette Colbert cinema, opened in 1911 with a show called "La Belle Paree," described as a "jumble of jollity in two acts and eleven scenes." . . . The music was by Jerome Kern . . . an obscure young performer in "La Belle Paree" later left a small part in Lew Dockstader's Minstrels to become one of Broadway's most famous: Al Jolson.

Merchandise

Warnings against inflation are beginning to reach us country people with increasing force and frequency. Nearly all the experts who comment on it say we have inflation already but it can get much worse. Accurate definitions of inflation are rather complicated. In fact, some of the definitions are harder to understand than the condition itself, such as we all can see by looking around.

When just about everybody has spending money in their pockets because they can't find enough of the things they want to buy, that is where inflation begins. The results are quite natural. Automatically people start bidding against each other for what items they do find, and prices advance far beyond real values. Then, no matter what we buy, we are squandering money.

Regulation Prices.

What we need to cure inflation is plain to see: more things to buy. That's all it takes. If I need a hat and can find only one that fits my head and suits my taste, the dealer can (unless restrained by law) charge me whatever he wishes. I may rebel at the price but somebody else will pay it and the merchant will not need to worry about me. What will set the matter straight? More hats!

When hats are offered by every haberdasher in town, some competitor is certain to lower his prices to increase sales. Another will try to outdo him, and this competition continues until falling prices get too near cost to go cheaper. It is that simple. Goods are the scare-crows that frighten away inflation. Whatever interferes with the production of merchandise only makes inflation worse.

Artificial Feeding

Inflation is like hunger. It is a want that has the full force of a need. Hunger includes a craving that throws a person's sense of values completely out of plumb. Food is the only satisfactory answer to the hunger question and, just so, goods are the only sound solution to inflation. There are trick ways to hold prices down, when goods have to be scarce, but they are only temporary help.

Once in a while somebody has a strange ailment that makes eating impossible, or very dangerous. Physicians deny such a patient food while they try to adjust the malady. Sometimes they use drugs to make the patient sleep and forget his craving; sometimes they flow energizing liquids into the blood-stream, but it is no diet. Nobody can live on it; it only makes starvation slower.

War Is a Malady

During the war, people in America were rightly denied goods; there were not enough workmen; not enough factories, not enough materials to supply the nation's defenders, our men and their allies. Consumer goods were scarce and a lot of people had extra money. All prices would have skyrocketed but government restrained it by law. It was an emergency—drastic remedy; no complaint.

Price controls did not contribute anything permanent to this country's economic strength, however. They simply eased the shock for civilians who had to undergo economic surgery or perish of dictatorship. Now the ordeal is over and the patient is wholesomely hungry for merchandise. Every regulation that now retards production should be removed or relaxed in the public interest.

In the same been in the Hit Parade, the Jack Carson Show, the Ransom Sherman program. She left radio to sing with Freddie Slacks band. . . . Now, at 21, she makes more than $200,000 a year, has three commercial programs, probably the most of any gal singer in radio. Her record of "It Might As Well Be Spring" sold more than 1,000,000. Now a New Yorker, Margaret was born in Detroit and moved to Hollywood when her dad started writing film tunes. Her ambition: To record an al-show a chorus boy named Jack Oakie was nursing his ambitions . . . and a few years later Jimmy Cagney left a chorus in the same theater to head for bigger glory. Mistinguett was an early Winter Garden delight . . . Ed Wynn, Willie and Eugene Howard, Eddie Cantor, John Charles Thomas, Fred and Adele Astaire, Marilyn Miller, Irene Castle, Frank Tinney, The Dolly Sisters, Ina Claire, George Jessel, Jay C. Flippen, Weber and Fields, Fred Allen, and hundreds more, right up to Olsen and Johnson, the last stars to play there before the films moved in, have made the Winter Garden a major Broadway legend. It was to the Broadway musical stage what the Palace was to vaudeville, and what bow ties are to Sinatra and Truman.

TEEN TALK

(AP) Newsfeatures

Dear Judy,

HAVE you any new party ideas up your cuffs that you can spare? Phyllis Arford of Colver, Pa., is looking for brain fudge for her sophomore class party.

It seems that Phyllis is to be chairlady of the Ebensburg, Cambria High School event.

So far I think the heps have a slick idea that the other kids might like to try.

The whole theme of the party is being taken from comic strips. All the decorations and favors are based on the strips.

For instance all the boys at the party are given slips with male comic strip heroes written on 'em and the girls are given slips with the names of girls comic strip characters. Partners for the evening are two that match like Oaky Doaks and Princess Elaine or Jiggs and Maggie.

All the kids were sitting around the other night trying to decide what we'd be when we grew up. Mary decided we'd all be baby-sitters because that seems to be the only thing we've been trained to do. I've taken care of so many babies lately that I feel as old as Whistler's mother. But at least I made enough money to buy some Easter clothes.

Four teen-age girls from North Texas State college in Denton arrived in New York to join Vaughn Monroe's band. The girls are thrilled with the big city—especially the fact that taxicabs have windows in their roofs.

By the bye, had a letter from Edward Gwizdz of Elizabeth, N. J. which proves that it isn't just the girls who are 'gator wise. Ed says he thinks teen talk is the beamiest thing he has ever read. Don't you think that Ed must have plenty in his watch works, or are we getting to be snobs?

Chicago bobby-soxers found a brand new idea in a street car party. They chartered a street car for $18.75 for a whole day of fun at Ryan Woods. They brought along their phonographs, lunch boxes and game, and roasted hot dogs over open fires. The conductor called for them three hours later and a whale of a time was had by all. The kids danced a conga line on the seats.

To pass the time they also played a new game. Everybody puts a toothpick in his mouth, the one who starts the chain puts a Life Saver on his toothpick. The trick is to pass the Life Saver from

Ham Steak With Raisin Sauce

- 1 pound ham steak
- 1/4 cup brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons dry mustard
- 1 1/2 cups boiling water
- 1/4 cup vinegar
- 1/2 cup raisins

Combine sugar, flour, mustard, water and vinegar and cook over low heat for ten minutes, stirring until sugar has dissolved. Add raisins and cook five minutes longer. Add butter or margarine and pour over slice of ham steak in a greased shallow pan. Bake at 375-400 degrees 15 to 20 minutes.

Biscuit Tortoni

- 1/2 cup of sugar
- 1/8 cup of water
- 3 egg yolks
- Few grains salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup cream beaten stiff
- 1/4 pound marshmallows, cut
- 1/4 pound macaroons

Boil sugar with water until the syrup spins a thread when dropped from tip of spoon. Pour slowly on egg yolks beaten light in top of double boiler, cook, stirring constantly until mixture coats spoon. Cool, add vanilla, cream and marshmallows. Pack into individual paper cups, sprinkle with finely crushed macaroons and freeze in refrigerator.

Texans 'n Washington

By L. T. (TEX) EASLEY
AP Special Washington Service

WASHINGTON, April—(AP) — With a record-setting turnover of at least four among their 21 members in prospect for next year—not counting any possible involuntary retirements dictated at the polls—Texas House members are almost talking to themselves these days.

They grin and greet each other in the corridors and lobbies with such quips as: "Good morning colleague—or are you?"; or "Oh I say, have you heard the latest—I'm running for re-election, but don't let it get out."

Incidentally, they all noted with envy that Rep. Luther A. Johnson's new federal judgeship appointment of 12 years duration saves him six election campaigns.

There are reports around Capitol Hill that Fort Worth's veteran Congressman, Fritz G. Lanham, who recently announced his retirement, had been offered a lucrative position with a private concern in the building trade. The Lanham Housing act made him a national figure in that line.

The great natural gas fields of Texas are a subject of much concern to the federal Power Commission, which has jurisdiction when it comes to exporting the fuel across the state's boundary.

While the question of conserving the gas and holding it in Texas as a drawing card for industries to build plants there is a hot political potato between the Rio Grande and Red River, it also is getting considerable attention here from the national politicians—but for different reasons.

Probably the most powerful groups sitting in on FPC hearings on Texas gas pipe line hearings are the coal mine operators and miners themselves. They fear large scale movement of natural gas to the east through use of the Big Inch line as has been proposed, and through enlargement of Tennessee Gas and Transmission Company's Texas-West Virginia line as is now being sought before the FPC. It would displace tens of thousands of miners, not to mention railroad workers who haul coal, they argue.

Another big pipe line application currently under consideration before the FPC is that of the Reynosa Pipe Line Company of Corpus Christi, which seeks to deliver gas from the Rio Grande valley to Monterrey—a Mexican concern would pipe it south from the border. Chairman Olin Culberson and Beauford Jester went on record before the commission against the application, but the third member of the Texas Railroad Commission, Ernest O. Thompson, didn't agree with them.

Rep. John Lyle of Corpus Christi, in a formal statement submitted to the commission supporting the application, said:

"The land owners who own the minerals in place are being denied the fruits of their ownership because of the lack of a legitimate market in the area, and the full development and exploration for natural resources in that area are retarded for the reason that there is no adequate return for the great sums of money expended in the search for deposits of gas there.

"We have the gas. Mexico needs the gas. We have no other adequate market at this time, nor the prospects for either an adequate or profitable market. Consequently to me it appears basic and simple that the public interest would be denied if this application were not granted."

Depend on Senator Tom Connally for quick wit under any circumstances.

The other day Leon Blum, the French statesman, came to the Senate Foreign Relations committee to discuss the economic situation of his country. Before the conference began photographers asked the two to pose together, so, in a jovial mood, they struck up a friendly attitude while interpreters and others moved to one side.

"They want us to talk, so the picture will look natural," Connally told Blum, with a sweeping gesture. "You're a good talker so talk."

Blum, an old hand at press relations, needed no translation to comprehend the situation. He turned to Connally hopefully and rolled off a flurry of French. As the flash bulbs popped, the Texan wrapped his long arm around the Aging Blum and said: "Well, at least these pictures will look the same in French as they do in English."

Here appearing before the federal Communications Commission on behalf of an applicant for a new radios station in Corpus Christi was Cecil Burney, Corpus Christi attorney.

Peat, believed the earliest stage in the evolution of coal, is found in bogs.
