Little 'g' gatesville, Texas

Today's Ground Hog Day, and we're hoping. We had all the winter we needed before it was even winter. Now, we're fed up.

Anyway, there's one thing, winter's rushing to a close, and already, some merchants are advertising those frilly things that they will even put on when the cold March and April winds blow, but, bless'em, they like spring, too, and want to show it.

Along with this, comes Sweetheart Day, Feb. 14, which is a great event—great for old, and new sweethearts. Men, give 'em a lift, buy something for her—your her. It's these little things in life that help you get away with something bigger, you scoundrel.

There's a Fair scheduled for, believe, Feb. 12 and 13, and the publicity is non-existent.

Fairs are promotions, and promotions require promotion. Just don't see how Gatesville and Coryell County is going to have a Fair on the scheduled dates. So far, we've had one little story on the eal, and maybe that should not have been carried.

Some of the greatest thinking has been done by those who cared Jane Adams— and who shall say little for riches— Pasteur, Edison, that their's was not a richer life. Today, the world knows the poetry of Shakespeare, the music of Wagner, the art of Rembrandt; but who even knows the names of the money barons of their day—or cares to know? If you want your name to live after you'll not give all your thoughts to money. But, whether you want to make money, or write a book, or build a bridge, or run a streetcar—or do anything else successfully—you'll do well to remember that in all the world there is no word more important than—"Think!"—Edwin Baird.

PREDICTION PLEASE — Little six-year-old Doreen Coplin of Houston seems to be trying for an early prediction from Gillie, the groundhog. Gillie wouldn't put out any inside information until his day, Feb. 2. If he sees his shadow, says the legend, look for six more weeks of winter. No Shadow? An early Spring. (AP Wirephoto)

TEXANS IN WASHINGTON

By Tex Easley
Associated Press Special Service

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24, (AP)— West Texas Rep. J. T. Rutherford, a World War II combat Marine, says the high cost of maintaining U. S. forces abroad could be greatly reduced without sacrificing security.

One way, he says, would be to keep Army and Air Force wives and children at home — a policy followed by the Marines with respect to its personnel overseas. Another would be to cut down or eliminate what he called "luxury frills and teen-age canteens."

"We are required by our own people to keep up these costly practices," he said.

Although not a member of the House Armed Services Committee, Rutherford, a resident of Odessa, keeps himself informed on the military situation. A captain in the Marine reserves, he attends a weekly reserve meeting when Congress is in session. He recently returned from a two-week active duty tour which took him to American military bases in Germany, Spain and Turkey.

A consistent foe of foreign aid, Rutherford said he saw nothing abroad which would cause him to vote for such appropriations next year.

"That isn't in my field of study, however," he continued. "I did not go into expenditures of European countries with military aid money we appropriate. My tour was limited to operations at our own bases."

Acknowledging that the idea of requiring families of Army and Air Force personnel to remain at home would stir protests, Rutherford suggested this objection could be partially met by reducing the length of time a man is required to serve abroad.

Under the present order of things he said, location of a large Air Force or Army base abroad results also in creation of a virtual American city. Housing for their families, schools for the children, hospital care, and services found in any community.

He said still another reason for the high cost of maintaining American forces overseas is because "foreign powers where we locate requires us to spend much more than we should. We over-build and we take up lands in excess of our needs."

He said still another reason for the high cost by putting more money into combat-ready naval units, such as the Mediterranean fleet.

"The seas are free," he declared "We would have to ask permission of NO one, pay NO rent.

"There are also some other advantages in addition to economy. A moving fleet would NOT be near the target as is a fixed installation. Yet, with missile launching ships it constitutes a powerful striking force."

FEED LOTS GROWING

The day may not be far off when nearly all of the heavy beef eaten in Texas will have been fattened, finished and processed in Texas — which is a complete reversal of a condition that has prevailed generally in the past.

Until recent years practically all of the heavy beef consumed in Texas, the nation's No. 1 cattle producing state, has come from feed lots in the mid-western corn belt. Texas cattle were sold as feeders to be shipped to the corn belt for fattening and processing, then shipped back at fancy prices in the form of U. S. Good, U. S. Choice and U. S. prime beef.

But the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research now reports a tremendous growth in Texas feeding operations during the past four years. On Jan. 1, 1955, there were only 61 listed commercial operations in Texas with a feeding capacity of 1,000 head or more each, carrying an aggregated capacity of 160,000 head. On Jan. 1, 1959, there were 94 such feed lots on record, with an aggregated capacity of 240,000 head developing an increase of 50 per cent in capacity in the four years.

This growth is still going on. An example is the Luck T. Cattle Co. which operates just west of San Antonio in the Edwards Plateau, now expanding its capacity, from around 8,000 head to 13,000 head, including a completely automatic feed mill capable of turning out from 250 to 300 tons of feed a day. Another is provided by Lewter, Inc. of Lubbock, which has expanded its feed lots to take care of 25,000 cattle at a time, along with a million-dollar beef slaughtering and processing plant. Construction is scheduled in 1960 in Houston of a $2 million livestock feeding plant to supply the new Armour and Co. beef processing plant there with from 400 to 1,000 cattle weekly.

In addition to the larger feeding

TODAY'S 2-MINUTE MYSTERY THE CASE OF THE SLEEPING DEER

By Donald J. Sobol

When Dr. Haledjian reached the scene of the fatal hunting accident he found Sheriff Monahan already there.

"The head man is H. Harvey Morton," said the sheriff. "He and his law partner, Bill Johnson, had been afield two hours when the tragedy struck. Johnson states he missed a shot at a buck, and the bullet pierced Morton's left temple."

Haledjian stooped by the body, which lay face downward, about operations, there are now hundreds of smaller pens which handle between 100 to 999 head each, and many more such feed lots with capacities of less than 100 each.

This means, the Bureau of Business Research finds, that increased interest in feeding among farmers and ranchers plus the rapidly growing investment in feed lot facilities is evidence that Texas is becoming a major cattle feeding state.

ten feet from a low thicket. One hand still clutched a rifle. The would, though messy, was clearly visible, as Morton was hatless.

"I guess I was over anxious," Johnson said remorsefully. "Harvey and I hunted together last year, and we bagged our limit by the second day. But we'd gone four days without a shot before we spotted this big buck.

"He was lying asleep in that little thicket," continued Johnson. "It was Harvey's turn — we always agree on who shoots first. I sneaked in closer, believing Harvey was right behind me. But he must have crept in on the far side of the thicket.

"Well, the buck sensed us, because suddenly his forelegs rose and Harvey still didn't fire. The buck was ready to bolt, and I knew I'd have to shoot fast or lose the big fellow. I missed — and hit poor Harvey."

"Didn't Harvey wear a red hunting cap?" asked Haledjian. Johnson looked surprised. "Yes. . . He must have lost it in the woods someplace."

Thanking the distraught hunter, Haledjian returned to the sheriff. "I'd check into the firm of Morton and Johnson," he advised. "I've a strong suspicion Johnson had good reason to kill his partner."

WHY DID HALEDJIAN SUSPECT JOHNSON?

Johnson's story was clearly an invention. He said the buck rose first on his forelegs. Unfortunately for him, a deer gets off the ground hind end first.

Only a full-service bank meets all your banking needs.
$1... $1,000... OR ANY AMOUNT...

Here's why the best place to save is at a full-service bank!

There are three big reasons why it's wise to put your savings in a full-service bank:

1. Your money is completely safe in a full-service bank because a bank keeps a large percentage of its funds in cash, government bonds and short-term loans. Therefore, you can be sure to get your money, in cash, whenever you want it.
2. A full-service bank answers all your banking needs. Whether you want a savings account, checking account, low-cost personal loan or car loan - no matter what it is - a convenient full-service bank can take care of you!
3. You build your personal bank standing when you do business with a full-service bank. Bank standing means simply that a bank knows you and works with you.

Better living begins at your full-service bank

"What about Monday?"

Religion... ITS LESSONS FOR MODERN LIVING

... Ye pay tithes of mint and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law... Matthew 23:23

This is one of Jesus' most important lessons and, to this day, very applicable to modern living.

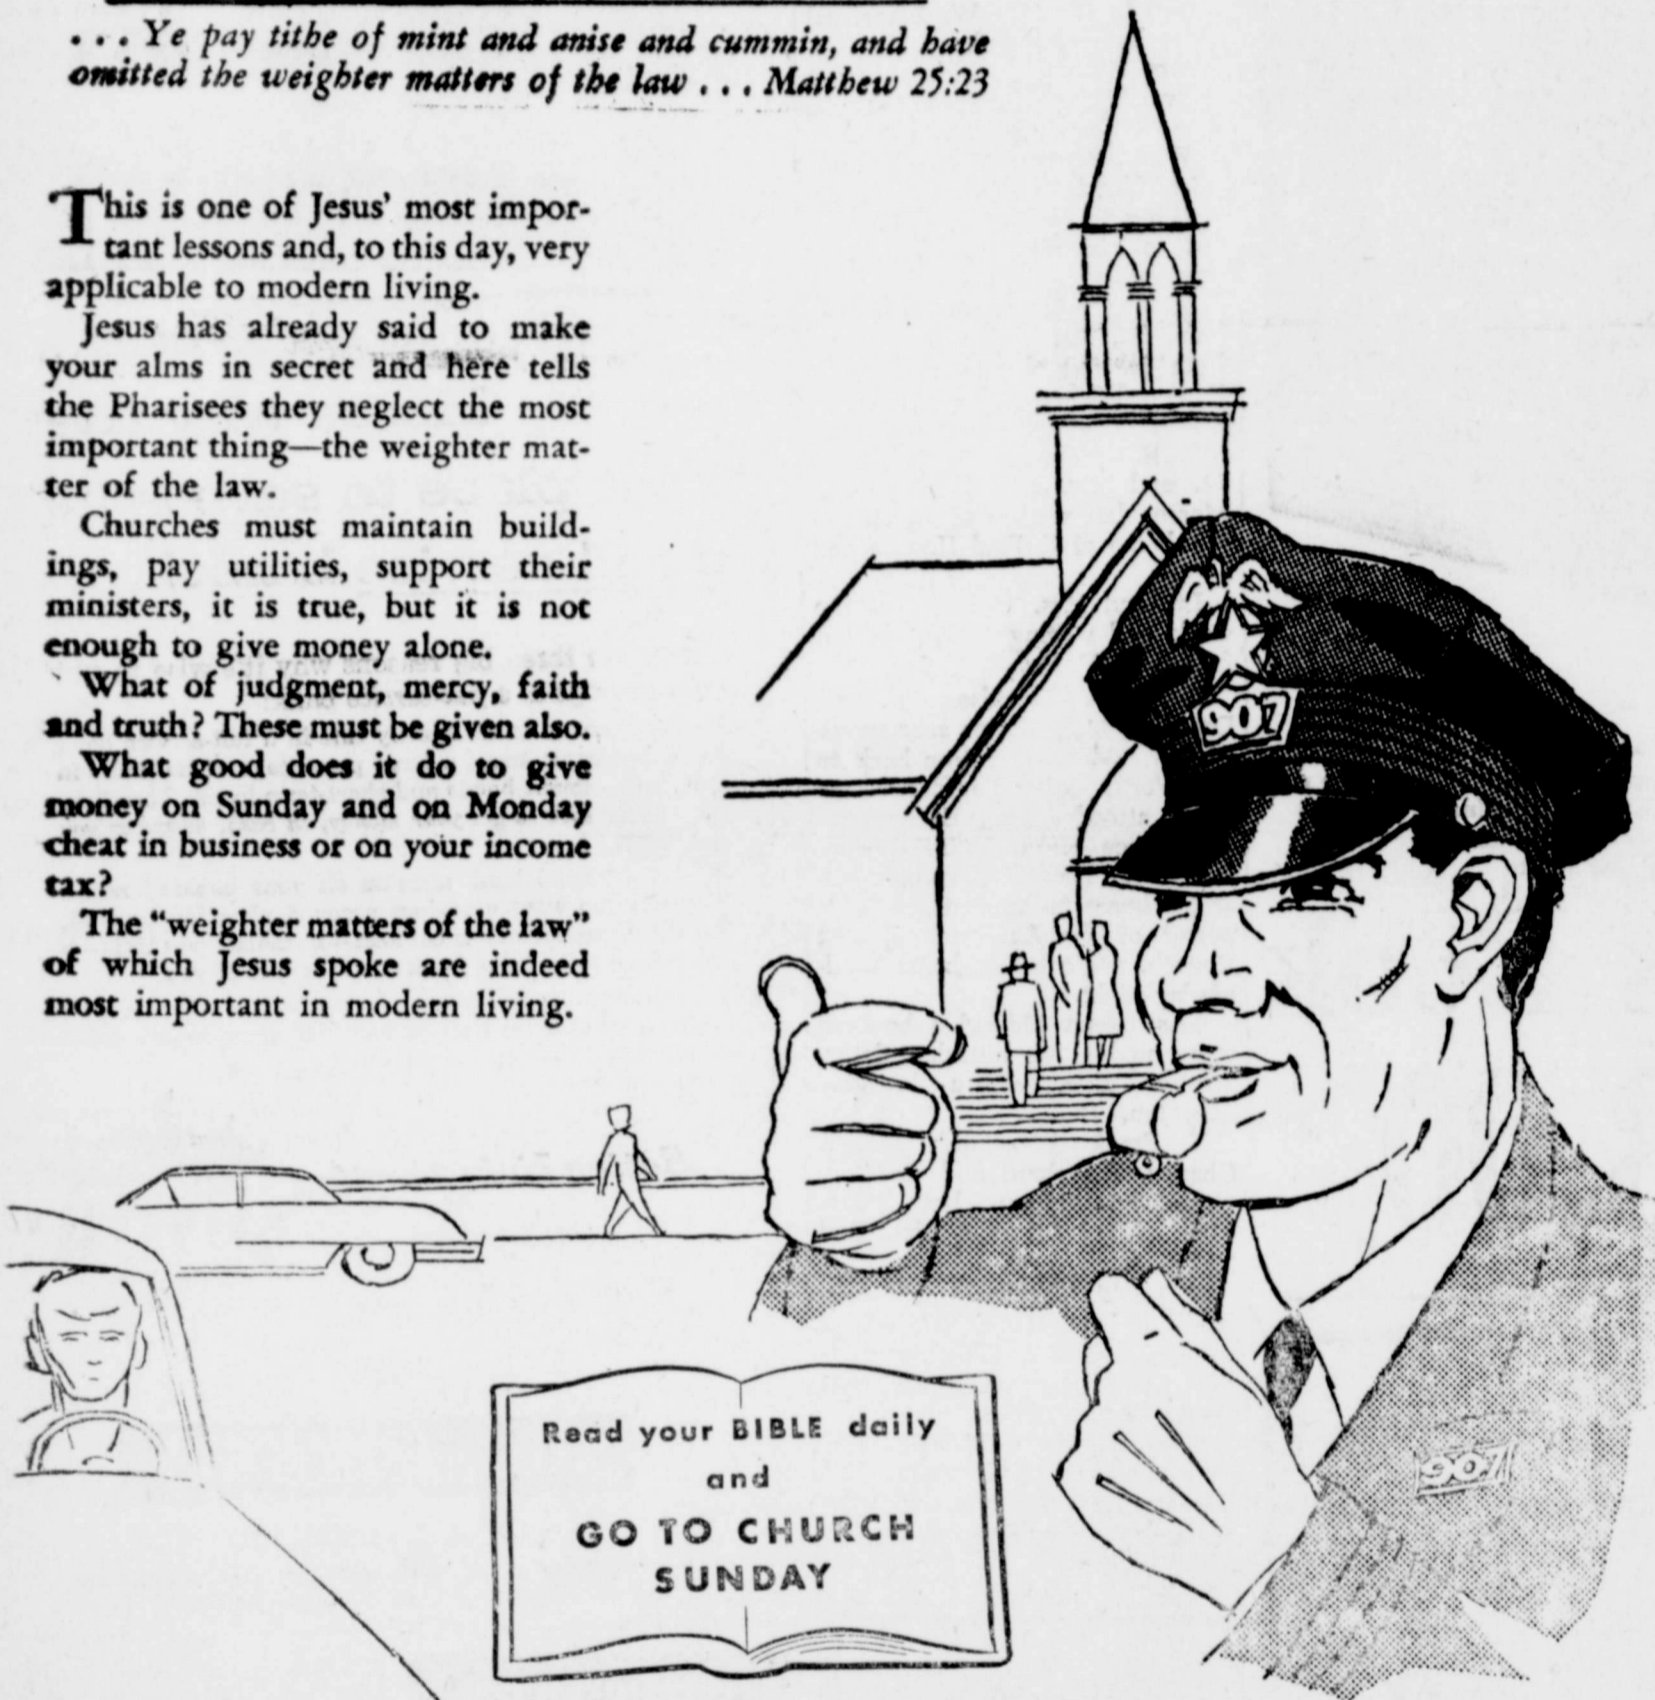

Jesus has already said to make your alms in secret and here tells the Pharisees they neglect the most important thing—the weightier matter of the law.

Churches must maintain buildings, pay utilities, support their ministers, it is true, but it is not enough to give money alone.

What of judgment, mercy, faith and truth? These must be given also.

What good does it do to give money on Sunday and on Monday cheat in business or on your income tax?

The "weightier matters of the law" of which Jesus spoke are indeed most important in modern living.

TODAY'S GROUND HOG DAY

A most brutalized feller! Mr. Ground Hog!

Thos who like warm weather hope he'll come out won't see his shadow and come out soon and winter'll be over! Thos thick-blooded folks hope he'll see his shadow and go back for 6 weeks and we'll have at least that much more winter.

Mr. Ground Hog like lots of us just can't win for losing! Hope it's cloudy Mr. Ground Hog. We got enough!
