Army Recruiting Service Sponsors Poster Contest for Students

G. W. Wier, Superintendent of schools will give'em the details, but a Poster Contest is sponsored by the Dallas U. Army Recruiting Station.

The posters will have a recruiting theme, and should be in Dallas by November 5. Prizes will be $50, $25, and $15.

HE PAYS FOR HIS FARM, MR. MEARS!

Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Mears of Topsey are the first family to pay for a FSA farm, and 33 years ahead of the 40-year loan period.

It all started, June, '39 when he borrowed $7217 to buy his 320 acre farm and ranch. Estimate value of his place now by FSA is $12,000 but the way land's selling now, you can add to that.

Broom corn was the "pay-day" on this farm, he says, and also he had turkeys, sheep, cattle a garden and chickens and he had no other income.

Other improvements are a new house, barn, sheep shed chicken houses, brooder house, a pick-up and tractor. Stock includes 35 cows and calves, 170 sheep, and turkeys and chickens.

Still, it can be done!

Lt. James M. Davis Presented With DSC Posthumously

By direction of the President, the Distinguished Service Cross has been presented posthumously to Mrs. Jessie E. Davis of Gatesville, for her son, Lt. James M. Davis, Jr. by the Commanding General, 7th Army. The citation reads:

"For extraordinary heroism in action on 1 December 44, in the vicinity of Ribeauville, France. Assigned the mission of protecting a detail of engineers as they cleared the St. Marie Aux Mines-Ribeauville road of felled trees and mines, Lt. Davis, left one squad of men with the engineers while he with the remainder of his men, pushed quickly forward to prevent a possible ambush and to secure the road ahead. Encountering a second roadblock of felled trees, Lt. Davis made a careful reconnaissance of the enemy positions. When he determined that the roadblock was being defended by a well dug-in and concealed enemy ambush, Lt. Davis divided his platoon into two parts in order to assault the German positions from both flanks. He then proceeded alone against the rear of the enemy position in an effort to take the enemy by surprise, and, in the ensuing confusion, gave his two flanking squads an opportunity to annihilate the hostile forces. Armed only with a carbine, he rushed into the very heart of the German position firing as he ran. The audacity of his actions so completely disorganized the enemy that his platoon was able to assault the hostile position killing nine and capturing eight of the enemy and forcing the remainder to withdraw in confusion. Lt. Davis was killed as he reached the center of the enemy position. By his extraordinary heroism and fearless actions he effected the destruction of the enemy ambush and permitted the engineers to clear the roadblocks."

The decoration will be forwarded to the Commanding General of the Fourth Army, San Antonio, who will select an officer to make the presentation to Mrs. Davis.

O'Possum and Citizens Make Inside Cover, "Texas Week"

In the 12 October '46 edition of "Texas Week", are two photos by Doughty Studio, and besides the 'possum, are Dick Thompson, Paul Pollard, Oscar Fowler, M. G. Aven Earl Heath, Harmon Sellers, an unidentified man with a bow tie, two colored boys, Claude Johnson and Artice Phillips.

The cutlines read: "MEATED DENISON, Thrills Downtown Gatesville."

"Downtown Gatesville saw the effects last week of OPA meat rationing, but the climax came when a meated denison from just "East of the Leon" invaded Gatesville streets.

Mr. 'Possum demonstrated the height and or highness and scarcity of animal flesh by promptly scaling a light company line, pole and all. It was reliably reported, after the attraction fell off the wire, killing himself, a Gatesville butcher was seen going down the alley with the treasure preparatory to making "ground meat" to meet the customer demand, sans OPA.

"Attracted to the scene, were county officials, railroadmen, barbers, shineboys, one farmer, and a local gas magnate. All activities in the town topped, and people rushed madly out to see "meat". The railroad man was so hungry he picked his teeth with a toothpick and one barber jerked out his handkerchief, it'd been so long since he'd seen real live "MEAT."

And, under one of the pictures: HUNGRY GATESVILLEMEN . . . "It'd been so long!"

Clyde Thompson, a TWC student, was at home from Ft. Worth for a Saturday and Sunday visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. (Billy) Thompson.

Your War Bond Investment Is Your Investment In America . . .

Uncle Sam Says

The raising of the flag is always a wonderful thrill. This statue of the scene on Mount Surabachi which now stands across from the Navy Department in Washington, D. C., our nation's capital, recalls the back-the-attack spirit and your deeds as a wartime bond buyer. My slogan for you today on the first peacetime Flag Day since 1941 is "Now Back Your Future." Continued investment of part of your earnings in savings bonds is consistent with devotion to the flag. Old Glory symbolizes the security which savings bonds assure.

Local Boy Scouts Make Rounds at State Fair, Saturday, Oct. 12

Saturday Colubus Holiday, was really a gala time for Gatesville Boy Scouts. Scoutmaster J. M. Witcher arranged for school bus transportation, and before the first streak of day shone in the east, 22 Scouts and their scoutmaster were enroute to Dallas, where they entered the State Fair park when the gates were opened. There were not many things the boys missed seeing or eating, so the day was well spent. The trip was educational as well as enjoyable, and Scoutmaster Witcher really chalked up in the estimation of his Scouts and their parents.

COTTON TEXTILES

The cotton-textile industry has spearheaded factory growth in North Carolina from 1880 to the present. Centered in the Piedmont area, coarse yarns were spun at first but now medium and fine textures are turned out. It is a 50 million dollar business. All the world will need these products which will add to the Nation's wealth to back the Savings Bonds you buy.

Poages Feted at Luncheon, Open House

KILLEEN, Oct. 17—Mrs. W. R. Poage, wife of Representative Poage, and Mrs. Nellie Poage, mother of the Congressman, were honored with an open house Tuesday afternoon at the Will Sutton home with Mrs. Gilbert Jackson and Mrs. Earl Massey as hostesses. The honorees and hostesses received the guests.

White and bronze chrysanthemums decorated the house. The refreshment table was laid with a lace cloth and centered with white chrysanthemums. Silver appointments and white candles completed the table.

Mrs. W. P. Mounce and Miss Myrtle Smith poured and Mrs. Ben Norman and Mrs. Howell Norman cut the cake.

Mrs. Massey was hostess at a luncheon honoring the guests at noon. Places were set for 12. Roses and plumbago were used in decorating.

At 6:30 p. m., a dinner was given by the Suttons for the honorees and was attended by 24 guests.

NCH Dee Bees Win 14-7 From Santa Fe Engineers Here

North Camp Hood's Dee Bees defeated the Santa Fe, New Mexico, Engineers here Saturday night, 14-7.

Starting on the 34 in the second, Jim Barger, Hood back, made first down, then, Arhring passed to Nig Larsen and he carried to the 3. He then went over for the counter and Bud Blume kicked the extra.

In the fourth, Hood passes, Jebb recovers for the Engineers on the Hood 35. Renaldi takes a pass from Bill Perry, drops, and the ball scoots 20 yds where Jebb recovers. Bob Hampshire passes to Charles Culligan, 40 yds. and he goes to the 5, and then over. Bill Perry kicks the extra.

In the same period, Bud Blume, starting on his own 31 in a series, carries to the 2. Arhring plunged for the marker and Blume kicked.

Outstanding for Hood, Barger, Blume, Bellamy and Larsen. Engineers: Culligan, Stoney, Partin and Mytinger.

First Downs: Hood, 17; Engineers 3.

Miss Jeneva Howe And J. E. Kattner Wed in Home Rites

On October 15, at 4 o'clock p. m., Miss Jeneva Howe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Howe of Mother Hill Park, became the bride of J. E. Kattner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kattner of The Grove. The Reverend Gill of Moody-Leon Methodist church, officiated in the ceremony concluded in double ring pledges.

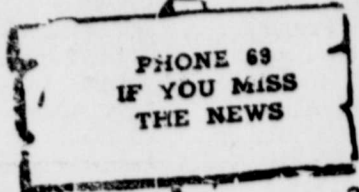

For her wedding costume the bride chose a two-piece grey pin stripe suit with black and white accessories. A corsage of pink carnations completed the attractive ensemble. Carrying out the old tradition for "good luck" the bride carried an heirloom white ace handkerchief, which she borrowed from her mother, and for the charm of something blue, she wore a blue stone bracelet that belonged to her twin sister.

Miss Jeneta Howe was her sister's only attendant. She wore a fuchsia dress with black accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Lee Roy Urbankse of The Grove, was the groom's best man.

After relatives and friends expressed congratulations and best wishes Mr. and Mrs. Kattner left on a short auto honeymoon trip.

THEATRE

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Old 52nd Street was a lane of brocade and satin, sacred to the rich, so exclusive that Fiorello Zamarelli couldn't even play his accordion in the street without bringing out the police to chase him to some less exclusive neighborhood. Among its residents are the Rondells, Rufus and his two spinster sisters, Letitia and Adela. Adela disapproves of his romance with a cabaret singer, Evelyn Macey, but Letitia sides with him. Rufus knows that Evelyn's two friends, Jack and Sid, are counting on her marriage to him so that they can borrow enough money to start their own cafe. He promises to lend them the money, regardless of her answer, on the evening that he has chosen for his proposal. Evelyn is overcome by the ardor of his wooing. Consents, with a kiss, to marry him.

Chapter Two

Rufus Rondell and Evelyn Macey were married, and their wedding proved a public sensation, a surprise even for accordionist Fiorello Zamarelli, who couldn't see the sense of keeping his music off 52nd Street, if a show girl could invade lief to thirsty citizens in a land gone arid. The peculiar irony lay in the fact that, they along with others, had invaded of all places, 52nd Street, to set up their establishment.

Back in New York, Fiorello Zamarelli was mad at this "bootleg business." Sparkling in frock coat, striped trousers and spats, he invaded Jack and Sid's place to remonstrate with his son, Ben, for the fortieth time.

Ben was crisply good looking, in his early twenties, had authored a number of the nation's most popular jazz nocturnes. But he found it profitable to tickle the keys in this select speak-easy — and fun. And the customers responded to his extraordinary skill and rhythms.

"Every day I sing songs with the pooshemup," sputtered his father. "I hire the best teacher for six years, and what I get" with a sweeping eloquent gesture.

"A pretty swell son," pointed out Benny falling into his father's manner of speech. "No drinka the hootch, no smoka the cigareta, and with his father like that," Benny crossed his fingers tightly to indicate the closeness of their tie.

Jack and Sid had witnessed the episode, and now were sneaking up on old Fiorello with blandishments. They did not want to offend him, they did not want to offend Ben. They couldn't afford to lose the boy.

They were determined to buy off Fiorello's indignation with a nice bottle of pre-war wine. Two bottles, or even a case, if necessary. Fiorello accompanied them under protest.

A few hours later, Fiorello was unsteadily accompanying his son under protest, shouting indignant insults at the quality of the liquor served at the speak-easy. As he weaved unsteadily by Rufus' mansion, he paused to listen to the piano music, wafted from its window. "Moosic, beau-ti-ful moosic. Justa like when you was bambino." And to the accompaniment of vigorous hand waving he belloyed the melody. The music ceased, went on, but Adela Rondell's face appeared in a window across the street to shriek a startling, "Stop it!"

In a moment, Jack and Sid had appeared in the street to take up the word battle with the Rondell they didn't like, Margaret, who had been playing the piano, drank in the crazy scene with undisguised delight.

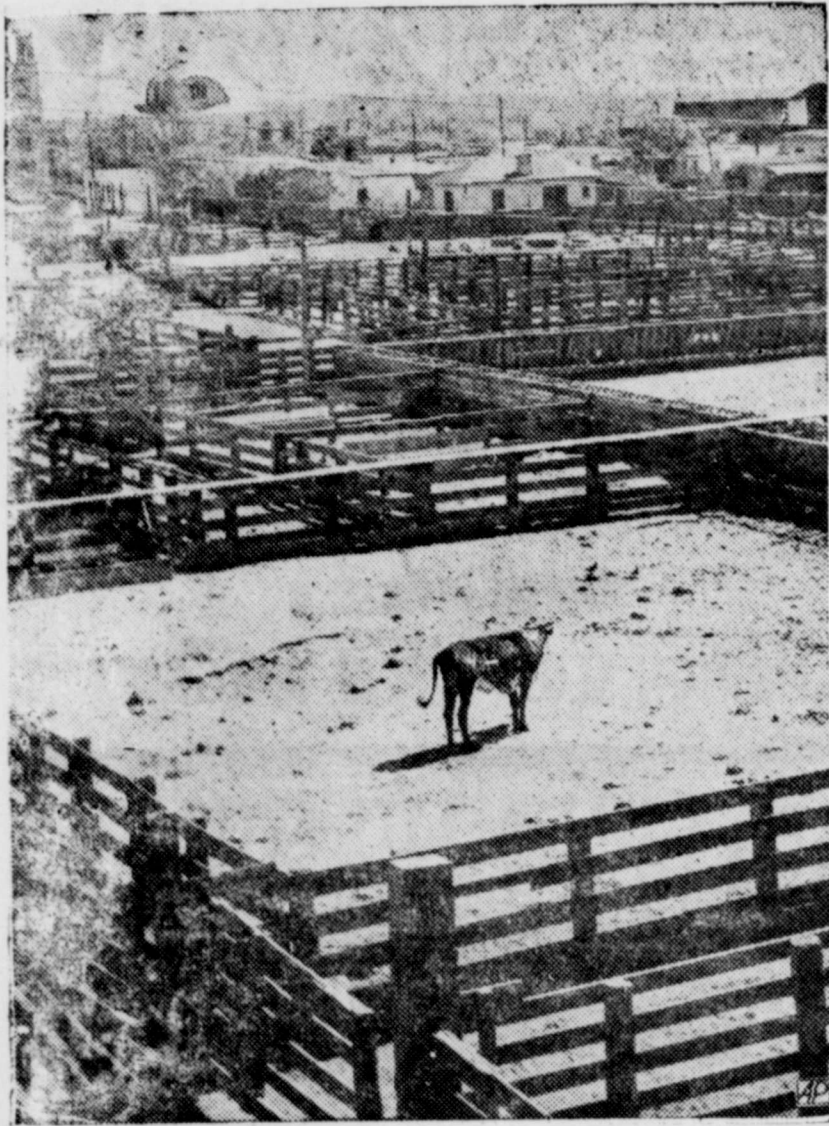

Ben was indignant. Shouting his defiance at Adela Rondell, he announced that he would sing. And in a moment his clear tenor voice was added to that of his father's. Suddenly a burly footman emerged from the house to put an end to the impromptu party. Little Sid indiscreetly swung and hit him, and domestics swarmed out to his aid. In a minute the street liked a miniature County Kerry picnic.

Benny was knocked in a heap under Margaret Rondell's window, and her music teacher took advantage of the situation to introduce him to the young lady who swam in his blurred vision like an angel. "Sing some more!" she implored, and he promptly complied.

Fiorello hurried from a conference where his business associates were gravely discussing conditions to see Fiorello reel weakly to a halt on his step. Policemen were bounding down the street. "Fiorello," chided Rondell. "I'm ashamed of you — America's finest street in a street brawl. Come on, get up."

Here's a "Summary" of Friday's Game With Itasca Here

Yes we wrote the play-by-play, just like we did on the Clifton game. And, they both stopped there.

USES says everybody is employed, and must be, 'cause we can't, or haven't employed a regular operator-printer. So, the summary.

"Gatesville Hornets 40, Itasca Wampus Cats 0. Starting on the Itasca 46, following a series of plays, Hiram Davidson on an end run, ran 15 yards for a touchdown. Dysinger kicks.

Jack Hollaway, Itasca fumbled, Bertram Davis recovers on the 23, Donald Fleming carries to 9, Jack Bone goes over from 9. Dysinger kicks.

Hiram Davidson intercepts on own 45, returning to Cat 37. Bone makes 1st down, and Davidson goes through tackle from 10 for a touchdown, Dysinger kicks, all in the first period.

Benton Gilbreath in 2nd akes from Hornel 10 to Cat 47, Bill Melton passes to Joe Daniels who goes to 5, and then over for touchdown from 1 foot stripe. Benton Gilbreath hits line fr extra.

Bone takes Davidson's pass from 20, carries to 16, then on three tries goes over, last from the 8. Dysinger's kick fails.

In the fourth, starting on the Hornet 46, Daniels, in a series, carries to he 8 then goes over standing. Dysinger's kick misses.

Counts: Hornets 40, Itasca 0. First Downs, Gatesville 16 Itasca 7. Might give you "blow by blow" yet if things get ironed out here.

INDEX OF TEXAS BUSINESS—
The Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas says the August value of Texas business compiled by the bureau gives no indication that the break in the stock market has yet had any influence on business in the state. The index climbed to 198.6 in August from 189.3 in July. Since the index is expressed as a percentage of the five year average, 1935-1939, it means that the level of activity is nearly double the pre-war level.

The low point of the reconversion period was in October 1945, when the index of business activity stood at 162.7 per cent of the pre-war period. Since that date Texas business has in general expanded steadily from month to month. The most spectacular gains in business have occurred in retail trade: the index of department and apparel store sales increased from 339.7 in July to 383.5 in August. The index of electric power consumption was 260.0 in August and 243.8 in July. The index of employment rose from 111.7 in July to 113.9 in August, while payrolls rose from 193.2 to 203.4. The only components of the composite index to decrease were miscellaneous freight carloading in the Southwestern district, and crude oil runs to stills. The index of freight carloadings as 140.1 in July and declined to 133.6 in August. The index of crude runs to stills declined from 180.2 in July to 177.2 in August.

Birthday Celebrants and Raby Park, Wednesday

Mrs. Glynn Weeks entertained in a most delightful fashion Wednesday afternoon in compliment to her son and daughter, Garland and Glynda, the one celebrating her fourth birthday on October 14, and the tiny sister, her third anniversary on October 29.

Preparations were made for an outdoor party at Raby Park where the small folk and their grownups assembled at 3:30 for some two hours filled with fun. The friends brought attractive gifts for the celebrants, and there was excitement and surprise and admiration expressed when each ornate package was opened. Popsicles, candy and whistles were distributed, and what a din of noises came from between sticky lips!

The guest personnel included: Mat, Joe and Johnny Jones, Donald Steele, Virginia Bradford, Marian Morgan, Linda Lou Hudson, Charles Hale, Ronnie Hall, Lynn David Turner, Don Turner, Janice Jones, Bob Edwards, Terry and Diann Post, Shery Brosmer.

Chapter One

Florello Zamarelli drew out his accordion for a final screeching chord, then swung into a turkey trot with Italian variations. It was a fine day with fine sunshine. It was a fine accordion and Florello was a fine musician. Everything was fine, except that this was 52nd Street, a cloistered New York street, sacred to the very rich. That was why Danny, the cop on the beat with a high celluloid collar and the slightly pompous look of policemen in this year of our Lord 1922, suddenly appeared before Florello.

"Sorry, old man," Danny drawled. "But it's twenty-three skidoo for you."

"What did I did I have to skidoo?" protested Florello as the accordion moaned to a silence. "You can't do these things to me. I got recipe for American citizen. I got city license."

"This ain't New York," Danny pointed out, good-naturedly pushing the musician along, "this is 52nd Street!"

"So these peoples too good for me," sputtered Florello. "Some day I show them. I make-a my son a bigga musich, then when they come to my house to hear him, I putta the jail on them... I... I..."

But Florello's music had already created a diversion in one of the

"Evelyn Macey wouldn't throw us down," shouted Jack. "Why man, we grewed up together."

"Don't shout," Sid protested. "I'm nervous."

"All right," Jack continued. "Then we could have our own place. Boy, can't you see it? Bigger than this and full every night — an electric sign over the door — Jack's and Sid's —"

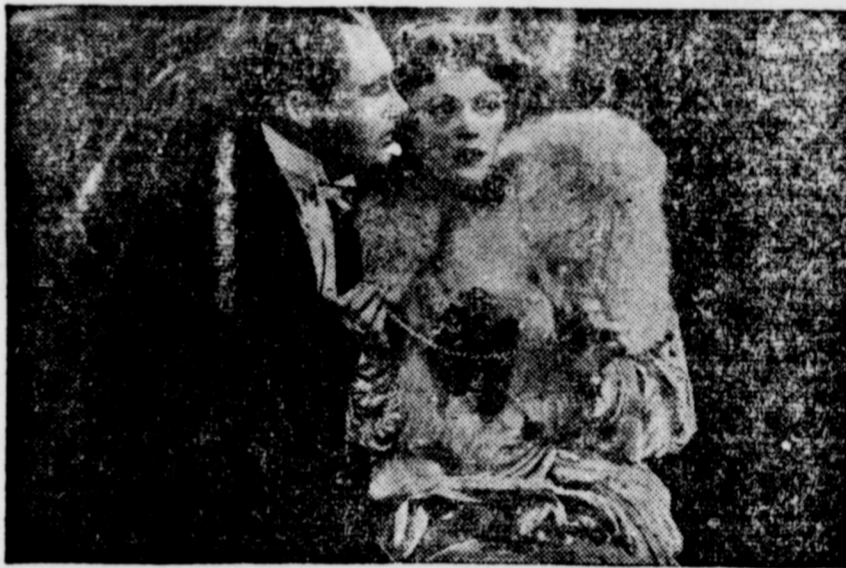

"Sid's and Jack's," corrected the other.

"Jack's and Sid's," insisted Jack. He choked up as he saw Rufus Rondell make his appearance. Rondell had the pleasant amiability of man accustomed to money. He was young, distinctly on the good-looking side. For a moment he exchanged pleasantries with the two who had just been spending his money — in their imagination. Sid thought he would take advantage of his situation, maneuvered Rondell to one side.

"It's like I been telling you," he said. "If you got anything to tell her which you want to be a secret like, I suggest you get out alone — out in the park, maybe."

Rufus had been eyeing his adviser amusedly during the speech. Suddenly he interrupted.

"Sid," he said, "I know all about your proposed enterprise. Miss Macey has often told me. Tomorrow — regardless of her answer — you'll get a ten thousand dollar

"I've wanted you ever since the first day I saw you."

sedate brown-stone mansions that lined the street. A little, bright-eyed spinster, watching him covertly from behind lace curtains was humming his tune. "Aren't you ashamed?" she heard her sister's voice behind her, and whirled to face her. "Ashamed?" Letitia Rondell breathed. "Yes! No, I'm not! I've got a right to sing."

Adela compressed her ordinarily thin lips into an even finer line.

"You, and your brother Rufus!" Her voice was harsh. "You singing out into a public street — and he making love to a common show-girl."

Letitia flamed. "She is not a common show-girl. She's Evelyn Macey and according to the papers she's some — some pumpkin."

"Letitia! You defending a show girl?" Now it was Adela's turn to break into sobs. "Upholding our brother for his actions — out every night — drinking."

"He wasn't last night. He smelled all right. I kissed him!" Letitia countered and she moved forward to embrace her sister.

Sid slid to the floor in a senseless heap.

The policeman whistled as he approached crunching on the gravel walk. It was Spring, and Central Park was full of lovers and lovers' problems, but Evelyn and Rufus felt that their problem was most difficult of all.

"It just couldn't be, Rufus," she shook her head. "It wouldn't work."

"You can't tell me that," Rufus spoke caressingly. "I've wanted you ever since the first day I saw you."

"Rufus, my kind doesn't belong on 52nd Street. Your sisters will tell you that — they probably have. And I don't blame them."

"Darling," he blurted forth. "My sisters are snobs! But I love them. You see, Adela gets her happiness out of thinking she dominates me. Letitia loves to cover up my vices. I feel sorry for them because the romance that might have been theirs is behind them. But in my particular case, my dear..."

And here he substituted action for words, leaned over and catching her face tenderly between his hands, kissed her passionately on the lips.

"Rufus," she breathed in protest. Then "Rufus," weaker. Finally, "Rufus" in a voice full of tenderness, surrender and love as her arms curled up about his neck, brought his head closer to her own.

The policeman returned whistling, gave them an amused glance, and resumed his patrol down the path, with his club swinging freely by his side.

SOY BEANS AND FLAX

Iowa's big contribution to national funds guaranteeing Victory Bonds will be enhanced in future years through its expanding production of soy beans and flax. It produced 39,312,000 bushels of soy beans and 2,820,000 bushels of flax seed in 1943 to aid the war. With increased demand for both products, farmers will be encouraged to expand their production. Iowa is first in output of red clover and timothy seed.

Uncle Sam Says

You are still at war one year after V-J Day. That's putting it bluntly, but I know from experience that you like straight-from-the-shoulder talk. Inflation at home has yet to surrender. United States Savings Bonds are still "War Bonds" in the battle for America's economic stability. You can combat rising prices by taking surplus dollars out of the market place. Your government has provided a safe, profitable vehicle for saving these extra dollars—United States Savings Bonds. By investing in Savings Bonds regularly you are building a better America and a better life for you personally. U. S. Treasury Department

Col. F. W. Green
 Cotton Belt's New Chief Executive

The following news story was released October 17, to the Coryell County News from the office of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Lines by Berryman Henwood, trustee:

Col. F. W. Green was made chief executive officer of the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railway Lines, it was announced today by Berryman Henwood, trustee for the company. Col. Green succeeds Daniel Upthegrove, who retired last month.

At the time several other appointments were announced: K. M. Post was named chief operating officer at St. Louis, succeeding Green; G. B. Matthews was promoted to general superintendent at Tyler, Texas, succeeding Post; C. B. Petticrew was appointed superintendent of transportation at Tyler, replacing Matthews, and F. W. Ferguson, succeeds Petticrew as Superintendent at Pine Bluff, Ark.

Post was born in Gatesville, and started his railroad career in his home town as a messenger for the Cotton Belt. Advancing through the various positions to superintendent of the Texas Division, he spent a year in St. Louis as assistant to the president prior to appointment as vice president and general superintendent in 1930 with headquarters at Tyler, Texas, where he resided prior to his transfer to St. Louis effective today as chief operating officer.

Groom Brings Bride
 For Gatesville Visit To Kin and Friends

Cpl. Billie H. Malone and his bride, the former Miss Ann Hutson, were in Gatesville for a few days recently as guests of his mother, Mrs. J. H. Malon, and to visit other relatives and friends.

Corporal Malone and Mrs. Hutson married in Waco, and went from that city to Topeka, Kans., where the groom was stationed at the U. S. Army Airfield. Since the visit of the couple here, he has been transferred to Westover Field in Mass., and they are at home in that state for the present.

Billie H. Malone was reared in Gatesville and is a graduate of the local high school. He entered the U. S. Army Air Corps eight years ago as an airplane mechanic, and was in active service through the World War II conflict.

Enough Food is no Accident

It is no accident that the largest crops in our history are being harvested this year when we, and the rest of the world, need them most.

In spite of war, loss of labor and little new equipment, the American farmer has again taken care of us and provided a life-saving surplus for abroad.

How do our farmers do it? How is it that only sixteen per cent of our people can feed all of us and go on breaking records in the face of circumstances which slow up industry?

There are three reasons: First, farmers work harder and longer than most other Americans; Second, they know how to make the best use of tools. And, third, they have a long-standing partnership with industry seeking to satisfy their urge to get more out of the land for the same labor: Farmers are still practicing the kind of enterprise that built America:

National thanks are due the farmer for the job he has done in the last five years. Universal respect is due him for his foresight in helping industry equip farms to meet a whole series of emergencies.

BUT::: we should not crowd our luck, or the farmer's luck either. Too many farm tools are now worn out. Without new ones production may go down. Farmers need over eight hundred million dollars' worth of new implements and equipment. It is up to industry and labor to keep wheels turning to produce them, but any recurrence of strikes would prevent this.

America should see that the hard-working farmer gets what he needs.

NEW NAVY DEVELOPMENTS: NAVY DAY 27th

NAVY WEAPONS OF THE FUTURE

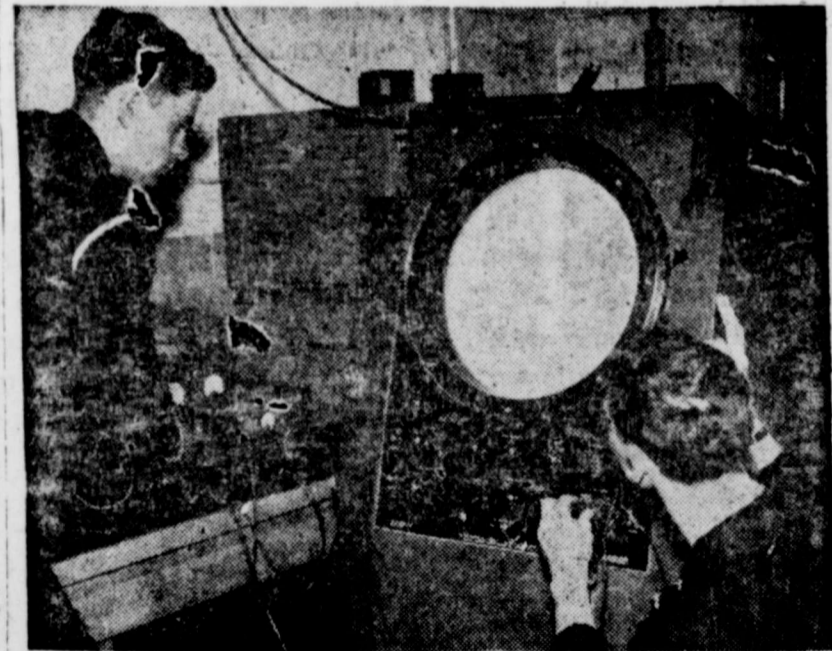

The first peacetime Navy Day in five years emphasizes the Navy's preoccupation with scientific advancement as a means of preserving the security of the nation it fought to insure between Pearl Harbor and V-J Day. Highlighting the development of offensive and defensive weapons and devices accelerated by World War II are robot aircraft such as the "Glomb," "Gordon," and "Gargoyle," heralds of a supersonic age in which only the mind of man can match the speed of the deadly creatures his genius has conceived. Largest member of this trio is the "Glomb," or glider-bomber (above). The LBE-1 is a television-controlled aircraft which will stand 300 miles an hour in a four-dive. (Official Navy Photograph)

NAVY SEES WITH 'EYELESS SIGHT'

A peacetime Navy Day permits withdrawal of the veil of secrecy that shrouded one of World War II's greatest developments, the mysterious radar. This development will continue as the Navy pursues lines of scientific research to equip it for its role as a Guardian in Peace. In the photo, an electric tension permeates the radar plot room of a U. S. Navy destroyer as computations are made for the shelling of an objective preliminary to landings. NAVY BOOSTS ELECTRONICS

Navy Day, 1946, heralds a new step forward in the United States Navy's expansion of its electronic development program, which is designed to equip it as a Guardian in Peace, just as electronic progress enabled it to emerge a Victor in War. The Bureau of Naval Personnel has announced that, beginning November 4, 1946, the basic course of Electronic Technicians' Mates and Aviation Electronic Technicians' Mates will be broadened from 20 to 42 weeks under a program aimed at filling 7,900 billets now open in these ratings. There are more than 3,700 different types of modern, complex electronic equipment aboard ships of the Fleet, in Navy planes and at shore stations. Photo shows advanced students at the ETM school in Anacostia, Washington, D. C., using an oscilloscope, a device for demonstrating the functioning of electronic equipment. (Official Navy Photograph)

NAVY FIGHTER, MODERN VOGUE

The "Tiny Tim" rocket, a projectile 10 feet long and weighing 1,200 pounds, unlooses a demonstration of the offensive power of the Navy F4U Corsair. The celebration of Navy Day, 1946, focuses attention on a peacetime Navy combining, through the Office of Research and Invention and the Bureau of Aeronautics, ideas and efforts to provide the nation with offensive and defensive weapons of a supersonic age.
