TOM V. FREEMAN IS GOP CANDIDATE FOR COMPTROLLER

MINERAL WELLS, Aug. 14 (AP)—The state republican convention nominated Murray Sells of Glade-water for U. S. Senate and Eugene Nolte, Jr., of San Antonio, for Governor.

Others included Tom V. Freeman of Gatesville for Comptroller of Public Accounts.

The platform called for: "immediate discharge from the government payroll and especially from all positions of policy makers; an invitation to disgraced democrats to enlist in the republican party; a secret ballot; prohibiting unions from using funds to influence elections, prohibition of closed shop; abolition of unnecessary government bureaus & spending; adequate and equal educational opportunities regardless of creed, race or color; "and they continued; "we do not believe our great University of Texas or any other state educational institution should be infiltrated with communistic or radical leadership, nor do we believe that such institutions should be political footballs.

JESTER RECALLS TURMOIL OF U.T. UNDER RAINEY

By Ray Osborne, Staff Correspondent of The News.

GATESVILLE, Texas, Aug. 14—Reiterating his belief that he is the gubernatorial candidate who can work most harmoniously with all the departments of government, Beauford Jester Wednesday offered a comparison of his services and those of Dr. Homer P. Rainey when each was connected with the University of Texas.

"My opponent was president of the university at a salary of $17,500 a year, plus house and utilities from 1939 until he ran into trouble Jester recounted.

"I was able to repay that great institution for giving me my higher learning by serving on the board of regents for six years, two years of which I was chairman of the board.

Worked in Harmony

"During my tenure of office we had harmony between the faculty the president and the regents. We built a beautiful university and accomplished it without any strife between the regents and the unions or any other organization.

"During the two years I was president of the board we completed a great building program and tore down most of the ugly old buildings on that beautiful campus.

"I was able as chairman of the building committee, to borrow $4,000,000 from the Public Works Administration and with that money we finished the job."

Jester also asserted that in comparison with the criticism by educational groups of the university during Rainey's regime as president that the school reached a high academic peak while he was president of the board.

"The university was accorded membership in the American Association of Universities," Jester told his audiences.

"An invitation to membership in that honorable organization is based only upon a high academic standing, not beautiful buildings." Turmoil Started.

"Now my friends, you know that the papers have been full of the discord and dissension at the university for the last two and a half years.

"That is how my opponent left that great university after only a few years as its head. I have no way of knowing how long it will take to erase the turmoil and feeling of distrust which prevails there."

Jester also reminded the voters that while he has been a member of the Railroad Commission that body has had no arguments or disagreements with the State Legislature.

"Yet your Legislature investigated conditions at the University of Texas while my opponent was its president.

"I leave it to you voters to decide which of us will be able to better work in complete harmony with the many state departments and the Legislature."

Jester concluded his day with a short non-political speech at the Bear Club rodeo in Waco.

New provisions in the program this year enable farmers to make a wide choice of the type of coverage they desire, he said. Employees of the ACA office will explain the detailed application of these provisions to individual farms. Wheat crop insurance is sold under a 3-year contract.

LONE STAR CANNING BULLETIN BOOST TO FOOD PRESERVATION

Cooperating with the Department of Agriculture's appeal for National Home Food Preservation Week July 15-22, Lone Star Gas Company's current recipe bulletin stresses modern methods of canning fruits, vegetables and meats to assure Americans a better diet and help the famine stricken of the world. Copies of the bulletin, "Cooking With Gas" are available without charge thru the company's business offices or requests may be mailed to Lone Star's home economics department in Dallas at 301 S. Harwood St.

National food preservation week will focus attention on necessity of home preservation of food supplies for winter when food is badly needed throughout the world; it will emphasize need for food preservation throughout summer and fall.

The bulletin points out that canning is one of the best means of food conservation and describes the pressure cooker, boiling water bath and open kettle methods of canning vegetables, fruits, meats, poultry fish, pickles and relishes. Recipes for sugar substitutes and those requiring minimum sugar are given.

The pressure cooker method is the nearest approach to commercial canning and will handle any kind of food, the bulletin says, and the water bath method is "recommended for canning fruits, tomatoes and tomato mixtures." The open kettle method may be used for preserving and pickling.

One section of the bulletin is devoted to containers, lids and sterilizing. Other points stressed are pre-cooking or blanching of fruits and vegetables, and how to detect food spoilage. It warns, "don't throw away food value! In pre-cooking vegetables and fruits use the cooking liquid to fill the jars. Valuable minerals and vitamins leak out into the water, and will be lost forever if the water is discarded."

WALTER WANGER presents
Eternally Yours
starring
LORETTA YOUNG • DAVID NIVEN

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
Anita Peabody jilts colorless Don Barnes for round-the-world vaudeville with Tony Halstead, a society magician. He shrugs off her plans for a quiet life in Connecticut, and she leaves him. Madly in love with her, he follows her to America, where he learns that she has divorced him. He forgets his work, and lives forlornly in Anita's Connecticut house. When he hears that she has married Don, Tony dully prepares for a comeback.

Chapter Four

Almost immediately after she married Don, Anita knew what she could expect from her married life. Gloria had said it perfectly. "It's so normal — so sane — so wholesome!" One hour before the cruise ship docked at New York, Don received — and prepared completely to obey — a telegram from his employer. It read:
"Congratulations. My car will meet you and bride at pier and take you to Rayon Room for annual benefit. Expect both tomorrow for house party at my Adirondack Lodge for honeymoon. Bingham."

The threads, which were all that remained, had crossed again. The love that Anita had held for Tony, and his for her, seemed torn and worry about his coming home with lipstick... But, look here — I see no signs of his hand — ever rocking a cradle!" Tony grabbed Anita's hand. "Your hands don't match!" he said mournfully.

Anita was seething. She rose to go, but the Bingham would have none of it. Don had nothing to say.
"You know," Tony said, smiling "I can read your mind, Mrs. Barnes — it's apparent you don't believe in me!"
"That's right!" Anita's voice was acid.
"You are thinking of something definite!"
"I certainly am!"
Tony arranged his face to suggest a trance. "Rio... Rio de Janeiro. Is the location right?"
"Yes!"
"A dead... I see a dead... clothes... trunks of them... jewels... jewels... an airplane... someone running away... a letter — am I close?"
By now, Anita was swept along, against her will.
"Yes!" she said, fervently.
"This letter was to a man — who loved a woman madly — passionately — blindly!"
"You're wrong! This letter was to a man who loved only himself!"
"Why didn't she tell that man she was planning divorce and marriage to another man when she wrote that letter?"
"That isn't true!"
Anita heard the shout in her voice and stopped abruptly. She dissembled now. What did not seem, what was real and apparent, was that they were apart. Now, blindly, they moved toward each other...

"Next time you must ask a question, Mrs. Bingham."

In his first two minutes of performance at the Rayon Room benefit, Tony was once more the master of his art. His mind and fingers were again supple; with Lola and Benton, he charmed and delighted his audience. He read their minds, amazed them, made them laugh. He was "The Great Arturo", after all. And while he was in the dressing room, Anita and Don arrived at the Bingham's table. Then he came on, and they saw each other.

Anita was panic-stricken. Tony, when he saw her, started as if to rush off the stage to her, and then regained his composure. When his act was over, he walked across the floor to the Bingham table. Anita begged Don to take her away, to dance with her; he prepared to meet the situation, of course, and refused to leave. But Tony gave her no reason for alarm. The Bingham did not know, and they would not know. There would be no scene. She should have known. But when she saw Tony extend a smiling welcome to Don, she remembered more...

"I've been noticing your hand, Mr. Barnes. It's very interesting. Would you mind my seeing it?"
Don yanked his hand away. "This is nonsense!" he muttered. But Bingham insisted that Tony go ahead, and he did. Looking always to Anita, Tony read the palm.
"You're a man of very fine habits, Mr. Barnes," he began. "The type of man who settles in one place — loves a home and children... And right here — is thrift! You'll never spend more money on furs and jewels than you earn, Mr. Barnes —"
"I should hope not!" Don interjected proudly, and Tony continued.
"Feel that bump of constancy! Mrs. Barnes, you'll never have to had said too much.

"I'm sorry," she said to the others, "but I'm really not in a mood for this fantastic business. Beside, my uncle, Bishop Peabody, is waiting for me."
"Then I'll let you go," Bingham said. "We'll see you in the mountains."
"And you'll want the Bishop's blessing — of course," Tony added. This quip was his last, for Anita promptly fled, with Don not far behind.
When they had left, Tony turned to Bingham. "You mean they are going to spend their honeymoon at your place?"
"Yes, in the Adirondacks. I was planning for winter sports, but — why, you ought to be able to help me! Do you predict good weather for tomorrow?"
Tony promptly faked a trance, and thought quickly.
"Well... no... no — I see unseasonable rains — no winter sports — so you'd better provide some indoor entertainment... Good night — and dear Mrs. Bingham — next time you must ask a question. You are a sensitive."
Mrs. Bingham squirmed with delight.
In their room at the Angel's Rectory, Don threw open the windows and hopefully pulled down the blinds.
"Don —" Anita hesitated. "Don — I must talk to Gramps."
"Talk to him in the morning," he laughed.
Anita edged to the door and into the hall. "Oh no," she said, "I couldn't do that — Don, don't wait up for me..."
"Silly!"
"See you in the morning... Good night."
"Good night?"
"Uh-huh. Good night."
Anita explained to the Bishop that she had seen "The Great Arturo", and the Bishop understood.

TEXAS FARM-RANCH DOLLAR
FRUITS · VEGETABLES · PEANUTS · COTTON · GRAINS · POULTRY · LIVESTOCK AND DAIRY PRODUCTS · WOOL MOHAIR

The chart shows where Texas' farm-ranch dollar comes from. In Texas livestock—including meat animals, dairy products, poultry and poultry products, horses and mules, and wool and mohair—made up 44 cents of the gross income dollar. This compared with 34 cents for the southern states and 63 cents for the United States as a whole. Cotton is still the leading cultivated crop on the gross income basis. Figures in the chart are based on USDA reports for the 1944-45 crop year; government payments were apportioned to the various crops. Chart from Texas A. & M. College Extension Service.

Decisions

Men and nations gain or lose by the quality of decisions they make. Founders of this remarkable republic made a wise decision long ago, in favor of personal self-reliance and individual government. America is great today because so many smart people were left free to do as much as they knew how, and gain as much of a reward for themselves as they were able.

Not all Americans are models of progress and success but they all have benefited more or less from the achievements of those who did have the immortal spark. You can't pick successful men before they try, but more men of outstanding talent are sure to come to light where everyone is allowed to do his best. A large number of thinkers at work always adds up to more for everybody.

Not Luck at All

People may orate about America's greatness coming from her vast natural resources. The resources exist all right but the redskins had them before Columbus came and didn't know the use of a wheel. Some people boast of this nation's blue-blood heritage. It was good. Our forebears, in large part, came from Europe. That was probably the smartest thing most of them ever did.

America's economic system is what made America great. It is a system of liberty giving every man the right to pick what he wants and go after it hammer-and-tongs, get it if he can and enjoy it to the extent of his capacity, so long as it does not trespass the rights of somebody else. It is a sprightly and dynamic economy, quickly adjustable to changing times and conditions.

What Developed?

Limitless opportunity and keen competition have borne a rich harvest. Our farmers live better than the peerage of some foreign lands. Our laborers have more than workers elsewhere ever have had at any time. America has 7% of the world's population and 80% of the world's automobiles. We send more children to high school and college than all the rest of the world combined.

During the last two years of World War II, from a startled start in December, 1941, America made more war materials than all her allies and her foes put together. An American carpenter can buy more with his pay for a day's work than any other carpenter anywhere—2½ times as much as the carpenter in Germany or France. And the same goes in all trades; the butcher, the baker and the street-car conductor.

How It Works

Freedom of opportunity fires everybody to try; thus men of great genius come to light and the whole nation benefits. Then competition between men of special ability stimulates them to zealous effort in turning out products of excellence at fair prices to develop and hold profitable markets. This enables America's middle class to enjoy luxuries unknown to run-of-mine kings.

Mass production for volume sales demands fine and expensive tools. Buying this machinery calls for capital investment—averaging $6,000 per industrial job in the United States. The thing that made America great was a decision to be free: Free to work, free to think, free to earn, free to save and free to invest and make a profit. It is called Free Enterprise and it's too valuable to lose.

ALLEN SHIVERS IS PEOPLE'S FAVORITE

Senator Allen Shivers, in thanking the voters of Texas for the heavy lead they gave him in the July primary to make him the favorite candidate for lieutenant governor, also warned citizens that attempts will be made by scheming minority pressure groups to defeat him in the Aug. 24 runoff.

The Jefferson County legislator lawyer and farmer, pointed with pride to the overwhelming support which he received in his present home county and in the county where he was reared to manhood. Shivers, a World War II combat war veteran (the only veteran in this race), polled approximately 75 per cent of the votes in Jefferson County, his present home, and was a 25 to 1 favorite over his runoff opponent in Tyler County, where he spent his youth. Senator Shivers led his runoff opponent by approximately 100,000 votes in Texas.

"I am deeply grateful for the confidence the people of Texas have shown in me and the progressive program for Texas which I advocate," Shivers said "I shall strive even harder to work for the welfare of Texas."

"Because I represent the masses of the people, there will be those in the runoff campaign who will conspire to defeat me," Shivers predicted. "I will not be swayed by these radical minority groups—the C.I.O. noisemakers in particular. My opponent is welcome to the support which they are giving him. I will continue to fight for the right and welfare and progress of our people who make up the backbone of Texas."

You can't expect wiring designed for this

... to provide efficient service for this ...

Today's home wiring must supply a higher level of lighting and many more appliances than the home wiring of 15 or 20 years ago. Tomorrow's electrical living will place even greater demands upon home wiring. It must be big enough for the job.

Wiring that is too small chokes off the power between meter and outlet, just as small pipes limit water pressure at the faucet. When wires are too small, lights and appliances compete against each other for a too-meager supply of electricity. Lights dim when the refrigerator starts up or the iron is in use. Appliances operate sluggishly, taking longer to do their jobs and wasting electricity. Circuits become overloaded and cause fuses to blow or wires to heat up dangerously.

If you plan to build, buy or modernize ... insist on ADEQUATE WIRING

Adequate wiring simply means a service entrance large enough to bring in as much electricity as your home may need at any time... enough branch circuits of large enough wire to conduct a full measure of electric energy to your lights and appliances... and plenty of outlets and switches, properly located. Insist on adequate wiring... it's the key to full enjoyment of better electrical living.

RARE DEAL GIVES BRIDGE PLAYERS COMPLETE SUITS

Dunedin, New Zealand — Four women members of the Dunedin Bridge Club received the shock of their lives when they were each dealt a complete suit. The deal occurred in the third hand of a rubber. The pack used was the same one used in the first deal when the players threw in their hands. The women are convinced the freak hands were the result of chance. The dealer called even odds, he others gasped and passed. A club member said mathematicians have estimated that if the cards are shuffled correctly, such a deal should occur only once in a million players played 25 deals a day every day for 250 quadrillion years.

It's about football time, or soon and the school padres were looking for an Assistant Coach, and found and employed William Lionel Tatum, former star at San Marcos Teacher's College. Coach Tatum has just been terminated from the U. S. Army Medical Corps where he was a Medical Administrative Officer, and held a first lieutenant's commission. He was stationed both at South Camp Hood and McCloskey Hospital, Temple. He was recently married to Miss Mary Lou Green, daughter of W. F. Green of Mound.
