WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

UAW President, Walther Reuther will run against a steel wall of opposition from Ford Motor Co. chairman Henry Ford III, when big auto worker contracts come up for renegotiation this fall.

Answering Reuther's plan for a guaranteed wage and other innovations, Ford declares: that UAW workers have no "catching up" to do with other industries, and already "are among the highest paid in all industry. With the benefits a UAW member receives, even when he is not working, laid off for more than half the year, a Ford employee still receives more income than the average manufacturing employee working full time."

C. W. Harder

Past union potency derived from labor control of key industries: steel, autos, transportation, rubber, coal, copper, and communications. But even with this brawn, unions far from control all American workers.

Today, 5 million "small" businesses furnish over 34 million jobs. Present AFL-CIO membership totals some 13 1/2 million, and, according to Fortune, 500 biggest industries hire only 9 1/2 million.

Negro leaders in California, according to Publisher Dr. Carlton Goodlett, are considering backing right-to-work law because: "The rank and file of organized labor have perpetuated racial discrimination."

There is a formidable union in the country as labor stalks its next business victim. Will the union grip prove a stranglehold as in the recent death of New York's World-Journal-Tribune? Industry cringes with its zero to few per cent annual productivity increase before the gigantic 6 to 7 per cent yearly labor tariff.

Although America's labor force expanded 17 million after World War II, union membership increased only 3 million. Labor Department's 1967 figures put national employment at 76 million while AFL-CIO membership drags at 13.5 million. Unionization has been lagging behind the swelling work force for 20 years.

The nation's transition from manufacturing to increased service industries further separated workers and organized labor, as service wages increased nearly 20 per cent in the 60's.

What To Do In a Tornado

- People in open country can view the approach of a tornado and move at right angles to its path. If there is no time to escape, lie flat in the nearest depression, such as a ditch or ravine.
- In towns or cities, seek shelter inside, preferably in a substantial building. Stay away from windows.
- The southwest corner of the basement of a frame house is safer than in a brick or stone house. If there is no basement, lie down on the first floor under a table or bed (preferably in the southwest corner).
- Urban schools: Stay inside, away from windows; remain near an inside wall on a lower floor. Avoid auditoriums and gymnasiums.
- Rural schools of frame construction: Teachers should remove children to a ravine or ditch if storm shelter is not available.

COMMUNITY PUBLIC SERVICE

Your Electric Light & Power Company

Give Her A 'Space Age Miracle'

Looking for something different to give? Here's an ultra modern gift that's designed especially for her because it's both practical and personal. It's a tiny GE clock radio — the one with a space age miracle inside.

The practical part of this unique gift is a wake-to-music clock. The "fun" part is a tiny portable radio about the size of a package of cigarettes. The radio can be recharged overnight right on the clock base, and can then be detached and carried anywhere. Styling is feminine; weight only ounces, perfect for her coat pocket or a small purse.

How did GE manage to get so much radio into such a small package? The secret is microcircuitry — an engineering miracle GE predicts will revolutionize home entertainment products. GE's clock radio is the first home electronic product designed specifically to utilize this highly advanced technique, originally developed for space and military applications.

What microcircuitry means is that most of the electronic components — transistors, diodes, resistors — are incorporated into one minuscule chip of silicon approximately 1/32 of an inch square! That's about the size of the period at the end of this sentence.

Besides the obvious benefits of size reduction, microcircuitry provides greatly improved reliability, so much so that GE is offering an unprecedented three-year warranty of the portable radio, covering both parts and labor.

Even if Mom doesn't understand the engineering wizardry involved in the construction of her clock radio, she is sure to appreciate the fit-into-any-decor styling of the clock, and the compactness and portability of her very own radio. Suggested retail price: $44.95

SETTING A PRETTY TABLE CAN PAY OFF

JANE CAROL FOSHEE displays her "Riverboat Party" at the America's Junior Miss Pageant, Mobile, Alabama. The judges awarded Jane first prize—a $1000 scholarship donated by Scott Paper Company, sponsor of the Hostess Event.

Top honors went to Mississippi's Junior Miss, Jane Foshee of Hattiesburg, at the Hostess Event sponsored by Scott Paper Company. This is the second consecutive year in which that state took top honors.

Jane caught the judges eyes with her "Riverboat Party" centerpiece—an authentic Mississippi paddlewheel constructed from cardboard boxes. Bright red and white checked Scott paper placemats and plastic cups accented the decor. Jane too dressed the part of the proper Riverboat Hostess by donning a blue and white nautical costume topped by a jaunty skipper's cap. The judges were intrigued too with Jane's coordination of theme and menu. Her main course was just right—fried Mississippi Catfish!

Second place in the competition and a $750 scholarship went to Michaelyn Dreiling of Hays, Kansas for her party planned around her favorite hobby—painting. She called it a "Picasso Party" and used giant paintbrushes cut from construction paper for a centerpiece. Scott placemats and cups and Oneida stainless completed the setting.

Third place winner was Deborah Luben of Bristol, Connecticut. Deborah received a $500 scholarship for her supper party, "Deadline Delight." Planned to entertain the co-editors of her high school newspaper, the party decorations were made from newsprint—roses, placecards—even Deborah's party apron. To add color to the newsprint decor, Deborah chose Scott placemats in a blue and green design, tapered candles, Libbey glassware and stainless cutlery.

All fifty Junior Misses participated in the Hostess Event sponsored for the past three years by Scott Paper Company. Each Junior Miss began back in her home town where she planned her party "on paper" in a special workbook provided by the America's Junior Miss Pageant. These books were judged at the state and local levels. In Mobile, the contestants actually set their tables and submitted their menus to the judges.

Judging was based on ORIGINALITY, including theme and suitability to the age group being entertained by the Junior Miss; ETIQUETTE, including correct table setting, color coordination and suitability of the centerpiece to the type of party and time of day; MENU, including suitability to theme and time of day, balance from a standpoint of nutrition, color, texture, flavor and accuracy of recipe.

Supermarket Specials by Betty Crocker

Remember, prices are reasonable on foods that are seasonal... so keep your eye on the supermarket specials this month. Then head first for fresh produce and pick a salad of spring greens: lettuce, romaine, escarole — garnished with rosy radishes and green onions. Dress with zesty French. Or pick garden-fresh asparagus and serve hot, buttered and sprinkled with grated Parmesan cheese. At the meat counter, buy lamb. Then try my recipes for Lamb Stew and Parsley Dumplings, a pleasing combination. For dessert? Fresh fruit, of course. Strawberries, melon, pineapple served together in a compote — or one at a time with ice cream for sundaes.

LAMB STEW

- 2 pounds boneless lamb shoulder, cut into 2-inch cubes
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 4 cups hot water
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 small bay leaf
- 3 medium carrots, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 1 medium potato, diced
- 1 cup fresh or frozen peas

Parsley Dumplings (below)
Brown meat in shortening over medium heat in Dutch oven or heavy deep skillet. Add water and seasonings. Cover and simmer 2 hours, adding more water if needed. Add carrots, onion and potato; cook over medium heat 20 minutes longer. Add peas. Thicken stew and top with Parsley Dumplings.

Parsley Dumplings: Mix 1/4 cup milk, 1/4 cup chopped parsley and 2 cups Bisquick thoroughly with fork. Drop dough by spoonfuls onto boiling stew. Cook over low heat 10 minutes uncovered and 10 minutes covered. Liquid should just bubble gently.

Now, about asparagus. For variety serve with grated nutmeg or prepared mustard. And don't forget asparagus shortcake: about 5 freshly cooked spears between hot Bisquick biscuits topped with cheese sauce. Very springy.

Look for cherries, too. Attractive garnish for any fruit salad or dessert. For the fruit salad plate, fill pitted Bing cherries with cream cheese.

With a little luck, you'll have money left for another supermarket special — pretty daffodils.

Lightfoot, Hamilton, sat at the guest register.

Mrs. Schuman wore a pink knit dress with white accessories. The groom's mother was attired in a blue linen dress. Her accessories were white also.

WEDDING FEAST

Immediately following the ceremony the bride's parents were hosts to a barbecue dinner at the American Legion Hall at Priddy to approximately 200 guests. A dance followed the dinner.

AT HOME IN HAMILTON

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Dearmore are at home at 520 E. Main in Hamilton. For travel the bride chose a gold two piece suit. Her corsage was the white roses lifted from her bridal bouquet. Mrs. Dearmore is employed at the Hamilton County Tax Assessor-Collectors office. The groom is employed by the A. G. Thompson Super Market.

Popsicles Plus Good Nutrition

Snacks for children provide important nutrients when they are frozen popsicles made with frozen juice concentrates and fortified with eggs or dry milk. Any of the frozen juice concentrates can be used, depending on the fruit flavors your children prefer.

Plastic popsicle forms and wooden popsicle sticks are available at food stores and houseware departments, but neither are necessary. Paper cups and individual gelatin molds can be used in place of the commercial forms and sturdy straws or plastic spoons can be substituted for the wooden sticks.

FROZEN JUICE POPSICLES

- 1 can (6 ounces) frozen fruit juice concentrate (any flavor)
- 3 cans water
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 4 eggs or 1 cup non-fat dry milk powder

Reconstitute frozen fruit juice concentrate with water. Add sugar and stir until dissolved. If eggs are used, beat lightly until blended (do not overbeat or mixture will be too foamy). Stir eggs or milk powder into juice mixture. Blend well. Pour mixture into popsicle forms, paper cups or individual gelatin molds; insert wooden stick or sturdy straw into each. Place in freezer until frozen solid.

Makes 12 to 16 popsicles, depending on size of forms used.

Bringing Mother Around

The age-old War Between Generations is a six-year battle whose first shot is The Stocking Question (somewhere around pre-teen 12) and which ends in a placid truce only when Daughter is safely down the aisle. A frequently fought over terrain is the Make-Up Debate. Mothers are almost point blank against make-up, advocating instead the therapeutic wonders of a good soap and water scrub for clearing teen skin. But today's really high quality cosmetics—with built-in medicated aids—have pretty much undercut Mama's basic argument and she's come round enthusiastically.

Another skirmish—the hair coloring battle—is also in a period of truce. Mothers used to be con on general principle; daughters were pro because it is such a delicious way to enhance one's whole look.

Now a wonderful new product, Go Go Light by Beautiful Hair Breck allows you to go one shade lighter in the nicest way. Mothers don't object because this gentle lightener features a special conditioner that leaves hair soft and manageable. Daughters adore Go Go Light because this gentle step in the light direction does really scrumptious things to the tresses. Easy application and mild action makes it perfect for the first time user.

If you're considering the hair color question know that, in this area at least, Mother has come round. Now start marshalling your forces for the next skirmishes—Extending the Curfew and Raising the Allowance. And Good Luck!

Texas A&M University on August 14-15. The course is for all persons interested in recent developments in the beef cattle industry.

PARASITE OF PASTURE PEST OFFERS NEW HOPE FOR CATTLE INDUSTRY—A small wasp found in India by a U. S. Department of Agriculture entomologist is being studied at Texas A&M University as a control of scale insects. The wasp lays its eggs in scale which dies when the eggs hatch. Control of scale as increased forage crop yields up to 50 per cent in test areas and great use in tropical and subtropical climates is foreseen by the USDA.

4-H SHEEP RAISERS SHOW NATIONAL GAIN—If today's youth is any indication, then the sheep industries future looks bright. Enrollment in the national 4-H sheep program last year was over 62,000, a substantial gain over last year. The program teaches useful skills in managing the animals and also modern breeding, animal health and marketing techniques.

SUCCESSFUL SEWMANSHIP

Professional Tips for Sewing With Bonded Fabrics

BEAUTIFUL SHAPING: That's what this Spring's fashions call for. And that's what bonded fabrics offer the homemaker.

A bonded fabric is really two fabrics. The outer surface (face) can be almost anything: jersey, knit, lace, tweed, or acetate and rayon crepe. The backing, which is permanently bonded to the face, is usually acetate tricot or a loosely woven cotton.

A double-faced fabric is two face fabrics bonded together back-to-back. For example, a worsted gabardine may be bonded to lightweight wool flannel, so that the fabric is completely reversible.

Tension "break test" to determine if tensions are balanced or one thread tighter than the other.

Bonding two fabrics together can change the hand of the face fabric, stabilize an open weave, reinforce a stretchy or pliable base, or pre-line a garment. Bonded fabrics are easy to handle, and hold their shape, wearing after wearing.

What to Look For

When buying bonded fabrics, look for evenly bonded lengthwise edges and firm bonding throughout the piece. The face fabric should be on-grain with the backing, although, if the acetate backing is slightly off-grain, don't worry.

When choosing a pattern to make up in a bonded fabric, look for simple styling. Avoid patterns that call for soft draping or gathered fullness.

How to Handle Them

Bonded fabrics do not respond to the usual procedure of stretching diagonally for straightening. Merely square off the end with a ruler, and cut. Follow the lengthwise grain of the fabric for the lengthwise fold.

When cutting a pattern out of bonded fabrics, pin the pattern to the fabric with plenty of sharp, fine pins, and use sharp shears. Tailor's tacks or a chalk pencil are best for transferring pattern markings to the fabric.

How to Sew Them

To sew bonded fabrics by machine, sewing experts at The Singer Company suggest these steps:

(1) Thread the machine with silk, mercerized or synthetic thread of matching color. Use a size 14 needle. Set the stitch length selector at 12, and pressure regulator at medium.

(2) Test-stitch a seam about 12 inches long on two layers of fabric, right sides together. If the seam ends do not come out almost even, decrease the pressure, and test again.

(3) Inspect the seam for appearance and balanced tensions. Stitching should look the same on the bottom as on the top. If in doubt, make the "break test" (see diagram A).

With a quick pull, break the stitching line. When tensions are balanced, both threads will break simultaneously. If tensions are not balanced, adjust the upper tension.

Construction Details

To eliminate bulk, darts should be slashed and pressed open. Seams inside collars, facings and similar constructions should be blended (cut to uneven widths) to eliminate bulkiness (see diagram B).

Bonding keeps seam edges from raveling so they don't need special finishing. Exceptions might be a bulky tweed or a lacy fabric which should be finished with a zig-zag stitch. The lengthwise grain of almost all bonded fabrics is very stable, so needs no special treatment. Crosswise or nearly crosswise seams in bonded knits need stay stitching to hold them in shape during assembly. Also, they often need staying with woven seam binding stitched into the permanent seam.

Seam edges are blended unevenly. Facing edge is always narrower than garment edge.

The crosswise seams in bonded woven fabrics have a stable crosswise grain and need no special treatment.

Finishing Touches

Buttonholes may be made on a zig-zag machine or with a buttonholer attachment, but a woven fabric should be used between the garment and the facing.

Suit collars and lapels should be interfaced with lightweight hair canvas. Dresses should be interfaced with lightweight fabric. High rounded necklines may be faced with color-coordinated taffeta instead of self-fabric to reduce bulkiness.

A French hem is most suitable for bonded fabric. To make one, pink the free edge of the hem. Stitch close to the pinked edge with stitch length set at 20. For tweeds or lacy fabrics, stitch bias seam binding to hem edge. Hem by hand with a catch-stitch below the hem edge, between the hem and the skirt.

$166,467 DAMAGE SUIT FILED HERE

A suit for $166,467.50 in damages styled Clyde E. Thompson of Gatesville vs. Virginia Rössiter of Canyon— has been filed in 52nd District Court here.

The suit stems from an auto accident on Gatesville's Main Street on Sept. 23, 1966. The petition alleges that a car driven by Thompson's mother, Mrs. W. J. Thompson, was struck from behind by car driven by Mrs. Rössiter. Clyde Thompson was riding in the front seat of the Thompson car and sustained a back injury.

Thompson had been confined to a wheel chair as a result of the 1966 accident and had been undergoing therapy treatment at a Temple hospital. LEARN TO WATER SKI IN YOUR LIVING ROOM

You can learn to water ski in your living room, says Tom Dorwin, former midwest champion and advisor to Evinrude Motors.

Dorwin recommends the "dryland technique" as the fastest way for beginners to learn this thrilling and challenging water sport. It's actually simulated skiing, said Dorwin. "The dryland technique gives you the feel of skiing and instills confidence."

With the help of a friend, preferably an experienced skier, you can learn the basics in a few minutes anywhere—even in your living room. All you need is a pair of water skis and a tow line.

Before instruction begins, do a few deep knee bends. This will loosen up your leg muscles and sharpen your sense of balance.

Ski bindings are two pieces of molded rubber. The front piece is stationary; the heel piece slides forward on "runners" for a snug, comfortable fit. If you are near water, wet the bindings and your feet. Your feet will slide into place easier when wet.

Grasp the tow line handle while your instructor holds onto the tow line. He should be about six to eight feet away. Lower yourself into a sitting position. The skis should be positioned about six inches apart, your knees together and arms outstretched. If done correctly, the tow line handle will be in front of your knees. This simulates your "starting position" in the water.

Have your instructor pull you into the standing position, knees slightly flexed. The feeling is the same you'll experience when an outboard boat pulls you to the surface. Don't try and stand up; let your instructor do all the work. Repeat the process several times, at least one half dozen.

"It's so simple, people have a hard time believing that it works," says Dorwin. According to the champion, don't be skeptic. It really does.
