HANDS ACROSS THE TABLE

Adapted by Wallace West

from the Paramount Picture of the same title, based on Vina Delmar's story.

SYNOPSIS

Regi Allen is a manicurist in the barber shop of the swanky Carlton Hotel in New York. She meets Alton Macklyn, wealthy young man paralyzed from the waist down, whom she gives a manicure in his penthouse. She tells him that her ambition is to marry a millionaire. Macklyn is intrigued by her charm and honesty. Later, Theodore Drew III, society playboy, gets a manicure from Regi in the shop and promptly asks her for a dinner date.

CHAPTER II

AS Regi stepped out of the Macklyn apartment she collided with a young man who was using the black and white checkerboard tiles of the hall floor to play hopscotch.

"I didn't know the lights were against me. Sorry," he apologized, removing a hat which perched on the back of his head.

"Certainly," answered the girl, watching him with wonderment as he again started hopping down the hall.

"Hopscotch," he explained over his shoulder. "Indoor hopscotch. Not up to the turf and field variety, but hopscotch, none-the-less. Want to play?"

"No, thank you."

"Every man to his own sport." He started off once more. "But you'll be sorry when I'm champion." Regi returned to the barbershop to find Laura in a great state of excitement.

"Regi," cried the cashier, "I'm going to give you your Christmas present in March. The answer to every working girl's prayer just called up for a manicure. He's Theodore Drew, the third."

"One, two, three," piped up Nona from the background. "Three's not so good for you, Regi. I don't like that 'third'."

"Doesn't mean anything except that he had a grandfather," opined Laura.

"Is he rich?" Regi's hands were parting her golden hair into place.

"Not only rich... but young and handsome."

"But what'd you talk about to a guy like that. What does he like?" "Blondes, probably."

"You can't talk about that." Regi stole a glance into the mirror.

"Then tell him how you just love polo. That's always safe."

Regi hurried to the magazine rack, took a copy of "Spur" and was deeply engaged in an article on polo when the young man who had been playing hopscotch in the hall wandered in and was ushered by Laura to a seat at her table.

"Oh!" Regi looked up from her reading expectantly, then seeing the grinning youth, froze instantly.

"Sorry... this is reserved for an appointment." She started to read again, so Theodore Drew, the third moved over to Nona's table.

A moment later Laura swept down upon Regi.

"Don't you know who that is?" whispered the cashier.

"Sure I do. That's the future hopscotch champion... and I'm interested in polo."

"You poor sap... that's Theodore Drew the third."

"That hick?" Regi stared at the young man's back and suddenly realized that his clothes, although carelessly worn, were of expensive cloth and tailoring. "Oh my... oh, my... oh my," she moaned. "Do I pick 'em?"

Nona chose this moment to leave her table in order to fill her hot water bowl. Regi made a rush for her. "Nona, for heaven's sake," she whispered. "This is it! That chance in a million! He's rich! Why, he's so rich he's crazy. I'm going to make a stab at him. You back me up." She took Nona's filled pan, turned and started toward her friend's table.

"Stab who in the back?" gasped her friend overwhelmed.

Drew was sitting with his eyes closed when Regi sat down opposite him. She wet her lips nervously, then reached for his hand, her own shaking. She drew back, then, bracing herself, picked up his hand and immersed it in the pan of soapy warm water.

"Ah!" said Ted in exactly the tone of a man getting into a warm bath. Then, as he opened his eyes and blinked, "My, but you got thin."

and more upset.

"If you think I ought to have other, don't be afraid to say so."

"Honestly, I've only cut someone once before."

"Ah, then, I'm your second manicure. And, by the way, how did you decide to become a manicurist in the first place?"

"I'm not really interested in manicuring," Regi became even more refined as she began her campaign. "But I'm simply mad over polo."

"Oh, really! What position do you play?"

"Oh, I don't play myself," she answered in dead earnest. "I just... er... follow it."

"Where?"

"Oh, All over!" She was at a loss but passed it off airily "It's so thrilling when they come galloping down the diamond with the chukkers flying. Oh, I just love chukkers."

"I know," Ted said sadly. "I've had a lot of complaints about it from my parents. Mother says I'm a throwback to my great grandfather. He was a pirate."

"My appointment was cancelled." She affected an absurd broad A and looked at him with large, round blue eyes. She turned back to her work but soon curiosity got the better of her. "Are you... are you... really Theodore Drew? You don't look like my idea of any Theodore Drew the third"

"I know," he said sadly. "I've had a lot of complaints about it from my parents. Mother says I'm a throwback to my great grandfather. He was a pirate."

"Honest?" Regi's eyes opened even wider.

"No, a pirate," he contradicted. "Ouch!" He jerked back his hand as the girl stabbed him with her scissors. "Blood! I've been wounded. Stabbed in the cuticle! What a way to die!"

"It's never happened before." Regi used the broad A for all it was worth as she hurriedly took a piece of cotton and tied it on his finger with a piece of thread. "Please excuse it. I'm terribly sorry."

"Perfectly all right." Ted's tone was flat. He crooked the bandaged finger to see if it still moved, then put his hand back on the table. Almost at once she stabbed it again.

"Ouch!" he yelled. "Say, this isn't your first manicure, is it?"

"No, it isn't." Regi essayed a winning smile as she bandaged the sec-

"Lady, I play chess myself," grunted Ted. "I don't like horses. Ouch!" She had pricked him again.

Terrified, Regi gave up attempts at conversation and bent over her work, just one inch from desperate crying. "That's all," she said at last in a strained voice.

"Thank you." Ted lifted his hands and stared at them wryly. Four fingers were swathed in cotton wadding. With difficulty he extracted a dollar from his billfold and put it on her table. Then he asked, "Are you... uh... doing anything tonight? If not, would you mind feeding me? I'm afraid I'll need a nurse? I'll only need you till about twelve. I'm going out of town."

"That's all right," Regi's voice was faint.

"I'll call at seven. No dressing."

"No seven... dressing..." She was in a daze. "I mean seven. No dressing." Then, as he started to leave the shop, "Mister Drew! You know where I live?"

"Well, the subject hadn't come up before."

"Four-ninety-three West One Twentieth. Miss Regina Allen."

As Ted bowed and departed Regi stared after him, tears of thanksgiving in her eyes. Then she felt frantically for her hair.

THE WORLD'S Safest INVESTMENT
WAR BONDS

Uncle Sam Says

Millions of you await your newspaper boy every day. He is important to me and to you. He is the citizen of tomorrow. He may be your lawyer, doctor, business man, mechanic, engineer, manufacturer, and, perhaps, your President. 800,000 newspaper boys like Jimmy sold $179,823,938.50 in War Stamps and Bonds. Now that the war is over, Jimmy hasn't stopped buying savings stamps and bonds. I am proud of the way Jimmy backed the attack against our enemies—I am equally proud of Jimmy now for backing his future.

U. S. Treasury Department

Take a look at this U. S. Savings Bond, friend. You don't have to be a seventh son of a seventh son to see your future. If travel is your desire some day, or you hope to see your boy or girl in college, or you dream of owning a farm, this Bond can help to make these dreams come true. Bonds accumulate faster than you imagine when you save regularly through the payroll savings plan where you work. Every $18.75 you put away in United States Savings Bonds grows to $25 in ten years.

U. S. Treasury Department

This fool's cap fits none of my nephews, least of all you, who learned during the war that the easy way to save part of your pay was to sign up on the payroll savings plan. I am visiting in Philadelphia today. Philadelphia is the home of the Liberty Bell and Benjamin Franklin, who said a penny saved is a penny earned. If Franklin were alive, he would revise this statement to $3 saved in U. S. Savings Bonds are $4 in your pockets ten years hence. Franklin would agree with me that this fool's cap fits only those persons who think because the war is over it is no longer profitable for them to save by buying Bonds.

Octopus Outlets

—a sign of INADEQUATE WIRING

Look around your home right now. Do you have any of these "octopus outlets" in use? If you have, it's a sign that your home wiring is out of date ... too small for its job.

Don't blame your appliances if they fail to give you the service you expect. When too many appliances and lamps are plugged into a single outlet, lights go dim, heating appliances come up to temperature slowly and fuses sometimes blow, because the average household wiring circuit simply can't carry enough electricity for all.

Eliminate the "octopus outlet" bottlenecks from your home by installing adequate wiring now. Put in additional circuits ... larger wire ... and more outlets ... so that you'll always have full-strength current and plenty of plug-in space for all of your lights and appliances.

What adequate wiring means

Adequate wiring simply means a service entrance large enough to bring in as much electricity as your home may need at any time ... enough branch circuits of large enough wire to conduct a full measure of electrical energy to all of your lights and appliances ... and plenty of outlets and switches, conveniently located. Before you build, buy or remodel, discuss adequate wiring with your electrical contractor. It's the key to

Uncle Sam Says

HOSPITALIZATION

Twelve out of every 100 persons will be hospitalized this year according to information released by the American Hospital Association. On an average day during 1945, 1,405,000 persons received hospital care. A new patient enters a hospital every 1.9 seconds.

The average hospital patient stayed 15.9 days last year which was two days more than average for the preceding year.

One in ten families will spend from 12 to 15 per cent of its 1946 income for medical and hospital expense.

About this time of year, we hunger for a sight of green sprouts and the first signs of a plentiful fall crop. I am visiting my nephew, Farmer John, in Iowa. John's seeds produce the golden corn we all love. John is also planting financial seeds. These seeds are United States Savings Bonds. Savings Bonds grow to golden hue. Every city worker also can plant and nurture these seeds. U. S. Treasury Department

Pictures Show Highlights of Atomic Year One

The atomic age opened July 16, 1945, with the New Mexico test of the bomb (1). A few hundred picked observers saw it. A year ago, at Hiroshima (2), the first war bomb left 160,000 dead and injured. At Nagasaki (3) a few days later casualties were 80,000. Only other atomic explosions have been in two Bikini tests (photo 4 shows first one), scored by atomic scientists as long on showmanship, short on science. Along with others, scientists are observing Hiroshima anniversary with pleas for controls to end all use of bomb.

The most lethal way to deliver an A-bomb is by rocket. Army trials of German V-2 type (above) brought assurances by the end of Atomic Year I that the day of long range atomic rockets is almost here. Scientists know of no defense.

All through the year scientists emerged from their laboratories to speak up on political aspects of atomic energy. Photo (from August March of Time) shows Albert Einstein with Harold Urey (left) and Leo Szilard, all active in fight to control the bomb.

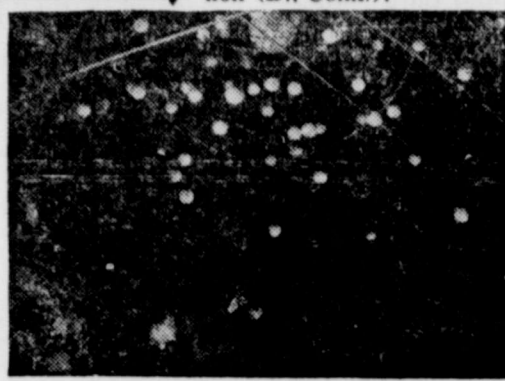

Drive for civilian control of atom in U. S. was led by Sen. Brien McMahon (D., Conn.).

After directing Los Alamos bomb laboratory, Dr. J. R. Oppenheimer helped draft State Dep't. proposals.

Biggest issue of Atomic Year I was international control. U. S. plan, presented to UN Atomic Commission by Bernard Baruch, drew counter proposals from Russia's Andrei Gromyko (shown above reading his plan; Baruch at right). Most observers expected final compromise.

The great American public spent Atomic Year I coping with new words, new fears and new hopes. Scientists predicted blessings from the atom, but not if war strikes. Photo shows exhibit at New York Museum of Science.
