Hodges, Clarence Smith and Melvin Hempel and County Agent
W. P. Grahaf, visited the Dr. Har-

the team was one out of 25 4-H Club teams which participated in the judging.

Coryell County's team was sixth with a score of 1010 points out of a possible 1200. Clarence Smith won second place among the boys with a score of 376 out of 400.
He was two points behind the three highest individuals and the three highest county teams.

This is the boys first judging contest, and is considered remarkable.

"40-Lb. Coryell Cat" Caught by Frank McCoy. No. 6

Coryell County is statewide famous for cat fish—big 'uns! And Frank Mc-Coy of 1416 Saunders will swear by that, and we, too, because we saw the entire 40 pounds.

It's been dressed, and is really a nice looking little meat bill.

This big boy was caught in a "legitimate" way in the Camp Hood area on the Leon river.

Guess that's what the dy-namiters and poisoners are after, and from Friday's paper, it looks like somebody's after them, and, that's plenty good, when they catch hem.

This "Coryell County" cat, and all others should be preserved in picture, as well as story, since Coryell County is fast coming to be the "Catfish Capitol of Texas" not to mention the USA.

C of C let's cabbage on to this, and, it's a fact!

Coryell County's Part In School Funds Are $13,450

Transportation checks have been received by County Superin-payment of $2,675,247.

This is the fourth and final payment for Coryell County schools for the school year just closed.

Basis of the pay is $3 for each high school student and $2.75 for each bus-riding elementary student.

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES IN DRIVING HELP TO ELIMINATE ACCIDENTS

By Dr. Herbert J. Stack
Director, Center for Safety Education, New York University

If we could get all the high schools in the country to offer driver education to all students before graduation, in a few years we could have an improved crop of drivers on the highways. These trained drivers would be far more skillful than their elders, better informed, and have better attitudes with regard to safe driving practices and regulations. What has been done by some states and communities can readily be done by all.

During the past year more than 5,000 high schools, about one-fourth of the public high schools of the nation, have had some type of driver education, and the number of schools offering this instruction is steadily increasing. There is clear evidence that this instruction improves the driving performance of youngsters. In one state, Wisconsin, where more than 80 percent of the schools have been offering driver education, there has been a gratifying improvement in the accident record, in driver attitudes, and in the driver violations by younger operators. Other states and cities where a large percentage of the schools are giving instruction show a similar improvement.

According to the report of the President's Highway Safety Conference, "a sound, comprehensive traffic safety program can prepare the youngster to take his place in traffic as an intelligent and skillful driver, bicyclist, and pedestrian." Just as it is necessary to train good teams in high school sports, skilled workmen in shops and good musicians in the school orchestras, it is even more important to train youngsters to be good drivers.

The secondary school years, during which students reach legal driving age, are most suitable for training drivers. This training becomes an excellent preparation for the driver's license examination. At the present time the driver licensing bureaus in some 15 states award certificates to students who have completed an approved driver education course, and waive a part of the complete license test.

The driver-education course should consist of at least 30 periods of classroom work, followed, if possible, by behind-the-wheel training. Because of the lack of cars, some states are recommending a "home supervision plan," securing the aid of the parents in behind-the-wheel training. Where the school offers systematic road instruction, accidents are materially reduced. A study of 3,200 students in one city showed half as many accidents for those with driver instruction as for those without.

The President's Conference looks to the schools for help in this national problem of highway safety. There are certain clear responsibilities of school superintendents and principals. They should work for adequate public assistance and support by informing the community about the aims, nature and scope of the school traffic-safety problem. Moreover, according to the Conference, they should "immediately determine adequacy of the instructional program and make plans for driver instruction as near to the legal driving age as is practicable. In addition they should provide this instruction whenever possible as a service during the summer, at night sessions, and for adults."

In a nationwide survey reaching thousands of people, the Opinion Research Corporation not only found that 78 percent "were in favor of driver instruction in the high schools, but 60 percent favored actual road instruction." It is quite as important to see that youngsters learn good driving as to run a lathe, solve problems in mathematics, or learn foreign languages. Schools have found it important not only to teach the rules of the road, sound driving practices and certain units on the mechanics of the car and preventive maintenance, but also to stress psychophysical skills and good driving attitudes. This instruction includes visits to inspection stations, traffic courts, and garages. There are some excellent movie films for visual aid available which are being used widely by schools.

Driver education has been approved and recommended by school administrators of the National Education Association and by officials of more than 80 organizations that make up the National Committee for Traffic Safety. It has been clearly demonstrated that traffic safety education produces real results in the reduction of child accidents. What is needed now is to have all states and communities move ahead with the preparation of young people for their responsibilities as motorists.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS

FOR PEDESTRIANS TOO!

Wait! The few quick seconds it takes the light to go amber or green may be the difference between life—and death!

Traffic lights aren't just for drivers, they're for pedestrians, too. They are your signals of safety. Drivers and traffic officers expect you to obey them. Yet in 1946, over 2,800 persons were killed at intersections. In addition, more than 4,000 jaywalked into the Hereafter between intersections. From all causes, 12,200 pedestrians—men, women and children—were given a ride to the morgue! They died at the rate of 33 every day.

Fantastic? Sure, but deadly true.

Of pedestrians killed who were old enough to drive, only 10% ever drove a car. That may be one reason why pedestrians have to be told, again and again, that traffic lights and all safety regulations are for them too. They have never experienced the responsibility of driving.

If you are a pedestrian, learn to cross with the lights, never run out from behind parked cars, or cross between intersections. Don't stand in the street or highway. Always be alert.

INDEX OF TEXAS BUSINESS

INDEX OF TEXAS BUSINESS ACTIVITY

Vigorous business activity has earmarked 1947 in Texas, but the index prepared by the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research shows that 1947 is not showing the steadily rising trend in business that marked 1946. The composite index rose slightly in June over May as business advanced 90 percent above prewar levels and stood 10 per cent above the year-ago figure. Three of the components making up the index increased, one registered a decline and one remained unchanged. The index of crude runs to stills rose 7 per cent from May after adjustment for seasonal variation. Electric power consumption rolled forward 4 per cent, employment rose 1 per cent and payrolls were upped 2 per cent. The index of freight loadings remained steady at 143

(Base: 1935-39;100) and department and apparel store sales slumped 3 per cent. Estimated retail sales in Texas dropped 11 per cent in June. Bank deposits were down 2 per cent from June 1946, postal receipts felt a 7 per cent slump during the year, and the index of bank debits declined since the declined rise the rise was not as much as was seasonally-anticipated. Since V-J Day—

Over $3,250,000
FOR EXPANSION AND IMPROVEMENTS

—but our job is still far from complete!

POWER output of this company during the first six months of 1947 was running 8% above the wartime peak and 87% above the highest pre-war output.

To supply this unprecedented demand and at the same time catch up on maintenance postponed during the war has been a tremendous undertaking. Since V-J Day, this company has

- Extended service to 8,214 new customers
- Built 575 miles of new transmission and distribution lines
- Used over 1,000,000 pounds of copper and aluminum conductor
- Spent over $3,250,000 for expansion and improvements

Impressive as these accomplishments are, our job is still far from complete. Numerous projects for expansion and improvement of service are being held up by lack of materials ordered many months ago, but still undelivered.

As a result, parts of our systems in some localities may be overloaded and our service not up to the standard we would like to maintain. But please rest assured that these conditions are being remedied as rapidly as bottlenecks can be eliminated.

Like other industries, we're exerting every effort to meet present unprecedented demands and build ahead for the future.

Gatesville Recreation Club Host To A Number Of Square Dancers

Gatesville Recreation Club gave a Square and Folk Dance in front of the City Hall Thursday evening, July 24, with the local teen-age group and dancers from Hamilton, Hico, Belton, Temple and Lampasas as special guests.

About 400 dancers and spectators were present.

Eight small children and their young caller from Little River Academy at Little River gave an expert exhibition of "Put Your Little Foot" and the square dance "Wagon Wheels". They were accompanied by their school superintendent, Milton Eads, their dance instructor and their pianist.

Exhibitions of square dances were given by dancers from Lampasas, Temple and Hico who brought their own musicians. Ten callers, including three from Gatesville, called the dances during the evening.

Ora Cathey's string band and the musicians from Hico furnished the music.

Attending from Hamilton were Mr. and Mrs. Burton Wilson, Miss Doris Wilson and Seth Moore.

It's Your Money, But - - - !

As Suggested By Gatesville C. of C.

HELLO, SUCKER

It might well be the truthful greeting exclaimed thousands of times each day by the hordes of "swindlers", "slickers", "gyps", "racketeers", "con-men", and "bunco artists" who prey upon a gullible American public to the extent of an annual take of over three billion dollars.

But, of course, they are too smart to call their victims "suckers"—that is, when the victim can hear it. Instead they play on one's ego, his sympathy, his hopes, his fears, and his ignorance.

Today the number of various "schemes" designed to pry loose countless millions of dollars from the unsuspecting public is increasing by leaps and bounds. Everyone is a target with returning "G I's" a special one. The majority of these "schemes" are shrewdly designed to be within the law and one's only protection is a knowledge of how they work.

In an effort to acquaint the citizens of this community with the methods generally used to promote these various "schemes" the Gatesville Chamber of Commerce is writing a series of articles designed to arouse an unsuspecting public. After money has been paid, an order signed or contract entered into, little if anything can be done for your protection. Your only protection is in being absolutely certain you know what you are doing before you enter into any agreement.

Boy Scouts 24th Annual Hike

By J. M. Witcher

On Wednesday morning after leaving the Bend we made our way to Gorman Falls over winding roads and into ravines and over hills. The roads are fair but varied and all marked good fishing. We missed our road and had to return a mile and a half to correct our error, but what difference did that make. We met some nice people on this run who were very obliging in helping us to find the right road. Well, after several miles more there was the Colorado, and there was Gorman Falls and there was the beautiful stream that had its source near all as busy as ever. And on the Scout Master there were thousands of fond recollections of boys and business men who had enjoyed God's beautiful display of nature in the raw, and had used experience on his hikes as stepping stones to lifes real obstacles.

Well, we were busy seeing big fish tied here and there, weighing 41 lbs., 34-lbs., and 24-lbs., plus all smaller sizes. Dinner was a few minutes late since Mulligan stew made of beef, several vegetables and seasoned with tomatoes and sauce takes time to cook. Bu the big pots and pans loaned us by Mrs. Otis Chambers made us at home in the woods, dinner was finally called. A general rdsh for pans, cups, spoons, and forks soon found everyone erest in line and ready to eat. Thanks being returned, as was our regular custom, the line started forward in good order. First, bread, the mulligan stew and cool-aid or Malted-milk, all ice cold. The line was beginning to form for "seconds" before those who had served us had tasted food. "Second" opened the line for food as the Scouts chose. Dishes washed, a short rest period followed. The hike was on. Caves were to be seen, the River to be explored and our neighbors were to be seen.

Our evening and morning Councils were usually held in some unusually rough but beautiful place and our plans usually ending with scripture and prayer. We nearly always had a few visitors in these meetings.

On Friday came, the boys had prepared some reports on Biblical characters that had become part of their lives. Every boy was present and the Shepherds from Houston, Mr. Shepherd, Presbyterian Sunday School Superintendent, and his lovely wife, with John, an ideal boy of early teen age, all taking part in our services.

On Friday we visited the large cave that usually takes several hours. We were enjoying our visit in the cool long passages under ground very much as many flash lights opened up many beautiful passages in many directions.

The boys began to say, I hear something. And we all hear something. The noise grew more distinct. Suddenly, as the leaders bowed their heads to go under a low edge of rock—boom-zip-bang—and the bats were hitting us per second. A council was called. The bats remained by the thousands constantly reminding us that we should return the way we came. We took their advise after making more than half our cave visit. See you next week.

COTTON CROP DESTROYED

Frank Chalupka, Crosby, Tex., cotton farmer, examines a stalk of cotton on his farm which has been destroyed by chemical weed killer. One of many farmers of that section hit by the blight, Chalupka says he is through with cotton. Dan Clinton, Harris Co., agent said the damage was definitely due to 2, 4-D. In Washington, the House of Representatives has called on the Sec. of Agriculture to determine whether the new weed killer (2,4-D) the department developed is harmful to cotton and other crops. AP Photo

The driver who killed himself and also the driver of another car in this shambles had stubbornly persisted in driving when he was fatigued after too many hours on the road. As his car came over the bridge, his weary brain blanked out for a split second, his hands relaxed on the wheel. His car grazed the bridge abutment, skidding across the road, and crashed into an approaching automobile. Motorists for their own safety, and for the sake of others on the road, have no right to drive when overtired. National Conservation Bureau safety specialists advise: don't wait until you are tired; pull off the road at intervals; drink a cup of coffee, take a few moments' rest.

Evant 6, Pottsville 0
Hamilton 26, Purnela 13
T'Ville 8, Crawford 0

All in baseball!
Altho, the scores don't indicate it.

Hamilton and Purnela made a racetrack of it and ended us sound more like football score than a baseball game. Purnela used three pitchers, and the errors outweighed the hits, but the statistics are scarce.

Turnersville took over Crawford, and the hits, by recollection were 6 for Turnersville and 4 for Crawford, everything else lacking.

Evant-Pottsville played baseball at Evant, featuring three double plays by Evant and one by Pottsville. We saw it until the first of the 8th, and here are the statistics that far. But wait. Michell of Evant hit the longest circuit clout we've seen this year. They had to go to the creek to find it, and not the baseball players. Manager A. T. Marshall and Fred Maurwitz did that.

Evant got 11 hits, runs and 1 error. Sneed got 2 strike-outs and when Mitchell took over he had 2, also.

Pottsville got 3 hits, 1 error, and Wagner had 4 strike-outs.

Ireland In 15 Hours

First of a series of weekly stories on conditions in Europe by Mason R. Smith. Copyright, 1947, Mason Rossiter Smith.

Dublin, July 3, 1947

Probably nowhere else in the world but in an airplane on a West-to-East crossing of the At-lant, is it possible to see both sunset and sunrise within the space of a single hour.

We had taken off from New York's LaGuardia field at 2:30 p. m. Eastern Daylight Time, Tuesday, July 1st, and within less than six hours the big Constellation sat gracefully down on the huge runways of the international airport of Gander, Newfoundland. At 15,000 feet we had been able to see the shores of Massachusetts, 20 miles south of Boston, and later the barren coast of Nova Scotia at Yarmouth.

But now, the sun was still high enough in the sky to take a color photograph at Gander, the clock standing at 8:30 p. m. Newfoundland time. There were pineapple juice, sandwiches and coffee "for free" in the airlines terminal (although we had just been served a delicious squab dinner aloft only half an hour before), and then we were off again in another 45 minutes.

The sun seemed to go down fast as we flew east, and shortly there was only a glow on the western horizon. Then it was dark, and within another forty minutes the dawn began to show in the east.

We had breakfast on board at about 1:00 a. m. New York time and before 3:00 a. m. we were dropping down from 19,000 feet through the clouds to watch the greenest land in the world push up through the mist.

Ireland — or more properly, Eire, as the Irish say, — is a magnificent picture from the air. The land stretches out in gorgeous shades of green as far as one can see, the fields below an interesting pattern of many odd shaped fields — each separated from the next by a hedgerow in darker green, the fields themselves not all rectangular, as ours are, for some are pie-shaped, and rounded at the corners of the square plots; here and there a white stone, thatched roofed cottage each with its chimney pots.

Shannon airport itself, is a cosmopolitan airport, for planes come in all day from New York, London, Dublin, Paris, Frankfurt — all the American overseas lines, most of the European. Many of the wartime buildings are now a part of the offices, lobby and dining rooms.

A few miles away lies Limerick — a "small town," the Irish say, of about 10,000 population. There is time to catch a bus and go over for a look-see before your plane departs for Dublin. It is a quaint community — there are many automobiles, but also many horse-drawn wagons and carts. The storefronts present an interesting combination of the ancient and the modern — those of years ago, others interspersed between are designed almost exactly like our most modern American shops.

Thence back to Shannon and on to Dublin via Aer Lingus Teoranta, the Irish air line. Dublin is a great sprawling city of many parks, with a handsome airport, and you make the trip in about an hour. The city at this time of year is crowded with thousands of visitors from all parts of America and Europe. There are English and French and Americans in almost every hotel, and you're lucky if you get a hotel room. I didn't.

Somewhere along the line, my reservations had fouled up, but in time the travel agent found me a "guest house", with a big room on the third floor (the bath room two floors below). But it was clean and comfortable, with piping hot water in the tub, and a splendid breakfast of grapefruit, sausage, bacon and eggs, and the Irish kind of coffee (of which the ess said the better) the next morning.

Among the visitors, one hears some interesting conversations — like that of the visiting New Yorker who remarked to his wife that "having spoken once to a Fifth Avenue cop, anybody would be at home in Ireland. Everybodys an Irishman and they all speak with that Irish brogue."

If that sounds a bit strange, it is literally true, for the fact is that few other nationalities are corporations, so it has the right to protect itself against the irresponsible use of power in the hands of labor leaders.

2. The passage of legislation outlawing the "portal to portal" lawsuits which were being filed by CIO unions and shyster lawyers as a resle ofu a very strained decision by the Supreme Court

3. The merger of the armed services. The Air Forces now is recognized as of equal importance with the land and sea forces. This merger will eliminate much over'apping and waste as well as strengthen all three branches of the service. It had the support of both General Eisenhower and Admiral Nimitz

4. War veterans were given the right to cash their terminal leave bonds if they desire. I hope no veteran will take advantage of this opportunity unless it is necessary as the bonds bear good interest and undoubtedly the average veteran will need the money when the bonds mature. However, this is a debt owed by the government, and in my opinion it is good business for the government as well as justice to the veterans to cash the bonds. The Congress also voted approximately seven billion dollars to support other veteran's programs.

5. Funds were provided to carry on the work of stamping out foot and mouth disease in Mexico. If this infection ever spreads over this country, it will result in the loss of hundreds of billions of dollars and destruction of our livestock and dairy industries. Funds were also provided for the REA, the school lunch program, the Soil Conservation Service, and for soil conservation payments, although I think inadequate amounts. Crop insurance was continued on an experimental basis only. I consider crop insurance just as important and worthwhile for the farmer as unemployment insurance is for the industrial worker. It is true we have lost money on crop insurance, but everyone knew we were bound to lose until we got more experience. The new program is far from adequate, but I am glad we were able to retain even a small program. We will probably have cotton insurance in only one Central Texas county next year.

7. The first peace treaties — with Bulgaria, Italy and Rumania — were actually ratified, and Congressional approval was given to a firm policy of helping our friends and stopping aggressors. I fear we will be forced to go much farther with our foreign activities if we are to halt communism before it gets too strong to halt, but it seems clear to me that we should profit by our experiences with Hitler and Mussolini and realize that the time to prevent war is now.

I am leaving for home tonight. This will, therefore, be the last of these letters until the next session. I shall try to get the views of he good people I represent. I will also try to be available in different parts of the district for consultation with anyone who has any problem that he wants to discuss with me. I am NOT coming home to conduct a speaking tour. I want to receive advice, not give it. During the next month I shall be in my office in Waco from 9 until 5 on Mondays, and in my office in Temple on Wednesdays from 10 until 2:30. Other days will be later in the Fall I will have to leave the District to attend hearings with the Committee on Agriculture. The Committee has accepted my incitation to hold its Southwestern hearing at Temple, probably the latter part of October.

Dear Friends:

The first session of the 80th Congress is now history. Whether the record is good or bad depends on one's point of view. I think that there were some very worthwhile achievements.

Among them were:

to be seen or heard here. They are ALL Irishmen — and they have the same hard, common sense, and the same magnificent sense of humor Americans have always associated with them. Possibly because there are so many Irishmen in the States, the native character evidently likes the "Yanks". He saw them often during the war, and he sees a few now. Pou are spotted the minute you speak — for there's only one American accent. Conversations, in fact make the trip.
