Little 'g' gatesville, Texas

It's 'cricket' now. We like the water—the little we got—but Oh, you cricket!

Some of the wags around town said: "Why don't you write Lyndon about them? If it'd do any good, certainly we'd write, phone, wire or even go see somebody."

Maybe it's a frame-up of druggists and grocers that sell anti-bug, this and that, or he broom sellers, or he deodorant sellers or somebody. We'd certainly like to blame somebody!

Been sorta still around here, and not much going on, and frankly, we don't know anything to raise heck about—cepting crickets, and as for a lot of other heck aising, there just don't seem to be much to do about it.

We Quote "The Big Touch". The little boy wanted $100 so badly he decided to pray for it. He prayed several weeks with no results. So he wrote God. The post office finally forwarded the letter to the White House. The President chuckled and ordered $55 sent to the boy. The lad, delighted that his prayer had been answered, in part at least, wrote thank-you note to God but added his P. S.: "I notice you routed my letter thru Washington and as usual the bureaucrats deducted 95 per cent." Amarillo Globe-Times.

"Osee upon a time a school teacher had taken her flock of small fry to th zoo. As they came to the various cages sheas ked one or another of the young ones what kind f animal was therein.

"When she came to a pen containing deer, she asked: 'Johnny what animal is this?'

"I don't know."

"Oh, yes you do. Think, what does your mommy call your daddy?"

"Oh, so that's a louse!"

"A weak but ambitious young man once ventured to approach a great merchant and inquired, 'May I ask you the secret of success?'

"There is no easy secret," replied the merchant; "you just jump at your opportunity."

"But how can I tell when my opportunity comes?"

"You can't snapped the merchant; 'you have to keep jumping.'"—The Speakers Magazine."

NEW TRAINING UNIT FOR 240 BOYS NECESSARY TO KEEP PACE AT GSSB

A new training unit for 240 boys is necessary to keep pace with the number of boys expected at Gatesville State School, Texas Youth Council officials said Monday.

OIL IN THE NEW DECADE

The year 1960 finds oil stocks as laggard performers in the market and the industry fraught with intense competition and unsatisfactory earnings. Further compounding the difficulty is the failure of demand to maintain the previous rate of increase. During the first ten or eleven postwar years, free world consumption grew at an annual rate of 8 percent. For the present and the near future, a rate of growth equal to 5 percent world-wide is anticipated, reflecting an annual increase of 3 1/2 percent in the United States and 6 1/2 percent in the free foreign world.

The oil industry abroad, hitherto the most favorably situated has not escaped the developing problems even though the demand curve is much sharper. The problem here is production. New petroleum areas have been opened up in Venezuela, Libya, Algeria, and the Middle East and the supplies from these new prolific sources are already pressing into established markets and the pressure will intensify in the coming five years.

In the United States competition in product prices has been bitter ever since early 1959 when several cold months caused refiners to overproduce and build up excess inventory. However, in the last two months refined product prices have risen 4 percent and are at the highest level in over a year. Stocks have also improved and during the first six months of 1960 there was a reduction of 34 million barrels. But the situation continues somewhat dubious inasmuch as inventories are still 7 percent higher than necessary and refinery runs are beginning to trend upward again.

be the guide. Total demand was up 2.3% in the first half year and with a good driving season in evidence since early June a 4 to 5 percent gain appears reasonable for the final half, indicating a gain of 3 to 3.5 for 1960. Refinery margins may show a slow, labored increase from now on as demand grows into available capacity.

At present prices oil stocks should be quite rewarding as long-term investments. For the near-term, the outlook is less impressive. A strong continuing rebound in earnings cannot be looked for. But there is a reasonable chance that earnings and share prices will demonstrate some modest near-term improvement if product prices do not have a relapse.

In a consideration of individual companies, Texaco and Royal Dutch, stand out among the major internationals. Among the domestic enterprises Phillips Petroleum, Standard Oil of Indiana, Cities Service, Skelly and Continental Oil have above-average potential.

Among the smaller and more speculative enterprises, Texas Gulf Producing, TXL, Western Natural Gas, Kerr-McGee and Pubco Petroleum appear to show particular promise at the moment.

Fall Fashion Frosting

Fashion Forecast For Fall-Winter, 1960-61
Prepared by the Fashion Merchandising Department Of Women's Wear Daily

Diversity of fashion design is a rampant theme in fall collections. Opulence, luxury, no price limitations — all are signs of the times. Yet restraint and sobriety or designs are as inherently significant as the obvious force of fabulous furs and glorious fabrics. The punch of simplicity registers fifth authority in all phases of ready to wear. Such contrasts and assortment of silhouette bring fluid spirit to the fall-winter ready-to-wear scene. These are the highlights of fall-winter fashion trends as outlined by Women's Wear Daily.

Fall's general character for dresses is summed up as follows: fluid lines, vibrant colors and textured fabrics. Easy does it, whether it is a slow-curve fitted bodice, or a bloused bodice, whether it is the slim-straight (not tapered) skirt, the moderately gathered skirt, the pleated skirt or the flared skirt. Stiffness is bypassed—no waistline cinching, either by fit or by belt; skirts, even with fulness, hang straight. These dresses, many in soft woolsens, have the look of ease of a knitted dress.

In contrast to last fall's look of top width with a normal belted waist, designers now lower the waist, show two-piece easy overblouse style, add full skirts—either pleated or bias cuts. Sleeves are generally a loose cut; set-in or all-in one, with modified underarm fulness. Raglan sleeves have replaced spring's kimono types. Majority of sleeves end above or below the elbow. The sleeveless trend is mainly reserved for dresses under jacket, coats and late day. Day dresses continue the emphasis on collarless necklines.

Tie belts in fabrics, leather and ribbon are frequently placed lightly low around the waist, below fluid or bloused bodices. Thin string belts are removed from sheaths to reveal a simple shape that skims the waistline.

In contrast to last year's jewel tones, the newest colors are the clear, and fresh shades — scarlet reds, grass greens, turquoise blues, shrimp pinks and gold. White promises to be more important, as well as the soft beige and pearl grays for neutral tones.

In wools textures and weaves are the important themes. Loose woven textures are new, as well as weaves that give a checked striped or birdseye effect. This interest in textures carries over into late-day in boucades, cut velvets, ribbed silks and lacy wools.

FULL BACKS, PRINCESS FRONTS FOR COATS

Parallel trends toward a more expanding silhouette and stronger figure definition are equally significant for fall coats and suits. Women's Wear Daily editors point out. This year, excitement is engendered in the back-booming coat silhouette modified by princess shaping at front, by the new-again nine-tenths coat which is featured with a skirt as a costume, in new sleeve cuts and effects to be achieved with fur trimmings.

Variations on the full back are legion. Some designers like the rounded cape-like back. Others prefer full and swirling bias backs. Still others prefer a flat, triangular back.

The top of coats to come is bulky due to deep armhole cuts and wide sleeves, often unmounted. To offset this bulkiness, most designers are in favor of smaller collars or built-up cadigan, mandarin or tubular-piped necklines.

The wider sleeve cuts remain shorter lengths, ranging from just below the elbow to three-quarter length. Tiered sleeves are new,

Lumber Stain Discoloration
Lumber staining rules generally degade a piece of lumber if it has stains. This is done to protect the consumer, since the higher grade of lumber are often used with a transparent finish. Stained lumber coated with transparent finish reveals the stain discolor through the finish. This is often objectionable.
If lumber is to be painted, the use of stained lumber is no problem. Such lumber is equivalent to clear lumber in strength and can be employed for similar uses.

There are numerous kinds of stains possible in and on wood of both hardwood and softwood species. However all stains result either from chemical action or by the attack of fungi. The fungi do not cause decay. However their presence indicates that a condition suitable for decay fungi also exists. Consequently, stain may provide a visual warning.
Chemical action is usually restricted to the surface layers of sapwood. It is brought about by the oxidation of organic compounds in wood during hot humid weather. These superficial stains often can be removed by planing the lumber. Prevention may be accomplished by dipping the freshly cut lumber in an anti-stain solution.

Sap stain, or blue stain as it is most widely known is probably the most common stain caused by fungi. Lumber manufacturers utilize special drying equipment and certain stain control solutions to produce stain free lumber. Kiln drying also protects the lumber against both stain and decay fungi and dries it to a suitable condition for use.

THE CASE OF THE POISONED BEER

By DONALD J. SOBOL

The body of Chief Coroner Dr. Wallace Knowlton was slumped in a leather swivel chair in the center of his study. On a little table at arm's reach was a half-filled glass of beer.

Haledjian sniffed the glass. "You're quite right, inspector," he said. "Knowlton died of cyanide poisoning. The characteristic odor of bitter almonds is strong and unmistakable."

"So is the killer," replied Inspector Winters. "We're holding Dr. Robert Cobb, who was Knowlton's assistant in the coroner's office till they squabbled over Knowlton's wife. She's much younger than Knowlton."

"Cobb denied that he was continuing to see Mrs. Knowlton during an argument tonight. The butler, who had served Knowlton for 25 years, grew worried. Knowlton sounded really worked up. He had suffered two bad heart attacks recently and was supposed to be avoiding excitement."

"Suddenly Knowlton rang and told the butler to bring two beers. The butler served them and had hardly closed the door when Cobb shouted, 'I won't drink with you!' The sound of shattering glass followed as Cobb apparently hurled his drink into the fireplace."

"A second later Cobb charged out. After several minutes, the butler, hearing nothing, grew worried and entered the study. He found Knowlton dead and called headquarters." Dr. Haledjian knelt beside the

Honor

If a man deserves and claims great things, and above all the great things, he will be concerned with one thing in particular. Desert is relative to external goods; and the greatest of these, we should say, is that which we render to the gods, and which the people of position most aim at, and which is the prize appointed for the noblest deeds—and this is honor. That is surely the greatest of external goods.—Aristotle, 4th century B.C.

Honor is not a reward of virtue, for which the virtuous work; but they receive honor from men by way of reward, as from those who have nothing greater to offer. But virtue's true reward is happiness itself, for which the virtuous work. Whereas, if they worked for honor, it would no longer be virtue, but ambition.—Thomas Aquinas, most important philosopher of the Middle Ages.

The manifestation of the value we set on one another is that which is commonly called honoring and dishonoring. To value a man at a high rate is to honor him; at a low rate is to dishonor him. But high or low, in this case, is to be understood by comparison to the rate that each man sets on himself.—Thomas Hobbes, English, 1588-1679.

Universal military training is compulsory in Switzerland.

YOU COULD PAINT YOURSELF A BILLBOARD

Yes, you could paint your advertising message on the biggest billboard in town, but maybe three-fourths of the people who saw it wouldn't even be in the market for what you're selling. Printed advertising is far better because it lets you select the people to whom you're going to advertise and reach each one at low, low cost. Let us help you develop a printed mail advertising campaign at low cost to you.

FARM PROFIT

Put Some Pep In Your Pasture

Probably no other crop is as often neglected as pasture. Yet every farmer knows the value of good pasture land. So, Massey-Ferguson researchers have asked pasture and range management specialists what can be done about it.

It seems that a little attention to doctoring your pastures this mid-summer and fall can pay dividends in producing more milk and meat next year. Here are four proven ways you can do it:

Renovate unproductive pasture. John Washko of Pennsylvania State says mid-summer is best time to do it. You can kill off the old sod by tilling with spring tooth harrow, field cultivator, disk or plow. The alternative is chemical treatment such as Dalapon involving blue grass sod or one of the Triazines for quack grass. Chemical treatment costs about $15 to $20 an acre, but R. I. Munsell of University of Connecticut says it may be practical for rough, stony, and unillable land.

Boost Soil Fertility. Fall is a good time to do it. W. A. Way of University of Vermont reports your best bet is to take a soil test and fertilize according to your needs. This determines the needed nutrients lost by water and wind wash of top soil and harvesting. Phosphate, lime, and nitrogen are important to check for replacement. For example, a four-ton-per-acre of alfalfa hay removes 180 lbs. of potash each year. A recent study of 100 farms by Cornell University agronomists showed that application of 50 lbs. of nitrogen in the spring boosted cutting forage 1800 lbs. per acre.

Avoid overgrazing. When 60% to 70% of the top growth is repeatedly removed, root vigor is reduced, causing slower regrowth and thinning of stands. Delayed grazing in the spring and rotating pastures through the summer, by fencing off sections of it, helps to prevent overgrazing. After each rotational grazing, clip weeds three to four inches above the ground before they go to seed.

Irrigate pasture. Irrigation of pasture is important on many farms but Martin Weeks of the University of Massachusetts says not to irrigate without good liming and fertilizing practices. In New York alfalfa-brome pastures yielded up to 80% more on a dry weight basis when irrigated.
